5. Self-control or self-mastery. This means more than presence of mind. It means such a mastery over the faculties and feelings that they cannot be thrown into panic, or roused into riotous revolt. Self-control is the first and fundamental condition of controlling others. The teacher ought neither to be forced into mirth, nor driven to a show of anger without his own consent. Offended, surprised, shocked, insulted, or amused he must be able to keep silent except when the calm reason bids him speak, and as it bids. It is the immobility of the Sphinx's face that makes it seem so wondrous strong and impressive. Self-control is the accepted sign of strength of character. It is the safeguard against inner weakness and outer force.

These five personal attributes, thus described, mark the teacher's character and make up his power. Let him study and develop them until he feels their conscious strength. Their absence is failure—their presence is splendid success.

II. Special acquirements are the teacher's implements; his personal characteristics are the parts of himself. As the soldier without weapons, the mechanic without tools, and the farmer without seed, so is the teacher without knowledge, learning, wisdom. Here are some of the forms of knowledge which make up and mark the true Sunday-school teacher

1. General knowledge of the Bible, its histories, doctrines, precepts, and promises—knowledge of God's works, will, and ways. This implies a study of Bible lands, Bible time, Bible people, Bible customs. All these throw brilliant side lights on the sacred pages, and make its dark places plain, its rough passages smooth. The teacher should be a fountain—the fuller the better—not to deluge the pupils with a continuous outpour, but to give resource and power to the instruction. The full teacher teaches easily and with a constant charm. He may say little, but the little means much. The height and force of the fountain-head is felt in the tiniest outflow.

2. Knowledge of the day's lesson is knowledge of the task in hand. Its necessity needs no proof. How shall one walk who sees neither the path nor the end of his journey? The teacher who must learn the lesson and teach it at the same moment carries double weight. He is like one required to look before and behind him at once. His force is wasted in quick turning, and he sees nothing. His general knowledge may aid him to say something, but the lesson of the hour is lost wholly, or is so belittled as to give no hint of its real power or richness. The deep is made shallow; the grand is turned into the grotesque. The Bible is discredited by its seeming lack of high and divine import. The unprepared teacher sits before his class, a spectacle of sorry weakness, when he should have come full of the play of conscious power. Like Samson shorn of his locks, he grinds wearily in the mill. Of the form and fullness of this lesson knowledge we must write elsewhere.

3. Picturesque knowledge. In this the power of illustration dwells. The world is full of similitudes—of subtle and beautiful correspondences. Each spiritual truth has its counterpart in the material. Every fact reflects the likeness of some other fact. It is by the key of resemblance that we unlock the door of the unknown, and enter ourselves, or lead in others. The great thinkers, writers, teachers, are always imaginative, picturesque, poetic. They see truth in its many-sided relationships and correspondences. Jesus taught in parables. The kingdom of heaven, as it stood in his thought, had its likenesses everywhere; and the delighted hearers said, "Never man spake like this man." Look long enough into the open fire, and one sees castles and armies and cities in sheen. These are fantastic and fleeting images. Let the teacher gaze deep and long into the verses of his lesson, and he will see the mustering there of God's chariots and horsemen of fire. The real imagery of truth will rise before him, and he too will teach in parables.

At the last State Convention of the Nebraska, Sunday school Association, a committee was appointed to prepare a course of reading for the Sunday-school teachers of the state. The following outline has been prepared, and is recommended to classes, or for private study: 1. Our Material: or child nature. Notice in reading of child nature, the different faculties of the mind,—perception, memory, imagination, reason, the emotions, conscience, and the order of their development; and the methods of training each aright. Read Alden's Handbook on Teaching, pp. 54 to 91. 2. Our work: the aim. Remember, it is not conversion only, but Christian education. Read Alden's Handbook on Teaching, pp. 137 to 156, and 168 to 173. 3. Our Instrument: the Book. (a) Names and order of the books of the Bible. Commit them to memory. See contents in first pages of our common Bible. (b) The Bible: its divisions, ancient and modern. Notice the ancient divisions, as of the Old Testament into The Law, the Prophets, and the Psalms; and the modern, as Old Testament and New Testament, and the Old Testament into three classes,—historical, poetical, prophetic; and the New Testament into three classes,—historical, epistolary, prophetic or apocalyptic. Read Hovey and Gregory's Normal Class Manual, pp. 29 to 34. (c) By whom, when, and why each Bible book was written. Find out the number of the different writers; the object for which each book was originally written; the language in which they were written, and when. 4. Our Wisdom: how to use the instrument. (a) Use of Bible helps, as reference Bibles, dictionaries, etc. Read Nicholls' Introduction to the Bible, pp. 91 to 96. (b) How to prepare a lesson. Notice how to gain.

(1) The meaning of the words and phrases (2) The chief thought of the lesson. (3) The light of other Scriptures on the text. (4) A knowledge of the portion of the lesson specially fitted for the class and for each pupil. Read Hart's Sunday-school Idea, pp. 210 to 220. (c) How to secure the attention of a class. Read Hart's Sunday school Idea, pp. 177 to 188. (d) How to teach by questioning. Learn how to ask. (1) Questions of examination, —to see what the pupils know. (2) Questions of instruction, leading pupils to find out new truths. (3) Questions to be answered in concert. (4) Promiscuous questions, of a pupil here and there. (5) Questions so that pupils will be awakened to ask questions in return. Read Hart's Sunday-school Idea, pp. 157 to 176. (e) How to teach by illustrations. Study: (1) The right use of illustrations. (2) Where and how to find good illustrations. Read Freeman's The Use of Illustrations. 5 Our Model: Jesus, the great teacher. Read the four Gospels, and Alden's Hand book on Teaching, pp. 131 to 137.

THE CHURCH NEWS

JULY 15, 1881.

No communications can be inserted, in any current number, which reach the office after the 10th of the month.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

RESOLVED, That the CHURCH NEWS be made the official medium of communication between the Treasurers of the different Diocesan Funds and the Parishes, and that the Treasurers be instructed to receipt for all payments to the several funds through the NEWS.

RESOLVED, That it be made the duty of the several rectors and missionaries of the Diocese to extend to the utmost of their power the circulation of the Diocesan paper, the CHURCH NEWS.

THE marriage license law seems thus far to be mainly made use of by those of foreign birth. A closer examination of its provisions shows that it is loosely framed, and bears heavily upon the recorder. He can only object to issuing the license providing that the parties are below age. He cannot object, however many other impediments appear to marriage; and therefore the Church clergyman cannot rest with the license necessarily, since the parties may have been divorced on utterly inadequate grounds as the Scripture and the Church look at it, or may be of near kindred. Moreover the recorder may not swear the persons to tell the truth, and may be applied to by persons from any other county. The law is a great protection to the minister, but will need revision.

CHURCH SCHOOL BUILDING ASSOCIATION.

The Sisters School has for years been overcrowded, and last year some had to be turned away for want of room. This is in every way bad for the influence and prospects of the School. Besides, the building, while as convenient for the purpose as any house not originally erected for the school could be, is not now as perfectly adapted as a growing school having to meet comparisons with older and better equipped institutions should be. The tenure of the building being too, only for short leases, with danger of sale at any time, gave little encouragement for improvements.

Moved by these considerations some friends of the School have long been thinking how they could best serve its interests, and place the work on a more assured basis. A variety of propositions have been made, but about a month ago the Rev. Mr. Reed, of Mt. Calvary Church, called together a number of gentlemen, and they determined to form a joint stock corporation for the purpose of buying the present building, or purchasing some lots on which a proper building should be placed for the school. It was thought that the neighborhood of the Lafayette Park would be the best location for the school. The stock was placed at $50,000, of which they received at once some large subscriptions.

The articles have been drawn up with a name as above, and probably before this time the certificate of incorporation has been issued. The original incorporators are Joseph W. Branch, Benj. E. Reed, Chas. S. Freeborn, Jno. M. Gilkerson, Wm. H. Thomson, Isaac M. Mason, and Geo. S. Case, of whom the first is President, and the second, Secretary. The hot weather has come on so quickly since the papers were gotten out that but little work has been done on the securing of subscriptions, and little is likely to be done now until September. In the meantime the Sisters have leased their present building for another year. They have instant need of more rooms, and we hope they can have them by the time the next term opens.

There has been wide expression of interest in this work, wherever it has been mentioned. The Church's training in a full, adequate way of its daughters, is a most important task. None returns such results immediately for labor and money expended. The education must not be, as it need not be, narrower, or less exact, because it is under the Church's care. But the intellectual training will not be the less satisfactory if it is accompanied by a gentle distributed churchly teaching, and the adornment of the character by refined Christian influence, and a care and attention only less affectionate than that of home.

The great work however required to give practical expression and result to this matter, is the patient, persistent securing of subscriptions to the stock. Here is where the test will come. They are in shares of $100 each. All who are at all inclined to put this most important work on a solid, permanent footing, whether they have daughters to educate or not, will be doing a right thing, and one that is urgently needed by sending in advance to the Rev. Mr. Reed, notice of their disposition to subscribe for the object any amount for which they are disposed.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child to our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—The clerical exodus to Europe this summer has been greater than ever. Bishops Niles, Cox, and Dudley are over, and Drs. Morgan, Hodges, Fair, Tiffany, Cooper, Stocking and scores of others.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland is not at all well. He, with his family are at Geneva Lake. Mrs. Holland is so ill that after spending the summer in Wisconsin, it is thought necessary that she should go south for the winter.

—Bishop Kerfoot is likely never to be able to resume his duties in his Diocese, and Bishop Wilmer is so severely sick as to be compelled to withdraw his appointments for the present.

—The Rev. Mr. Siebold, once of Carthage in this Diocese, and who went to the Romanists for awhile, and then on wiser thoughts returned, is now in a parish in Iowa.

—Bishop Lay is in New Hampshire; Bishop Stevens in Davenport, Iowa; Bishops Jaggar and Paddock, of Massachusetts, in Maine; Bishop Huntington on his farm, in Hadley, Mass.; Bishop Howe, of Pennsylvania, at his birth place in Rhode Island; Bishops Quintard and McLaren are in New Jersey.

—The telegraph just informs us of the death, on the 10th inst., of Bishop Kerfoot, of Pittsburg. This was not an altogether unexpected announcement, as the Bishop had been incapacitated for duty for nearly two years. The trouble was connected with the brain, and was nearly like what two of his brothers had died of. He was over 60 years old, and of remarkable vigor of intellect and goodness of heart.

GENERAL NEWS.

—In the Diocese of Illinois it was feared that with the restriction of its limits by the setting off of two other Dioceses in the State, their finances would become embarrassed, as they had no Episcopal Fund. But this year the treasurer reported a balance of $1,500 in hand, and the Bishop's salary was increased from $4,000 to $5,000. In the pledges of the parishes for diocesan missions, one parish went as high $600. The Convention decided that having submitted the proposed powers of the Provincial Synod to the General Convention for approval, and the Convention failing to approve of that power asked for concerning the Appellate Court, they could as a Province go no further in it. They however propose to establish such Court, as being within Diocesan control.

—Rev. Dr. J. H. Hartzell, formerly Pastor of the Church of the Messiah, (Universalist) Buffalo, now a candidate for orders, writes: "My change was not made upon the impulse of the moment, but after profound study and careful meditation. I have always admired the services and usages of the Episcopal Church, which, with its orders and sacraments, have come down to us from the Apostolic Church. It is so orderly and decorous, so solemn and impressive in all its services and ceremonies; conservative enough for the most conservative, liberal enough for the most liberal, and remaining full of vigor and freshness while empires decay and kingdoms drop into ruin."

—The diocesan Convention of Vermont has raised a fund of $25,000, the income of which is to go toward the salary of the Bishop of the diocese.

—A lawyer in Kentucky writes a letter recently in one of our Church papers, telling of his experience in his town. He has acted as lay reader there for thirteen years, and had a Sunday School and lay and frequent clerical services and many baptisms and confirmations. They had it once in contemplation to build a good Church, but refrained, and let three denominations come in after them, organize and build. The lay reader did not see his way to encourage our own people to organize and build, but went around and attended the other services, and did, he says, all he could to encourage and aid them. And yet he looks upon the Church's present homeless and disorganized condition with complacency, and thinks he acted in the best way. There are some people who stand so straight that they lean backward.

—The immediate occasion of the adoption of the King James' version as the standard Bible in our Church, was the putting out of an edition of the Bible which in Acts vi. 3, was changed from "Whom ye may appoint over this business," to "whom we may appoint." This important difference, involving the question of ordination, whether made intentionally or not, brought about the authorizing of the King James version.

—The Convention of Central New York recognized Calvary Church, Syracuse, as the Bishop's Church, and appropriated $500 to be used by the Bishop to maintain its work.

—The Church's Centennial in Connecticut is to be marked by increasing the Episcopal Fund to $50,000.

—The Baltimore Church News has not been able to maintain itself, and is suspended.

—At a late Reformed Episcopal Council there were six Bishops and 27 Presbyters present, a good deal of a good thing, one Bishop to every four Presbyters and a half.

—Of the twenty-four chaplains in the navy ten are Church clergymen. Of the last ten appointed all but one were Churchmen. The last appointment made was a son of Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson.

BOOK NOTICES.

Lectures on the First Prayer Book of Edward the Sixth, by the Rev. Morgan Dix, D. D. These are the series of lectures delivered by the Rector of Trinity Church, New York, during the last season of Lent. Like all the writings of Dr. Dix, they are terse and strong, and lift the facts of history into new and warmer lights. He does not write, he says, these lectures with any idea that the First Prayer Book will be replaced, and its disused ceremonial resumed. He thinks that this Book more clearly represents the principles of the English reformation. Pp. 103. E. & J. B. Young & Co., New York.

The July number of the North American Review bears the usual characteristics of timeliness. Carl Shurz leads off with a suggestive paper on "Present Aspects of the Indian Problem," in which he discusses the Indian obstacle in the way of the country's development, the harmonizing of the habits, occupations and interests of the red men, the necessity of educating their youth, the making of the men themselves small land proprietors, and the offering of inducements to them to sell for a fair compensation the lands they do not cultivate. Next, a caustic writer gives the views of "A Yankee Farmer" on "The Religious Conflicts of the Age," to the discomfiture of the modern Agnostic, Moralist and Evolutionist. Another trenchant article "The Power of Public Plunder," by James Parton, which appeals to the sons of our men of character and wealth, on patriotic grounds, to enter into politics, and become the safeguards of their country against rings and bosses. Mr. Henry George dwells on "The Common Sense of Taxation." "The Cost of Cruelty" is presented by Mr. Henry Bergh, and "A Study of Tennyson" comes from the pen of Mr. Richard Henry Stoddard.

The July Wide Awake is well calculated to make the boys and girls impatient for vacation-time; and the boys especially will pronounce the Frontispiece by Miller & Hayden, "A Summer Day," almost as good as a day in the country itself. They will also admire the spirited story of "The Academy Boat Race," by Mary Densel, and will sympathize with the young hero of Mr. Stewart's capital story of "What Made Sam Sick." Rev. Edward Everett Hale interests both boys and girls in the lessons of Lord Beaconsfield's career "Sharon" continues the fortunes of Dr. Garde's Little Girl, and "Having His Own Way" gives the further history of the two Honor Brights. Mrs. Diaz's "Polly Cologne" is, of course delightful. But the seasonable attraction of the number, of course, is the children's Operetta of Dragon fly Day. We predict a great popularity for it at summer resorts, as the music is simple and the scenery and costumes practicable anywhere. Wide Awake is only $2.00 a year. 20 cents a number. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

The Century Company. (Formerly Scribner & Co.) The name of the corporation formerly known as Scribner & Co. (publishers of Scribner's Monthly, and St. Nicholas), has now been changed to The Century Co. The title of Scribner's Monthly will become The Century, with the next volume. St. Nicholas is slightly changed as to its sub title, being now St. Nicholas, an Illustrated Magazine for Young Folks. The July numbers of these magazines are the first to bear the new corporate imprint.

Scribner for July contains a paper of special and timely interers, "The People's Problem," in which the writer takes the ground that the time has come for the people of this country to exercise their right to "alter the government."

Besides a wealth of literary and illustrated matter, there are also, in this number, the concluding chapters of two brilliant novelettes, "Madame Delphine," by George W. Cable (begun in May), and "A Fearful Responsibility," by W. D. Howells (begun in June). The May, June and July numbers, containing these two complete novelettes are offered for $1.00

On the 25th of June was published the July number of St. Nicholas, and contains many brilliant features for vacation time, including chapters of two capital serials for boys, by Rossiter Johnson and W. O. Stoddard; "How to Stock and Keep a Fresh-Water Aquarium;" a full-page portrait of Dengremont, the boy violinist.

Price of Scribner's Monthly, $4.00 a year; 35 cents a number. St. Nicholas, $3.00 a year; 25 cents a number. Sold everywhere.

The Standard Series, No. 63, is the Persian Queen, &c., by Rev. E. P. Thwing. 10 cents. The subscription price per year for 52 numbers is $10, and this will furnish in readable shape a long series of most valuable works. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

The Problem of Human Life Here and Hereafter.—This remarkable book which we have examined with some care, reviews most successfully the works of Darwin, Huxley, Tyndall, Haeckel, Helmholtz, and Mayer, demonstrating, as we think, the utter fallacy of scientific materialism. The book challenges the fullest examination and clearly annihilates the conclusions of Darwinism as a scientific theory. The revised edition is a large octavo volume of 528 pages, with the portraits of the six distinguished scientists. Richly bound in cloth, gold and black, by mail, postpaid, $2.00. Hall & Co., publishers, 26 E. Ninth St., New York.

Thomas Whittaker has in preparation a number of noteworthy books. Among those we look for with much interest are Canon Luckock's "Four Epochs of Worship in the Church of England," by the scholarly author of "After Death;" Grant's "Church Seasons Historically and Poetically Illustrated;" being an entirely new edition of a much valued work; A Memoir of Bishop McIlwain, by his intimate friend, Canon Carns, of England; and a new Church History, entitled, "Ecclesia Anglicana, a History of the Church of Christ in England, from the earliest to the present time," by Arthur Charles Jennings, M. A., of Jesus College, Cambridge.

Studies on the English Reformation. This, the first series of lectures on the Bishop Paddock foundation, before the General Theological Seminary, was most worthily delivered by the Bishop of Connecticut, who both makes clear and adorns whatever he touches. The occasion did not allow of the introduction of the minute details and amplification which would have found place in a historical treatise. We have what at times is better, the clearly stated results of study, and the broad generalization of a mind familiar with the subject. The volume will be equally valuable to the younger student, as it will guide him to further study, and also to the older theologian, as making clear the principles running through the great mass of materials read. The matter being good, the style is quite as good. $1.50. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

"I BEG YOUR PARDON."

A civil word is the cheapest thing in the world, and yet it is a thing which the young and happy rarely give to their inferiors. See the effect of civility on a rough little street boy. The other evening, a young lady abruptly turned the corner and very rudely ran against a boy who was small and ragged and freckled. Stopping as soon as she could, she turned to him and said: "I beg your pardon. Indeed, I am very sorry." The small, ragged, and freckled boy looked up in blank amazement for an instant; then, taking off about three-fourths of a cap, he bowed very low, smiled until his face became lost in the smile, and answered: "You can hev my paroin, and welcome, miss; and yer may run agin me and knock me clean down, an' I wont say a word." After the young lady passed on, he turned to a comrade and said, half apologetically: "I never had any one ask my parding, and it kind o' took me off my feet."

A WORKING PARISH.

The revival of the Church of the Advent, Boston, is the greatest achievement of the American Ritualists. As the story is told by The Boston Herald, Father Grafton began his work in 1871, with no brilliant prospects. The parish had, for various reasons, become much run down. Its actual communicants numbered hardly more than 200 persons. Father Grafton has three assistant clergy and the precentor. They established themselves in a house placed at their disposal by Dr. Shattuck, the senior Warden and have lived there in communion ever since. Lay Brothers attend to the duties of the household; each priest has his own room, the ample library on the second floor, stocked with one of the most valuable theological collections to be found in the United States, is their common parlor; behind the library is the private chapel, and below are the reception room and refectory, arranged as such rooms are, where community rules are observed. No money is needlessly spent on furnishings. It is evident at a glance that these men have something to live for besides the enjoyable things of this world, and if one should look at the week's bulletin in the hall, he would see that not an hour in any day of the week, was one of the clergy unemployed. There are no wives, no children, no servants, no worldly distractions of any sort. The clergy wear cassocks both indoors and out. It is the habit of the brotherhood. It need not be a surprise to any one to find that, under such auspices, the Advent Parish has picked up from 200 to 850 communicants in eight years, or that its agencies for helping people in their souls and bodies have multiplied in every direction. The whole parish is one vast hive of spiritual industry. The Bowdoin street meeting-house long since became too small for what was going on in it, and a new church became a necessity. The ground for this was broken in 1879. The chancel end of the new church was completed shortly after, and the house is now going up as rapidly as bricks and mortar can be put together; going up, too, from the savings of the whole parish, and soon to be completed without a dollar of debt.—[Christian Union.

The creditors of Mrs. Howe's Woman's Bank, of Boston, will receive five cents on the dollar.

"I'm all Played Out," is a common complaint. If you feel so get a package of Kidney Wort and take it and you will at once feel its tonic power. It renews the healthy action of the kidneys, bowels, and liver, and thus restores the natural life and strength to the weary body. It can now be had in either dry or liquid form, and in either way is always prompt.—Bedford Standard.

BISHOP DUNLOP IN VEGAS.

Bishop G. K. Dunlop preached at the Episcopal church both morning and evening on Sunday. He delivered two of the best sermons ever preached in Las Vegas, and there was a large attendance at each service. The text of the morning service was from St. Luke 15 : 31 and 32, on the Prodigal Son. Bishop Dunlop sustained a novel position in an equally masterly manner of treatment. He maintained that the elder brother of the prodigal, who remained at home, was the better fellow, and a type of the Christian. It is not necessary, as he holds, that one condition to conversion is that the candidate must first experience a season of prodigality. The text of the evening was from St. John 3:8, on "The Signs and Proofs of a Spiritual Life."

More copies of the Scriptures were sold in Japan in 1880 than in all the years since it was open to Western civilization.

—King David had an "agnostic" in his mind when he wrote, "The fool hath said in his heart, 'There is no God.'" "Agnostic" means a "fool," a "know nothing." The New York Sun recently said: "An agnostic is a man who doesn't know whether there is a God or not, doesn't know whether he has a soul or not, doesn't know whether there is a future life or not, doesn't believe that any one else knows any more about these matters than he does, and thinks it a waste of time to try to find out."

—"How do you like the Episcopalian service?" asked Jones. "Never heard it," replied Fogg. "I dropped in at one of the churches last Sunday. It was quite early, so I began reading the service. I didn't read far, though, before I found that it would never do for me. So I came out. 'Why, what was the trouble?' "Too many collections." "Too many collections?" "Yes. On almost every page it said 'collect.' One collection is all I can afford to respond to. Must be awfully expensive to be an Episcopalian."

THIS WOULD I DO.

[BY CONSTANCE FAUNT LE ROY RUNCIE.]

If I were a rose
This would I do:
I would lie on the white neck of her I love
And let my life go out upon the fragrance
Of her breath.

If I were a star
This would I do:
I would look deep down into her eyes,
Into the eyes I love, and learn there
How to shine!

Were I a truth, strong as the Eternal One,
This would I do:
I would live in her heart, in the heart
I know so well,
And be at home.

If I were a sin,
This would I do;
I would fly away, and tho' her soft hand
In pity were stretched out,
I would not stay but fly and leave her pure.

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL CURES! WHY?

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:

Engene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being bloated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "harrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Coto of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in tin cans, one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated, for those that cannot readily prepare it.

It acts with equal efficiency in either form. GET IT AT THE DRUGGISTS. PRICE, $1.00

WELLS, RICHARDSON & Co., Prop's, (Will send the dry post-paid.) BURLINGTON, VT.

MISCELLANY.

— A Baptist minister of Milwaukee, in conversation with some of his people, said, that he did not think it much of a gain to make converts of rich men, unless their "pocketbooks were baptised with them."

— Announcement is made in an exchange of a series of lectures to children on "Sweet Peas," viz: Patience, punctuality, politeness, pluck, perseverance, patriotism and principle.

— Prayer After Services.—Receive, O Lord, for thy dear Son's sake, my unworthy part in the glorious worship of Thy Church. Forgive my coldness, inattention, and imperfect understanding thereof. May Thy presence abide with me and make me to be a doer of Thy Word and not a hearer only: through Jesus Christ our Lord.—Amen.

— Dr. Woods, of Andover, was once giving his class some instruction about preaching in such a manner as to gain attention and applause. Young gentlemen, "said he, it's all contained in a nutshell. When you go to preach in the city, take your best coat; but when you go to preach in the country, take your best sermon."

--The North-East says: "A small, independent church often has a harder time to do its work than a successful mission. By a determined effort it has shaken itself loose from missionary support. Yet such action, which should be much to its credit, is often a burden and a source of reproach. The parish can just meet salaries and running expenses. For missions and purposes beyond, it seems unable to do any more. The surrendered $200 of missionary money is just the measure of its extra capacity. Continuing a missionary station it could have had an outside reputation for liberality, where now it is thought mean."

A Christian Forethought.

The RT. REV. BISHOP POTTER, when asked his opinion of Life Insurance, promptly said: "It may be employed advantageously for the benefit of families and individuals of all classes of society, as well for those in affluence as for those in moderate circumstances. All may, by the exertion of a little forethought and a small outlay, PROTECT THEIR FAMILIES FROM WANT."

The States of Pennsylvania and New York, through their Superintendents of Insurance, aided by a corps of eighty experts, after an exhaustive examination of eight months duration, have recently (June, 1881), published elaborate reports of the past history and present condition of the great MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, of New York, and officially declare that

 Its liabilities are.....$78,730,354.00
 Its surplus was.....$12,105,883.39
 The receipts for 1880 were $17,140,694, and the disbursements $15,777,968

In regard to the reduction of premium rates, about which there has been so much discussion, the report says: Directly bearing on the subjects of dividends are the reduction in rates adopted by the company, and the questions growing out of it, which have been widely discussed as to the preservation of equities between the old and the new policy holders. Whether injustice was done to any of the old members of the company has been carefully inquired into during this investigation, and the finding is best described by the phrase, "nobody hurt." It was a matter of doubt whether the department investigation should extend to the rate charged for premiums where no allegation was made that in any case the sum was below the net premium fixed by law, and especially doubtful after the report adopted by the legislature of this State, deciding that ample authority was given by the charter of the company to proceed as they had done. Nevertheless, it was made a matter of inquiry, and the conclusion heretofore stated is fully justified. And in relation to the general management of the MUTUAL'S affairs by President Winston and his associates, the report speaks in terms of warmest eulogy, tempered by expressions of judicial gravity.

In the words of a distinguished minister of the gospel: "Life Insurance, IF YOU HAVE CHOSEN YOUR COMPANY DISCREETLY, is subject to no commercial risk. It is as nearly SURE as anything earthly can well be."

This official endorsement, and these official figures, showing the company under consideration to be not only the oldest but the largest in the world, by many millions, clearly point to the Mutual as the one where christian men, "by a little FORETHOUGHT and a small outlay, can protect their FAMILIES FROM WANT."

COME TO WASHINGTON, NEW JERSEY, AND SELECT AN ORGAN IN PERSON. YOU ARE CORDIALLY WELCOME.

You will be afforded an opportunity to inspect everything and satisfy yourself in every particular. Beware! I am hesitatingly advise those who are about to order from other parties, not to do it. Order only the latest and best of all Organs. If you have already ordered, countermand your order, it may not be too late yet. An Organ lasts a lifetime, get only the latest style and best music combined. Remit by Post Office Money Order, Express Prepaid, Bank Draft or Register Letter. Money refunded and freight charges paid if all is not as represented. It is a well-known fact that I am the man that had the nerve to reduce the price of Pianos and Organs, in the face of untold abuse from the monopolist. The public should remember this and patronize the original not the imitator. REMEMBER any offer made (by imitators) no matter how low, I can beat it. WATCH THESE WORDS CAREFULLY.—I dare not ship you a poor instrument as it is not possible for me to know who will test it. Agents invariably conceal defects and claim advantages for Organs they sell. My instruments must be good enough to silence maligners and defamers. They invariably prove satisfactory. Thousands are now in use. IT IS A FACT that my business has increased to such proportions that even now with a factory having ONE AND A HALF ACRES OF SPACE within the walls of building, filled with skilled artisans and best machinery is the reason I can offer this Organ so low. I am now enlarging my factory TO OVER DOUBLE ITS PRESENT SIZE. I should be glad to have you come here and visit my establishment.

(From Am. Journal of Medicine.)

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has, without doubt, treated and cured more cases than any living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing, successfully cured by him. He has published a valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their express and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address Dr. AB. MESEROLE, No 96 John street, New York.

FREE! The GREATEST BOOK OF MODERN TIMES!

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT, that great work which has been so anxiously looked forward to and about which so much has been said and written, and upon which forty learned and eminent divines have labored for ten years, has just been published. It is conceded to be the most important work of modern times, and so great has been the interest excited that the first edition of the Cambridge and Oxford Universities of England, is 500,000 copies. It will undoubtedly find its way into nearly every family in the English-speaking world. Leading clergymen, like Beecher, Storrs, Sims and others, predict that in time it will supersede the present version, and assert that a revision of the present New Testament was urgently needed, because many of the early manuscripts of the Scriptures, unknown at the time the present version was made, have since come to light, and likewise on account of the many changes in the English language. It is therefore to be expected that a much better understanding of the true meaning of the Scriptures can be obtained by reading the Revised New Testament.

SPECIAL OFFER.—We will send a copy of the Revised New Testament (the genuine and only authorized edit. on published by the Cambridge and Oxford University presses of England, and every copy bearing the certificate of the revisers as to its correctness), handsomely bound in Flexible Cloth, and printed in clear, bold and handsome type, on fine paper FREE to all who send 45 cents in postage stamps for a Six Months' subscription to the Firebrand at home, a large and elegant magazine of 36 large 3-column pages, beautifully illustrated, devoted to Choice Literature, Useful Knowledge, Romance, Amusement, Agriculture, Fashion, and everything of an up-to-date character, and instruct the whole family. In other words, upon receipt of 45 cents we will send the magazine for six months, and a copy of the Revised New Testament, free, as a premium. The regular price of the magazine alone for six months is 50 cents, but we make this very liberal offer in order to introduce it into new homes. Remember, it is not the cheap paper cover edition of the Testament that we offer, but the handsome one, elegantly bound in flexible cloth. As to our reliability, we refer to any bookseller or publisher of newspapers and magazines in this city. All should have a copy of the Revised New Testament. Write to our publishers, Messrs. L. M. Lupton, 27 Park Place, New York.

The Thirty-fourth year will begin September 7th, 1881.

All branches of an English, Commercial, Scientific and Classical course are thoroughly taught in this Institution. The Faculty are the best of Instructors, who are ever ready and willing to devote their time to the welfare of their pupils, and scholars will find everything here just as advertised. Good business education is imparted, and students are prepared to matriculate in any college in the land. St. Paul's offers superior advantages this year to its students. As empowered in its charter by legislative enactment it will hereafter confer degrees (A. B., A. M.; &c.) upon those students who have completed the collegiate course. It is the only school in the Diocese that has this authority. The privilege of graduating is thus extended this year to old students of the Institution who wish to return and complete the course. A student can enter any one department and graduate in it alone. And at the close of the year the student who can pass satisfactory examination in all the studies of the year will receive a diploma as a testimonial of scholarship.

The school year consists of two terms of twenty weeks each.

SOHMER PIANOS

Square, Upright, Square, Grand, Cabinet Grand, Baby Brand, Parlor Grand, Concert Grand.

The demands now made by an educated musical public are so exacting, that very few Piano-forte Manufacturers can produce instruments that will stand the test which merit requires. SOHMER & CO., as Manufacturers, rank among this chosen few, who are acknowledged to be makers of standard instruments. In these days, when many manufacturers urge the low price of their wares rather than their superior quality as an inducement to purchase, it may not be amiss to suggest that, in a Piano, quality and price are too inseparably joined to expect the one without the other.

Every Piano ought to be judged as to the quality of its tone, its touch, and its workmanship; if any one of these is wanting in excellence, however good the others may be, the instrument will be imperfect. It is the combination of these qualities in the highest degree that constitutes the perfect Piano, and it is this combination that has given the "SOHMER" its honorable position with the trade and the public.

GOOD AGENTS WANTED.

The Ladies' Sewing Companion is a very useful article. It hangs on the wall out of the reach of the "little ones." holds two thimbles, large or small, a velvet emery cushion for needles and pins, four spools of thread, and pair of scissors, making a very neat ornament for the room, as well as to help keep things in their respective places. This is the best selling article you EVER SAW. One little girl, nine years old, in Iowa, sold 50 in two days. One agent in Michigan has sold over 5,000 at retail since last July. Never was an article invented that sells equal to this. Everybody buys it. Sample, with best terms to agents, sent free on the receipt of 50 cts. in postage stamps or currency. Address all orders to F. M. VAN ETZEN, 238 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.

The Church News.

VOLUME 12, WHOLE NUMBER 140.

ST. LOUIS, AUGUST, 15, 1881.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

EPISCOPAL APPOINTMENTS.

- Sept. 8, Thursday a. m., Com. on Constitution and Canons.
14, Wednesday, School of the Good Shepherd.
15, Thursday, Carrollton.
16, Friday, Miami.
18, Sunday, Brunswick.
25, Sunday, Kirkwood.
27, Tuesday, DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

An offertory will be made at every service for Diocesan Missions, or some other canonical object; of which offertory the minister is requested to give notice.

A MEETING of the Trustees of St. Paul's College, Palmyra, will be held at the request of Dr. Wainwright during Convention week, on Monday night, September 26th, at half past seven, at the Bishop's Residence. A full meeting of the members is requested.

THE work of the Committee on the amendments and codification of the Constitution and Canons of the Diocese is being pushed as well and as fast as possible, and will be sent out to the parishes early next month, quite in time for it to have a thorough examination before Convention. It is requested that the copies sent be brought along to Convention, so as to be used intelligently in the action had there.

COLORED CHURCH PROPERTY.

The arrangement by which it was hoped that the property of our colored church on Sixth street near Cerre was rented and sold to a colored Methodist congregation has fallen through because of the collapse of the organization which agreed to purchase it, and this came about from internal wranglings. All this causes disappointment, as it prevents as early a consummation as had been hoped of the project to have our Church of the Good Samaritan in a commodious building in a proper quarter. But another anxiety is presented which is more immediate.

The property cost $5000, on which $2000 has been paid; the remainder has been on loan at eight per cent. That loan has now fallen due, and arrangements for it must be made before the 1st of September. It is owing to an estate which must then be settled, and so the loan cannot be renewed. It ought to be placed for six per cent. Of course, if $500 of the loan could be paid off, this could no doubt easily be done: but there is no money available for the purpose. The matter is giving the Bishop great uneasiness. If any person in this city can loan or knows of any one who will loan the amount on the property, and will let the Bishop know, he will be greatly obliged. The lot is seventy feet front, and the interest has always been promptly paid.

THE CONVENTION.

Most of our readers know that the next Convention of the Diocese meets in the Church of the Holy Communion, St. Louis, on Tuesday, the 27th of next month, at ten o'clock in the morning. If the parishes have not yet chosen delegates they had better do so at their next vestry meeting, and name persons who will most probably be able to attend. The adjournment will most likely be at some time on Thursday. Each parish and mission is entitled to one deputy, and for every fifty communicants above the first fifty an additional communicant. Except that no parish can have more than five. The deputy from a mission must be its warden. The form for certificate of appointment will be found in the Journal.

The blanks when received from the Secretary must be filled out accurately from the parish registers, and be ready to be handed in on the first day of Convention, or be sent to the Bishop before that time. It would be extremely desirable if amounts for the several treasurers of funds could be sent them a week before Convention, and so that they could be included in their reports. The Canonical collections, if before omitted, should now be made up for Diocesan Missions, Permanent Episcopal, Theological Education, and Aged and Infirm Clergy Funds. The amount of the Diocesan Assessment is all due, and should now be made up and sent in.

The offertory on the Sunday before Convention has for many years in the Diocese, in all the churches, been devoted to the traveling expenses of missionaries to the Convention. Those missionaries only would share in its benefits who had in their parishes made contributions for it. The parishes and stations will be called on as usual to pledge themselves for the amounts which they will raise for our missionary work in the Diocese. This is the only means by which we can secure a reliable basis on which to make appropriations for the year. If these fall short, the amount to be distributed by the Missionary Board is correspondingly less. All parishes should bring up the amounts for which they pledged themselves last year.

THE COWLEY CASE.

The secular newspapers now are having their tilt at the Church because the investigating committee appointed in New York to ascertain whether there were grounds and testimony for presenting the Rev. Edward Cowley for ecclesiastical trial came to the conclusion that, while there was cause for severe censure, they did not feel justified in presenting him for trial. It may be remembered that Mr. Cowley, as head of the Shepherds' Fold, a protectorate for children in New York, which received State aid, but was not amenable to the Church, was found guilty by the criminal court for cruelty to some of the children, and was imprisoned in the penitentiary for a year. After his release the question arose as to ecclesiastical trial and censure, with the result as above.

We have no intention to speak of the case on its merits; evidently the man did very wrongly, and was justly punished. Just as evidently it is natural for the daily papers in the lull of exciting topics during the summer to assume a degree of cheap indignation over the shortcomings of the Church as to its clerical discipline.

In the very nature of the case, there is very much more difficulty in securing the testimony of witnesses in a Church than in a secular trial. In this case the testimony on which Mr. Cowley was condemned, that of the children alleged to be ill-treated, was sought to be procured by the committee, but as they were in an institution not under its control, this was found to be impossible. They could not try a man by public rumor or the newspapers. Therefore they had to return the report, which they did. They could get no access to the evidence on which the person had before been found guilty. There is on all hands a concession of the candor and intelligence of the members of the committee. The Church must respect its own laws and methods, and the natural rights of its members, and cannot consent to let her courts abjectly register ditto, or me too, to tribunals held in other places and egged on by the clamors of secular newspapers.

It will, however, probably be found that, while a verdict of guilty could not technically under the circumstances be formally secured, an effectual censure will be laid upon one who has so cruelly abused his trust towards little children. He will not find opportunity within the Church to repeat such wrong actions.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

---The Rev. Thos. M. Thorpe of Nevada City went eastward two months ago to collect money for a church in Rich Hill, Bates county, or which a handsome lot had been offered, and also to deliver some lectures which he had prepared against the assumptions of Darwin and Spencer. Being east, he has concluded to remain there, and has accordingly resigned his mission in Nevada.

—The Rev. Mr. Woodruff, since he has removed to Marshall, has found his duty on the north side of the Missouri river at Carrollton very difficult and inaccessible. He has resigned it, and the Bishop has given it in charge of the Rev. Mr. Henry who lives in Plattsburg and has also charge of Brunswick.

—The Rev. Charles E. Cummings, since he has been in Kansas City, has deemed it best, as he was also advised by competent friends, to raise an amount with which he could put up a building in which to hold services. There was in that crowded city no suitable place in which services for his people could be held. He placed the amount needed when subscriptions would be payable at $1,000, and he will need more than this. During all this hot weather he has been engaged day by day in this hard work, of creating interest there in his work among the colored people, and securing subscriptions. He has now secured something over $650, which includes a handsome pledge of $50 from the Rev. Dr. Laws, an old acquaintance of Mr. Cummings in Columbia, the Resident of the State University, and a Presbyterian minister. He finds that his subscriptions now are going slow, while yet he needs nearly $300 more. If any one is willing to help this new and urgent work, they may send their amounts to the Bishop. It is a pity to let such work done during this hot weather come to no results for lack of a little more money.

—St. Paul's Church, South St. Louis, after having ineffectually addressed the Rev. Mr. Woodruff with overtures, has called the Rev. Wm. Brittain of Ohio to the Rectorship, and he has accepted the proffer.

—St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, has been ministered to regularly since its vacancy by the Rev. Mr. Evans of St. Paul's College, Palmyra. They called the Rev. Jesse B. Harrison of Tennessee, but he could not leave his present work. They are now in correspondence with the Rev. B. R. Phelps of New Jersey.

—The Rev. Dr. Wainwright has sold the portion of St. Paul's College property lying north of old chapel lot to the Fair Ground Association of that town for $1,200. This does not impair the property about or near the school buildings in the least.

—Two lots for Church purposes have just been bought in North Springfield, near the railroad, now connected to the old town by horse-cars.

—The Bishop made his customary midsummer visit to the mother parish of Pike county, St. John's Church, Prairieville, on Sunday, 31st ultimo. He had been visiting in the country for several days previously, and held service at Grace Church, Clarksville, on the Thursday before. The Sunday was a very pleasant day, and besides the immediate parishioners, some were present from twenty miles away. The occasion was, as it always is, a very interesting one. Two persons were confirmed. At night the Bishop drove into Louisiana, and preached at Calvary Church. There was an excellent congregation. Some good improvements have been made in the church. The chancel windows have been made to open, conducing to better ventilation, and the chancel rail removed.

—The Bishop made a visit of a number of days in Howard county the first week in this month, going to the houses of those whom he is scarcely able to meet at his regular visit. It was warm, but the hospitality of the Church people was warmer. He was to have held service at Old Franklin, but the building was pre-engaged.

—Trinity Church, Independence, has exchanged sixty feet of the depth of its extra deep lot for twelve more feet front. There is still 20 feet in the rear of the chancel.

—The Bishop passed a portion of the first week in this month with his friends in the parish at Boonville. Mrs. McPherson of the City Hotel gave him a reception on the evening of the 5th, which was largely attended. The large halls and grounds of the City Hotel were admirably adapted for the purpose. The moon was at its full. It was also the occasion of the hostess' birthday, and she received many tokens of affection from her friends. The parish is doing well under the Rev. Mr. Jones' care.

—The drought which has pervaded a considerable portion of the State has seriously affected the corn crop. It will affect railroad business for the coming year. There will be less produce to be carried.

—Gen. Simpson accompanies the Rev. Mr. Robert in his European trip. A good joke was played on him while they were visiting the crater of Vesuvius. One of the guides, seeing a mass of lava falling within a few feet of them, asked him as usual for a coin to dip into the burning lump to take away as a memento. He gave him a copper coin, but the guide shouted, "No, no, oro, oro, (gold, gold)." And so he handed him a napoleon ($4), which he carried off, and soon came back with, as he thought, the same piece, dipped in the burning lava, crying, "See, here it is; light your cigars with it," which they did, and then handed it to him. But when the General looked at it he said, "This is not the same coin which I gave you. This is not gold, but copper." "Oh," said the guide, "the sulphur has changed its color. There was no time then to examine it, but the General soon found that he had been duped, and in the meantime the guide had gotten away. The letter telling the above was written at Lago Maggiore on the 15th of July, and they expected to reach England about the first of this month.

—The Rev. Mr. Allen of Mexico expects to open his school early in September.

—The term at the Sisters' School begins on the 14th of September, and if any persons are thinking of entering their daughters, they had better make immediate application, or they may find that there is no room. The School was full last year. Circulars and all information may be had of Sister Catherine, No. 2029 Park Avenue, opposite the north side of Lafayette Park.

—The Domestic Committee of the Board of Missions has appropriated for this Diocese for the year beginning September 1st, $2,300, of which $1,800 is for general work, and $500 is for work among the colored people. This is the same amount as was appropriated to us last year.

—Christ Church, St. Joseph, proposes on the 14th proximo to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of its organization as a parish. This day is kept every year as the anniversary of the parochial societies.

—The Rev. W. D. Sartwelle has resigned the Rectorship of Calvary Church, Sedalia, preparatory to removing to Northern Texas, to take missionary work in his native State. He leaves his parish with the highest regard of his people. The lot on Broadway for the new church has been purchased for $4,250. It has a house on which can be made over into a Parsonage. The present parsonage has been sold for $2,250. The corner lot on which is the chapel has not been sold. Four thousand dollars in parish bonds have been executed and taken up toward the proposed new church. It is not likely that the vacancy will continue long. The parish is in an excellent condition.

—St. James Academy, Macon, begins its fall session on the fifth of next month. The Macon county subscription for the Johnson College business amounts now to $5,575, to which if the value of the present school property is added, the amount is $8,075, or $1,975 less than the $10,000 required. Of the $10,000 needed beyond the county, Mr. Talbot was able to secure in the time that he was able to give to the business $4,175 from twenty six persons in St. Louis. There yet remains, therefore, the larger part of this portion of the sum to be subscribed, to which business Mr. Talbot proposes to address himself in the fall in this city, in other parts of the Diocese, and in the East.

—The Rev. Dr. Ingraham became sick and has taken a rest and gone to his farm in Boone county. Dr. Berkley is away on a visit to Kentucky. Mr. Chesnutt ran down in health so that he was urged to go away for awhile, and has gone, with his family, to Nashotah. Mr. Wright has returned to St. John's and is very well.

—The New York Society for the Promotion of Christianity among the Jews, has requested permission to publish, in pamphlet form, for circulation, the Bishop's lecture delivered in this city a year ago last Winter, on the encouragements for a better understanding between Christianity and Judaism.

—Lots have been given for a Church in Luray, and it is hoped that this Fall we shall be able to proceed to the erection of a modest chapel. The Baptist church, which we have always used there, and the only place of worship in town, was injured by a recent storm.

—The Rev. Mr. Grantham, of Tennessee, held services for the Rev. Mr. Betts at Trinity Church and the Good Shepherd on Sunday, 7th inst., during the latter's absence in Chicago in attendance on the meeting of the Irish League.

—The Rev. Wm. Brittain, of Ohio, after giving services for three Sundays in South St. Louis, has gone to Nevada City, with a view to his possibly taking duty in that parish, which Mr. Thorpe has just vacated. Mr. T. is on Long Island.

A BEAUTIFUL INCIDENT.

On board the ill-fated steamer Seawanhaka was one of the Fisk University singers. Before leaving the burning steamer and committing himself to the merciless waves, he carefully fastened upon himself and wife life preservers. Some one cruelly dragged away that of the wife, leaving her without hope, except as she could cling to her husband. This she did, placing her hands firmly on his shoulders and resting there until her strength becoming exhausted, she said, "I can hold on no longer!" "Try a little longer," was the response of the wearied and agonized husband, "let us sing 'Rock of Ages.'" And as the sweet strains floated over those troubled waters, reaching the ears of the sinking and dying, little did they know, those sweet singers of Israel, whom they comforted.

But lo! as they sang, one after another of the exhausted ones were seen raising their heads above the overwhelming waves, joining with a last effort in this sweet, dying, pleading prayer:

"Rock of ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."

With the song seemed to come strength; another and yet another was encouraged to renewed effort.

Soon in the distance a boat was seen approaching! Could they hold out a little longer? Singing still, they tried, and soon with superhuman strength laid hold of the life boat, upon which they were borne in safety to land. This is no fiction; it was related by the singer himself, who said he "believed Toplady's sweet 'Rock of Ages' saved many another besides himself and wife."

—Mr. John P. Morton of Louisville, Ky., has given a large sum of money for the erection of a Church Infirmary in that city. The main edifice will be erected at once, and the wings afterward. The building when completed will be 80x300 feet. It is probable that $100,000 will be used upon the building, and $100,000 in its endowment. The main building will cost about $40,000. Mr. Morton is a member of Christ Church.

LETTER FROM MRS. DUNLOP.

SANTA FE., N. M., May 16th, 1881.

DEAR MISS EMERY:

You are in full sympathy with letters from busy workers, will you listen to one—not from an active life, but from an invalid's chamber?

We arrived here March 31st, and were kindly entertained until our house was in some degree of order. At the end of three days we reunited in our new home, which is nice and comfortable as houses go here. It is a mile from the Plaza, but then we have it all, while in the city, the old large adobe houses are shared by two or more families. It was impossible to obtain down town even the limited space—seven rooms—that we have here, the demand for houses being much beyond the supply.

The morning we came in, I could catch, from my couch, glimpses of the clear blue sky, the changing mountains, the tops of the long, low, flat, mud colored and dirt-roofed houses, with here and there the taller proportions of some stately Romish building; and over all there brooded such a deep calm, such apparent peace, that I almost fancied we were entering another, though different, "Sleepy Hollow."

I might tell you of the bright sunshine, the balmy air, the uncomfortable winds, and the lovely mountains that surround us like a hore-shoe, open on the south, but I must not tire you or myself. What I want to tell you is this. I have not been out of my room since coming here. I hope soon to be able to go about the house a little, but not for much more than this. I have been laid aside from active work for many years, and cannot expect strength or freedom from pain very soon, if ever. I cannot tell you how sad I have been to lie here idle and think of the little band of workers to whom I can give no helping hand.

But one day it occurred to me that by writing to you I might aid in the good work. Is it not possible that through you I may reach the ears and heart of some holy woman to whom God has given enough and to spare? We have in Santa Fe lots, and about $3,000. Will not some one send of her abundance and swell this sum, that we may have a fitting House in which to represent the "beauty of holiness?"

The Romanists are very strong here, and the Presbyterians and Methodists each have a church. Building is expensive, and $3,000 is hardly enough to erect and complete such a church as we wish to offer to our loving LORD and Master.

And now I cannot stop with Santa Fe—do not think my letter like Oliver's trencher—for there must still be others who would gladly give if they knew of our great needs.

Save in Las Vegas, New Mexico, there is not a church building in the whole of New Mexico and Arizona! Tell these good Christian women for me, especially tell those of them who, like Mary with the alabaster box, long to make some loving sacrifice, that we need a church now in Albuquerque and Silver City, New Mexico, and also at Tombstone, Tucson and Globe, Arizona, and that at all these points the faithful few are ready to do all in their power—but they cannot build without help. You know in new places the ability of the people is often exhausted when they have subscribed a portion of the Missionary's support.

At Cimarron we have a Clergyman, but he only came at Easter, and I do not know yet just what is wanted there. At Albuquerque is the tried and esteemed missionary, the Rev. Mr. Forrester, earnest and unceasing in devout labors, and of course very anxious for the church building. The Rev. Mr. La Tourrette, Chaplain at Ft. Union, is also of us, and my husband expects him here with the others at a Convocation next month. The only other Clergyman in the Jurisdiction is the Rev. Dr. McNamara, of Las Vegas, who divides his time between that place and this. He came to be with my husband from the Diocese of Nebraska, where he was honored and beloved, and I am thankful every day that he did so. He has already won the hearts of all here, and he and all of us long to see a handsome church in this, the oldest and quaintest of our national cities.

And should not church people everywhere long for the establishment of the Holy Catholic Church wherever souls are yearning for her privileges, and where many outside of any fold might be gathered in and numbered with her sons and daughters?

The Bishop has been on a visitation of Southern New Mexico and Arizona, and is to be home to-morrow. His address is Santa Fe, N. M. If any help comes from the Woman's Auxiliary I shall feel that my weak effort has not been in vain; and surely the blessing of our Father and our God will dwell with those who give liberally to extend His Kingdom, and for the honor of His Holy Name.

Yours truly,

MARY. C. DUNLOP

June 3d.—You will be sorry to learn that Dr. McNamara went home yesterday. He stayed three months in Las Vegas, still no sign of a home, so accepted a recall to his old parish where his family have been waiting all this while. So we must have rectories as well as churches.

Contributions for the work in Arizona and New Mexico will gladly be received by

Miss JULIA C. EMERY,
Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary,
21 Bible House, New York City.

EARLIER DAYS IN ST. LOUIS.

IV.

In the beginning of 1866, St. Luke's Hospital was begun in a rented building on Ohio street, in the southern part of the city. A project of this kind had been long contemplated, but the immediate occasion of beginning the work was the coming of a clergyman with medical skill to the city. His deposition from the ministry within a year for crime, affected unfavorably, for a time, the work. In 1870 it was removed to the corner of Sixth and Elm, and in the Fall of '72 the internal care of the Hospital was placed in the hands of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd. In 1873 the Hospital leased, for two years, the building, 913 Pine street. At the end of this time it removed to its present location on the corner of Tenth and St. Charles streets.

On the 4th of September, 1870, Mount Calvary Church was organized in a school house on Compton Hill, and on the 16th of February of the following year their church on Grand Avenue was consecrated, being paid for, built at a cost of $10,000. In 1878 the congregation removed into the church which they built upon the lot on the corner of Jefferson and Lafayette Avenues. Since then the other building has been disused.

In March, 1871, the Mission of the Good Shepherd was organized in a store on Seventh street, near Sidney, where it worshipped for nearly two years. On the 7th of January, 1873, the present chapel, on the corner of Eighth and Lancaster, was opened, built without debt on leased land. It has since been enlarged.

In 1871 the Sunday School was gathered, out of which later the Mission of the Advent was formed. They met in a Masonic Hall on the third floor on the corner of Wash and Eighteenth streets. The teachers were mainly from Christ Church. The Mission was organized in May, 1874, and in 1876 they purchased their present building, near the corner of Twentieth and Carr, for $4,500, which had been a Presbyterian chapel. Much money had to be expended on it to put it into condition for holding service.

In December, 1873, St. Mark's Mission to the Germans was begun, with services in their language, in a hired house in the south part of the city. It was prosecuted until May, 1876.

In July, 1874, the mission to the colored people was begun in Trinity Church, under the name of the Mission of our Saviour, which was afterwards changed, at the request of a lady in New York, who gave to it a liberal gift, to the name of the Church of the Good Samaritan. Its church property was bought, in June 1875, from the Jews, at a cost of $5,000, and was used by the congregation until April 1, 1881, when a contract for its sale to the colored Methodists was made at $4,500, its location having been found inconvenient.

VESTRIES.

The following serious indictments against non-communicants in vestries is given by an Iowa correspondent of the Living Church, of actual occurrences, which he says have actually taken place in that Diocese. Whatever the cause or remedy, any situation which could allow such a series of depredations, urgently demands a strong and effective cure. It looks as though there was fault in several places:

At W—, at the consecration of the Church, one Vestryman who had never entered the place of worship, sat on the fence near by during the entire service, giving the solemn rite so much of his countenance as this! No wonder that after a little while the Church building was, without opposition from the Vestry, used for a school, and the little robing room was found occupied by a litter of pigs. At N—A—, the Vestry, after permitting the joint use of the Church building with one of the sects, sold out or gave away the Church's interest in the property, which could never be regained. At D—, at W—, at I—, at almost a score of places, the respective Vestries have striven to starve out faithful rectors by illegal and oppressive action, taken in defiance of civil or canon law. In the little parish at D—, a Vestryman pawned part of the communion service to buy liquor. At M—, at C—, at D—, at A—, at B—, and other places, the Vestries have, without the approval of the congregation or of the ecclesiastical authority, mortgaged the Church building and suffered the mortgage to be foreclosed, and the property was lost in several cases, without an effort at redemption. In one place the Vestrymen bought personally, at sheriff's sale, all of the Church property lost through their mismanagement. In B—, the Vestry took it upon itself, by formal vote to forbid the Bishop from administering Confirmation within the limits of the city. In C—, the Vestry unanimously recommended for Orders a man who within a few weeks was under arrest for some crime. In M— and D— the Vestries tried to convert the Church into a schismatic organization. In A—, the Vestry suffered the Church to be sold to the Romanists, without an effort for its redemption, the building having been built for them by aid from abroad. In R—, the Vestry sold the Church for a stable; in W—, for a barn; in L—, for a shop. These are a few historical reminiscences of the evil done the Church by Vestries in a single diocese, and all within the last twenty years.

AN APPEAL

The Church Mission to Deaf Mutes, a society organized and incorporated in 1872, with Bishop Potter as President, asks to be remembered, with offerings, on the 12th Sunday after Trinity, or "Ephphatha Sunday."

Within the past few years this Sunday, falling this year on the 4th of September, has been somewhat generally set apart for offerings towards this Society.

There are upwards of 30,000 deaf mutes in the entire Union. Within the field assigned to the charge of the Rev. Mr. Mann, embracing the Central Western States, there are fully 8,000, of whom he reaches, more or less directly, 2,000.

Increased means will enable this society to extend its usefulness. By increasing its missionary force it will be able to reach more with the Church service in sign language.

Offerings for the work at the West may be sent to REV. A. W. MANN, No. 5 Chestnut street, Cleveland, Ohio.

—The Diocese of Maryland has determined to pay to the family of the late Bishop Whittingham $2,000 per annum.

MISCELLANY.

—Sunday-school teacher to Jimmie: "What did your sponsors then for you?" Jimmie, with readiness: "Nothin', either then or since."

—Let the responses be better sustained, i. e. keep then up with equal sound all through. Some are begun with spirit, and then there is a falling off; this is specially noticeable in the Litany. All should join in every petition, and just as loudly in the last as in the first. This applies also to the Amens at the end of each prayer. These things are important, for no person can enjoy the service who is merely a listener: one must unite in it to understand, and appreciate fully its beauties. When all do unite heartily there is a sympathetic feeling excited which animates and warms the hearts of all, so that even strangers will yield to the influence, and soon not only lose their prejudices against our form, but be brought to say, "we will go with you, for we feel that God is with you."

—The latest and most refreshing Sunday school incident happened in a class not a thousand miles from Lewiston. The teacher had grown eloquent in picturing to his little pupils the beauties of Heaven, and he finally asked: "What kind of little boys go to Heaven?" A lively little four-year old boy, with kicking boots, flourished his fist. "Well, you may answer," said the teacher. "Dead ones!" the little fellow shouted at the extent of his lungs.

—An old man, over the elbows and knees of whose corduroy suit sixty summers had faded, landed from a New Jersey ferryboat the other morning and said to a policeman: "My house in the country is filled with summer guests, and we are bound to make money. As we are a little flush just now, I thought I would run down to New York and try some of these fresh vegetables and fruits that I hear the papers talking of."

—At a clerical meeting in England, where ministerial efficiency was discussed, the general impression seemed to be that easy preaching makes hard hearing. A ten minute talk is a poor substitute for the beaten oil which the old divines used to bring into the sanctuary. When the clergy make nothing of a sermon it is not surprising that the people make nothing of it also. Here is one of the secrets of the vanishing flock, they see no wisdom in waiting upon the rack which contains no fodder. When they ask for bread they get a stone, and soon cease to ask. "The Parson in his Study" is a good theme for the meditation of clergy.

—A minister who had preached several times in an asylum for the insane was especially drawn toward one of the patients who had listened intently to his sermon. The last time he preached there, he referred to the custom of Hindoo women throwing their children into the Ganges. After service, he sought an opportunity for a personal conversation with his eager listener. The patient grasped his hand warmly, and said, "I couldn't help thinking, while you were telling that story, that it was a great pity your mother didn't chuck you into the river when you was a baby."

—There is no work done in the world which expends vitality so fast as writing for the public. It is a work which is never done. It accompanies a man upon his walks, goes with him to the theatre, gets into bed with him, and possesses him in his dreams. If he stoops to kiss his baby, before he has reached the requisite angle a point occurs to him, and he hangs in mid air with vacant face and mind distraught. "What's the matter?" says Mrs. Emerson, in the middle of the night, hearing her husband groping about the room. "Nothing, my dear, only an idea!"—[James Parton, in North American Review.]

—In the St. Louis Post office is employed a man with a phenomenal memory. He was taken on in the mailing division about eighteen months ago and given the lowest position. He has several times been promoted on account of his good record, and at his last examination gave evidence of his close application and phenomenal memory. He was taken on in the mailing division about eighteen months ago, and given the lowest position. He has several times been promoted on account of his good record, and at last examination gave evidence of his close application and phenomenal memory. It is customary for the examiner to name the post-offices in a certain amount of territory, and require the examinee to give the location. In this case the employee was examined on the post offices of Missouri, of which there are 1,790. He did not need to be questioned, but without prompting named every post office in the State, and the county in which it is situated, and without missing or mistaking a post-office or a county, and did this in thirty minutes.

—We think that the following anecdote should not be lost to posterity, even though it reflects upon the accuracy of two of our brethren in the R. E. Church, in quoting from the Scriptures. At a weekly prayer meeting held in one of our western cities, the Rev. Mr. Adams was making an address, and had taken for his subject "Riches and the Christian duty of giving." "At his side sat a Bishop of the R. E. C. In the course of the lecture the Rev. speaker said, "You are all familiar with the words of the Bible. "It is easier for a rich man to go through the eye of a needle, than for a camel."—Here he stopped—this evidently was not quite right and he began again, "It is easier for a rich man to go through the eye of a camel, than for a needle to"—Here he stopped again while an audible titter went through the congregation. His composure was equal to the occasion however, and he said as if nothing had happened, "I see I am wrong; I should have said, 'It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a rich man, than for a needle to'—No, "It is easier for a needle to go through the eye of a rich man than for a camel."—Here the titter in the congregation turned into convulsive sobs and chokings, and with a look of despair he turned to the Bishop and said, "Will my brother be so good as to set me right. "Certainly," says the Bishop. "Our brother has stated some very good propositions but they are not exactly in the words of Holy Scripture. The Bible says, "It is easier for a rich man to go through the eye of a camel than"—This was too much for even a western assembly of R. E. C. and the convulsive laughter which followed prevented its being known whether the Bishop succeeded in getting the needle into the Kingdom of Heaven or not.

A BOY'S COMPOSITION.

Here is a boy's composition sent us by a lady, who says: "You cannot but admire the versatility of talent which enables him to spell squirrel in such a variety of ways, without once hitting upon the right one:"

"SQRRLS."

"Sqrrls is a very playful animal and there is several kinds of squirrels fox sqirels and the gray sqrl and white sqrl and fling sqrel and black and groun querl the fox sqrels is the largest of any and air not so wild as the others and the gray sqrul is very wild and their are more of the fox squrils than of gray the white sqiril is very pirty and are easv tamed but they are not many in this state the flying sqrl is very small and are the color of the gray sqirrell the black is about the size of the gray sqrel and they dont live in this country and the grownd squrrll is the color of the fox sqerl and have four black strypes on their backs and are about the size of a flying sqrel and lives in old logs an thats all I know about sqerulls."

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkin, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5th, St. Louis, Mo.

If you have introduced any new and successful method into your Sunday School, or hit upon any happy device, let us know what it is, so that others may have the benefit of it.—[ED.]

PUBLIC Sunday School examinations are a great feature in England. In those under the auspices of the London Sunday School Union, 32,000 scholars entered for examination.

In our last issue we published a paper on Teachers and Teaching, from the pen of Dr. Gregory, late President Illinois State University. We have the pleasure to present our readers with another paper from the same scholarly pen, which we commend to all Sunday School officers and teachers unto whom our words may come.

BISHOP Stevens, of Pennsylvania, in his last Convention Address, dwelt upon "the necessity of having better qualified teachers for our Sunday Schools," and recommended "a system of graded classes, rising step by step to higher and wider teaching." Children would thus be stimulated to get into these higher classes, and intellectual life would be infused into the schools.

A DISTINGUISHED man, who has the reputation of carefully weighing his words before he speaks, at a late gathering in New York, said: "The Sunday School movement is, in a true sense, the greatest movement since the time of Christ, not even excepting the Reformation." That sounds somewhat extravagant, but doubtless he was thinking of the 13,000,000 in America and Europe who are its pupils and whose religious future will be shaped by its teachings.

THE Thirty Seventh Report of the Church of England Sunday School Institute, presented at the last Annual Meeting, held at Exeter Hall, London, presents the following gratifying facts: In 8405 parishes, in England and Wales, giving returns, there were last year 16,498 Sunday Schools, with 1,289,273 scholars and 113,412 teachers. Allowing the same average for 6,064 parishes not making returns, the total number of scholars in England and Wales, connected with the Church of England, is about 2,200,000; teachers about 195,500. The number of Bible classes, in the parishes making returns, is 5,153, with scholars therein over 14 years of age, 168,734. The number of scholars who are communicants is 48,680. And yet there are those who would have us believe the Church of England, is not in sympathy with Sunday School work.

The following hints may prove serviceable to many:

I. HOW NOT TO GAIN ATTENTION:

- By demanding it as a right.
- By begging it as a great favor.
- By scolding the scholar for not giving it.
- By special indulgence or rewards.
- By threats.
- By hearing the lesson rather than teaching it.
- By reading the lesson from a book.
- By endeavoring to teach truths which the scholar cannot comprehend.
- By presenting a confused combination of ideas.
- By using words not understood, or so inaccurately that they convey no definite, clear cut thought.

2. HOW TO GAIN ATTENTION:

- By telling the scholar something which pays him for giving attention.
- By giving information in such a manner that the scholar will count it worth his hearing.
- By interesting the scholar in the subject.
- Under some circumstances children are capable of vigorous and long-sustained attention. Nor can we find a better illustration of mental absorption than the school boy engaged in a match of cricket or football.—[Grosier.]

The attention of children is not much under the control of the will, but depends upon the interest which they feel in a subject.—[Grosier.]

Awaken the scholar's sympathy with the subject, and he will give earnest attention. Excite curiosity in the mind, and cheerful, earnest attention follows.

Curiosity in children is but an appetite after knowledge. I doubt not but one great reason why many children abandon themselves wholly to silly sports, and trifle away all their time insipidly, is because they find their curiosity balked, and their inquiries neglected.—[Locke.]

Bring distinctly before your own mind the well-known fact, that children delight as much in exercising their minds as their limbs, provided only that which is presented to them be suited to their capacities and adapted to their strength.—[Dunn's Principles of Teaching.]

Be intensely interested in the lesson yourself, and you will interest scholars and gain their attention.—[S. S. World.]

A CLERGYMAN of the Church, writing to an Eastern Journal of Education, finely says: "The State says: 'Teach arithmetic;' but every teacher must respond, 'Not only must I teach figures, but I must so influence my scholars that they will never make their figures lie. Let me also teach honesty.' The State says again, 'Teach botany,' and every teacher must reply, 'I not only wish to teach about the flowers, but if I would like to make the thoughts of my scholars as pure and clean as these blossoms, I must also teach purity.' The State still commands, 'Teach Astronomy,' and the teacher should answer, 'I will tell my boys and girls about the stars; and I will do something else. Let me make those stars only the shining rounds of a ladder leading the soul up to a recognition of God as the Creator of all things. Let me inculcate reverence for the great Unseen Maker of all.'" Because, in a pupil, one comes in contact, not only with a mind, but with a soul, it is necessary not only to teach facts, but also the Divine meaning of facts.

HOW TO TEACH A SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS.

HOW TO WIN AND FIX ATTENTION.

By J. M. Gregory, LL. D., Late President Illinois State University.

From the teachers, our thought now turns to the scholars—from the teacher's self to the teacher's work. The great throngs of Sunday school children, of all ages and characters, grouped in their schools and classes, rise before me. I ponder both the importance and the difficulty of the work to be done with them. Who can overstate either? In the coming years, these children will be Christian or non-Christian;—heartly followers of our beautiful faith, or heartless unbelievers;—children of the good kingdom and lovers of our Lord, or servants of the Satan kingdom, slaves to the selfish and sinful and worldly. Churches and country, souls and society, humanity and history, will feel the influence of the work done with and for these children. And in the great hereafter, God alone knows the endless stretch of consequences which must follow from this work.

Give to Christianity the children now enrolled in the Sunday schools and you sweep back the boastful infidelity, and the groveling materialism, as daylight sweeps back the darkness. Teach them large, clear views of the Christian beliefs, and you lift our Lord's name and word to sublime power over them and mankind. The Christ doctrines, supernally grand, and divinely beneficent, must gain splendid empire over the human heart and life whenever they fully enter the human understanding.

No work of such importance can be easy. Let us not doubt its difficulty,—nor fear it. One is equal to his task, only when he feels and dares to the utmost its strenuousness. To enter the minds of these children, and unfold within them the sublime truths of Christianity; to write its great doctrines of God and of the Christ-work on their souls, and to inweave these doctrines with their most familiar faith and feeling,—and this is hard to think fully, and harder still to do. All the gravitations of ignorance and of evil hinder, but all the uplift of heavenly attractions and aspirations help us.

The introductory exercises of the school are over. The teacher sits down with his class. What is, and must be, the first step—the first condition, for good work? What would the true teacher give most to be assured of? What but the earnest, continuous attention of the class? This condition secured, the task becomes pleasant, if not easy. True attention is the voluntary and eager outstretch of the pupil's thought to meet that of the teacher. It is the lift and grasp of the pupil's mind to receive and hold what the teacher gives. It is the opening door and the warm welcome to the teacher's knock for admission to the secret chambers of the pupil's soul. How win such attention? How fix and retain it? Listen.

1. He who would gain attention must give attention. A public speaker famous for his control over the attention of his audience was asked for the secret of his power. He replied, "I do not know unless it is because I pay attention to myself." It was the truth. He was always intent upon his thoughts, and his attention was contagious. There is a fascination in the very tones of a man deeply absorbed in the thoughts he is uttering. Men gaze upon an earnest man as upon a spectacle, and soon they glide into the same earnestness. "Was not our teacher earnest to-day?" was the comment of a boy whose heart had been more than usually touched with the truth. The earnestness begat earnestness. Attention wins attention.

But the teacher must have a double attention,—attention to the lesson and to the class. He must be at the same moment conscious of his own words and of their eyes and ears. But nothing in their actions must make him forget his theme. No tell tale look or tone must betray that his mind wanders from its work.

2. A practical rule of great value is never to begin the lesson till all the class is stilled, and to pause as often as the quiet is broken. A child's power over its own thoughts is small, and the slightest noise or movement will often distract its attention. The teacher's pause and silence recall the mind and tell the little wanderer that it is wanted and waited for. The silence is often more impressive and reproachful than any words could be. The most skilful teachers know this rule best and employ it most. They never teach but to a silent and watchful class.

3. The two precepts given are both based on the teacher's personal power and presence. There are deeper facts in the pupil's mind which must be reached in order to rouse his whole power of attention. Of these the first met is the mind's interest in the senses. The intellectual life of childhood resides mostly in the sensations. Where the eyes see the thought follows. He who would command a child's thought must control the child's senses. Give your little pupil nothing else to look at while you are teaching and he will study your buttons or boots and when you think he is listening to your words he is only examining your watch-chain or spectacles.

Modern teaching has wisely sought to employ the eyes of pupils by the use of objects, pictures, diagrams, and chart or blackboard work. Our Sunday-school superintendents sometimes overdue this by pictorial representations which distract the attention from the theme illustrated to the illustration itself.

It is in the class work that the eye needs most to be addressed. Some object or picture to draw attention at the outset; some representation of men or places or things somehow connected with the lesson, to call in the wandering looks and to start fresh trains of ideas; some word or phrase of the lesson written on chart or small blackboard to fix the eye upon till the pupil can be set thinking; every skilful teacher knows the utility of these mind-openers. If the lesson to be taught admits a visible illustration, as most Bible lessons do, then the appeal to the eye has a double use. It aids the understanding as well as the attention. They talk without words and need no definitions to make their meaning plain.

Thought and experience alone can help one to choose wisely and use successfully these stimulants to the attention. They must vary with both teachers and classes. Were I teaching as a lesson the verse use in the May number as an illustration—"God so loved the world," etc., a map of the world found in a common school atlas would help me to attract attention to the great peopled globe whose miserable millions God so loved. Or in a younger class, a picture of Abraham offering up his son would lift the little minds to the grand truth that "God gave His only begotten Son."

4. But finally, the truest and fruitfulest attention is not attracted wholly from without. It is inspired and sustained from within. It is felt when the lesson becomes its own attraction. The mind is thrilled with its own thoughts and visions. It craves more. Such attention is a hunger for the subject. The teacher who can arouse this inward attention may then dispense with all others.

True inward attention must come from one of two sources; it must be an eager interest in the theme, or it must come from an eager desire for some result promised by it. Frequently it unites both. To gain either, the pupil must be set to thinking. By hints, by questions, by problems, or by promises of good to come, his curiosity must be aroused, his intellect challenged and piqued into activity, his sensibilities kindled to warm feeling. From being questioned, he must become in turn the eager questioner, hungering for the truth and light.

And what lessons are so fitted to awaken this deeper form of attention as those of the Bible? What facts and truths so wonderful? What promises of good so exciting? What histories so interesting? What teachings so full of practical precepts? Let the teacher freshen up his own conceptions. Let him throw away old, threadbare words, and put his fresh thoughts into the simplest, freshest speech possible to him. Let him tell the story of the world and its Maker; of God and Jesus; of the Bible and Christianity, as he would tell them to an intelligent heathen, or to one hearing them for the first time. Let him teach these grand world-secrets as he would tell a story of surpassing wonder, and the kindling eye and the eager look will show him how the heart of childhood responds to the story.

A cold and commonplace teacher will make the grandest things commonplace and tiresome. A true teacher will pluck a green leaf as he enters the room, and with its marvels of growth and organism will carry the minds of his little pupils half way to heaven.

Whatever his methods of gaining it, no true teacher will ever try to teach without attention. He would as soon think of entering a house without opening the door, or of talking to the benches after the pupils had gone. And he is content only when the attention is of the highest character and intensity. Give us teachers of this type—teachers who count all their work a failure till they have secured the active and interested attention of their classes, and our Sunday school work will tell with a fresh and wonderful power upon the progress of our Christian faith.

Advises received by the National Board of Health report that yellow fever and small pox prevail at Vera Cruz in a most malignant form. The former disease continues at Havana.

Liquid or Dry.

Some people prefer to purchase medicines in the dry state so that they can see for themselves that they are pure y vegetable. Others have not the time or desire to prepare the medicine, and wish it already to use.

To accommodate each class the proprietors of Kidney Wort now offer that well-known remedy in both Liquid and dry forms.

Sold by druggists everywhere.—[Truth.]

TRAIN ROBBERY.

The large reward offered by the Governor for the apprehension of the train robbers and murderers of Winston was not put out a moment too soon. It does not meet the need for him or his predecessor to have to say that, if he offers nothing, it is simply because the law of the State and the means at his disposal do not allow him to offer anything. While such atrocities are recurring so frequently, the power must be lodged in the Governor to take swift and effective measures to arrest the miscreants. Missouri is as peaceful and law-abiding as any State in the Union; and there is no more likelihood of such robberies here than in any sparsely settled regions. But there has been a disagreeable iterancy of such assaults, and there are those, not interested in our prosperity, who are not disposed to allow them to be forgotten. The Gunn City, Gadshill, Glendale and Winston occurrences should never more be repeated. This last transaction is having all its changes rung in newspapers in England, Chicago and the East, and will cost us thousands of immigrants, and tens of thousands of dollars. The scoundrels should be pursued relentlessly, and then be swiftly punished.

A RESTING TIME.

The ingenious plea put forth at our last Convention that, since ministers had no resting day in their week, there is a debt due them of fifty-two days in the year which ought to be somehow given them, may not be realized to its full extent, but is a sufficiently good argument for a period of rest as a matter of justice to clergymen. The wear and worry of a work that needs to be taken up every day, of a crowding succession of anxieties that for just and worthy dealing require freshness and balance of judgment and thought, involve the need that for a space, there should be a resting of the process. The prophets of old with drew to the caves of the mountains, and from thence issued with fresh inspiration.

This is required for good work, and for any continuance of fresh, strong health. The same rule works for layman as for clergyman, and quite as much for clergyman as for layman. This disposition and craving for rest, based as it is in the laws of our nature, is wholly consistent with a spiritual zeal, and purposes to do full, good work. The congregation will be doing a kindness to itself as well as to its minister by making it possible that he should have, in this season of the year, when all things are relaxed and exhausted by the heat of the season, a period of relaxation.

Many clergymen, however, have not the means to subject themselves to the extra charge involved in going even to a short distance. The willingness to have their minister rest in such a case must include the readiness to give him a purse with a good-sized bank note in it. There is payment in the gratitude shown at the time and the better-hearted service afterward.

If nothing more can be done, let the minister go over and spend a few days with a neighboring brother minister. The chance to let up, and gossip, and talk over clerical work, and lie on the grass and do nothing, is a very freshening thing. Such a visit could be returned afterward. Better still if two of such brethren could get off together and have in a little cooler region, a chance for a tramp, and for some good pulling on the water, or two or three quiet days of fishing.

Of course the steady grind of life may go on, for those at least of good stamina, and no respite had, and work may be gotten out on dogged principle, if perhaps no such rest was taken from year to year. Those phenomenal persons may be quoted who never had or needed any vacation. But for most of us the conditions of life are different now: the push is more intense; the crowd of work into a certain space is more exciting; and we need now, for a relished, continuous, healthy, full-hearted work, recurring periods of rest. This is the best economy of strength along the way and in the end.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child to our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

BOOK NOTICES.

The boys will think the August Wide Awake contrived for their especial delectation. abounding as it does in base-ball and racing stories, and water adventures, all spiritedly illustrated. "Why those boys did not run away," is told; "A Night with Paul Boyton," and "A Boy's race with General Grant at Ephesus." The girls get a delicious little romane in "How Dot Played She Was Two." "The Lemonade Man's Story" is a capital "yarn," accompanied by a full page drawing. The serials, "Sharon," "Having His Own Way," and "Polly Cologne," each have fine illustrations. In the eighth "To Day" article Edward Everett Hale talks with his club of boys and girls in a manner that no one forgets. But the great charm of the number is the grouping of fine illustrated poems here and there throughout the magazine, as in the case of the last Christmas issue. The number opens with a most beautiful poem, "Saint Emily." James W. Riley contributes a melodious piece of verse entitled "The Land of Used-To Be." Helen Hunt's contribution is a delightful piece of history for children, entitled "The Baby Show." "The Young Enquirer," is illustrated by Miller and Hayden, and a delicious hammock picture accompanies Mrs. Bates pretty verse, "Blue and Gold." Miss McDermott also has some good pen and-ink pictures. Only 20 cents a number $2.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers. Boston.

The Sanitarian. August. This is the first number of this excellent magazine that we have seen for several months. Among the articles are the following suggestive titles: Sanitary suggestions for Jeanette Search Expedition, Schools of Invention, Systematic Study of Causes of Sickness and Death, Ventilation of Closets, Yellow Fever Recognition and Isolation, Progress of Sanitary Protection at Newport, R. I., How Ostriches digest, Advice to Mothers on the Care of Infants. $3 a year. 113 Fulton St., New York.

The following are among the interesting contents of August number of The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly: Sermonic: "The Grandeur of Faith," by B. M. Palmer, D. D.; "Christian Deportment Toward Unbelievers," by Theodore Monod, D. D.; "Covenanting with God," by the late W. Morley Punshon, LL.D.; "Shall Christianity be Surrendered?" by Richard S. Storrs, D. D.; "The Publican's Prayer," by William M. Taylor, D. D.; "Going out into the World," by Joseph Parker, D. D.; Man's Power and Responsibility," by Canon Farrar, D. D.; "A Five Minute Sermon to Children," by Rev. W. F. Crafts. Then we have as usual many valuable suggestions under "Sermonic Criticism," "Preacher's Exchanging Views," etc., etc. Price, single number, 25 cts.; per year, $2 50. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

The Midsummer Holiday Scribner more than ever justifies its title, no less than six articles being directly adapted to the season, while three or four others pertain to topics of current interest.

The fiction includes the first half of the new story by the author of "An Earnest Trifler,"—"The Daughter of Henry Sage Rittenhouse," a happy title, which will be found singularly appropriate. A three part story, by Mr. Boyesen, also begins, with the piquant name of "Queen Titania;" the scene is on board an Atlantic steam-ship, and afterward in New York, and the reader is promised some of Mr. Boyesen's most interesting week. "The Village Convict," a short story of unusual force and feeling, is contributed by a new writer, C. H. White; the scene is along the coast of New England or Long Island, and the local color and the situations are managed with knowledge and art.

The illustrated articles are also of a kind to be welcomed by a summer audience. "The Isle of Peace," is a description of Newport place, including "things that are new and old," from the year-old Casino and the fox (or rather anise seed) hunting, back to Bishop Berkeley. The illustrations are by George Inness, Jr., Henry Sandham, Robert Blum, and F. H. Lungren. In "By the Sea in Normandy," we have by contrast a French coast resort—Etretat, finely illustrated. Butin's "The Sailor's Wife, delicately engraved by Closson, forms the frontispiece of the number, while Lepage's "First Communion," engraved in his best style by Cole, is printed without type at the back. An out-of-the-way spot in Louisiana, on the Gulf of Mexico—the island of Petite Anse—is described, under the title "A Little World," by Mr. A. C. Redwood, who also illustrates it. This little community on the borders of Acadia is noted, among many things, for "the smallest newspaper in the world, of which a fac-simile is given. Mr. Farnham's stirring account of "Ice-Yachting on the Hudson" is probably the most seasonable paper in the number. It is illustrated by M. J. Burns, and the illustrations supplement the descriptions of the enjoyments and dangers of this increasing popular sport. Mr. Schuyler's "Peter the Great" has its usual quota of text and pictures. It is announced by the publishers that this history will be concluded in the October number, before the new series of "The Century Magazine" is begun.

Musical Review. August. With good editorials and a great number of fresh musical notes. There are four pieces of choice music also. 15 cts. Musical Herald Co., Boston.

North American Review. August. This is the most noted magazine of the month, and has been widely read and commented on because of the symposium on the Christian Religion by Col. Ingersoll, with a reply by Judge Jere. S. Black. There are five other noteworthy articles besides, but probably the attention will be mainly held by the first. Col. Ingersoll shows by this article how much of his attractiveness and popular force comes from his bonhomie, and his facility for jesting and coarse ridicule. He appears to no advantage mated with such a master of his subject and of logic as Judge Black. The article ought to be very widely read on both sides, and we greatly mistake if the conclusion in all candid minds is not that the Christian Religion has resources at its control yet vastly beyond the gainsaying of such an adversary as Mr. Ingersoll. D. Appleton & Co., New York. Monthly. $5 a year.

St. Nicholas for August begins with a poem of play-time by the editor, illustrated with a full-page drawing, forming the frontispiece. Another poem by the editor, entitled "The Elf and the Spider," appears some pages farther on, with a dainty illustration by Mary Richardson.

Among the seven short stories are: "From Sandy Hook to the Light ship," a brisk account of the voyage of three boys in a seine-skiff, illustrated by Granville Perkins;—"Under a Fly-wheel," an exciting episode of factory-life, with a striking picture;—"How Miss Jenkins Got Out of It," a lively school story;—"Mark, the Dwarf," a tale of Southern interest;—"Cathie's Story," a capital narrative of a great event in the commonplace life of a little farm girl;—"A Boy on the Place," a tale of how three dear old ladies cared for a famished waif;—and "How we Belled the Rat, and What Came of It," illustrated by James Wells Champney, a funny story of the remarkable effects of a prank by village children.

There is a poem by Eva L. Ogden.—"Proud Prince Cham,"—engrossed and illustrated on four full pages by Alfred Brennan, in a novel and striking style.

Mr. Daniel C. Beard gives full instructions concerning "Flatboating for Boys," with diagrams, and directions how to build floating camps, catamaran row boats, and "Crusoe-rafts."

The number is profusely illustrated from beginning to end; the Departments are full of life and variety; a whole page is devoted to the thousand and more members of the new and vigorous "Agassiz Association," and here and there are bright single pictures, jingles, comical sketches, and pretty poems.

PERSONAL.

—The death list of the month will hardly include a name more distinguished than that of Dean Stanley, who represented eminently a historical school in the English Church, and who had relations with dissenters there borne by no other man. He enjoyed peculiar intimacy with the Royal family. He died at the age of 66 of erysipelas. His last audible words were "I have labored amidst many frailties and much weakness to make Westminster Abbey the great centre of religious and national life in a truly liberal spirit."

—The Bishop of Tennessee is to be added to the list of those who have this summer gone to Europe.

—The Bishop of Pittsburg left when he died for his family only his life insurance, which had a few years before his death been increased from $5,000 to $10,000. We hear that some Churchmen in Pittsburg propose however, to make up for Mrs. Kerfoot, in memory of him who gave his best strength to the Diocese, an amount with which a home may be purchased. Bishop Stevens, in his sermon preached at the convention at which Bishop Kerfoot was elected, in showing that the person chosen should be a man of bone as well as brain, said that in the district which was now set off for the new Diocese Bishop White broke his arm in his first attempt to visit this region; that it was here that Bishop Onderdonk was first attacked with the illness which led to such unhappy consequences; that it was here that Bishop Potter had had his first attack of paralysis; that it was here, while bearing the burden and heat of the day, that Bishop Bowman had fallen dead by the roadside; and that it was here that he himself had been twice brought to the verge of the grave while engaged in the duties of his office.

—Mr. Wm. H. Vanderbilt, the great dealer in bonds, and the richest man in America, says that, living in New York, he has not been in Wall St. for five years, and does not go down town below Canal St. more than twice a year.

—The wife of the Rev. Dr. Cross, formerly of this city, recently died in his parish in Michigan after a long sickness.

—Bishop Talbot is reported to have had a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago. His right side and the muscles of his face were affected. He will be incapacitated for some time, but it is hoped that no more serious consequences will result.

—The Rev. Dr. Huntington prefers to remain in Worcester, and so Calvary Church, New York is yet vacant, as are also St. George's, New York, and St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, all important parishes.

—The Rev. Dr. Fulton of St. George's Church, has had the degree of Doctor of Law conferred on him by the University of Alabama.

—Dr. Phillips Brooks is described as follows: The preacher is a man of magnificent physique. I have seen him since in a crowd, and he towers like Saul "from his shoulders and upward," being six feet four or five inches high, and more than proportionately stout. He has bright black eyes, a smooth full face, hair thick, short, a little grey, a broad mouth, with some tendency to droop at the corners, a dimpled, but firm chin, and a real Roman neck. His movements are quick and graceful, and his voice strong and musical. He repeats the service with his head thrown back, and with rapidity of utterance. From what has been said of the person and his surroundings one might know that he exerts great influence. Unquestionably, however, his chief power lies in his fervent spirit and in the depth and truth of his thought. His sermon from 2 Tim. ii. 19, delivered without manuscript, and with even greater rapidity than he had shown before, was among the best to which it was ever my pleasure to listen.

—Bishop Colenso is a man nearly seven feet tall, and of a massive frame. He is sixty six years old, and is regarded by the natives of Africa with awe and reverence; and they salute him as a great chief.

—Mr. Froude describes Cardinal Newman thus, as he was forty years ago: His appearance was striking. He was above the middle height, slight and spare. His head was large, his face remarkably like that of Julius Caesar. The forehead, the shape of the ears and nose, were almost the same. The lines of the mouth were very peculiar, and I should say exactly the same. I have often thought of the resemblance, and believed that it extended to the temperament. In both there was an original force of character which refused to be moulded by circumstances, which was to make its own way.

—Mumkacsy, the Hungarian painter, who has just refused to take less than $160,000 for his last picture of Christ before Pilate, was originally a cabinet maker's apprentice. A conversation during a storm under the shelter of a gateway with two art students who had been driven there also opened up the possibilities before him.

—The deanery of Westminster has been offered to Bishop Fraser of Manchester, who has declined it. Mr. Gladstone is disposed to continue its administration on its past lives.

—When Lord Hatherly died a few weeks ago in England, there were left only two survivors of those who have borne the Lord Chancellorship, the highest lay office in the Kingdom; but all the three, Lords Hatherly, Selbourne and Cairns had been for many years continuously Sunday School teachers, even while bearing their high offices.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Packet line of Mississippi steamers that plies between St. Louis and St. Paul, sets an example that is worthy of being followed. Some years ago Commodore Davidson, abolished bars from his boat, and drinking among men and officers on board is unknown. The Commodore has service aboard his boats of Sundays whenever he chances to have a clergyman aboard. On a recent Sunday, the cabin of the Gem City was converted into an impromptu Chapel, and a congregation of 75 men and officers and some 25 of the passengers assembled. The sermon was by the Rev. R. W. Lowry, of Washington City, who happened to be one of the passengers. Chaplain Kidwood also made appropriate remarks; after which Commodore Davidson distributed New Testaments and Bibles to such of his crew and officers as might desire them.

—The Living Church has ascertained by correspondence that the confirmations for a single year in the Diocese of the various branches of the Anglican Church number from two hundred and seventy-five to three hundred thousand.

—Bishop Wingfield of Northern California has warned his people in a pastoral not to countenance a certain rector in his jurisdiction who has substituted a liquid other than that commonly known as wine, at the celebration of the Lord's Supper.

—The Roman Catholics have been great sufferers by mixed marriages, and allow them with difficulty by dispensation. One of the popes in a rescript says: "The marriage must be celebrated before the parish priest and two witnesses; but the parish priest must not assist thereat in a sacred place nor clothed in any sacred vestment, nor is he allowed to read any prayers of the Church, nor in any way to bless the contracting parties." But, notwithstanding all these drawbacks, they consent to the marriages, and they are not infrequently celebrated.

—The importation of opium into the city of New York, which is a great distributing centre, increased from 52,930 pounds in 1871 to 533,457 pounds in 1880. It is an ominous fact, and may well arouse the attention of philanthropists. The cessation of intemperance in drinking, desirable as it is, would be dearly purchased if for bad liquors we are to exchange worse opium. A nation of opium eaters would be a greater calamity than a nation of drunkards.

—Littre, in France, who was at the head of the Positivist school, before his recent death conformed to the Church and was baptized. At his funeral the coffin was sprinkled with holy water by Renan.

—One of the Virginia papers states that in the Episcopal church at Liberty, Bedford county, a colored minister officiated on Sunday week. Arrayed in his robes he read and preached to the regular white congregation.

—The average expenses for each member of the graduating class at Yale College for the four years course was $3,825.

—We were mistaken last month in saying that the Baltimore Church News had suspended. It rested for two or three months and has resumed with its earlier name. They seem to like our name there, for in the same city there has been started another weekly. The Conservative and Church News. The two local papers do not appear to like each other.

LOVELY PHILOSOPHY.

A few days ago a Boston girl, who had been attending the School of Philosophy at Concord, arrived in Brooklyn on a visit to a seminary chum. After canvassing thoroughly the fun and gum-drops that made up their education in the seat of learning at which their early scholastic efforts were made, the Brooklyn girl began to inquire into the nature of the Concord entertainment.

"And so you are taking lessons in philosophy. How do you like it?"

"Oh! its perfectly lovely. Its about science, you know, and we all just dote on science."

"It must be nice. What is it about?"

"It's about molecules as much as anything else, and molecules are just too awfully nice for anything. If there's anything I really enjoy it's molecules."

"Tell me about them, my dear. What are molecules?"

"Oh! morecules. They are little wee things, and it takes ever so many of them. They are splendid things! Do you know there ain't any thin but what's got molecules in it. And Mr. Cook is just as sweet as he can be and Mr. Emerson, too. They explain everything so beautifully."

"How I'd like to go there!" said the Brooklyn girl, enviously."

"You'd enjoyed it ever so much. They teach protoplasm too, and if there is one thing perfectly heavenly its protoplasm or molecules."

"Tell me all about protoplasm; I know I should adore it."

"Deed you would. It's just too sweet to live. You know its about how things get started, or something of that kind. You ought to hear Mr. Emerson tell about it. It would stir your very soul. The first time he explained about protoplasm there wasn't a dry eye in the house. We named our hats after him. This is an Emerson hat. You see the ribbon is drawn over the crown and caught with a buckle and a bunch of flowers. Then you turn up the side with a spray of forget-me-nots. Ain't it just too sweet? All the girls in the school have them."

"How exquisitely lovely! Tell me some more science."

"Oh! I almost forgot about differentiation. I am really and truly positively in love with differentiation. It's different from molecules and protoplasm, but it's every bit as nice. And Mr. Cook! You should hear him go on about it! I really believe he's perfectly bound up in it! This scarf is the Cook scarf. All the girls wear them, and we named them after him just on account of the interest he takes in differentiation."

"What is it, anyway?"

"This is mull trimmed in Languedoc lace—"

"I don't mean that—the other."

"Oh! differentiation! ain't it sweet? Its got something to do with species. It's the way you tell one hat from another, so you'll know which is becoming. And we learn all about ascidians, too. They are the divinest things. I'm absolutely enraptured with ascidians. If I only had an ascidian of my own, I wouldn't ask anything else in the world."

"What do they look like, dear? Did you ever see one?" asked the Brooklyn girl, deeply interested."

"Oh, no, nobody ever saw one except Mr. Emerson, but they are something like an oyster with a reticule hung on its belt. I think they are just heavenly."

"Do you learn anything else besides all these."

"Oh, yes. We learn all about common philosophy and logic and those common things like metaphysics, but the girls don't care anything about those. We are just in ecstasies over differentiation and molecules, and Mr. Cook and protoplasm and ascidians and Mr. Emerson, and I really don't see why they put in these vulgar branches. If anybody besides Mr. Cook and Mr. Emerson had done it we should have told him to his face that it was too terribly, awfully mean."

And the Brooklyn girl went to bed that night in the dumps because fortune had not vouchsafed her the advantages enjoyed by her friend, while the Boston girl dreamed of seeing an ascidian chasing a molecule over a differentiated back fence with a club, for telling a protoplasm that his youngest sister had so many freckles on her nose that they made her cockeyed.

MAYOR BEATTY, though young, and a few years ago poor and obscure, is now certainly one of the best known business men in the country. We know an intelligent lady who some time since became impressed with the idea that Mayor Beatty was overdoing the organ business, and she conceived the peculiar notion that she would like to learn of some happy spot where Beatty and his organs had never been heard of. She interviewed people who had traveled in the West and inquired of friends who had made an extensive tour of Europe and the East, but alas for her cherished hopes, they reported that they had not gone beyond the lines of Beatty's advertising circles. He is ambitious and is pushing ahead, and will probably never be satisfied until he has spun an advertising web which will stretch over the civilized portion of the Globe."—[Belvidere, New Jersey, Apollo.

IRON TONIC

Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession. Dr. J. P. Watson, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

CHARTERED. I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief. I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. My old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently exhausted. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it, I have done twice the labor of former times, and my health is now as good as ever. I feel that I owe my recovery to the Tonic and vigor of body has come also a cleanliness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Iron, Ferrous Phosphate, and Quinine, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It serves every purpose where a Tonic is necessary. MANUFACTURED BY THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., NO. 213 NORTH MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

PRINCELY GIVING.

The late Annie M. Gibbs, of Chicago, bequeathed about $12,000 to various Presbyterian missions.

Mrs. Redpath, of Montreal, has just given $20,000 to endow a chair in the Presbyterian College.

Alexander E. Smith, of Frederick City, Md., has left in his will $1,000 to the Memorial Church, Washington, D. C.

Baron Adolphe de Rothschild, brother of the partners of the Paris house, has bequeathed to the Louvre his collection of art works, with $200,000 for their maintenance.

President Haygood, of Emory College, Oxford, Ga., has received a telegram from George I. Seney, of New York, on the 1st inst., stating he would give the college $50,000 more, making a total donation of $100,000. He has given the Wesleyan Female College at Macon $70,000 in all.

Commissioner Raum shows that internal revenue collections for the last fiscal year have amounted to $135,225,902.

Thirty three missionary societies are working for Africa's redemption, and the converts are now estimated to number over 30,000.

The rule of the Department of the Interior, which permitted only one denomination of Christians to work among a certain tribe and forbade others to enter the field, has been rescinded.

The city assessor's report shows an increased valuation in Boston property for the past year to be $25,000,000. The rate of taxation has decreased from $15.20 per thousand last year to $13.90 for the coming year.

A fire occurred at Truckee, Cal., on the 3d inst., destroying the business portion of the town and many residences. The loss is estimated at $350,000, about one-third of which is covered by insurance.

The clerk of a parish whose business was to read the "first lesson," came across the chapter in Daniel in which the names Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego occur thirteen times, and finding it extremely difficult to pronounce these names, he went through the chapter referring to them as "the aforesaid gentlemen."

HISTORICAL.

The probe was invented by Esculapius.

Amethysts were found in Kerry, Ireland, in 1755.

The Spaniards discovered cochinal in Mexico in 1518.

Cherries were first planted in Britain 100 years B. C.

The Royal Observatory at Greenwich was built in 1675.

The idea of a stamped postal cover is as old as the time of Louis XIV.

First cotton mills in the United States were at Beverly, Mass., in 1778.

The canary bird was introduced into Europe early in the sixteenth century.

The expense of the table Vitellius amounted in a single year to £19,000,000 sterling.

John of Finland on his return from Sweden brought the first coach into that country toward the end of the sixteenth century.

Stone coffins occur among the Anglo-Saxons as early as 695, and were not quite obsolete before the reign of Henry VIII.

The invention of the harness is ascribed to Erechtheus, King of Athens, who lived three or four hundred years before Christ.

The earliest company for insuring against fire was instituted in London in 1696, and was called the "Hand in Hand Fire Office."

Tarring and feathering is a European invention. It was one of Richard Coeur de Lion's ordinances for seamen in punishment for theft.

Canal locks were known in upper Egypt from the most ancient times known to history. They were introduced into England from Flanders in 1652.

The ambulance is comparatively a modern invention, due mainly to the French. We find no trace of regularly organized military hospitals until the time of Henry IV.

A Leading London Physician Establishes an Office in New York for the Cure of Epileptic Fits.

(From Am. Journal of Medicine.)

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living physician. His success has been simply astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing, successfully cured by him. He has published a valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their express and P. O. address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address Dr. AB. MESEROLE, No. 96 John street, New York.

FREE! The GREATEST LOOK OF MODERN TIMES!

THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT, that great work which has been so anxiously looked forward to and about which so much has been said and written, and upon which forty learned and eminent divines have labored for ten years, has just been published. It is conceded to be the most important work of modern times, and so great has been the interest excited that the first edition of the Cambridge and Oxford Universities of England, is 600,000 copies. It will undoubtedly find its way into nearly every family in the English-speaking world. Leading clergymen, like Beecher, Storrs, Sims and others, predict that in time it will supersede the present version, and assert that a revision of the present New Testament was urgently needed, because many of the early manuscripts of the Scriptures, unknown at the time the present version was made, have since come to light, and likewise the meaning of the many changes in the English language. It is therefore to be expected that a much better understanding of the true meaning of the Scriptures can be obtained by reading the Revised New Testament.

SPECIAL OFFER.—We will send a copy of the Revised New Testament (the genuine and only authorized edit. on published by the Cambridge and Oxford University presses of England, and every copy bearing the certificate of the revisers as to its correctness), handsomely bound in Flexible Cloth, and printed in clear, bold and hand some type, on fine paper FREE to all who send 45 cents in postage stamps for a Six Months' subscription to the Firebrand at Home, a beautiful illustrated magazine of 36 large 4-column pages, containing the best selected, devoted to Choice Literature, Useful Knowledge, Romance, Amusement, Agriculture, Fashion, and everything to amuse, entertain and instruct the whole family. In other words, upon receipt of the 45 cents we will send the Revised New Testament, a copy of the Revised New Testament, free, as a premium. The regular price of the magazine alone for six months is 50 cents, but we make this very liberal offer in order to introduce it into new homes. Remember, it is not the cheap paper cover edition of the Testament that we offer, but the handsome one, elegantly bound in flexible cloth. As to our reliability, we refer to any newspaper publisher or mercantile agency in this city. All should take advantage of this great offer and secure the Revised New Testament. We will fill all orders promptly by return mail. Address: F. M. LUTTON, 27 Park Place, New York.

The Thirty-fourth year will begin September 7th, 1881.

All branches of an English, Commercial, Scientific and Classical course are thoroughly taught in this Institution. The Faculty are the best of Instructors, who are ever ready and willing to devote their time to the welfare of their pupils, and scholars will find everything here just as advertised. Good business education is imparted, and students are prepared to matriculate in any college in the land. St. Paul's offers superior advantages this year to its students. As empowered in its charter by legislative enactment it will hereafter confer degrees (A. B., A. M., &c.), upon those students who have completed the collegiate course. It is the only school in the Diocese that has this authority. The privilege of graduating is thus extended this year to old students of the Institution who wish to return and complete the course. A student can enter any one department and graduate in it alone. And at the close of the year the student who can pass satisfactory examination in all the studies of the year will receive a diploma as a testimonial of scholarship.

The school year consists of two terms of twenty weeks each.

The demands now made by an educated musical public are so exacting, that very few Piano-forte Manufacturers can produce instruments that will stand the test which merit requires. SOHMER & CO., as Manufacturers, rank among this chosen few, who are acknowledged to be makers of standard instruments. In these days, when many manufacturers urge the low price of their wares rather than their superior quality as an inducement to purchase, it may not be amiss to suggest that, in a Piano, quality and price are too inseparably joined to expect the one without the other.

Every Piano ought to be judged as to the quality of its tone, its touch, and its workmanship; if any one of these is wanting in excellence, however good the others may be, the instrument will be imperfect. It is the combination of these qualities in the highest degree that constitutes the perfect Piano, and it is this combination that has given the "SOHMER" its honorable position with the trade and the public.

An offertory will be made at every service for Diocesan Missions, or some other canonical object; of which offertory the minister is requested to give notice.

Will it be remembered that the usage in the Diocese for a number of years has been to devote the offertory for the Sunday before Convention to the Fund for paying the traveling expenses of missionaries to the Convention. The money so received will be distributed, and those missionaries whose stations have contributed to the fund will participate. The reports must be made out fully and accurately from the registers, and be handed in on the first day of Convention.

The same arrangements will no doubt be had for the comfort and entertainment of Convention as in previous years. Some embarrassment and delay has been had from the absence from town lately of the Rectors of the three largest parishes, who naturally take a lead in this matter. The days will be given to legislation, and the evenings to public business. The missionary pledges for the year will be taken on Wednesday night, and all should come ready to pledge for the work of the next year. On Thursday night the Sunday-school meeting will be held.

The work of revising and codifying the Constitution and Canons of the Diocese has been a matter of many days' work, reaching over months by single members of the Committee, by Subcommittees to whom was referred special subjects, and by the whole Committee in session together. On the 8th and 9th instants they met morning, afternoon and night for a completion of their reports. It has been put into print, and will be received as soon as this paper is probably. It should be examined carefully, and the copies brought to Convention, in order that the consideration may be careful and intelligent. This matter will take many hours of the time of the Convention; but it is a work which, if well done now, will stay done for years.

The response to the requests for proffers of hospitality to the members of the St. Louis congregations for the members of our Convention should be prompt and numerous. The Convention meets on Tuesday morning, 27th instant, and will continue, probably, until Friday. What is needed is not elaboration, but warm, characteristic hospitality and kindness. If the Convention were to be held in any of several of our interior cities there would be abundant hospitality offered for all the members in attendance. It should be so here. The clergy, and where the parishes are vacant, the wardens should instantly now report to the Committee whether they will attend and how many delegates, and if they have made any private arrangement for entertainment. If they do not report, they must not be surprised if no provision is made for them. Those who are able and disposed to entertain should immediately indicate to their Rectors their disposition, and whether they can entertain more than one, and if they have any preferences as to whom they would prefer to receive. The Convention will be a busy, and in some respects, an important one. All should make an effort to attend.

BEGINNING OF MISSIONARY YEAR.

The appointments this year and hereafter for the Domestic Committee date from September first, and run for a year from then. This is a change from January first, and has been made so as to enable the year's business to be closed up before the annual meeting in the latter part of that month. The Bishop is informed of the amount appropriated to the Diocese for the year, and is called upon to nominate missionaries for stipends to cover the appropriation. Then the nominations are ratified by the Committee in New York.

This arrangement being fixed, it may become necessary for us to change the time for our making our missionary appropriations for the Diocese. After exhausting the amount given by the Domestic Committee, which this year is $1,800 for general work and $500 for work among the colored people, the same amount as last year, the Bishop and Diocesan Missionary Board have to make appropriations from our Diocesan Missionary funds for the rest of the aid which has to be given, which is an amount more than as much more than as that given from New York, and which has to come from our parishes.

THE CHURCH'S VETERANS.

There is a general Infirm Clergy Fund for the entire Church under the care of Trustees appointed by the General Convention, the Treasurer of which is Mr. Lloyd W. Wells. This is made up mainly by the royalty of 10 per cent which is paid by all publishers on sales of the Church Hymnals. Needy clergymen in most of the Dioceses have been helped from this Fund. None at work, however, in this Diocese have ever asked or received from it. One aged clergyman, canonically connected with the Diocese, at work in it for only a few months, several years ago, and residing since with relatives in another State, has had assistance from it.

We have our own Diocesan Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund, which within a few years has reached the sum of Five Thousand Dollars and over. This has come mainly from the Christmas offerings of the Diocese which are devoted to this purpose. By the rules of the Trustees none of the capital sum nor the collections can be used; these accumulate, and the income only may be appropriated. Clergymen must have been for three years in active work in the Diocese to entitle them to the benefit of the Fund. There is one regular beneficiary of the Fund, a clergyman who after a long life of usefulness is now with impaired powers and in great weakness awaiting his end and reward. Other special appropriations have been made as need has required. As our clergy grow older and more numerous the calls on this Fund are likely to be more frequent.

At the last General Convention a recommendation was adopted that one tenth of the Communion alms of the churches should be appropriated to the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund of the Diocese or the General Board. This seems equitable. The Communion alms are to be appropriated to the needy of the Church, if there are any in the parish. It would be in entire harmony with this to use a tithe of the amount for those who have been worn out in the Lord's work.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. Wm. Brittain of Tiffin, Ohio, has been called to the charge of All Saints Church, Nevada, Vernon county, and has accepted, and entered on duty on the first of this month. He has also visited Rich Hill, Butler and Harrisonville.

—The Rev. B. R. Phelps entered upon the rectorship of St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, on the first of the present month.

—The Rev. Mr. Robert was to sail from Liverpool on the 6th of this month and will reach this city probably by the 18th or 19th instant.

—The Rev. Mr. Henry has withdrawn from the charge of Plattsburg. He divides his time each month between Brunswick, Carrollton, Richmond and Norborne, and resides in Carrollton.

—We are sorry to notice an account of the death of the Rev. Asa S. Colton of Princeton, N. J., the father of our worthy Rector of Carthage in this Diocese. He was deeply respected in the parish where he had passed so many years of his life for his learning and humble piety.

—It is quite worth a long notice to record the happy fact that the debt on Christ Church in this city has been fully paid. The note was due in June, and was paid at its maturity. This is a condition in which the parish has not been for many a long year.

—During the three or four weeks in which along through the summer the Bishop was in Wisconsin, he officiated every Sunday, and on one of these occasions when at Delevan the offertory was given for Church work in Missouri.

—The Rev. Mr. Cummings has secured about $850 of the $1,000 needed by him for the erection of his chapel in Kansas City, and of this his old friend Rev. Dr. Beardsley of New Haven, Conn., sent him $25; the Bishop gave him $50 from trust money, and his friend Dr. Laws, of the State University, gave him a like amount. He is intensely solicitous to secure the balance so that the whole may be available.

—The Diocesan Missionary Treasurer reports that he has not yet in hand sufficient to meet the stipends due at the beginning of next month.

—The Colored Church on South Sixth street has been rented to a colored Baptist congregation, who have some idea also of purchasing it.

—The Rev. Mr. Gauthier has started a Sunday-school at Afton in St. Louis county, about six miles from his church, in a neighborhood where we have never had services. The outlook is very encouraging. The affairs of Emmanuel Church under his pastoral care are very flourishing; the congregations and Sunday school are large and increasing.

—The Rev. Dr. Fulton was back in his place on the first Sunday in the month, but found the mercury a good deal above a hundred, and his people most of them away yet, and himself of little use on account of the heat, and so went north again for another week.

—The Rev. Dr. Schuyler, who spent the whole summer in St. Louis, and, in consequence, on account of the absence and sickness of so many of the city clergy, had a great deal of extra duty thrown on him from burials and sick calls, left the city some days since for an absence of three weeks. He will hardly be back for Convention, which is the more to be pitied, as he is the chairman of the committee on canons which is to make its report on revision, on which he has spent much pains. We do not hear that anything in particular has been done this summer in the matter of an assistant.

—We hear that Canon Sylvester of Davenport will spend Convention week in St. Louis, and be in Christ Church on the Sunday before and the Sunday after. He will visit Mr. John R. Triplett, the Secretary of Convention.

—The vestry of Christ Church, Springfield, have taken steps for the erection of a portion of the Rectory on the lot in the rear of the church. The Academy there began its second year on the 5th instant, with Misses Jackson and Barrington in charge—the same teachers as last year.

—Rev. R. J. Walker, Methodist minister in Clyde, Kansas, who has been for over a year corresponding with the Bishop on the subject of applying to enter our ministry, has prepared his papers of application to become candidate for orders, and will spend the period of his candidature at St. Paul's College, Palmyra, assisting Dr. Wainwright in some of his classes. Both Mr. Walker and his wife are experienced teachers.

—The Rev. G. C. Tucker has engaged to give Sunday duty to the parish in Collinsville, Illinois.

—The Rev. Mr. Wall had the month of August given him for vacation, but he spent it in bed sick. He is better, however, now. The work on the chapel at Joplin is now nearly finished. The plastering has been done, and a vestry room added, and gas fixtures put in.

—The Bishop spent Sunday, 4th instant, in Emmanuel Church, St. Louis county, and on the 11th was at Plattsburg, and expected on the day following to consecrate St. Mary's Church in that town.

—Mount Calvary Sunday-school, under the efficient superintendency of Mr. Jos. Franklin, has admirably held its own during the Summer, the minimum attendance being sixty children.

—The Bishop on Monday, 12th instant, consecrated St. Mary's church, Plattsburg, and preached the sermon. The Rev. Dr. Runcie, the Dean of St. Joseph Convocation, and Mr. Bennett, to whose efforts the building is largely due, and Mr. Smith of Cameron, were present, and took part in the service. The lot was given by the late Hon. Judge Birch, and is deeded to the Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese. It is a very neat structure, with recess chancel and good-sized vestry room, and has been finished in good taste.

—Mr. Harry I. Bodley, the venerable senior lay member of the Standing Committee, has intimated his desire to decline re-election at the next Convention, on account of increasing age and infirmities.

REDUCTION OF STIPENDS—A WORD TO VESTRIES. We have been passing through a long season of financial depression, but all must admit that more prosperous times are now upon us. Business is improving; money is coming into our State; our material prospects are brightening.

Now in view of these a word or so to some of the vestries of this Diocese. For years the Diocesan Missionary Committee has been voting a stipend toward the support of your minister.

Say,
Can you not, by a supreme act of self-denial, assume the whole support?

Or,
Can you not, by a little stern effort, begin a gradual reduction of your stipend?

We are frank to confess that such gradual reduction ought, and must be inaugurated. It would be a graceful act on the part of the vestries themselves to move in the matter. Otherwise the committee will be forced to take the initiative. Let no vestry be deceived. We cannot treat a congregation forever as babes. They must learn to walk alone.

GRACE CHURCH, KANSAS CITY.

The Vestry of Grace Church, with deep regret, here record the loss of one of their number, Gen. John A. Clark, who died at his home in this city, August 5th, 1881, aged 65 years. Although he had resided with us but about three years, his eminently pure and Christian life, his honesty and integrity in the discharge of all his duties, and his uniform courtesy and kindness, had endeared him to all with whom he had business or social relations.

To the family who have lost a loved husband and father, we extend our kindest sympathy.

To the members of this parish we commend the life of our deceased brother, as one worthy of our emulation, and prompting us to a nobler and a better life.

Editor Church News:

In the discussion of the value of Sunday-schools there is frequent reference to the old ways, and present ways suffer by comparison.

But are we not forced to regard religious instruction in the family as deficient, if not practically obsolete?

That it ought not to be so makes the fact no less unpleasant.

What we should seriously consider is, how we may best restore the old customs, or, failing in that, substitute other good customs adapted to the life of to day. There is room for doubt whether if Sunday-schools were abolished there would be any more of household instruction.

As to the effect of Sunday schools on attendance at Church services, my experience is that the children of the Sunday-school attend as regularly as the adults of the Church.

W. H. H.

A SURPRISE PARTY.

A delightful surprise was given Rev. Mr. Reed of Mount Calvary church and his family on the evening of the 3rd of September. As they were sitting in their comfortable home, just after their return to the city, a long procession, lead by Mr. Jos. Franklin and the officers of Mount Calvary Sunday-school, filed into the rooms, and when the lines were orderly formed, Mr. Franklin, the Superintendent, stepped forward, and standing in the centre, delivered a most happy address of welcome to the Pastor and his family, in the name of the Sunday-school. After a reply from Mr. Reed, the line was reformed, and the procession moved on to Mr. F.'s residence, where a delightful entertainment had been provided by Mr. F. The evening was passed in singing, speech making and general merriment till about ten o'clock, when the assembly broke up.

R.

MARK THIS.

Did you ever know a man who grew rich by fraud continue successful through life and leave a fortune at death?

This question was put to a gentleman who had been in business forty years. After reflecting a while, he said:

"Not one. I have seen many men become rich, as if by magic, and win golden opinions, when some little thing led to an exposure of their fraud, and they have fallen into disgrace and ruin. Arson, perjury and suicide are common crimes with those who make haste to be rich regardless of the means."

Boys, stick a pin here. You will soon be men and begin to act with those who make money. Write this good man's testimony in your mind, and with it put this word of God, "He that hasteneth to be rich hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him."

Let these words lead you to resolve to make haste slowly when you go into business in the matter of making money.—[Church Union.]

MISCELLANY.

—"I have been," said the captain of a New England vessel, "always in the habit of reading the Scriptures to my men; and in the hour of danger I found that it was those who were at peace with God who worked most calmly and resolutely, while the greatest sinners in my ship turned out to be the biggest cowards."

—The story is told of the son of one of our Bishops, that having lost in the late war all his property, he asked, at the end of it, one his father's employes, whom he met driving a dray, where he could get a dray for himself. The man had an old one to loan him. The charger which had borne him through the war was thereupon converted into a draught-horse, and the the Bishop's son began life afresh. Such manhood is the prime secret of success. The drayman is now the head of a wealthy house.

—"You are now one," said the minister to the happy pair he had just tied together with a knot that they could never undo. "Which one?" asked he bride. "You will have to settle that for yourselves," said the clergyman.

—A class mate of the President said at a Williamstown prayer-meeting lately: "Twenty six years ago to night, and at this very hour, our class were on the top of Greylock to spend the night of the Fourth of July. As we were about to lie down for sleep, Garfield took out his pocket Testament and said: 'I am in the habit of reading a chapter every night at this time with my mother. Shall I read aloud?' All assented, and when he had read he asked the oldest member of the class to pray. And there in the night, on the mountain top, we prayed with him for whom we have now assembled to pray."

—About twenty years ago a somewhat abusive opponent of the Baptists was publishing a book against them at the office of the printer of the acts of the Mississippi Legislature. By some inadvertence the sheets got mixed, and before the confusion was detected several copies of the acts were so bound as to exhibit the following astonishing piece of legislation: "Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the state of Mississippi, that ba means to put under the water, and izzo means to take out."

—A very encouraging sign of the improved spirit coming over the South is the growing conviction of the need for finding employment for women. The mistaken gallantry that has kept women in unwilling idleness and dependence is yielding to a more practical view of duties and proprieties, and it is now being slowly admitted that it is not wise that the father of a large family of limited means should earn a precarious living for the entire household, while his daughters, intelligent and of industrious disposition, are debarred from the privilege of assisting him.

—A lady who had been in the habit of spreading slanderous reports once confessed her fault to St. Philip Neri, and asked how she should cure it. He said:

"Go to the nearest market place, buy a chicken just killed, pluck its feathers all the way as you return, and come back to me."

She was much surprised, and when she saw her adviser again, he said:

"Now go back and bring me back all the feathers you have scattered."

"But that is impossible," she said; "I cast the feathers carelessly; the wind carried them away. How can I recover them?"

"That," he said, "is exactly like your words of slander. They have been carried about in every direction; you cannot recall them. Go and slander no more."—[Dean Stanley.]

—And those parsons—and, still more, those parson's wives—who expect lock-pulling and curtseyings from their humbler parishioners, civilities which they do not return, would be better for remembering that story of George Washington, when President of the United States, who uncovered in return to a salute from a negro. "Is it possible" said a snob to him, "that you take off your hat to a nigger?" "Do you suppose," replied Washington, "that I am going to let a negro be better-mannered than I am?"

—When the Pilgrims first landed they fell on their knees, after which they fell on the aborigines.

—One of the Methodist bishops relates: "I once heard a man, very illiterate, who fixed on the passage of bringing into the Church 'damnable heresies,' and mispronouncing the word, he announced for his text, 'damnable hearsays,' and proceeded to give a very proper rebuke to the slanders of the day."

—An anonymous donation of $5,000 has been made to the Church Missionary Society, England, or sending a missionary to the Mackenzie River and the shores of the Polar Sea.

Children's Corner.

JAMIE, THE GENTLEMAN.

There's a dear little ten-year-old down the street,
With eyes so merry and smile so sweet
I love to stay him whenever we meet;
And I call him Jamie, the gentleman.

His home is of poverty, gloomy and bare,
His mother is old with want and care —
There's little to eat and little to wear
In the home of Jamie, the gentleman.

He never complains—though his clothes be old,
No dismal whinings at hunger or cold;
For a cheerful heart that is better than gold
Has brave little Jamie, the gentleman.

His standing at school is always ten —
"For diligent boys make wise, great men,
And I'm bound to be famous some day, and then"—
Proudly says Jamie, the gentleman,

"My mother shall rest her on cushions of down,
The finest lady in all the town,
And wear a velvet and satin gown—"

Thus dreams Jamie, the gentleman.
"Trust ever in God," and "Be brave and true,"—
Jamie has chosen these precepts two;
Glorious mottoes for me and for you;
May God bless Jamie, the gentleman!

—A Cambridge boy, after a week's absence in the country, wrote to his mother: "I got here all right and I forgot to write before; it is a very nice place to have fun. A feller and I went out in a boat and the boat tipped over and a man got me out, and I was so full of water I didn't know nothing for a good long while. The other boy has got to be buried after they find him. His mother come from Chelsea, and she cries all the time. A hoss kicked me over and I have got to have some money to pay the doctor for fixin' my head. We are going to set an old barn on fire to-night, and I should smile if we don't have bully fun. I lost my watch and am very sorry. I shall bring home some mud turtles and I shall bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get 'em in my trunk."

GO HOME, BOYS.—Boys, don't hang round the corner of the streets! If you have anything to do, do it promptly, right on, then go home. Home is the place for boys. About the street corners and at the stables they learn to talk slang, and they learn to swear, to smoke tobacco, and to do many other things which they ought not to do. Do your business, then go home. If your business is play, play and make a business of it. I like to see boys play good, earnest, healthy games. If I were the town, I would give the boys a good spacious play ground. It should have plenty of soft, green grass, and trees, and fountains, and broad space to run and jump, and to play suitable plays. I would make it as pleasant, as lovely, as it could be, and I would give it to the boys to play in, and when the play was ended, I would tell them to go home.

For when boys hang round the street corners and the stables, they get slouchy and listless. I would have a hundred boys like a hundred yachts, with every spar straight and every rope taut, the decks and sides clean, the rigging all in order, and everything ready to slip the cable, and fly before the wind when the word comes to go.

But this cannot be if you lounge about the streets, and idle away your time at the stables and the saloons.

CHILDREN'S QUAIN SAYINGS.—London Truth advertised recently to give a prize of £2 2s. for the quaintest saying of a child. From several hundred contributions received the following are selected:

"As we were talking one day about churches and their curious ceremonies, a little boy remarked that he had seen a christening, a funeral and a wedding, but he had never seen a divorce."

Jack (aged four, taking a walk)—What becomes of people when they die? Mama—They turn into dust, dear. Jack—What a lot of people there must be on this road, then.

Tottie—I wonder why dolls are always girls, Tom? Tom—Because boys hate to be made babies of.

A child seeing a bill on a telegraph post: "Oh, mama, look! A message has fallen down."

A precocious boy of six years, listening wearily to a long-winded tale related by a prosy relative, took advantage of a short pause to say, slyly: "I wish that story had been brought out in numbers."

"Little baby is very ill, Charley; I am afraid he will die." "Well, if he does die, mama, he won't go to the bad place." "Why, Charley, how can you know that?" "Oh, I know he can't mama; he's got no teeth to gnash."

Girl (yawning over lessons)—I'm so tired; I should like to go to sleep. Boy—I'll tell you what to do, then; get up early tomorrow and have a good sleep before breakfast.

Mama—And David was able to kill that great big man, Goliath, because God helped him.

Harry (aged six)—Well, I don't call that fair, mama; that's two on one.

A little girl had a penny given her to put in the collection box at church. When she dropped in the coin she exclaimed: "That's the way the money goes, pop goes the weasel."

Small boy, watching his sister iron a piece of work with bird's nest of eggs done in crewels on it—I say, sister, if you keep the iron so long on those eggs you'll hatch 'em.

A little girl, seeing two love birds billing and cooing, was told that they were making love. "Why don't they marry?" she asked, "then they would not make love any more."

A fond mother said to her little son: "Tommy, my dear, I am going to give you a little companion soon; which would you prefer, a little boy or a little girl?" "Well, mother," replied Tommy, "if it's all the same to you, I would rather have a little donkey."

A little girl, aged five, going to bed one night, and kneeling down to say her prayers, said: "O, mamma, may I only say Amen to night? I am so tired."

A WORD TO PARISHIONERS.

Parishioners are heard very often to complain that their clergyman did not come to see them when they were sick or in trouble. They think hardly of him for it. They have been themselves slighted, and are ready to accuse him of partiality and indifference to their wants. This is the fact in most all parishes.

Now, will people look at the other side of the matter?

How many of those thus afflicted are sure that their clergyman knew of their trouble? Every one will grant that a Minister ought not to be blamed for not attending a case of which he is in perfect ignorance. Clergyman are human and not omniscient or omniscent. Their means of information are not supernaturally strained so that they can tell by intuition when a parishioner is ill or in need of spiritual care. Yet many people act as though they were. The fault in a large majority of cases lies with the people themselves. Their first duty if they feel the need of the clergyman is to send word to him; then he will come. Otherwise they may be ill a long time without his knowing it. If you send word of your condition, and your Rector does not come to you, then complain, for you have a perfect right to do so.

If you do not let him know that his services are needed, then you do him a grievous wrong, and he is the one to complain of your neglect. Above all things don't argue that the minister ought to know the state of health, of from a hundred to a thousand souls under his charge. He ought to know nothing of the kind; he can know nothing until he is told. His capacities are limited within finite bounds. The clergy are ever ready: they are more ready, generally speaking, to be of aid to their people, than the people are to claim the aid.

Sunday-School Comm..

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkin, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5th, St. Louis, Mo.

THE service for Thursday night in Convention week, 29th inst., will be devoted as usual to the interests of the Sunday school work of the Diocese. Notice of this service should be given in all the churches and Sunday-schools of this city. Addresses will be made, and a part of the music, at least, we hope contributed by the children. Will parents and children remember.

VACATION is over and now for a rally all along the line. The hot, trying months are gone; the summer wanderers are gathering from seaside, lakeside, mountain and country; the school children are flocking back to their daily tasks of study, and now is the time for work. Let every Christian man and woman who dropped Church and Sunday-school work during the heated term resume duty now. Vacation to you has been a failure if you have not been fitted for better work and more of it. Let your class and all the school see what it has done for you. The work is waiting. Gather in the scattered children. Get into well organized order and shape that struggling school. Days are precious. Do not lose one.

WHAT are you trying to do week by week as a teacher? What is your object, in all that you attempt for your class? And what progress are you making in this direction? These are questions worth thinking about—worth meeting squarely.

WHAT did you get out of last Sunday's lesson? That is the question, not What was in the lesson? but What of it is now in you? What practical truth, what warning, what encouragement did you gain from it of which you are making use to your personal welfare and growth in grace?

THE true measure of one's friendship is what it secures to one's friend. What one can give by his friendship, not what one can get by it, shows its real value. He who can ask, What is this friendship worth to me? can never be a friend. He who is a friend will only ask, What is this friendship worth to my friend? Selfishness and friendship are absolutely incompatible.

TEACHER: Is there a scholar in your class who does not know Jesus as his Saviour? You ought not to rest until that child is brought to God in the holy sacrament of Baptism and the ordinance of Confirmation. God has brought you face to face with that precious soul in the solemn relation of teacher. Having done so, He will not refuse your faith-filled prayer for the Holy Spirit to make effective your instructions. The responsibility for that scholar's salvation now largely rests on you. Do you realize this?

A LARGE Sunday school ought to be a good one, and it can be; but it is much more important, says an old Sunday school worker, that a small Sunday-school should be a good one, and it can be. Large Sunday-schools are at the best exceptional. Small Sunday-schools have the most scholars in them the country through. It is in them that the chief work for the children and youth of America must be done. The small Sunday-school is the post of real honor.

WHAT you say next Sunday from your desk as Superintendent, or in your class as teacher, is like to impress some scholar for the first time with the truth you utter; that is, if you give voice to any truth, and if you do not, you are out of your sphere. Do not imagine because what you say is not new to yourself that it may not be utterly new to some of your hearers. The great thought that each utterance of yours in your place impresses anew some scholar who hears ought to add to your sense of the fearful responsibility of the position you fill and bring you to realize your dependence upon the Holy Spirit for power to speak aright.

WHAT has vacation amounted to? Now is the time to show if you needed it, and it was so improved as to produce results, they ought to stand out so clearly and definitely in your life and conduct as to be seen by all who observe. You ought to be a better teacher or scholar. If on the other hand it was not needed by you, there is just so much waste of time to be made good by renewed effort and increased devotion. In either case the next few weeks ought to show much better than average work.

The value of the vacation is still, in your case, fellow teacher, a mooted question. Give us the testimony.

A CHRISTIAN gentleman, recently from Sweden, tells of the wonderful influence on spiritual life there from the singing of the Moody and Sankey hymns. And the same story comes from where-soever the "old, old story" is told. This modern, frivolous, "unchurchy," jigity jigity" Sunday-school music, so much criticised and sneered at, has already a hold on the heart of America; Great Britain, Germany, Italy, Sweden, China, India, and the islands of the sea, such as no other music has had since Jubal became "the father of all who handle the harp and organ."

True, it is not mediæval nor classic, but a part of, and in the best spirit of, the 19th century. It is not artistic, but it has a wonderful power in bringing souls to Christ. And, after all, it is infinitely better to have the little folks happy in singing "I need Thee every hour," "More love to Thee I owe," than miserable while the choir renders a magnificent oratorio.

"We had a real good time in our Sunday school last Sunday," says a Superintendent. "Teachers and scholars were in tears during the closing address." Such is not an unusual way of estimating the value of a Sunday-school session; but it is a very poor way. The Superintendent who gauges the value of his school by the number present, the amount of money spent for prizes, the display made on Christmas or Easter, or even by the tears that may be shed, is certainly not in his proper place, nor sensible of the sacred responsibilities resting upon him. Tears are by no means a test of the quality of instruction, nor of religious conviction, however much they may indicate momentary feeling. The question is not whether the scholars sung or wept, but what they determined on doing when their voices were hushed and tears dry. Better that one person should unreservedly commit himself to the Saviour than that fifty persons should cry over an affecting illustration—and be satisfied simply to cry.

THE TEACHER'S SPIRITUAL CULTURE.

The culture of the spirit is by far the most important branch of self-culture. The chief end of all religious teaching is to influence the heart, and lead it to a love for God and things divine. The spiritual culture of the little ones is the purpose which you ought ever to have before you. It is yours to lead them to the feet of Jesus that they may learn of him, to inspire in them a devout and reverent trust in God, and to be the means of kindling in them the flame of divine life. It is yours to make the name of Jesus sweet and attractive to them, to persuade them of the love and kindness of the great and good Father, and to constrain them to love and practice righteousness for his sake. Some one has said that religion is morality touched with emotion. I should say it is morality not simply touched, but inspired with the emotion of love to Christ and reverence for the will of God; and surely it is a most blessed work to be the means of kindling that emotion and inspiring that reverence in any human heart. But to attain this great end you must attend assiduously to the culture of your own spirit. If you would inspire a love of Jesus in others, you must yourself have drunk into that love, and been filled with it. If you are to kindle reverence and the fear of God, you must yourselves be reverent, and live in an atmosphere of godly fear. I do not envy the religious worker, whether he be preacher or teacher, who has no true spiritual life and no active sympathy with the unseen and eternal. There can be no true joy and no sense of the responsibility of the work. There must, on the other hand, be a sense of unrelenting and untruthfulness, which will be a source of uneasiness and mental discomfort. Be it yours to cultivate a living and earnest piety, and a close walk with God, through meditation and prayer. —[The Rev. J. Williamson, in The London Sunday School Teacher.]

HOW TO TEACH SUNDAY-SCHOOL CHILDREN TO SING.

BY B. W. WILLIAMS

It is to me a cause for much regret that so little attention is now given to children's singing in our Sunday schools and Sunday School concerts. There are two reasons for this neglect: (1.) It involves too much trouble; (2.) The want of practical knowledge in teaching the scholars. I will notice the second only.

There is a mistaken notion that to teach children to sing requires a scientific knowledge of music. A learned musician is the last person who should undertake this work. The natural, uncultivated voices of children are annoying to him. Everything, with him must go by rule. He wants all the crescendos, diminuendos, pianissimos, fortissimos, holds and rests, carefully observed. The time must be exact. He has no patience for this work because he has no love for it. He cannot teach by "rote" and so he fails. Now, I believe in teaching children the rudiments of music, and in teaching them to read music, but it cannot be done in connection with the Sunday-school. This belongs to the music teacher of the day school.

In teaching the songs of the Sunday-school to children, one must have some knowledge of music. He must learn the tunes, and be able to sing them without the notes. No man ever successfully taught children to sing with his eyes on the music. He must stand up, and, with a hearty voice, lead them. He must not be a stick. He must be wide awake, full of life and energy. He must not stand still, but must move about among the children, clap his hands, beat the time, and do almost anything to infuse life into them. He must say to them: "When I say sing, I want you to sing. Don't wait for me. The sooner you begin, the sooner you will learn the tune. Sing softly at first, so that you can hear my voice, but sing. You never will learn until you open your mouths and try. No boy ever learned to swim who did not go into the water. Now open your mouths wide and try. Follow this simple rule and sing when I sing, and you will, in a few moments, learn the tune."

Say nothing to the scholars about musical rules. Talk to them as little as possible, and let them learn everything by your voice. Never mind about piano passages or forte passages. They will imitate you exactly. Just as you sing, they will sing.

The quickest and best way to teach a new tune to children, is to teach one line at a time, being very careful to make no mistake yourself. Every mistake you make will be imitated; it will cost you more labor to correct one mistake than to teach a whole tune. When one line has been learned, take up the second and then sing both together, then teach the third and sing the three, then the fourth and sing the whole tune, and you and your scholars will be astonished to find the tune learned in a few moments of time.

Don't be concerned about mistakes, provided you make none yourself. The mistakes will take care of themselves, and the singing will be an exact counterpart of your own.

Always encourage your children, especially those who seem to be trying. "That's right. Now the tune is coming. Bravo, girls! Open your mouths wide, and don't be afraid. There is one boy who has not opened his mouth yet. He'll never learn to sing. Now, every boy and girl sing. Don't mind the mistakes. Make as many as you please. You can't help singing right if you will only try. Now, all together." In this way you will infuse life into your scholars and give them courage to go on.

Two or three rules are important for you as teacher.

First: Always encourage the boys to sing. A choir of children is not worth much without the boys. But you must remember that boys cannot, as a rule, sing above C. Therefore you must, if your tune runs above that letter, transpose it, and take it on a lower key than it is written. In teaching, you simply want to pitch the tune lower without reference to transposition of scale.

Second: Never use a reed instrument in teaching. A piano is the only instrument fit to use, because it marks the time and gives the tune distinctly. It is better to use no instrument until the tune is well learned.

Third: Select tunes with a melody. Chorals sound well when sung by a strong juvenile choir, but they are much more difficult to teach. Children are fond of tunes with melodies, and will learn them readily.

Fourth: Don't scold your scholars.

Fifth: When teaching, keep your scholars constantly busy. Give them no time for rest—if you do, you will find it hard to get their attention again. Lose no time in selecting tunes. Have them all ready before you begin.

Sixth: Never sing over one hour, and three-quarters of an hour is enough for continuous singing.

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL TEACHER WHO IS NOT A CHRISTIAN.

He may have an excellent stock of knowledge, a well cultivated mind, the power of connecting his thoughts like the links in a chain, and the faculty of expressing his thoughts in a clear, accurate, fluent, and running manner. He may be familiar with all the facts of the gospel, from the birth in Bethlehem to the ascension in the district of Bethany, and possess much of the information which various authors have given concerning these facts. He may go to his class every Lord's Day punctually, regularly, and with delight, and be a great favorite with his class. He may be distinguished for truthfulness, honesty, amiability, and benevolence. But notwithstanding all his intellectual gifts and moral excellences, he is not a Christian. He has not truly repented of sin toward God; he has not given his heart to Christ by confidence, trust, or faith; and his motto is not, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" He is near the kingdom of heaven, but he is not in it. He has the form of godliness, but not its power. Being in this condition, there are several things which he cannot do for his scholars.

Not having been to Sinai, he cannot, from experience, tell of the rolling thunder which is there, of the flashing lightning which is there, of the inflexible divine voice which is there, and of the holy and just law which is there. Not having traveled the way between Sinai and Calvary, he cannot, from experience, lead them from the darkness to the light, from the storm to the calm, from the unrest of sin to the rest of holiness, from "the prince of this world" to "the Prince of peace." Not having tasted the felicities of Christianity, he cannot, from experience, assure them that "it is a thing of beauty, and a joy forever." Not having appropriated the promises of Christ, he cannot, from experience, declare to them how sweet and precious these are. Not being on the path which leads onward, upward, and homeward, he cannot say to them, "Follow me, and we shall meet when the voyage of life is over in 'the true fatherland.'" He is thus unable to do good for those committed to his care in the Sunday-school, which he would undoubtedly accomplish, by the grace of God, if he were a Christian.

This is a great pity for his own sake, and for the sake of his pupils. What should he do? Give his resignation to the superintendent of the school leave his class, and abandon the work which perhaps was so dear to him? No, and again we say no. It is his duty to listen to the voice of "the great Shepherd of the sheep," and the lambs, to enter his fold, and with him walk along "the green pastures and the still waters," which he so luxuriantly provides. We urge him with our whole heart to do this without the delay of another day; and we entreat all who resemble him to pursue the same course. Then qualified in heart as well as in mind for their glorious work in the Sunday-school; able to say to their scholars, "We love him because he first loved us," Calvary will ever be the center of their teachings, as it is the center of the Bible, history, and the universe. And while they will have infinitely more joy in their work than they can have at present, they will realize the great aim for which the Sunday-school was originated and is sustained—the bringing of the young, by faith, hope, and obedience, to the Lord Jesus Christ. —[The Rev. Dr. A. McAulane, in The London Sunday School Chronicle.]

THE TEACHER'S SPIRIT.

There is something in the spirit of the true teacher that is like an enthusiast. Seldom does a man do anything noble until he becomes an enthusiast in his work. All the men who have mightily moved the world have been enthusiasts. David, Paul, Peter the Hermit, Bernard, Luther, and Whitfield are ready illustrations. There is a wrong kind of enthusiasm, which has been the occasion of much misery; but there is also a right kind, which has been the source of unspeakable blessings to the world.

The enthusiast is the man of one idea, who has set his soul upon one end; he bends every force of his being to the attainment of it, and on the very tide of his own passions bears others along with him. Paxton Hod says, "Every man is a fanatic who is a whole nature, self devoted to one great absorbing thought, which becomes to him idea, imagination, affection, and ambition."

A Sunday-school teacher should be an enthusiast in his work. To him no scheme for the blessing of humanity should outrival that of the Sunday-school. He must accept of this work as worthy to engage his whole thought and labor and life. He should say, "This one thing I do," and on the flow of his great zeal he should override all difficulties and persistently keep on in his well-doing. His zeal should indeed be tempered with prudence; but if the passion of the whole nature be not in the work, it cannot largely succeed. The root of failure in Sunday-school work is half-heartedness.

And there is something in the spirit of the true teacher that is like a Christian. There is something peculiar about a Christian, something that marks him off from his fellows. Whatever that is, it is an essential to the Sunday-school teacher. He ought to be a decided Christian, a professed Christian, a sincere, humble, and prayerful Christian.

The spirit of the Christian will lead to the setting forth of one great end and aim in our work even the salvation of souls; none but the Christian indeed will see the importance of that great aim or feel its absorbing and inspiring power. And another peculiarity of the Christian is the spirit of dependence on divine grace and strength. Whatever else may be done by human energy, Sunday-school work can only be done in the spirit of Paul, "I can do all things through him that strengtheneth me." The teacher must be humble, reliant, trustful realizing ever his Master's presence, carrying on all his labors under the banner whereon is inscribed the words, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord."

Earnestly we strive to culture the teacher's efficiency for his class work, but with tenfold more earnestness do we press upon him the importance of winning and of keeping the Sunday-school spirit. —[R. Tuck, in The London Teachers' Storehouse.]

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The Forty-second Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of Missouri, will be held in the Church of the Holy Communion, St. Louis, on the Fourth Tuesday in September, 1881, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

The Clergy will meet in the robing room at 9½ o'clock, promptly. All the Clergy attending the Convention are requested to bring their robes with them.

Blank Parochial Reports and Certificates of Election of Delegates have been mailed to all the Clergy of the Diocese. Should any additional ones be needed, the Secretary will be glad to furnish them.

The Bishop desires that all the Parochial Reports be handed to him at the opening of the Convention.

The usual provision will be made for the entertainment of Clergy and delegates.

The Secretary would state that he has arrangements with the different railroads that all clergymen and lay delegates to the Convention, together with their families, who pay full fare to St. Louis, shall return by only paying one-third fare, ticket good to October 6th.

JNO. R. TRIPLETT,
Sec'y of Convention.

MR. HENRY RANDALL WAITE, special agent for the Tenth Census, requests us to call attention to the fact that, wishing to obtain accurate statistics of the Church, he has sent schedules of inquiry to all the churches on his list. He begs the officers of any parish or mission for which a schedule has not been received, to notify him at once. Address, Census Office, Washington. Those who, having received the circulars and blanks and have not answered them, should do so immediately and with all possible fullness and accuracy.

THERE are twenty-five murderers in the jail in St. Louis, and the newspapers nearly every week notice some new atrocity. There is very little in this which would suggest any urgent reason for a Supreme Court judge going out of his way to rescue from punishment a confessed murderer who had been again and again convicted, and who had probably cost the State since the perpetration of his crime fifty thousand dollars. There will be a popular uprising in defense of our lives soon unless the law can find out a way to punish crime speedily, instead of being fertile in expedients, as it is now, for evading all punishment.

AS GOD HATH PROSPERED YOU.

It may not have occurred to many persons that in times of prosperity, such as the country has been having for the last two or three years, the price of the staples of life goes steadily up; and the effect upon those who have fixed salaries is a virtual reduction of their amount. The minister rejoices in the general prosperity even when he knows that for him it means a smaller loaf of bread and a narrower living. This should prompt to a certain and regular payment of salaries, and to no arrearages; and when possible such an increase as would correspond with the increased cost of living. This fall while the drought and the frantic speculations in grain mean large wealth heaped up in some hands and a narrowing down for others, it certainly means more a barrel and pound for flour and meat, and a still further reduction virtually of the salary of each person who receives a fixed amount. This ought to be thought of in casting up what should be done for the Church for the coming year—promptness, at any rate, and such increase as at least corresponds with the enhanced cost of living.

THE MONTH.

For all of us, the month has no doubt been one of anxious interest. For one thing the heat has been unparalleled this summer for intensity and persistence. Since early in June until now, far into September, we have had for weeks at a time a degree of heat, which in ordinary years has been unknown. This has been accompanied by a drought of wide extent, unrelieved for many weeks by any rain, which is not broken when we write. Work for many has been carried on with a strain; scholars are resuming their studies with the mercury at over one hundred degrees; city people are returning to town to find a mid-summer temperature.

The crops have in many places been seriously, and even disastrously affected by the drought, and the bright promise of the early summer greatly abated. This has not proved so unfortunate for the farmers as it might otherwise have done, because the increased price which they are getting for what they have raised, nearly makes up to them for the diminished product. For the consumer the result is very apparent in the greatly increased cost of flour and vegetables, and many of the staples of life.

The threat of diminished production has caused a mania for speculation in grain, which has drawn in many unaccustomed to it, and made a fever of excitement, and unsettled the healthy operations of trade.

In some of our cities, the trade balances for some weeks, generally counted almost dead, have exceeded those of any previous year. There is steadily proceeding an inflation in value of doubtful securities, which invite after a while a reaction.

In the midst of all this there has been an undertone of anxiety, deepening at times almost to despair, as to the condition of the President. The touching spectacle of fortitude and Christian courage has drawn all hearts to the wounded chief, and drawn prayers for help from many unwonted to pray. At this moment, when the transfer to Long Branch has been safely made, hope mingles with fear, and no one can say what the result may be in the interval between the writing and the reading of these lines. The country's strong cry is that the brave man may be spared longer for the land for which he has suffered so much.

"The Lord our God be with us, as He was with our fathers: let Him not leave us, nor forsake us: that He may incline our hearts unto Him, to walk in all His ways and to keep His commandments."

CHILDRENS' COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child in our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—The Rev. Mr. Lance, elected to the Professorship of Ecclesiastical History in Nashotah Seminary, has declined the call, and prefers to remain at Kenosha.

—It is stated that the Rev. Mr. Huntington, formerly of Kirksville, in this Diocese, has left the ministry. He was in Collinsville, in the Diocese of Springfield.

—Bishop Kip has recently had an operation performed on him for cataract on the right eye. Bishop Talbot is better, and is now at the Water Cure at Kenosha.

—Father Hyacinthe was coming to this country this fall, with his wife, to seek for aid for his work in Paris, but on advice has postponed it until next spring. Baroness Burdett-Coutts also, with her much named husband, is coming to America this month.

—Archdeacon Kirkby, whose remarkable missionary experiences in far North America, and whose graphic descriptions interested many of our congregations last spring, comes to this country this fall at the instance of our general Missionary Society, to make some addresses.

—Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, is to open on November 1st, the first Course of Lectures at Kenyon College, Ohio, founded by Bishop and Mrs. Bedell.

—Gen. Robert Lowery, the democratic nominee for Governor of Mississippi, was taught to read by his wife, since which he has risen to be one of the most influential men in the State.

—Dean Stanley used to preach very often in the poor Church of St. George's in the East, in London. One day last winter he had promised to come, but a heavy snow intervened. Still he insisted and came. The Church was, after all they could do, cold. He had come in a fur coat, and was taking it off. "Keep it on, Mr. Dean," said the Vicar. "So I will," he replied, "and then my surplice will be a true super-pellicium." His personal property when he died was valued at $450,000.

—"Marian Harland" (Mrs. Terhune) has a class of forty young men in her husband's Sunday school at Springfield, Mass.

GENERAL NEWS.

—According to the Catholic Telegraph, had the Roman Catholic Church retained all her children there should now be in the country from 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 members of that Church, whereas there are now less than 7,000,000. It attributes the great loss to the influence of the public schools.

—Mr. George I. Seney, a New York banker, has given $280,000 to Methodist Educational Establishments in Georgia, during the last summer.

—Bishop Clarkson, recently in an address, said that a bequest to him of $5,000, made by a lady, would by the interest on the amount secure for his Diocese a new Church building every year, for an indefinite period. This amount added from without would each year induce a congregation to set about the building of its Church. This is a great good to accomplish with a small amount. Who will emulate the example?

—Baltimore, in which a few weeks ago one Church paper found it difficult to live, has now started three Church papers. Baltimore Church News; Conservative Church News; and American Literary Churchman. The latter paper is to occupy a position somewhat different from any others in giving prominence to literary reviews and general questions.

—Trinity building, which stands upon the upper end of the block which Trinity Church occupies, is assessed at $1,700,000, and is the most valuable piece of real estate in New York, and next in value is the Fifth Avenue Hotel. One can, from the value of Trinity building, form some idea of the worth of Trinity Church and the lot on which it stands, but it is a property which yields no income.

—The Rev. Dr. Randolph McKim, in an address before the diocesan convention in Baltimore, said, as one of the results of the Church of England Temperance Society, $30,000,000 less were last year spent by the higher classes for wine than during the preceding year.

—We see by the daily papers, that Judge Daniels has decided, in the case of the Presbyterian congregation in Dunkirk, that the Trustees, the legal holders of the property of the society, must not only exclude a seceding congregation with their deposed minister from the use of the house of worship acquired and held for Presbyterian services, but must open it to the congregation who desire to use it in accordance with the laws and ordinances of the Presbyterian body. This is an important decision, one that is of interest to all Church people. It shows that by the laws of 1875-6 this State, at least, recognizes the trust character of all title to property set apart for religious uses; that once given it cannot be diverted from its original purpose, by the mere vote of the members of the congregation for the time being; that, like property bequeathed, it must be held for the use of those who represent the original givers and for no others.

—"It was only this week," said the R. C. Bishop of Little Rock, Ark., "that I saw one of the most prominent judges of this State in companionship with a noted gambler, who only lately was released from State Prison."

—The Seventh Church Congress meets this year in Providence, R. I., on the 25th of October. The Bishop of the Diocese presides, and the subjects include Civil Service Reform; Methods of Charity Organizations; Revision of the Version of the New Testament; The Relation of the Parishes to the Diocese, and of Diocese to the General Convention, in matters of Jurisdiction and Representation; Liturgical Growth; Education of Divinity Students; and Spiritual Culture, its Aims and Methods.

—Massachusetts is the only New England State which has a ten-hour law; and yet, in its cotton mills, the product per loom and per man is as great as in any State where they work more hours. A manager whose mill was running thirteen hours a day persuaded his directors to reduce the time to eleven hours, and there was an increase in the product of one-third. Work with fresh brain and vigorous body always pays best.

—Another train robbery and express messenger beaten at Glendale, near Independence, where the other took place less than two years ago. In a few days we will have the echo of this coming back in all the Eastern papers, warning immigrants from coming to Missouri. Scores of murderers in jail, hardly ever an execution. When will public indignation take up this thing and clean it out?

BOOK NOTICES.

Wide Awake for September. In point of fine illustrations this number is quite up to the beautiful midsummer number. We notice especially the drawings made for the article on "Fishing Rods," and the water-lily picture in "King Philip's Head." Champ also is well represented in the frontispiece for the "Mirage Man." Merrill furnishes a spirited full page picture for "Uncle Alec's Cane." Robert Lewis has a lovely full page crayon picture for a quaint story called "A Cloudy Day in Green Apple Time." Miss L. B. Humphrey is represented by three beautiful full-page drawings for Miss Wilkins' ballad of "Boy Blue," and Walter Shirlaw by his illustrations for the serial "Having His Own Way," and by the exquisite drawing "Ship Ahoy!" Enormous in stallments are given both of "Sharon," and Mrs. A. M. Diaz's charming Little Folks' serial, "Polly Cologne." Rev. E. E. Hale has an interesting talk with the children about the shooting of President Garfield, and former assassinations of history; and there are good puzzles, and a very singable and playable piece of music.

An important announcement is made respecting the permanent enlargement of the magazine, and the establishment of a Reading Union for American and English Young Folks, beginning with the October number.

D. Lothrop & Co., publishers. Boston.

The North American Review for September opens with a profoundly philosophical article on "The Church, the State and the School," by Prof. William T. Harris. M. J. Savage treats of "Natural Ethics," showing that the principles of morality are rooted in man's nature, and are the products of evolution; consequently that they are not affected by the vicissitudes of dogma or religious creeds. The Hon. John A. Kasson gives a history of the "Monroe Declaration," and proves that the credit of formulating that cardinal doctrine of American statesmanship is due to John Quincy Adams. The Rev. Edward Everett Hale writes of the Taxation of Church Property. He would have all churches taxed in form, but would exempt in practice those which by their charitable work help to lighten the public burdens. The other articles in this number of the Review, are "Jewish Ostracism in America," by Nina Morais; "The Decay of New England Thought," by the Rev. Julius H. Ward; "Ghost Seeing," by Prof. F. H. Hedge; and "Factitious History," by Rossiter Johnson. The latter article is a scathing criticism of Jefferson Davis's recently published historical memoir. Fifty cents per copy. Five dollars per year. Address, "The North American Review, New York, N. Y."

There is hardly a literary man in America whose writings have been more widely read than those of Dr. J. G. Holland, nor one whose name is better known among the people. It is said that nearly 600,000 copies of his books have been sold, to say nothing of the enormous sale each month of Scribner's Monthly over which he presides as Editor-in-chief. The Century Co., publishers of Scribner's (to be known as "The Century Magazine," after October), will soon issue a portrait of Dr. Holland, which is said to be a remarkably fine likeness; it is the photograph of a life-size crayon-drawing of the head and shoulders and will be about the size of the original picture. It is to be offered in connection with subscriptions to The Century Magazine.

The Sanitarium for September contains the "Progress of Sanitary Protection at Newport," "The Results of Attempting to Check the Small Pox in Chicago," is an admirable, practical lesson to all health authorities, and especially timely, in the face of the danger which now threatens the whole country from the spread of small-pox by immigration. "The Contagious Diseases Acts of Great Britain," is continued. It is a subject of universal interest, that must sooner or later engage the attention of all communities, as well as individuals, for the suppression of the most devastating, as well as the most loathsome of all diseases. "The Dangers of Salicylic Acid in Preserving Alimentary Substances" should especially engage the attention of all who make or use preserved foods. "The Editor's Table" comprehends an interesting presentation and discussion of the new "Plumbing and House-Drainage Law." The Sanitarian, New York.

The publishers of Rev. Dr. Robinson's "Spiritual Songs for the Sunday School" have just issued a little book containing only the hymns of that work and selling for one-half the money. It will be a most desirable supplement to the large book, greatly increasing its usefulness, and placing it within the reach of the largest mission schools. The new edition is prettily bound in flexible red cloth, and costs but 20 cents. The complete tune edition, bound in stiff boards, covered with red cloth, with red edges, costs 40 cents to schools in quantities. It is said that the sales of the latter work have mounted up into the scores of thousands since its issue a year ago. The Century Co., New York.

Church Seasons, historically and poetically illustrated by Alex. H. Grant. Second edition. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York. This volume of nearly 400 pages gives for each season and festival of the Christian year, an historical statement of its origin and use, with a fullness which is very satisfactory, and with this also, a selection of illustrative poetry from wide sources. It is a combination of Cox's Thoughts on the Services, Chambers' Book of Days, and the Lyre Apostolica, with scriptural commentary. It would be an excellent addition to a parish or private library. $1.50. Sent post paid to any address.

Biblque. An interesting game for pleasant Sunday recreation for the young and others, imparting a knowledge of the Bible. A number of cards containing each a verse of Scripture and further references are distributed to those who participate. One asks from this series of questions in a book, and interest turns upon the correct finding of the answer from the cards before one and a record is kept of right or wrong answers. It will induce thinking and study. 50 cents. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

The Preacher and Homiletic Monthly for September contains the first of a series of five remarkable sermons or lectures by Dr. Joseph Parker, of London, in reply to Ingersoll's lectures, "What must I do to be saved?" The remainder of this series is promised in succeeding numbers. Dr. Parker's handling of Ingersoll will make an impression on this side of the Atlantic. The series is regarded in England as the most satisfactory reply that as yet Ingersoll's lectures have called forth. We have also, in this number, a powerful discourse, by Dr. R. S. Storrs, on "The Joyfulness of a Christian Life." Dr. Storrs is, beyond dispute, in many very important respects, the foremost pulpit orator in America. Then we have a timely discourse, by Dr. J. P. Newman, on "Religious Education, the Safeguard of the Nation." Dr. Crosby continues his able papers on "Light on Important Texts." This number closes Vol. V. of this Monthly. The publishers announce that it has largely increased its subscription list during the past year. Subscription price $2.50 per year, 25 cents single copy. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York.

Laborers Together with God, by Rev. G. Caltrop. This is a little book containing words of encouragement, counsel and help for Sunday school teachers. The range of the addresses as well as their practical character may be seen from the subjects of some of the chapters: Personal dealing, and the necessity of sympathy to make it effective; Are we justified in expecting unqualified success? The teacher not an isolated worker, but the member of a body; Some reflex benefits of Sunday-school teaching; The philosophy of Sunday school rewards. All teachers would be the better for reading it. Handsomely bound, pp. 76. 40 cents, post-paid. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

Reasons for Believing in Christianity, addressed to busy people, by Rev. C. A. Row. The Bampton lecturer of 1877 has put forth in this volume a course of lectures, delivered in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, such as would be useful at any time, but is especially needed now. They are addressed to the difficulties usually met now. They are candidly faced, and answered with ample learning, and at the same time with terseness and clearness. They meet the needs of the busy people who have neither the time nor disposition for long disquisitions. But they are not unworthy of the subject nor the attention of the clearest minds. There is frequent use of illustration, and the lectures are quite models of lucid statements. The author also takes the matter out of petty detail where little could be settled anyway, and bases his arguments upon considerations of abiding importance. In form, and suggestion and argument, the book is of value equally to clergymen and laymen. It is well bound in red, with heavy paper and gilt top. 75 cents, post-paid. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

DANIEL C. YOUNG, Manager.

A FEW days ago a boy about 10 years of age, lame and sickly, who had been living with his mother in rooms in the city, found himself alone in the world. The lad was too ill to ride in the one poor carriage which followed the body to the grave, yet no one thought his condition serious. After the funeral a number of persons gathered in the poverty stricken room where he lay weeping to see what disposition could be made of him.

"If he wasn't lame I'd take him into my family," observed one of the men in a tone that seemed to show he blamed the boy for his misfortune.

"Well, it's awful hard," sighed one of the women, "but I know he couldn't get along with my children."

"Nor with mine," added a second.

"If I should take him he'd run up a big doctor's bill on me," said a man as he filled his pipe.

Each and every one had some excuse. The boy heard them all without a word, but with quivering chin and eyes full of tears. Under one pretext and another all slipped out and left him alone, promising to have another talk in the morning. Perhaps that night before they closed their eyes in sleep some of them thought of the poor lad laying in the dreary room alone and almost helpless, but if so, none of them went near him. Late in the morning a woman living on the same floor went in to see if he might not want a bite to eat, and the question of who should take care of him was settled. God had taken him. Hugged close to the wall, as if he feared the midnight shadows, and with eye lashes yet wet, he was dead and cold, no longer a burden to any one. The boy too lame to be taken care of on earth—too feeble to earn the crusts that some one would have given him—had a better home than the best. When they knew that he died alone, women bent over him and wept. When they lifted his wasted body from the bed, men's consciences smote them for their harsh words, but it was too late. He had gone from earth feeling that there was no mercy in the human heart.—[Detroit Free Press.

INGERSOLL, "MODERN THOUGHT," AND THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

BY REV. C. S. PERCIVAL.

"That majestic stream, supplied from a thousand un-failing fountains, rolls on and will roll forever."—JUDGE BLACK.

A straw, floating down on the river's tide,
Got caught in an eddy along its side.

And, whirling about in a giddy dream,
'Twas borne for a distance up the stream.

And exulting it cried: "What a wondrous force!
See how I have changed the river's course!"

But there came a rise with the summer rain,
And the eddy swept into the current again.

But the straw was left high and dry on the shore,
And the river flowed on the same as before.

—N. K. Fairbank, Esq., has made a munificent gift of 100 feet of land on Michigan Avenue, Chicago, and 175 feet on Indiana Avenue, to St. Luke's Hospital.

—Mr John McGavin, of Glasgow, whose death occurred recently, amongst other legacies, has left $5,000 to the Scottish Temperance League.

—The sum of $42,000 was recently secured in New York city for the aid of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary. Toward this two ladies each contributed $10,000.

—Mr. Frank Wise, of Cork, Ireland, who some time ago gave $100,000 to Bishop John Gregg for the restoration of St. Finbar's Cathedral, in that city, has now given $50,000 to Bishop Robert Gregg, his son and successors, to be applied for the relief of the Protestant poor. A similar sum has been placed at the disposal of the Roman Catholic bishop for the poor of the Roman Catholic body. Mr. Wise has also given $25,000 to hospitals in the same city.

Labor Saving.

The demand of the people for an easier method of preparing Kidney-Wort has induced the proprietors, the well-known wholesale druggists, Wells, Richardson & Co., of Burlington, Vt., to prepare it for sale in liquid form as well as in dry form. It saves all labor of preparing, and as it is equally efficient it is preferred by many persons. Kidney-Wort always and everywhere proves itself a perfect remedy.—[Buffalo News.

The demands now made by an educated musical public are so exacting, that very few Piano-forte Manufacturers can produce instruments that will stand the test which merit requires. SOHMER & CO., as Manufacturers, rank among this chosen few, who are acknowledged to be makers of standard instruments. In these days, when many manufacturers urge the low price of their wares rather than their superior quality as an inducement to purchase, it may not be amiss to suggest that, in a Piano, quality and price are too inseparably joined to expect the one without the other.

Every Piano ought to be judged as to the quality of its tone, its touch, and its workmanship; if any one of these is wanting in excellence, however good the others may be, the instrument will be imperfect. It is the combination of these qualities in the highest degree that constitutes the perfect Piano, and it is this combination that has given the "SOHMER" its honorable position with the trade and the public.

Prices as Reasonable as Consistent with the Highest Standard.

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL CURES!

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:

Eugene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being bloated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Coto of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES

KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in tin cans, one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated, for those that cannot readily purgative.

THE LAYMEN'S SOCIETY.

The object of the organization urged by the Board of Missions at the last General Convention, by which the offerings of the Church for its purposes should be more systematically gathered, and for which it sent out books to all the clergy, was the same as was had in view in the organization long ago in this Diocese of the Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society. The idea which it sought to expel was the haphazard giving in the offertory of, it might be, a penny or it might be a dollar to the object, on the impulse of the moment, with no intelligent idea of what it was for. That which it tried to put in its place was a principled and intelligent pledge to the object, which might be paid in weekly, monthly, or quarterly portions. The General Convention tried to put into operation for the whole Church for general missions what we had fifteen years before started for our own home work.

The success of the plan has not been either a mere matter of conjecture. Wherever it has been fairly tried, there it has succeeded in maintaining a persistent interest in our home missionary work. The parish was canvassed for pledges. This in its beginning and for its continuance depends on the patience and principle of the collectors appointed. In the best parishes they meet with cases of the most utter indifference and selfishness. But the steady collection of the smaller sums makes not only the largest aggregate, but is not attended by the exhaustion and irritation following the strain of one collection. In one parish in this city a few years ago, the other policy of one huge effort, with the beguilement of a cornet and some hired singers was tried; it realized something, but it was noticed that it was not repeated, and the parish gave nothing much for years after for diocesan missions.

Therefore it was wise at the late Convention to put to the front more formally our Laymen's Society, and explain the manner in which it may be started and worked in every parish. It is founded on a principle which the general Church desires to have applied everywhere, that each person shall be asked to give something regularly, that intelligence in the matter be disseminated, as is done here by THE CHURCH NEWS, that collectors be appointed and empowered, and that they be cheered on by the minister's approval, and the response of those to whom they come in the measure that GOD has blessed them.

DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

The Convention which met in the Church of the Holy Communion on Tuesday, 27th ult., was the largest and the busiest Convention ever held in the Diocese. There were with the Bishop sixteen other clergymen vested in the chancel. Morning Prayer was said by the Rev. Messrs. Mann, Leonard, Dr. Gierlow, and Richardson. In the Communion Service the Bishop was assisted by the Rev. Drs. Foster and Ingraham, and Messrs. Robert, Dunn and Holeman. The sermon was preached by the Rev. E. Talbot, from text 1. Corinthians, xv., 21. The discourse, though short, was very pertinent, and the delivery was excellent. The speaker said his theme was really, "Man saved by man," and showed that under Christ the power of reformation, salvation, redemption, self-resurrection lies in human nature itself. And besides the Church, composed of men, is the means instituted by Christ to save men. He would impress upon his hearers the fact that every man has a personal, individual responsibility. There should not be a looking up and forward to a Christ, but a realization of the ever-present Saviour. The preached word should not come on Sunday alone from the pulpit, but should be acted out in the pews, behind the counter, at the fire side and homes. There should also be a fuller realization of what the Church is, what her work. She is the spokesman of Christ, the body of Christ, His beloved bride. A revival of spirit may be needed in her, but through her and by her, the old, old Church, is the salvation of men wrought.

After services a curtain was hung up to separate the body of the church from the chancel portion, the Bishop took his seat at a platform prepared, and the secretary of the previous convention, Mr. Triplett, called the roll of the clergy canonically resident in the diocese.

During the Convention forty-two clergymen belonging to the Diocese appeared and took their seats, and delegates from twenty parishes and missions. The hours for Convention were fixed, prayers at nine o'clock, business sessions at ten until half past twelve; then a recess of an hour for lunch, and an afternoon session until half past four. A delightful lunch was served each day to the delegates at Pickwick Cafe, two squares off, a very ample and convenient place, by the ladies of the parish. It formed one of the most interesting features of the Convention. Large numbers sat down at the long tables.

The Revs. W. W. Sylvester, H. Thompson and J. J. Corbyn of Iowa, and B. R. Phelps of Northern New Jersey were present as visitors.

Mr. John R. Triplett was re-elected Secretary, and appointed Mr. J. F. McMaster as his assistant. The Rev. Dr. Ingraham and Messrs Curtis and Woodruff were appointed the Committee to examine the credentials of the delegates; and the Rev. A. Leonard, and Messrs. Hough and Tuthill the committee to receive and disburse the funds for missionaries' traveling expenses.

The Bishop read the portion of his address relating to the Diocesan matters in the afternoon session. He spoke of the increase of the number of clergy in the Diocese, there being now 60 in canonical residence, 9 having been received during the year and 5 transferred to other Dioceses, and two ordained to the Diaconate. He referred to Bishop Dunlop's elevation to the Episcopate, and deplored the small number of candidates for Orders, only two in the Diocese, and the falling off in the number of confirmations for the year, 337, and gave his views as to the causes and needed remedies. There had been three churches consecrated during the year, others were ready; there were churches building at Canton, Butler, Independence and Rolla. The chapels at Joplin and South St. Joseph were finished, and there had been enlargements and improvements in many places.

A marked event of the year had been the final payment of the last remainder of the debt on Christ church, and the reduction of the debt on other churches. In eight years' debts to the amount of $200,000, have been paid. He urged the resumption of the matter of the creation of an Episcopal Endowment Fund at the earliest possible moment, as a measure of relief to the burden of assessment, and contributing to the comfort of the Bishop.

The following standing committees were then appointed:

Admission of New Parishes—Rev. Messrs. Dunn and Wright and Judge Pope.

Unfinished Business—Rev. Messrs. Betts and Parker and W. B. Grimes.

Finance—Messrs. Bent, Luke and Gill.

Assessments—Messrs. Alexander, Freeborn, A. R. Donaldson, Carter, Porter, Haff and Tyfer.

Constitution and Canons—Rev. Messrs. Fulton and Jardine and W. F. Ferguson.

Missions—Rev. Messrs. Scheetz, Talbot and Gray and Messrs. Garrison and Lycett.

Christian Education—Rev. Messrs. Reed, Foster and Sharpe, and Messrs. Snow and Jobson.

Sunday school Work—Rev. Messrs. Runcie, Gray and Wager, and Messrs. R. Talbot and Leslie.

It was then announced by Mr. Alexander that he was about to introduce a resolution personal to the President. The latter left the chair, called Dr. Fulton to it and retired to the vestry. Mr. Alexander then read his resolution, which was unanimously carried after several speeches, all in its favor. It was that the Bishop's salary be raised to $4,200 a year.

At the evening session after service the remaining portions of the Bishop's address were read. He spoke of the General Convention, of the proposed amendment of the Ratification of the Prayer Book; of the American Church Building Fund, for which he recommended, when possible, an offertory; of the Church Temperance Society; of the Revision of the Authorized Version of the New Testament; and of the special work to which the Church was now called in view of the forms in which unbelief and crime are now appearing.

After the adjournment the clergy and the delegates in large numbers attended the reception given by the Bishop and Mrs. Robertson at the Episcopal Residence, and spent a delightful evening.

After morning prayer the next day the Bishop laid on the table the reports of the Orphans' Home and the S. S. Missionary Host, also a notice from the Secretary of the General Convention touching the proposed amendments of the Ratification of the Prayer Book; and another relation to the meeting of the expenses of deputies to General Convention by the body itself, on which Rev. Mr. Gray, Judge Pope and D. H. Lycett were appointed a committee to report at next Convention. Another communication touching the increase of the Fund for Infirm and Aged Clergymen and the widows and orphans of clergymen was referred to a committee consisting of Dr. Ingraham, Rev. Mr. Reed and Mr. Haff.

The Treasurer of the Diocese then made his report, showing that the delinquency of parishes amounted to $2,711.57, and that there was due to him $730.59. The Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund showed $6,569.22 in hand, the greater part invested. The Theological Education Fund has $2,896.13, but only $170 had been contributed to this fund by the whole diocese during the year.

The report of the committee appointed at the last Convention for the revision of the constitution and canons came up, and on it speeches were confined to five minutes. The report had been printed in pamphlet form, with alternate blank leaves, and sent beforehand to all the clergy of the Diocese. Almost every part was subjected to very close examination, and amendments were offered and many of them were adopted. The Rev. Dr. Fulton and Mr. Jardine had been charged by the committee to present the report to Convention, which they did with excellent tact and judgment. Of course the Constitution which was adopted must be subjected to another consideration and more final adoption next year before becoming operative; the canons adopted become effective immediately except as they conflict with the old constitutions. Some of the speeches made were very earnest and warm, but all in good temper. The reporters of the daily press, which gave very full accounts of the debates, depicted some very dramatic scenes, but the ending was always happy, often ending in smoke during lunch. This business took up much of the time of Convention for the following days, but the result is a remarkably good code of laws.

At night after service, the Secretary of the Missionary Board, Mr. McMaster made a report of the action of the Board for the year, showing that 27 of the clergy of the Diocese are now receiving Missionary stipends. The Treasurer, Mr. Leavitt, reported that the receipts, including the balance at the time of last report, had been $4,042.13, an increase of $600, on last year, and the disbursements had been $2,357.32. Mr. E. Talbot made an address showing the nature of his work. The committee to nominate officers of the Laymen's Co operating Missionary Society for the coming year reported the following: President M. W. Alexander, of St. George's; Vice President, R. M. Wilson, Holy Communion; Executive Committee, W. B. Chittenden, Christ; F. W. Risque, Holy Communion; D. E. Garrison, St. George's; H. Livermore, Trinity; Dr. G. S. Case, Grace; E. H. Lycett, Grace, Kirkwood; C. H. Alexander, St. John's; Joseph Franklin, Mount Calvary; S. B. Gordon, St. Peters; F. J. McMaster, Secretary; D. F. Leavitt, Treasurer.

Some strong remarks were made about the small results which the Society as such had accomplished of late years, and urging to better action. Most of the parishes seemed not to be ready to make pledges for the coming year, but declared their purpose to do more than before.

On Thursday morning, the festival of St. Michael and All Angels, the Holy Communion was celebrated, after which the Bishop took the chair. The amendment of Convention as to the time of meeting of Convention which had its preliminary adoption last year fixed the time for the first Wednesday in May. This was finally ratified, and this will be the time of the meeting of Convention next year; although the time which will be finally fixed is likely to be the fourth Tuesday in May.

The Committee on Christian Education reported concerning the schools at Springfield, Kansas City and Mexico, the School of the sisterhood of the Good Shepherd, St. Louis, St. Paul's College, Palmyra, and St. James Academy, Macon. I commend them to the attention of our people. The Bishop then called on Mr. Talbot to state the case as to his school at Macon, which he did with vigorous terseness, showing that $15,000 of the $20,000, needed to finish the College property which he had bought had been subscribed, and that the building when finished would accommodate 300 boarders.

The Finance Committee reported that $5.500 would have to be raised by the Diocese for its expenses during the coming year, and gave a comparative statement.

Receipts in 1880, $4,498 75; in 1881, $3,979 40; expenditures in 1880, $4,053 87; in 1881, $4,707 98; due Treasurer in 1880 $315 44; in 1881 $730 59; liabilities from parishes in 1880, $2,324 60; in 1881, $2,711 57. The committee thought that this was a very poor showing, and hoped that something would be done to better affairs.

The report of the committee on missions was referred back to them for them to add some resolutions and canonical provisions so as to render their recommendations effective.

Rev. P. G. Robert introduced the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, The Bishop has announced to the Convention that Mr. Henry I. Bodley has declined to permit the use of his name for re election to the Standing Committee,

Resolved, That we have heard with regret of the determination of our revered brother, and desire to put upon record our appreciation of his long continued and valuable services to the diocese, praying that God's blessing may follow him all the days of his life.

The Committee on Assessments made its report which occasioned much discussion, and after some modifications it was adopted. Judge Ferguson made his report as Register, and was re-elected.

At night there was a large congregation in church for a meeting in behalf of Sunday School work. The music was delightfully sung by the children of the parish. The report of the committee on Sunday Schools was read by the Rev.

Dr. Runcie. Ralph Talbot, Esq., spoke on the best method of managing a school. He held that this Church more than any other in the land presented the highest type of manhood, and that was the first method he would advise to endeavor to have the pupils realize that type as revealed in the life of our blessed Lord and Master.

Rev. Mr. Sharpe made a few pertinent remarks, saying that what was first needed was earnestness and the co operation of the rector.

On the question, How to improve the qualifications of the average teacher? Mr. Leslie, Superintendent of Trinity Sunday-school, said the answer was, sincere piety and intelligence. The man with piety and without intelligence was liable to fanaticism; he without piety and possessed of intelligence becomes a skeptic.

Mr. V. Tippet spoke on the question, "What object should the Superintendent keep before him in managing the School?"

The Rev. Mr. Gauthier made the last address.

On Friday morning, after service, the Bishop announced that he had appointed Miss Mary Triplett of Christ Church as Diocesan Secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Board of Missions. The Committee on Missions reported a canon which was subsequently passed declaring that the Laymen's Society was the recognized agent of the Diocese for collecting its missionary money, that the afternoon of the second day of every Convention should be given to the consideration of missionary work, and that every clergyman must give one service to explaining the matter of missions.

The work on the canons being over the Standing Committee of last year was re-elected, with the exception of Mr. Robt. M. Wilson in place of Mr. Bodley. The ecclesiastical court provided by canon elected consists of Rev. F. B. Scheetz, Jos. Runcie, D. D., and C. A. Foster, LL. D. The alternates are Revs. B. E. Reed, J. M. Curtis, and A. Leonard. The first named in each class is for three years, the second for two, the last for one. A principal and an alternate are to be elected each year. The Missionary Board elected Revs. F. B. Scheetz, B. E. Reed and G. C. Betts; and Messrs. D. F. Leavitt, F. W. Risque and E. H. Lycett. Hereafter there will be three laymen on the Board, and they will be elected by the Convention.

Christ Church, St. Louis, was chosen as the place for the next Convention. Thanks were returned for hospitalities and kindness. It was after dark when the Convention finally adjourned.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

— A clergyman of this Diocese, who within a month resigned his parish of his own accord, in spite of the caution of the Bishop that he was not acting wisely, persisted, but within a fortnight telegraphed back to the Vestry asking whether it was too late for him to withdraw his resignation, as he was greatly disappointed, and saw that he had made a great mistake.

— St. Paul's College, Palmyra, began the session with eighteen pupils. The Rev. Mr. Allen opened his school at Mexico with the same number of scholars. Miss Jackson at Springfield began with forty pupils.

— The Rev. Dr. Fulton is preparing two of the articles in Bishop Perry's forthcoming Centennial History of the American Church.

— The Rev. Sturges Allen has taken out Letters Dimissory to the Diocese of New York, and will act as Assistant Minister in Newburgh.

— Dr. Shuyler was not at Convention, being in Michigan taking his vacation. He is not apt to make speeches, but was missed in Convention, as was also Bishop Dunlop and Mr. Gill and Mr. Branch, and some other useful men.

— The Rev. F. W. Henry has gone to the Seminary in Faribault to complete his studies, for which he found no opportunity while pursuing missionary work.

— The Rev. Mr. Cummings has been able to secure sufficient subscriptions to purchase and pay for a lot 50 by 75 feet in a good location on Troost avenue for $750, which is thought to be a very moderate sum. He will now set to work about to collect money for a chapel for his congregation, to be called St. Augustine Mission.

—The Rev. A. A. Abbott, who spent last year at Faribault Theological Seminary, and is there now, employed his vacation in missionary work for the Rev. Dr. Knickerbacker in Minneapolis.

—The Rev. Mr. Betts officiated as Chaplain at the laying of the corner-stone of the new armory in this city. His words were simple and becoming to the occasion. A prominent Presbyterian minister said to us the other night after one of the meetings in honor of Gen. Garfield, when the prayer said had been most stilted and verbose, that while he was not a Churchman, he never felt more like being one than when he was called on to hear such a prayer as he had just listened to, in which Shakespeare and Tennyson were quoted to God.

—The meeting of the Missionary Board which made the appropriations for the year did not adjourn until nearly half past eleven at night. It appropriated over $2500, and will need vigorous effort in the Diocese to keep the treasury filled.

—The Rev. Mr. Hatch will withdraw from the inconvenient arrangements of supplying Chillothe one Sunday a month, and will give it to a new town, Burlington Junction, near Maryville, to which some good Church people have come. At Maryville he is encouraged by some excellent and faithful people who have come to him.

—The Rev. Mr. Grantham of Tennessee will assume the charge of the Church of the Good Shepherd in this city in a few days.

—The following found in the Standard has references to a clergyman in this Diocese:

The Rev. B. B. Hitchings, a former rector of St. John's Church, Denver, has just given $1,000 to the Cathedral fund in that city. It was during Mr. Hitchings' incumbency that the Methodists sent their "crack preacher" to offset the growing influence of the popular and able rector of "St. John's in the Wilderness." The two young ministers became warm personal friends, and ere many months the Methodist minister conformed to the Church, surrendering a large salary in his own denomination for one of miserably insufficient missionary stipends. Not long after his own ordination he received into the Church and presented for Orders his father, who had also been a Methodist clergyman. The two friends of the incipient metropolis of the plains soon became separated. Mr. Hitchings went East, and is now connected with Trinity Church, N. Y. His companion and convert remains in the West, and is now rector of one of the leading parishes in the West. The above-mentioned gift—is it not a real thank-offering for the result of his own labors?

—The Bishop officiated on Sunday, 2d at St. Paul's, South St. Louis, and on the 9th at St. Charles. This parish has been for a long time vacant, but the Sunday School has been vigorously kept up; the parish debt is being reduced, and the people are in good spirits. The congregation filled the Church, and one was confirmed.

Mr. R. J. Walker has applied to become a candidate for orders, and is at St. Paul's, Palmyra, and has taken some of Dr. Wainright's classes.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

The annual meeting took place in the chapel on Friday evening, 30th. The rainy night and other causes prevented a large attendance. The Bishop said the Service, and called the meeting to order, and was called upon to preside. Mr. C. S. Freeborn read his report as treasurer, which showed that besides $58.99 on hand at the date of the last report, there had been received during the year $11,373.68, of which $5,701.61 was from patients, $4,665 from entertainments, $387.22 from interest, $619.84 donations from churches and individuals. The expenditures had been $9,159.67; of which $1,800 had been for rent, and $225.25 for coal. The building account showed that $14,681.85 had been received, of which $3,000 was from the Western Sanitary Commission in payment for an endowed bed; the rest was from subscribers. There had been paid out on the building $14,366.34, leaving $315.51 on hand. There was also about $1,200 at interest for the furnishing account, the proceeds of an entertainment on the Fair Grounds.

Dr. Green, of the medical staff, reported that the hospital had during the year had about as many patients as it could conveniently take, and at times had been greatly crowded. In regard to the new building, now under roof, he thought it would be ready for occupancy by the end of the year. By tacit consent of the Board Building Committee the supervision on the new building rested largely on him in conjunction with the architects. He had seen almost every barrowful of earth removed, every stone and brick laid. The contractors and sub-contractors had worked faithfully, and the management would get for their money a hospital as commodious, as convenient, and altogether as excellently suited to their wants as could be hoped for. One institution of the same size and plan in New York cost $120,000 as against the $30,000 paid for this. In this new building the Sisters could be comfortably lodged, and have rooms with some degree of privacy. There would be better accommodations in all departments. What was now needed was a chapel, to be erected on Twentieth street in accordance with plans provided. He explained how other departments also could be added, providing accommodations for colored patients, etc., and hoped that the generosity of church people would come to their aid.

Major W. S. Pope then, in the absence of the President, read his report, in which he congratulated the Association on the prospect of their possession soon of a building, handsome and fitted to the needs of a Hospital. He mentioned with appreciation the Sisters in charge, the medical staff, the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle, and Mr. Kent Boyle, the Clerk of the Hospital.

After this election of the board was proceeded with the same gentlemen were unanimously re-elected: Edwin Harrison, Wm. H. Thomson, Chas. S. Freeborn, E. C. Simmons, J. S. B. Alleyne, Newton Crane, Jesse L. January, D. Robert Barclay, Williams S. Pope, J. J. Wilkins and William B. Potter.

The exercises concluded, as they had begun, with prayer.

THE SCHOOL OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

Last year the strain on the space of this school was excessive. Every room was occupied, and the teachers put to much inconvenience. At the same time no new building could be found adapted for the purpose; the situation of the school was beautiful, and there was just enough talk among Church people about erecting a proper school building to deter from a radical movement in any other direction.

During the summer therefore to meet the need, although they have but one year's lease on the building, an addition has been put up in the rear, which gives an admirable dining room, and over this a capital room for the primary department. Before the term opened, also, it was evident that even this enlargement would not suffice, and so a dwelling in the neighborhood was procured in which four of the boarding pupils and three of the teachers have their rooms, all of them however taking their meals at the school.

On the 14th of last month, the opening day, the scene was very animated. The house thronged with pupils and parents, and a number of old scholars were there to see the school off. All the rooms had been taken, and a number of applications for admission had to be refused. The faces were all bright and hopeful with renewed health. There were nearly thirty boarders entered and over sixty other scholars.

At the service for the opening of the school the Rev. Messrs. Reed and Wright took part, and the Bishop made an address to the scholars. Now if only those gentlemen who have taken up the matter of raising from thirty to fifty thousand dollars for the buying of property and putting up of a building which shall be fitted and ample for the school, we shall see this proper solution of this matter,—a building large enough to enable all to be taken who apply, with appliances better as the greater means will justify, and with terms made lower and nearer the ability of all, as would be possible with an assured and large support.

HOW TO DO IT.

Mr. Editor:

When, in 1869, the Layman's Co-operating Missionary Society was recognized as the agent of the Convention of this Diocese, in collecting the Missionary alms of the Church, it was ordered that "no station should be adopted by the Board [of Missions], or receive any aid from Diocesan Missionary Funds," till it had organized "an auxiliary branch to the Laymen's C. M. Society."

In 1870 the alternative was added, "or agree to make a quarterly collection in aid of the funds of" said Society.

In 1871, "Canon XVIII, of special collections" was adopted. The last clause reads, "Quarterly Collections shall be made by all the congregations in the Diocese, in behalf of Diocesan Missions, which do not contribute through the Laymen's C. M. Society." This still remains as the law of the Diocese.

The mode of establishing Auxilliary societies as ordered by the Parent Society is as follows: "Each Auxilliary Society shall elect such officers, and enact such regulations as it shall deem proper, and shall hold monthly or quarterly meetings as it may elect; at which there shall be addresses on the subject of Missions; reports read from the Parent Society; collections taken up for the purposes of the Society; and such other things done as may be thought conducive to the end in view."

"After each meeting a written account thereof shall be sent to the Secretary of the Parent Society, and the money on hand to the treasurer thereof."

"The fee for membership shall be such sum as may be agreed on by each Auxilliary Society, to be paid in such manner as it may direct; and it shall provide for the prompt collection and remittance of all dues."

"Females as well as males may be members."

"Each clergyman is recognized as an adviser of the Local Society within his work, and as such he has the right to be present and take part in its deliberations."

"It shall be entitled to three delegates to the Parent Society, and also one for each twenty paying members on its list."

It appears from all the above that the Church in this Diocese fully recognized its missionary character, and would have every member of it recognize it also, in a practical way, by the organizing of Societies for the especial purpose of eliciting and collecting the alms of the Church offered for the spread of the Gospel in this State.

All details are left to be determined by each Society. What is desired is simply to get, so far as possible, each member of the church to contribute frequently and regularly to the support of this work; be the amount pledged and given, great or small. Hereafter something may be said about modes which have proved effectual elsewhere; but the above it is hoped will be enough to enable any congregation which has not yet established an Auxilliary, to proceed to such organization. Such movement, in many places, will depend on the minister in charge. Not a few of our people, it is to be feared, are ignorant of what is required and expected of them. It has now been made, by Canon, the duty of the minister to have them properly instructed in this matter, and this article has been prompted by a desire to aid in this work by showing how the duty may be done according to the law of the Church. Would it not be well for the clergy to hold the Sunday service now called for by Canon, at an early day, and for the Parent Society to send its circulars, blanks and appeals to every clergyman without delay. S.

Editor Church News:

I desire through your columns to ask the help of a Christian Churchman of the city, as Superintendent of the Sunday school held in our Orphans' Home on Grand and Lafayette avenues, on Sunday afternoons at 3 p. m. Before his ordination Rev. Mr. Gauthier of Emmanuel Church, acted in that capacity, most acceptably to all concerned. This is a noble and interesting work. The hearty co operation of the ladies in charge of the Home, the attentive and intelligent interest of the children, the opportunity of doing much good, make the field of labor peculiarly attractive. Will not the Church supply this department with an active, efficient layman? All interested earnestly invite assistance. I trust that God will move the hearts of his people to supply this, his family, with an active, earnest, well furnished Teacher, and I request that any one willing to help in this work will, without delay, notify me of the fact.

BENJ. E. REED,

2739 Laf. Av., City.—Oct. 9, 1881.

It is a great thing to have a recognized standard by which to measure one's position or acquirements or tastes. Did you ever live near a bell-tower which sounded out the correct time at high noon, or near a fort where the hours of sunrise and meridian and sunset were marked by a signal gun? If you have, you must have noted how common it was for those who heard that bell or gun to take out their watches, or look up to their household clocks, to see whether they were slow or fast by the recognized standard. So it is in life everywhere; the quiet influence of being right and of doing right is powerful beyond all estimate. To strike the right hour, to say or do the right thing, to be right in life and doctrine and methods of speech and dress and bearing, is to call the attention of many to their own departures from the right, and to excite in them a desire to have closer conformity thereto; and this where no active endeavor to bring others right could be half so effective as this quiet and unconscious influence.

No matter where the skeptical thought originates, or how it gets access to our minds, we see at once that it flattens the level of life and every aspiration. It narrows the horizon of our outlook and makes our character less vigorous. The Gospel is not simply a philosophy of religion or law of life, but is an apocalypse, showing the heavens to our thought, and so bringing its spiritual benedictions to every heart and life.

SCARCITY is often better than satiety, and the moderately poor enjoy their little more than the rich their abundance. Who is more miserable than he who has nothing to wish for whose every desire is gratified? It is the planning and working and struggling, and hoping that gives zest to life. One must have appetite, desire. Even in the Christian life, they that hunger and thirst for righteousness shall be filled.

INFIDELS want us to give up Christianity, but will not give us anything in return. We are satisfied with what we have; and we know that when the end will come, while the hope of the infidel will fail. We shall have that which endures forever. Hold fast. Christianity is impressing the institutions and governments of to-day as it never has done before.

You can't judge the inside by the outside. As with a watch, so with a man; good works may be hidden in a very common case.

—A service in the French language is held every Sunday in our Cathedral in Chicago.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL NIGHT AT THE CONVENTION.

According to usual custom, Thursday night of the Convention week was devoted to the consideration of Sunday School interests. The session was opened with the usual devotional exercises, by the Bishop. The annual report of the Standing Committee on Sunday Schools was presented by the Chairman, Rev. Dr. Runcie, of St. Joseph. The report was a very pointed and forcible one. Clear and emphatic in its statements it did not fail to speak plainly of certain serious evils in our Church life. The failure of our Sunday Schools to hold the interest of boys beyond the age of 15 or 16 was dwelt upon at length and the blame laid where it properly belongs, on the want of interest on the part of parents in the spiritual instruction of their children. It is to be deplored that so little interest should be shown by parents for matters of such great importance, yet since facts are as they are, it certainly is better that they should be pointed out and condemned, than that they should be passed over in silence.

Three subjects for discussion were then presented by the Bishop successively. The first on "The best method of conducting a Sunday School" was the subject of a short address by Mr. Ralph Talbot, of Holy Communion. The second on "How to improve the average qualifications of the average teacher," by Mr. Leslie, of Trinity Parish, St. Louis. The third on "What the Superintendent ought to keep in view in conducting the School," was the subject of remarks by Mr. Tibbetts of St. John's Parish, St. Louis. Besides the gentlemen named, to whom was assigned the duty of opening the discussion on one of the three subjects, others present took part, making the occasion one of more than usual interest. Nothing specially new was brought forth, but the fact was rather emphasized that we must work with greater love and enthusiasm along the old lines.

HELPING THE SUPERINTENDENT.

Looking over several bond volumes of The Sunday Schools Times, in my library,—and oft-consulted books they are,—I find frequent reference to what a good superintendent should do and be in and out of his school. But perhaps something more may be said about what others should do for, and in support of these leaders of the great Sunday-school army. Do they not need the support of the Aarons and Hurs among their teachers and fellow church members? It seems to me that too many feel their duty to the superintendent done when they have elected him to the leadership, and so coolly stand by to see him guide the Israel entrusted to him on to victory. Should not teachers, officers, parents, and all interested in a school, often feel that their superintendent sometimes becomes "weary" and discouraged, so that his hands fall by his side, and the enemy gains ground, and that they should support him even until the setting of the sun?

I should like to enumerate the kinds of support that every superintendent needs.

First: IN THE SCHOOL. Personal. Suggestions from teachers as to general exercises, reviews and the management of the school; expression of encouragement and sympathy given to the superintendent,—will surely help him and be gratefully received. Even criticism and complaint would indicate an interest in his success that would sustain him in hours of trial.

Official. Every superintendent should be supported by an assistant, a secretary, a treasurer, a librarian, and a chorister, who should not only attend to the duties peculiar to their offices, but should constantly counsel with him and plan for the advancement of the school. In the multitude of consellers there is wisdom.

Co-operative. The school without a teachers' meeting may not only be considered as retrograding, but its superintendent should not be blamed for being a failure when deprived of this support. Here he can learn of needed changes, of inquiring souls, of encouraging progress sufficient to cheer him on to more assiduous labors. Here he can learn where personal visitation or conversation can be best engaged in.

Normal. He needs the strong support of a system of substitutes for absent teachers, or a normal class prepared to teach the lesson of the day whenever called upon to take the places of the absent. A greater discouragement than the finding of several little flocks without their shepherds every Sunday, and none to call upon to feed the precious lambs, can hardly be imagined.

Musical. To leave the music as well as the platform exercises to the superintendent is well calculated to dishearten even the most hopeful. Let organist and chorister, singers, and players upon instruments, support him. The selection of new singing books, the paying for the same instruction in new music, should not be added to his already countless duties.

Disciplinary. Sometimes the superintendent must exercise authority, a disturbing element needs removal from the school or changing from one class to another. Sometimes a class or the school deserves, in a kind spirit, a reprimand for restlessness or disorder. On such occasions the superintendent needs the support of approving words. Let him not bear the brunt of the battle alone.

Second: IN THE CHURCH. An Aaron as well as a Hur was needed by Moses. Both arms ached and had to be upheld. So the superintendent's support should come from church as well as school, parents as well as teachers, and in several ways.

Financial. We have known of churches that seemed to feel that the Sunday-school should be self supporting, and of companies of teachers that allowed their superintendent to make all purchases of books, papers, maps, lesson lists, etc., and to pay for the same. A zealous finance committee to take all this responsibility from the superintendent's shoulders would give him strength to carry better the spiritual burdens. The current expenses should never devolve upon the teachers and officers of a school, but upon those in the church who do not contribute time, trouble, travel, study, and prayer. Parents cheerfully pay day-school tax why not give for Sunday school support?

Pastoral. Not only from the membership, but from the pastor of the church, should the superintendent receive support. His presence in the school, are a wonderful help to an overburdened superintendent.

Parental. Well may a superintendent feel discouraged when year after year goes by, and he constantly meets in social circles, or business walks of life, the parents of the children in his school, without ever hearing an inquiry, a suggestion, a helpful hint. I fear that parents little realize the power or tender sympathy, of vigilance, of frank intercourse on their part, as a support to the Sunday leader of their boys and girls.

If these homely truths may only reach many who are not doing their full portion towards sustaining their Sunday-school superintendent, and cause them to realize the fact that their support is needed, the mission of this article will be accomplished.—[C. M. Eames, in S. S. Times.

THE POWER OF TEACHER'S COM-PASSION.

We should get quite a variety of answers if we propounded the question, What is the essential qualification for a Sunday-school teacher? Regarding our work from several sides and points of view, a special qualification is brought to light by each new look, and we are not sure that any one word could efficiently gather up what we may discover to be essential. And yet we have found a word which may lay some claim to be the right word; a word which is very familiar, yet which fills with richer meaning, and becomes more closely adapted to the teacher, as we study it, gather about it its Scripture associations. We have not seen it applied to the teacher in any precise way, so we are anxious to make it a very precious and suggestive word to all such.

The word compassion is made up of two Latin words, which mean "feeling together with;" and it seems to be the same as "sympathy." Yet the ideas that gather round these two words differ in some very important respects. Both words may mean, "Quick sensitiveness to the disabilities of others, and tender responsive feeling;" but, as we use the words, "sympathy" seems to imply an equality between the parties concerned, while "compassion" involves a condescension of the one to the other. In the Good Samaritan's compassion for the stripped and wounded Jew, there was condescension to his disability: and more plainly in the Prodigal's father, compassion involved condescension to the poor, sinning, and suffering lad. So the word is properly used of God's gracious condescending ways toward us. He is "full of compassion."

Evidently, then, the word is precisely appropriate to us as Sunday-school teachers, and should express our characteristic feeling. We look, as Christ did, upon the lambs of the flock, who are "as sheep having no shepherd." We are touched by the ignorance of the children, by their limited advantages, by their exposure to temptation and sin; and we feel concerning them a Christ-like compassion.

And that is precisely our power,—the real secret of our power and influence, as it was the secret of our Lord's. Did teacher tell us that he could not succeed in his class, we should incline to ask him as our first question, "Have you failed in compassion?"

This spirit it is which leads us to take the individual members of our class, as a holy burden, upon our hearts, so that we are always thinking about them, and praying for them. This is the power which enables us, as it enabled our Lord, to put self aside, and all considerations of ease, and devote ourselves thoroughly to their wellbeing over whom our hearts yearn.

We are writing with an unusual seriousness. It seems to us as if we were dealing very searchingly with many who are set in charge of Sunday classes. Is this lacking? Have you no compassion, making you tender, and earnest, and patient, and prayerful? Then no wonder the work seems hard, and you are weary. Learn of the Great Teacher. Go closely near to the heart and home of the children of your class, so that their ignorances and disabilities may press on your soul like a burden of the Lord? and then conscious power will come—prayer power, pleading power, patience power—and, in the holy impulse of your compassions, your work will grow into a joy and a success.—[S. S. Times.]

TRUE UNTO DEATH.—Nellie Cross, a fifteen year-old girl living in Bloomfield, N. J., sacrificed her life recently in the heroic effort to save her little brother. She was employed in Moffit's rolling mill, and when she returned to her work in the afternoon she took her eight-year-old brother to spend the rest of her hours of service with her. On their way home in the evening the children had to cross a long railroad trestle bridge which spans Moffit's Creek. When they had walked some distance over the ties they saw a train approaching them. There is but one track over the bridge, and there was no room for the little ones to step out of the way. With a quick instinct Nellie saw that their only safety lay in throwing themselves into the waters of the creek. She gently forced her brother to the edge of the bridge, then lowered him carefully as far as her hands reach, and allowed him to drop into the shallow stream. Her next movement would have been to jump down herself, but before she had time to make the leap the train struck her and hurled her back on the track. The wheels crushed an arm and a leg. She bore her sufferings bravely, and in her lucid intervals congratulated her brother upon his escape unharmed. But the shock was too much for her system to bear, she died two or three hours afterward.

After all the alarm about very short crops on account of the drought, the fact is brought out that in central Indiana the corn, while not quite as great in amount as usual, is equally good in quality, if not better. The plentiful of rains of recent days is bringing out the pastures, and down the price of corn and butter.

The late Sidney Lanier suffered grievously from ill-health for many years but was never heard to complain. His wholesome and generous nature triumphed over bodily ills and kept him always cheerful. He leaves a widow and four sons, the youngest an infant.

The number of original patents issued the first nine months of the present year was 13,084, an increase of 2,261 over last year. The receipts for the same period were $65,447 in excess of the corresponding nine months of 1880. The commissioner of patents recommends a considerable increase in the examining corps and clerical force.

Typho-malarial fever and pneumonia, are playing sad havoc among the persons rendered homeless by the recent forest fires in Michigan. Many deaths have occurred, and several of the sufferers are lying at the point of death.

A carload of gunpowder exploded at Council Bluffs, Iowa, on Monday, just at the close of the memorial exercises. The car was at the Rock Island yards out of the city, but the concussion shook the town to its centre. Loss, several hundred thousand dollars.

Owing to the extended drought in Western New York the amount of railroad, telegraph and private property destroyed by fire is very large. Hundreds of acres have been devastated. Much of the soil being of a peat formation the fires burrow to a depth of two or three feet, destroying crops, forests, farm buildings, fences, the ties in the railroad tracks and the telegraph poles supporting the wires. The destruction is especially great in the neighborhood of Crofts and Bergen.

The wife of Jacent Cox, living at Florence, near Bordentown, N. J., was bitten about six weeks ago by a Spitz dog. Hydrophobia set in, and Tuesday afternoon she died. Before her death she requested that all the windows of the house should be boarded up, and also that she should be tied with a strong cord, so that she could not injure any one.

The great Newgate prison of London is to be demolished to make room for improvements. Before it had been finished, in 1780, it was attacked by the Lord George Gordon rioters, who liberated 300 prisoners and set fire to the building—an event familiar to every reader of Dickens' "Barnaby Rudge."

Five large tanks of oil were burned on the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad, near Sloatsbury, about forty miles from Paterson, on the 23d ult. The fire began at nine o'clock A. M. and lasted till five o'clock P. M., preventing the passing of other trains on the road. The entire oil trains would have caught fire but for the assistance afforded by the passengers of a train which was stopped by the accident.

The Power of The Press.

In no way is the power of the press more shurely shown than in the universal knowledge that has in less than a year, been diffused throughout fifty millions of people of the wonderful curative properties of that splendid remedy Kidney Wort. And the people from the Atlantic to the Pacific have shown their intelligence and the knowledge of what is in the papers, by already making Kidney Wort their household remedy for all diseases of the kidneys, liver and bowels.—[Herald.]

THE PRESIDENT'S DEATH.

The shock which the country felt at the news of the President's death, even after the long weeks of waiting and partial preparation for the event, was greater than we had ever known before. The prolonged suffering, met so bravely, made the case one into which every household in the land entered with personal sympathy. The spectacle of a world, made one by the electric throb of the telegraph, standing about a death-bed and grave side, stricken with grief, was very touching and majestic.

Immediately upon the receipt of the intelligence of the death of the President, the Bishop put forth the following Pastorate to the Diocese:

St. Louis, Sept. 20, 1881. }

To the Clergy of the Diocese:

Reverend and Dear Brethren:—God has seen fit in His wise Providence to relieve the weary sufferings of the President of the United States by death. At the fatal issue of the assassin's act, in the bereavement under which the nation suffers in the loss of its faithful Chief Magistrate, all Christian persons will sincerely mourn. I request that you will, on the day set apart for the funeral of the late President, call your congregations together in their respective churches, to pray for God's blessing on this stricken nation, and especially to implore His tender mercies on the family now in deep affliction; and to ask that Heavenly wisdom be given him, who in the country's emergency has become the country's President. On such occasions portions of the burial service may be used, and other appropriate devotions.

Your faithful servant in Christ,

C. F. ROBERTSON,

Bishop of Missouri.

On Monday, 26th ult., services were thereupon held in many of the parishes of the Diocese.

In this city a united service of all the congregations was held in Christ Church, at which there were present, beside the Bishop and most of the city rectors, the Rev. Mr. Sylvester of Davenport, Iowa, and Wickens, of Texas. A vast congregation filled the large church, including the galleries, and many had to stand throughout. The service was one set forth by the Bishop. The organ for a processional played the Dead March in Saul. Then was sung Hymn 375 of Hymns Ancient and Modern. The Rev. Mr. Robert read the sentences in the Burial Service, the choir chanted the Anthem in the same service, and Canon Sylvester read the Lesson. Then was sung with thrilling effect the Hymn, "Nearer my God, to Thee." The first address was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Betts, and the next immediately after, by the Rev. Dr. Fulton. The speakers rose to this occasion; they pursued different lines of thought, both pertinent and made a powerful impression.

Then the Hymn, "God bless our native land," was sung, and the Bishop delivered the last address. They were all reported in full in the next morning's papers. The Amphion Male Quartette Club, which supplemented the choir, then sung the translation of Horace's "Integer Vitæ," which was sung at the President's grave at Cleveland in the Latin. The Bishop said the concluding prayers and gave the Blessing, when the Club sang with touching effect a hymn, "Hark! above us on the mountain," and the vast throng slowly dispersed. It was a most impressive service throughout, made so by the greatness of the multitude, and the tenderness which they brought with them; the tolling bells and the minute guns sounding without; the sense that at that hour the remains of the President were in a distant city being laid in the grave; the beauty of the music and the eloquence of the speakers who only gave voice to the appreciation of the people of the virtues of the departed hero.

The Bishop had upon the previous Saturday night at a mass meeting held on Lucas Square, made an address.

Christ Church was simply and tastefully draped, and the great structure lent itself grandly to the importance of the occasion. St. George's Church was also draped over the chancel and organ with United States flags and crape.

NOTES ON THE CONVENTION.

We are too close now to the meeting, and the reports made are too imperfect and many of them carelessly drawn, to enable us now to state what the results of the year fully are. We fear that the conclusion must be the financial result has been more cheering than the spiritual, for which the material after all exists.

The number confirmed during the year, 337, is the smallest presented during the incumbency of the present Bishop, and this with a larger number of clergy in the Diocese than ever before. More attention must be paid to preaching and to pastoral duty with this in view.

The difference in the standards of judging what a communicant is, is the want of exactness in the parish register, the carelessness in communicants in procuring letters of transfer, produces a confusion almost fatal to exactness in estimating growth or loss. Dr. Fulton said that of the 533 communicants reported in St. George's at the Convention before he took charge, he had only been able to find 175 of them. This offsets much gain elsewhere. But there is a very long list of those who, in a growing State and increasing communities, report a decreased number of communicants. Here is cause for grave thought and inquiry. A new member of the Convention last year, put on the committee on assessments, said to a gentleman, "So many come to us to say that they have lost so many people; but none come to say that they have gained them. Where do they go?" This is the inquiry prompted by the complaints often heard. Of course, people and communicants go, but do not more come, or those whom it is the Church's business to make communicants?

The greater relative representation on the clerical than on the lay side was remarkable; we hope that it was only accidental. There were three laymen present from Kansas City, but, excepting these, none were present from the western part of the State. Grace Church, Kansas City, kindly invited the Convention to come there. It was a fair matter of consideration, and especially as connected with a city of such rapid growth. But there were real considerations which induced the choice of Christ Church in this city. Take it all around, reduced rates can be more easily managed from this city, and travelling expenses are the least coming to this point. If it is difficult to come here, it is many times as more difficult for so many more here to go west. Business and pleasure anyway call many here. If the St. Louis churches had to pay the charges of their clergy and delegates to a distant city, five-sixths of the reliance for repaying to the missionaries their travelling expenses would be gone. On the one occasion of our meeting lately out of St. Louis, we had but the merest quorum on the lay side. Parishes are not disfranchised if the Convention does not meet with them. In a Diocese so large as this it must meet at a distance from some place; and the nature of the business necessarily coming before the Convention is poorly adapted to win and hold a crowd in attendance in any busy place.

CHILDREN'S COI

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children and those who are interested in them for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—A correspondent relates that shortly before his death the late Bishop Kerfoot would place before him the list of his clergy and pray earnestly for each one that he might be holy in life and successful in work.

—It is stated that Rev. Thompson L. Smith who joined the Reformed Episcopal denomination, some six years ago, has recently applied to be restored to the Church University. He has been recently in Denver. Has been serving lately a Methodist Church, and has been in need.

—The last place of worship the President attended, previous to being shot, was at St. James Chapel, Elberon, where he showed himself at home in the service of the Church. He took part in it very heartily.

—The Rev. Knox-Little, has been promoted to a canonry in Worcester Cathedral. He will keep his present curacy in Manchester still.

—The Rev. Dr. Sullivan, formerly of Chicago, now of Canada, has declined the Rectorship of Calvary Church, New York.

—Phillips Brooks in his memorial sermon on Dr. A. H. Vinton says: "The great work of the Church lies with the presbyter. The deacons save the presbyter from some details of work that he may be the freer for his tasks. The bishop watches the ramparts of the Church and secures for the presbyter the condition of peaceful and effective labor. But the great work of the Church is in the presbyter." He says that after 13 years of fruitful work in Boston he went to Philadelphia, because he had come to believe that a new voice might speak with power to men to whom his voice had grown dull from long familiarity. "I am going because of just such men as you," he said to a friend who loved him, but had not become a Christian under his ministry, who remonstrated with him for going.

—Bishop Pinkney of Maryland, was recently seized with a severe attack of vertigo while at the White Sulphur Springs. His physician imposes temporary cessation from all physical and mental labor.

—No President of the United States, from Washington to Arthur, was born in a city.

—The Duke of Edinburg a few Sundays ago administered a severe rebuke to the congregation of the Holy Trinity Church, Hull. When he came in, they all rose to their feet, but presently, when the clergy and choir entered, no one stood up except the Duke and his equerry.

—Bishop Dunlop delivered an address at a public meeting of citizens in Santa Fe, on the day of President Garfield's funeral, which is published at length in the local paper.

—Bishop Clark of Rhode Island has just finished a sea-side villa, built with the proceeds of his articles written for Bonner's Ledger. He was for some time at a loss as to how to name his house, and finally decided on 'Bon Ledge.'

—President Arthur is the son of a Baptist minister. He married the daughter of Capt. Hernando, of the Navy, who died two or three years ago, who was a Churchwoman. He, it is understood, attends regularly the Episcopal Church.

—The Bishop of Rochester, England says that he can only find complete rest by coming to this country. So he is coming, for this the third autumn. Before he has gone to the White Mountains; this time he goes to Niagara Falls.

—President Arthur, is a Churchman, a parishioner of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York. On the day of the burial services of President Garfield, he attended memorial Service at St. John's, Washington, of which the Rev. William A. Leonard is the Rector. Presidents Madison, Monroe, and Jackson attended this church, which is directly opposite the White House, and separated from it only by Lafayette Square.

—The Rev. I. M. Riley of Minneapolis has been elected to the chair of Ecclesiastical History in Nashotah, recently resigned by Rev. Dr. Egar.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Bishop of Winchester, England, has been presented with a pastoral staff made of pure gold, and weighing half a hundred weight.

—A couple of young church people were to be married in Illinois lately, and the bridegroom was to have notified the clergyman of the service. Cards were issued, and they arranged with the sexton to open the church and have the organist there for music. The time came, the people and the party were all assembled, but no minister appeared. Then the bridegroom recollected that he had forgotten to notify the clergyman, and he had gone to Chicago, and as the bride declared that none other could tie the knot, the couple followed him to that city on a special train, accompanied by all who desired to go.

—In the Scottish Episcopal Church, the Bishop in Confirmation, addresses each candidate separately in putting the question by his or her Christian name, uses the following words before those used before the form in our own service: "I sign thee with the sign of the Cross; and I lay my hands upon thee in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost."

—We often think less of the absurdities and waste resulting from the spoils system, which was the cause of Guiteau's crime, in the idea that it has always been as it is now. But that is a mistake. From the formation of our government under Washington until the beginning of Jackson's term of office, the whole number of officers removed was sixty-five, and but few of these for political opinions. Jefferson removed thirty-nine of these, and he solemnly declared that not one of these was removed because he belonged to a party apposed to his own. All this was changed in Jackson's time. In his first year he removed 690 persons; and the system has been getting worse ever since. No business could stand such a wasteful process, and it must stop or else the Republic will stop.

—The Young Christian Soldier and the Spirit of Missions have for the last year more than paid their expenses. The first has a circulation of over 54,000, the latter of nearly 6,000 copies.

—There are flourishing churches in Virginia where the Rev. Mr. Cobbs, afterwards Bishop, began by holding services in private houses in the intervals of his school keeping. In later life, he often said to his younger clergy that "it paid to look after the pea patches."

—Trinity Cathedral, Omaha, offered Mr. Walker, the choir master last year of Christ Church, St. Joseph, $100 a month salary, and so secured him, paying him twice as much as he had before received.

—The Bishop of Madras recently ordained a person, who had lately been working as a miner in Cornwall, but who, by constant perseverance had taught himself Latin, Greek, Hebrew, German, French and Syriac.

—Our old friend, the Church Guide, which was first published by the parishes in Kansas City, and then by these, assisted by Rectors of two adjacent cities in Kansas, and then by the Rector of Grace Church, Kansas City, along with the Rector of the Holy Communion in this city, and which was for a time suspended, on the removal of the former to Louisiana, has been resumed by Mr. Duncan, and is the official organ of that Diocese.

—The Bishop of Central New York, in sending out his appointments for the year, prefixes it by a pastoral, in which he asks to meet the Vestry of each parish by themselves at each place, when he can ascertain from them such facts as—whether they are paying their salary regularly and punctually, whether facilities are afforded for performing service on all the days appointed in the Prayer Book, whether the property is kept insured and is legally secure, whether the music and the conduct of the choir is befitting, whether the parish register is kept up, whether the legal forms of parish meetings are kept up, whether the sick and poor have due pastoral care, whether all the collections are made and forwarded. A very useful idea.

—The Convention for the election of a Bishop in the Diocese of Pittsburg has been called for the 19th of this month.

—Roman Catholicism has lost 190,043 members in Ireland during the last ten years.

—A beautiful stained glass window is to be put into St. James Chapel, Elberon, opposite the seat which President Garfield occupied on the Sunday before he was shot.

—"All for Christ." These were the words accompanying an act which deserves a permanent record. A gentleman last month stepped into the office of the secretary of domestic missions, and left a check for $12,200. He then left a check for the same amount in the office of the secretary of foreign missions. Both checks were signed with his own name, but as attorney for another party. He said he was not at liberty to mention the name of the donor. All he was permitted to say was, that it was "All for Christ."

—The Archbishop of York has endeavored ineffectually to induce the Rev. Mr. Green, who is imprisoned for ritualistic practices, to submit to the judgment of his Bishop in the matter, which would release him, and so concludes that "as Mr. Green will not accept the ruling of the Archbishop's Court, nor the opinion of the assembled Bishops of the Anglican Communion throughout the world, nor the resolutions of Convocation, nor the determination of his own Bishop, nor the invitation of the Archbishop of the province," he does not see how his much desired release is to be effected.

—Prang will in New York in November have his third competition for Christmas card prizes, which will amount in all to $4,000. There will be two sets of prizes of $1,000 $500, $300 and $200 each. One to be voted for only by artists, the other by the public. The same pictures may get both sets of prizes. This only shows the growth of the chromo trade.

—There is a popular movement on foot in St. Louis to erect a monument, under the auspices of the Historical Society, to Gen. Garfield. No subscriptions for over $5 are received. The city is singularly lacking in such objects of beauty and honor. Such a monument would be a constant reminder and incentive to the young. Mr. S. H. Laffin, No. 205 North Main street, an old and respected citizen, has the matter in charge.

—The Arkansas train robbers were promptly sentenced to 70 years each of imprisonment. They set us an example which we might well profit from.

—A correspondent at Nantucket says three of the six sectarian pulpits there on a recent Sunday were filled by women.

—Three brothers in Warren county, Va., have not spoken to each other during forty years, owing to a dispute about a cow in the settlement of their father's estate.

Great destitution and approaching wholesale starvation is reported from portions of Labrador and Anticosti, where the usual catch of fish failed during the past season. They will soon be shut out from succor by ice, and only prompt relief can save many lives.

An accident, resulting in the probably fatal injury of the engineer and destruction of several cars, occurred to a train bearing the Marquis of Lorne, on the Sioux City and Pacific Road, near Thompson Creek, Iowa, early Saturday morning. The car containing the Marquis was uninjured.

BOOK NOTICES.

The contents of the North American Review for October cannot fail to arrest the attention of all readers. Every one of the topics discussed is of the highest present interest, and nearly all of the authors are eminent American Statesmen, publicists and litterateurs. Senator John T. Morgan, of Alabama, considers. "Some Dangerous Questions," namely certain emergencies arising in the administration of the United States government, for which adequate provision is not made in the Constitution or the laws. Among these questions, that of the succession to the Presidency in case of the inability of the elected incumbent, holds a conspicuous place. Prof. Geo. P. Fisher, of Yale College, contributes a profound study of "The Elements of Puritanism" pointing out wherein Puritanism was transient in its influence, and wherein permanent. Senator George F. Edmunds, of Vermont, defines the relations which exist between "The State and the Nation". D. C. Gilman, President of Johns Hopkins University, writes of "The Idea of the University," drawing the line of distinction between the college and the university, and showing how the latter institution is the indispensable organ of a generous, liberal culture. A timely historical paper is that of Mr. Sydney Howard Gay, "Why Cornwallis was at Yorktown." Under the title, "Shall Two States Rule the Union?" the Hon. Thomas A. Hendricks discusses the perennial tariff question, which he insists is a subject not for politicians, but for economists, to be settled, not in the councils of politicians, but by a commission of manufacturers and business men. M. Desire Charnay, sets forth the results of his researches among the "Ruined Cities of Central America." Finally, Col. H. B. Carrington, in an article on "Washington as a Statesman," proves conclusively the title of Washington to be esteemed "first in war."

The October Wide Awake is notable for the inauguration of a Reading Union for the young folks, giving a Reading Course for the month of sixteen pages. This will be a regular feature, forming a permanent enlargement of the magazine. Law papers for little citizens, Magna Charta stories, Health and Strength papers, Musical biographies, a series about the ocean, articles telling How To Do Things, The Wise Blackbird's page, and Natural History explorations, constitute an attractive and valuable miscellany for the first year.

After the dainty autumn frontispiece and poem, the magazine opens with a charming article "Two Bears," giving, by the way, some interesting reminiscences of Theodore Parker. This is followed by one of Mrs. Lizzie W. Champney's stories entitled, "A Foreign Embassy," and illustrated with a full-page engraving by G. F. Barnes. Edward Everett Hale, in his Tenth Talk, tells how to pay "a newspaper game," and a good deal about illustrating stamp collections. "Isaac Lemmon," by James Clement Ambrose, under the thin disguise of a name, is a dramatic account of the boyhood of Abraham Lincoln, the incidents gathered from conversations with old neighbors of the plucky lad. Part II. of "King Philip's Head," generous installments of "Sharon," "Having His Own Way," and "Polly Cologne," make up a very companionable number. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston, Mass.

Devotions Preparatory to Confirmation.—The Rev. John Coleman has been called on to put out the third and revised edition of his little manual, to which have been added prayers preparatory to Adult Baptism. Bishop Huntington writes thus to him recently: "Please send me fifty copies of your Manual. I want them to distribute. The Prayers not only suit the particular wants of those preparing for Confirmation, but they are expressed in language of great Liturgic dignity and simplicity, and the directions are admirable. Paper, roots; board, 15cts., quantities at a reduced price. Address Rev. John Coleman, Albany, N. Y."

ter to be omitted from the name. The contents are of more than usual interest. The series of lectures by Dr. Joseph Parker in reply to Col. Ingersoll is continued. These lectures are stamped with Parker's peculiar genius, and will be regarded as among the ablest, if not the ablest, reply Ingersoll's skepticism has as yet called forth. The publishers offered to publish Ingersoll's lecture by the side of Parker's reply, but Ingersoll refused permission. We have also "Gilded Sir," by Howard Crosby, D. D., L. L. D.; "The Lamb of God," by John Hall, D. D.; Among the miscellaneous papers is one by Dr. Robert Young on the distinction between "Sheol, Hades; Gehenna, Tartarus." Prof. E. P. Thwing gives an interesting account of the "Children's Service" in England, just now awakening so much interest. Dr. Crosby continues his series of papers, "Light on Important Texts." I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

The Century Company puts out the October number of Scribner's, which is to change its name to the Century next month, and the St. Nicholas; these numbers, both in the literary and artistic departments, are of superior excellence. They brighten up the household for all the month.

ETHEL'S DOG.—Ethel is never tired of talking about her dog Flash. One of his accomplishments, she tells me, is his graceful way of setting the table.

When it is time for Flash to have his dinner, his master says, "Flash, bring the table cloth!"

Off he runs to the newspaper-rack, gets a paper, and lays it at his master's feet. "Spread it out!" is the next command.

Quickly he opens the paper to its full extent, and places it on the floor carefully. He waits patiently for the bones that are to reward his obedience. When they have been put on the clean "table cloth," he begins his nice feast. Dinner over, Flash picks up the paper cloth and carries it out of the room for the cook to burn.

Ethel says that Flash can tell time; for at just such a minute every day the dog comes to his master, sits up straight, with his front paws drooping gracefully, and asks in his dumb way, for something to eat. And when the time comes for his master to go down town to business, Flash is sure to give him a hint; for Flash is very punctual, you see, and does not approve of delay.

One day Flash brought an intimate friend, a red setter, and introduced him to his master. Flash stood wagging his tail, while the caller was politely caressed. Then the two dogs trotted off together, and Flash's playmate had a new name to put on his visiting list.—[Nursery.

TOLERABLY WELL OFF.—During the Vienna exhibition an amiable Hungarian merchant happened to meet in a railway carriage a gentleman with whom he proceeded to hold a pleasant conversation. "I'm going to Vienna," said the merchant, "to see my daughter, who is well married there. My son-in-law deals in paper and fancy leather-work, and has a good trade. He is very prosperous." "I, also," said the good-natured stranger, "am going to see my daughter and son-in-law." "Ah! Is your son-in-law well off?" asked the merchant. "Pretty well; but as he has to carry on his work all alone it is rather tiresome." "Is your daughter rich?" "Not as she'd like to be." She likes to spend a good deal on her toilette?" "No; but she would like to be able to give a great deal in charity." "She's a good woman," said the merchant, heartily: "it's to be hoped that your son-in-law's business will improve. Good-by, sir, come to see us, and bring your daughter; we shall be happy to make her acquaintance." The train arrived at the moment and the traveler whose son-in-law's business was only "pretty good" was immediately surrounded by grand personages in uniform. After having politely saluted the amazed merchant he stepped into the carriage of the Emperor of Austria. The good father-in-law of the dealer in paper and fancy leather goods had been traveling with the Prince Max, of Bavaria, father of the Empress Elizabeth.

Government Chemist's Report on Baking Powders.

Dr. Edward G. Love, the present Analytical Chemist for the Government, says the N. Y. Tribune, has recently made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use. And as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder.

It is proper to state that all the powders examined were from the open market, and that the original labels were in every case broken by Dr. Love himself.

The main building of Swarthmore College, at Swarthmore, Pa., was destroyed by fire. The library containing 4,000 volumes, was included in the loss. The total damage is probably $150,000, which is covered by insurance. Over 200 students were in the building, but all escaped without accident, except one who had an arm broken. A building will be rented elsewhere, and the term resumed. The fire originated from an explosion of chemicals in the laboratory.

MOTIVE AND METHOD.

Success in any undertaking depends quite as much upon correct method as upon right motive. And yet there are many very worthy people who confuse the two, and think if their motives are right they ought to succeed without regard to methods. But unless wise method supplant good motive, results are of slight value. As between man and man, correctness of method is the vital thing. People with very bad motives may have very excellent methods, and people with the best of motives may have the most execrable methods and continually defeat their own plans and hopes.

For example: A woman with the best intentions may make very bad bread and do wretched cooking generally. No matter how pure her motive may be, if she will "depend on soda to raise her bread, her biscuit, her pan cakes, her sweet-cakes; if she will make her pie-paste of soda and spoil green peas with it, and 'green' string beans with it, and wash meats with a solution of it in hot weather," as a correspondent writes is the custom in the locality where she is staying, no possible purity of motive will make her cooking anything but intensely revolting and utterly ruinous to all healthy stomachs.

Meddlesome people, mischief-makers, stirrers up of sedition and strife, are often persons of spotless purity of motive, and when trouble results from their methods of trying to set things right, take refuge in the integrity of their motives, and are utterly oblivious of and insensible to all arguments reflecting upon their methods. There is not a political assassin that does not justify his method, however disastrous it may prove, by his motive, and when he finds public opinion does not sustain him, he becomes straightway a martyr to his principle. Away with all such martyrs!

Correct method will often do much to make up for deficiencies in motive power. For instance, the teacher who teaches not so much from pure love of the work as that he may make a living by it, if his methods be good, may enjoy larger success in his teaching than he who loves the work but is not trained to it. So with physicians and clergymen, with housekeepers and artisans. We are often placed in position with little regard to our fitness or liking for them, and the total success we win in filling them creditably must depend upon the methods we adopt. If these are unwise, wrong, inadequate, failure will surely be our portion, no matter how pure and high our motives may be.

The application of plain common sense to the ordinary affairs of life is much needed. There are ten thousand things with which conscience and pure motive have nothing whatever to do. They come simply under the rule of common sense, propriety, the fitness of things, what is expedient, what is advisable. Of course we take it for granted that the underlying motive shall be just and right and true, that the intention shall be honest and pure, but that is not enough. We are endowed with reason no less than with conscience, and faith, and hope. A great many excellent people have an idea that to apply the ordinary, carnal, everyday principles of good business management to matter of duty and high principle is something of a profanation. But the most efficient church in any community is the one that is conducted on the soundest business principles, one whose pastor and whose officers possess first, sound common sense, and second, ardent piety.

Those who have left a lasting and beneficent record of good deeds have been men and women of pure motives and of wise methods. They have made their investments of time, of labor, of enthusiasm, of money, with skill and forethought and deliberation. They have tested their methods at the bar of common sense, and have adopted such as the experience of the world has proven wise and efficient.

As the academic year now opens this is a good time for students to decide upon and adopt the best methods in conducting their studies so as to divide their time, their labor, their rest, that they may realize the largest possible results therefrom to settle upon such adjustments of their tasks to

--An old Scotch lady gave a pointed reply to a minister who knew he had offended her, and who expressed surprise that she should come so regularly to hear him speak. Said she: "My quarrel's wi' you, mon; it's no wi' the Gospel."

--A man went into raptures over the preaching of Mr. Moody in the Hippodrome, declaring if ministers would only preach in that way he would attend Church. The preacher was not Moody at all, but his wife's minister, whom he had never heard before.

--Most readers have met with Dr. S. H. Cox's contretemps in attempting to preach in French, with but a raw knowledge of the language. When urging his hearers to take the water of life freely, instead of the proper phrase eau vive, he astounded the sober and upset the gravity of the gay by exhorting them to drink freely of the eau de vie (brandy). But he seems to have been matched by a German preacher, who was as little at home in English as he in French. Confounding our world bald with empty, and seeing several patriarchs in the audience with heads shining with the luster of age, he began in a pathetic mood, "With so many venerable and empty heads before me" which left small room for pathos.

--Bishop Coxe says: "I have heard of churches decorated with cut flowers at Easter at an expense of nearly $100, the offertory alms in the same church rarely reaching the sum of $15, and less than $50 being the sum total of its contributions to missions."

--One of the most absurd of all foolish customs is that of inviting a crowd of friends or strangers

up to the bar "to take something at my expense." Now, boys if you want to be generous and treat each other, why not select some other place beside the liquor shop? Suppose, as you go by the post office, you remark, "I say, my dear fellow, come in and take some stamps;" these stamps will cost no more than drinks all around. Or go to the clothiers, and say, "Boys, come in and take a box of collars." Walk up to the grocer's, free and generous and say, "What kind of coffee will you have?" Why not treat to groceries by the pound as well as liquors by the glass? Or take your comrades to the cutler's, and say, "I'll stand a pocket knife all around." This would be thought a strange way of showing friendship; but would it not be better than to offer to your friends a maddening, poisonous, deadly draught.--[Southern Churchman.]

--Bishop Huntingdon says: "I ministered once in a church where many a pew stood for a million dollars. There were generous men and saintly women among them, not a few. But it only happened once in nine years that after I had announced an offering for the following Sunday, a person stopped after the service to say, 'I must be absent next Sunday and wish you to take my gift now.' she was not 'a Samaritan, but she was a cook, and she was to be absent to cook a rich man's dinner, and I have some reason to suspect that her gift was larger than his.'"

--Mrs. Agassiz found, one morning, in one of her slippers a cold, little slimy snake, one of six sent the day before to her scientific spouse, and carefully set aside by him for safety under the bed. She screamed "There is a snake in my slipper!", The savant leaped from his couch, crying, "A snake! Good heavens, where are the other five?"

--A Boston paper speaks jokingly of a young married couple "who took their wedding tour in one of the horse cars." But was it not a good deal more sensible than to spend all their money in a trip to some fashionable watering place, and have to return to some garret room until they could recuperate from the result of their extravagance?

The Thirty-fourth year will begin September 7th, 1881.

All branches of an English, Commercial, Scientific and Classical course are thoroughly taught in this Institution. The Faculty are the best of Instructors, who are ever ready and willing to devote their time to the welfare of their pupils, and scholars will find everything here just as advertised. Good business education is imparted, and students are prepared to matriculate in any college in the land. St. Paul's offers superior advantages this year to its students. As empowered in its charter by legislative enactment it will hereafter confer degrees (A. B., A. M., &c.), upon those students who have completed the collegiate course. It is the only school in the Diocese that has this authority. The privilege of graduating is thus extended this year to old students of the Institution who wish to return and complete the course. A student can enter any one department and graduate in it alone. And at the close of the year the student who can pass satisfactory examination in all the studies of the year will receive a diploma as a testimonial of scholarship.

The school year consists of two terms of twenty weeks each.

TERMS.

Boarders, including board, tuition, laundry, per term.....$100
Day Scholars, per term..... 20

Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments.

Sole Agents for the Celebrated

SOHMER PIANOS

Square, Upright, Square, Grand, Cabinet Grand, Baby Grand, Parlor Grand, Concert Grand.

The demands now made by an educated musical public are so exacting, that very few Piano-forte Manufacturers can produce instruments that will stand the test which merit requires. SOHMER & CO., as Manufacturers, rank among this chosen few, who are acknowledged to be makers of standard instruments. In these days, when many manufacturers urge the low price of their wares rather than their superior quality as an inducement to purchase, it may not be amiss to suggest that, in a Piano, quality and price are too inseparably joined to expect the one without the other.

Every Piano ought to be judged as to the quality of its tone, its touch, and its workmanship: if any one of these is wanting in excellence, however good the others may be, the instrument will be imperfect. It is the combination of these qualities in the highest degree that constitutes the perfect Piano, and it is this combination that has given the "SOHMER" its honorable position with the trade and the public.

Prices as Reasonable as Consistent with the Highest Standard.

KIDNEY-WORT

DOES WONDERFUL WHY? CURES!

Because it acts on the LIVER, BOWELS and KIDNEYS at the same time.

Because it cleanses the system of the poisonous humors that develop in Kidney and Urinary Diseases, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Piles, or in Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Nervous Disorders and Female Complaints.

SEE WHAT PEOPLE SAY:

Eugene B. Stork, of Junction City, Kansas, says, Kidney-Wort cured him after regular Physicians had been trying for four years.

Mrs. John Arnall, of Washington, Ohio, says her boy was given up to die by four prominent physicians and that he was afterwards cured by Kidney-Wort.

M. M. B. Goodwin, an editor in Chardon, Ohio, says he was not expected to live, being bleated beyond belief, but Kidney-Wort cured him.

Anna L. Jarrett of South Salem, N. Y., says that seven years suffering from kidney troubles and other complications was ended by the use of Kidney-Wort.

John B. Lawrence of Jackson, Tenn., suffered for years from liver and kidney troubles and after taking "barrels of other medicines," Kidney-Wort made him well.

Michael Coto of Montgomery Center, Vt., suffered eight years with kidney difficulty and was unable to work. Kidney-Wort made him "well as ever."

KIDNEY-WORT

PERMANENTLY CURES KIDNEY DISEASES, LIVER COMPLAINTS, Constipation and Piles.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form in the cans, one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very Concentrated, for those that cannot readily prepare it.

It acts with equal efficiency in either form.

An offertory will be made at every service for Diocesan Missions, or some other canonical object; of which offertory the minister is requested to give notice.

The present diocesan missionary quarter consists only of two months, and ends on the first of December, when the reports are to be made and collections put in and stipends paid. This results from the change of the beginning of the missionary year from the first of January to the first of September. It will all go on regularly hereafter.

THANKSGIVING OFFERTORY.

It will doubtless be remembered that by canon, in every congregation in the Diocese, must be made on Thanksgiving Day the offertory for the fund for Theological Education. When, for any reason, it is not possible to make it on that day, it is to be taken on the nearest possible Sunday to it. The object is a very important one. A number of candidates for orders must be and are now being helped from this fund during their period of preparation. It is of no advantage to the Church that they be hurried prematurely into orders, as would be necessary if they could not be sustained by the Church during that time of preparation, when they can earn nothing. The treasurer reported that last year he had only received $170 from the whole Diocese for this purpose. This is utterly inadequate, and this balance had been overdrawn. The time of making the collection seems to put disparagement on an important object, as the congregations on that day are often small. But due notice should be given, the object explained, and if the amount does not represent the ability of the people, another more propitious time should be taken, and the amount immediately forwarded to the treasurer.

THE BISHOPS THAT ARE TO BE.

Many apprehensions are expressed for the character and tone of leadership in the Church, in view of the fact that, latterly, so many of the giants of an earlier day are passing away. We wonder where the persons are who shall take the place of Whittingham and Vinton and Kerfort and Washburn and Atkinson and Wilmer and many others, now gone. No doubt the Holy Spirit, who presides over the councils of the Church, will still give wisdom, whether this be in the form of a right judgment in all things distributed through the body, or of singular gifts of leadership given to one or a few. The title of this article need not imply that all the capacities for direction are gathered up into the Episcopate. The smallest experience shows that a condition very different from this is the fact.

But the Bishops, and the Church's leaders otherwise in action and thought, of a generation hence, are to be seen in the young men now being ordained and coming on the stage. In those who are closing their seminary life, or who are made anxious or confident by new titles and privileges and responsibilities, in those are to be recognized the men who will be the captains of the Church's forces in the closing days of this century. And to bring the matter closer, we have probably and will have, among the younger clergy of this Diocese, those on whom the lot may fall.

It sometimes looks as though the Church was at a loss to know on whom to impose its trust of leadership. Those who have been present when the House of Bishops is called to choose one for the Missionary Episcopate, know that suggestions and information are most anxiously sought, and that the ballots do not range over a large number of persons. And in the case of vacant Dioceses, for years nearly the same persons are voted for, letting in occasionally a new name. And if, being elected, one declines, he is tried again and again, in other places.

What then seem to be the tests which the Church applies when it is about to call a person to its higher places? There are other standards which govern when there is about to be a choice for a rectorship, or the position of deputy to General Convention. What is it, so far as we can generalize, which controls the choice when the Church wants a Bishop? It may be conceived that the tests may be ineffectually applied, or that peculiar circumstances may divert the choice. But every little while the hand of the Church gropes round among its clergy and lays itself on one and another and calls them to leadership. What principles can we recognize as influencing the choice?

To start with, evidently an irreproachable character and a fair degree of physical health and vigor. In the even, anxious poise of judgment, anything said in prejudice on these points is almost fatal. Then a vigorous mental habit and a learning which is increasing, and which yet is not allowed to intrude upon the active work of the ministry, and cause the person to be self-indulgently studious.

He is a man too who has knowledge of affairs, can get on with people, is hopeful, has systematic habits of administration. The Methodists choose their leaders more frequently from those having academic positions, perhaps because in such places can most certainly be found the learning required. We most generally choose our Bishops from the parochial clergy, perhaps because learning is more distributed with us in the ministry, and because we put a higher estimate upon the executive experience gotten in parish work. An exceptional superiority in some other direction must be found to atone for an absence of industry, system and facility in adapting one's self to circumstances.

In subordination to the last quality, he must be as good a preacher as possible, thoughtful and sympathetic and ready. The life of a Bishop is not favorable to growth in pulpit power, so broken up with travel and a large correspondence and the worry of a hundred petty details. Still while there is no function in which he so constantly touches the world, and is taken to be a representative of the Church and an exponent of its principles, yet it is evident that preaching ability, only as united with administrative force, is by eminence looked for in the choice of a Bishop. He must be a preacher, but not this in the first instance. Bishop Cummins is a fair example of the failure that followed when simply a fiery eloquence was sought.

Bishop Richard Wilmer used to say, that seed corn was not taken from the outside rows, but from the middle of the field. A judicial mind, rather than an addiction to our school of opinions, is an object of desire. One who can see and honor the good and truth in any side, who can abate a mischief by developing that which is of worth in it, rather than by a policy of repression, this disposition is both originally sought for in, as it is also increased by, a Bishops's work. Not too severe a logical habit as much as a sympathy, a readiness to put one's self in another's place, is valued.

Such are some of the main principles which seem to guide the choice when a Bishop is sought for. As it is no unworthy form of ambition for a young man to seek to qualify himself for the highest offices in the State, so it is right for a young clergyman, while working faithfully at his present duty, as though he was always to stay at it, to prepare himself for any greater trusts which may come to him. The qualities and excellence which are here emphasized are those which will secure preferment and success anywhere, the proportions of the elements being sometimes changed.

All this being so, it is worth every young clergyman's while to consider whether he is growing in a way which is likely to bring him to and prepare him for larger trusts. It will not come from a casting aside of seminary studies, or the receding from books, which require exact thought, and an indolent dawdling over newspapers and clerical gossip. The library will be showing a steady growth and daily use. A knowledge of the Church and of the lines of its policy, and the range of its work, is had and relished. There is a thoughtful body in each sermon, with no evidence of posturing, but with individuality and freshness of sympathy and illustration and application. The person makes the most of the opportunities afforded by the places in which his work lies, and evidently loves the people as though he was to be with them always. Among the persons voted for at the late election in Pittsburg you will only see the names of those who have been a long time in their present parishes. They have staying qualities.

Thus Cincinnatus may be called from the plough to preside in the city; but, what is better, he will be found not to be unfit for the new work.

THE REV. MR. ALLEN.

Our Diocesan family suffers often grievous losses by reason of removals, but has not been often broken in upon by death. On the second day of this month, in Mexico, we lost from our number a faithful minister, who only came to us last Spring and was personally known to but few. He came to us from the Diocese of Michigan, having been born and spent most of his life in the Diocese of Western New York. Brought up in the Church, he was familiar with its ways, and was moreover competent in business habits and knew how to deal with men.

He threw himself into the work at Mexico, and won to himself directly the regard of his people. He arranged to open a school in the Fall, for which there was a need in the town. Before the term opened, however, he spoke of not being well and greatly desired to see the writer in reference to personal and business matters. On account of constant engagements and the preparation for Convention, the Bishop could not find time to go up to Mexico, and Mr. Allen was unable to come to the Convention because of his duties in the school, which had opened with good prospects. There was no idea that the case was so serious. When the telegram came the Bishop was in a remote part of the Diocese and could not break away. He is distressed that he could not have gone to his suffering brother and given such comfort as he could. The letter of the Rev. Mr. Gray, in another column, shows that he was cheered by a visit from him. His people had learned to be tenderly attached to him. His children, who had only their father to look to, are utterly bereaved and must be in need.

In our poor wisdom, the loss of such a strong man, well educated, cultured, devoted, in the strength of his days, with children looking to him as their protector, and a parish gathering about him and learning to love him, is a grief. Anxiety, our hopes and a home broken, weakened a body which might otherwise have resisted disease, and thus the end. Our brother's weary heart is at rest; may our Heavenly Father deal tenderly with the fatherless ones!

MISSIONARY CIRCULAR.

The following circular has been sent to all the missionaries in the Diocese, along with the rules of the Missionary Board. It is hoped that its suggestions will tend to greater efficiency in our work:

SAINT LOUIS, — 188

REV. AND DEAR SIR:

You have been nominated to the Board of missions for a stipend of $—per annum, beginning—188, the quarterly amounts being paid on the first of December, March, June and September. I enclose to you also a copy of the rules of the Diocesan Board, on a strict compliance with which alone can the stipends be paid. The distribution of missionaries to the Domestic or the Diocesan Board is wholly a matter of convenience, and a compliance with the enclosed rules is necessary, from which ever place the stipend comes. If you are a missionary of the Domestic Board, you will also need to comply with its rules.

The Board looks to you to increase the missionary interest and offerings in your field, by giving full notice of collections; by organizing missionary societies, and soliciting regular pledges from your people where this is possible; by holding services having this object in view, as ordered by Convention; and by diffusing information about the work of the Diocese by increasing the circulation of the CHURCH NEWS. It desires, also, that you should send, from time to time, to the News, brief notices of matters of interest to your work, for the information of others. It expects that you will keep an exact record of your work, and report in precise accordance with the blanks sent. This will save time and trouble for the Secretary and the Missionary.

The help which you thus receive, inadequate as in some cases it is and which we would often desire to make larger, comes, in many cases, from those who are making sacrifices to help you. Many of those who give have less than some in your congregations. It is hoped that this help will be an aid and an incentive to the most faithful work in preaching Christ, and in building up the Church. The Board expects growth in your work during the year, and will watch anxiously for your reports of its. As they are administering a sacred trust, the continuance of aid to a missionary and to a mission will largely depend upon the results which that aid is seen to call forth.

Very Faithfully Yours.

For the Board, C. F. ROBERTSON,
F. J. McMASTER, Bishop of Missouri,
Secretary.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Crystal City, 6; St. Charles, 1; St. Luke's Hospital, 1; Cuba, 5; Carthage, 2; Joplin, 8; Nevada, 2; Butler, 2; Sedalia, 1.

The Rev. Abiel Leonard has resigned the rectorship of Trinity Church, Hannibal, and removed to Atchison, Kansas, where he has taken charge of the parish. This is a severe loss to the Diocese of one who was born in it, had been ordained in it, and was rising to responsible station in it. We cannot think how his parish could have allowed this to take place. They will not soon fill his place. He was scrupulously faithful to all the interests of the Diocese; was active in promoting missionary work, and for St. Luke's Hospital, and was concerned that every object for which offerings were called on the Convention blanks should be contributed to. He was asked to resume his rectorship at Sedalia, and to take the parish in South St. Louis. He will be missed and the good wishes of his friends will go with him over the border. The following resolution was passed at the meeting of his vestry in Hannibal:

RESOLVED:—That we receive the intelligence of the resignation of our faithful and beloved Rector with sincere regret; and that we cannot let the occasion pass without testifying our appreciation of his devoted and valuable services, and invoking the divine blessing upon him and his aimable and interesting family, wherever their lot may be cast.

—In his announcement of St. Mary's School, Kansas City, the Rev. Mr. Jardine states that he has as his Vice principal, Mr. A. H. Austin, formerly of King's College, London, and Principal of Trinity Chapel School in New York. He has also four other teachers. There are thirty-five scholars.

—The Rev. Mr. Jones, who officiated for a time in Boonville, has returned to Baltimore. This leaves the parish without present supply.

—The portion of the Rectory of Christ Church, Springfield, which has been built in the rear end of the corner lot occupied by the parish, is finished and occupied by the Rev. Mr. Parker. It is well constructed, has two large rooms, and cost $400. It is paid for. It is in a grove of large trees of natural growth. The ladies of the guild have furnished it comfortably throughout.

—The growth of the towns in the South-west, especially Rolla, Springfield and Carthage, is something wonderful this fall. Houses cannot be had, and workmen are so busy that they cannot undertake new work. There are splendid chances here for the Church. Railroads too are piercing in new directions, and opening up new sections of the country. The summer drought is almost forgotten in the fine growing weather of the last few months.

—In Carthage a few years ago the Church was thought to be too remote from the centre of the town, and a lot was purchased for $400, one block from the square, and the Church was moved on it, the parish however keeping the old lots. Now the Church has been offered $1500 for the new lot, and the city has grown up to the old lots, and the parish will ultimately be able to sell the property near the square for $2000, or perhaps by that time for more, and thus build a proper church in its old location. In the meantime the ladies are gathering a fund for a parsonage.

—The Rev. Joseph De Frest, recently of La Crosse, Wis., has been called to the Rectorship of St. Paul's Church, South St. Louis, has accepted and has entered upon his work. He begins with the best auguries of success.

—The Rev. Benj. R. Phelps has resigned the rectorship of St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, and has been elected as assistant minister in Grace Church of this city, to assist the Rev. Dr. Ingraham. He has been married since Convention, and will have rooms in the old Rectory. The family of Dr. Ingraham will go for this winter to Florida.

—There has recently come to the Bishop a letter with an address very like his, directed to him as warden of Edinburgh University, St. Louis, Mo. It came in his absence, and was opened on the idea that it was intended for him. There was no one in the Directory of the name given. It was written by a person in England who had been given the degree of Bachelor of Music, and had received his diploma from a person whom he named in London as a graduate. He wrote to acknowledge the honor and to ask whether his name had been duly registered, and for a copy of the calendar showing his name in it, and whether the further degree of Doctor of Music was given. Of course no such institution exists here, and the person has been duped, as probably others have been by sham degrees from this pretended University, and perhaps has been called on for money.

—As the old Rectory at Sedalia has been sold, the dwelling on the lot on Broadway, which has been purchased as the site of the new church, will be removed from the corner to the inside, and be put in good order for the new Rector. It is a larger building than the old rectory. The lot is on the corner, and the best site in the city for a church, and is of good size.

—The Bishop held his first service in the newly completed Chapel in Joplin on Sunday night, the 30th ult. It was more than filled, and persons had to stand about the windows. Four adults were baptized, and eight persons presented for confirmation by the Rev. Mr. Wall. The Chapel is built across the rear of a large lot given by Hon. Gilchrist Porter, of Hannibal.

—The subject of some Sunday evening lectures to be delivered by Dr. Fulton, at St. George's Church is, "City Life and its Problems."

—Several of the clergy on our Diocesan list are not engaged in the active duties of their ministry. The Rev. Mr. Staples is retired on account of advanced years and ill health. The Rev. Mr. Freeman has for a number of years lived with relatives in Chicago, disabled from old age. The Rev. Mr. Hatton has not had parochial duty for thirteen years, and has a nursery at Warrensburg. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell has for several years been engaged in teaching in Kentucky and Indiana. The Rev. Mr. Lawrance has a curacy in England, his parents needing his care. The Rev. Mr. Thorpe is engaged in commercial pursuits on Long Island. The Rev. Mr. Barr is disabled by disease caused originally by a sunstroke.

—The Bishop held his first service in the new All Saints Church, Nevada, the county seat of Vernon, on the evening of All Saints Day. The church is finely situated, well built of stone, and is of good size. Two persons were presented by the new Rector, the Rev. Mr. Brittain, and confirmed. The congregation filled the church, and the parish is in fine spirits.

—The Bishop made his first visit to the new coal town of Rich Hill, in Bates County, on the 2nd inst. Little more than a year ago this was only a bare prairie, now there are nearly three thousand people in the town; 2,000 cars of coal are shipped in a month. A number of church people have come in from different directions. A fine lot has been offered by the land company, provided we will build a church upon it. An effort for this will be made immediately. Services were held in the Methodist Church, the Rev. Mr. Brittain of Nevada, assisting. The chants were well rendered by a choir which had never sung them before, but practiced carefully for the occasion. With the aid of the Mission Service books the whole congregation took part in the service throughout.

—The new St. Mark's Church, Butler, was just completed in time for the Bishop's visit on the 3d inst. It is of frame, and built after a plan drawn by the Rev. Mr. Scheetz, has a good chancel and vestry room, is ceiled throughout, and the wood is oiled. Chairs however, had to be brought in as the pews had not been made. Many had to go away for want of room. Two adults and one infant were baptized, and two were confirmed. The church has been almost wholly built by means furnished in the town.

—The Rev. H. A. Grantham, begins his work as Missionary at the Church of the Good Samaritan, in this city, on the first Sunday in Advent.

—Mrs. Fulton and her daughter have returned from Europe, after an absence of more than a year, and are with Dr. Fulton at the Windsor, until the residence, in the rear of St. George's Church, shall have been completed for them.

—The Indianapolis Sentinel estimates that the illness and burial of President Garfield involved an expenditure of about $347,000. That is only a small part of what one disgusting man can do.

CONVOCATION OF THE MEXICO DISTRICT.

A meeting of this Convocation was held in Christ Church, Moberly, October 27-29. There were present the Rev. J. R. Gray, Dean, the Rev. Messrs. Curtis, Gay and Richardson. The Rev. C. M. Gray, late of Cleveland, Tennessee, was also present and took part in the services.

The Rev. J. M. Curtis of Louisiana, preached the opening sermon from the text, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts:"—a most forcible, interesting discourse, worthy of a much larger audience. The Holy Eucharist was celebrated by the dean, assisted by the rector of the church, on the Festival of Sts. Simon and Jude. The Rev. Mr. Gay preached an extempore sermon, basing his remarks on "the faith which was once delivered to the Saints." It was an earnest effort, couched in the eloquent and persuasive language with which the venerable rector of St. Mary's, Fayette, is so gifted. A very interesting missionary service was held the evening of the 26th. Prayer was offered for the Bishop of China's restoration to health. Pointed, practical remarks were made by each of the clergymen present, on the subject of missions. The congregation was larger than on any previous occasion, and interest in "the pews" was more marked. This service was the last. The clergymen returned on Saturday to their various parishes. The rector was called by telegram to Brunswick. It would appear that larger attendance on the part of the laity might be secured, if there were wider knowledge of the nature of the services—if, on the eve of a meeting of convocation, and several weeks preceding, notice were given in the church, and to individual parishoners and others, and published in the local papers, information as to the nature and character of the services, and the probable benefit which each one attending might reap. The attendance at the later services on these occasions is greater than those held earlier during the meeting—an evidence that people are learning that something unusual is transpiring just at its close.

Little business was transacted at this meeting. The Rev. J. M. Curtis, of Louisiana, late Dean of Sedalia Convocation, was nominated to the Bishop as Dean of the Convocation. It was determined to hold three meetings each year, beginning on Wednesday instead of Thursday, as heretofore.

The following minute prepared by Rev. J. M. Curtis, was adopted:

This Convocation desires to record the unanimous regret of the members present on account of the absence from our meeting of the Rev. C. De L. Allen, rector of St. Paul's Church, Mexico—a regret greatly enhanced by the knowledge that the chief impediment to his being present with us, is his very serious illness confining him to his home and room.

The Convocation desires to assure our Rev. brother of the profound sympathy of its members and their earnest hope and prayer that he may speedily be restored to his wonted health and vigor, and so be enabled to carry on as successfully as heretofore his very useful ecclesiastical and educational work, which promises to so materially advance the prosperity and upbuilding of the Church of God in his chosen field of labor.

It was determined to meet in February (God willing) in Calvary church, Louisiana.

The Rev. J. R. Gray promised a paper on "Systematic christian giving," to be read on that occasion.

The rector of Moberly has cause for encouragement and thankfulness in his success in that somewhat difficult field of labor. He is greatly beloved in his parish and we would bid him God speed.

And now, Mr. Editor, a word concerning a matter which appeals to the hearts of all, not only in this convocation, but throughout the diocese, and the Church at large. I refer to the death of the noble, gifted, affectionate, devoted missionary of St. Paul's Church, Mexico, and the mission of the Holy Comforter, Montgomery. I was called to his bedside, Wednesday, October 26, where I found him prostrate with typhoid fever. After spending a day and night with him, and often much talk and prayer with him, I went to the convocation and reported him as seriously but not dangerously ill. The following Wednesday I was informed by telegram of the Rev. C. DeL. Allen's death that morning at 6:30. It was a most severe shock to all; even those who were nearest seem not to have realized how critical was his condition. At four o'clock in the afternoon of Nov. 2d, I read a part of the Burial Service over his mortal remains, and they were sent at once to be interred in Geneva, New York. This death has cast a gloom over the whole community at Mexico; and many hearts beat with sincere sympathy for the fatherless children whom he has left behind. May the Lord in mercy watch over and protect them; and "grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day." Mr. Allen had been only a short time in the diocese and had met but few of the clergy; but those few valued his friendship, and appreciated his great ability and solid worth. He was devoted to duty, and humanly speaking, extraordinary exertion, when physical nature rebelled, perhaps hastened the end. Your correspondent was perhaps more intimately acquainted with him than any other in this diocese, being his nearest neighbor of the clergy, and his predecessor in Mexico. I would say more concerning this Godly man, of whom the Lord "hath need"—but I will desist, already having trespassed greatly upon your space—still I will bespeak the prayers of the faithful for the bereaved and stricken ones, who are thus by God in His mysterious wisdom deprived of their earthly prop and stay.

GRAY.

Mistaken Consumptives.

In the treatment of lung and bronchial diseases, the liver is often implicated to such an extent that a hepatic remedy becomes necessary in effecting a cure of the lungs. In the treatment of such cases I prescribe Simmons' Liver Regulator with entire satisfaction.

WIDE AWAKE for 1882

The Editors and Publishers of WIDE AWAKE make the following announcement of leading features for 1882:

FROM THE HUDSON TO THE NEVA.

The materials for a hundred tales of adventure are crowded into this one grand serial story of travel, by David Ker. This story will be fully illustrated.

THEIR CLUB AND OURS

is a serial story by A. B. only fourteen years old. The fun and adventures of the out-of-school life of a mixed school of boys and girls are depicted with the gay touch of a boy who knows he has a capital story to tell and enjoys telling it. The story will have thirty-six illustrations.

A LONG HISPANO ROMAN STORY of the Second Century, by Rev. Edward Everett Hale, will be a leading attraction of the Christmas (Jan.) number, and will at once take its place in the long line of Mr. Hale's famous stories. Other brilliant writers of Short Stories will contribute to the magazine during the year.

Rich material from the Folk-Love of all nations has been given our best balladists and artists for a series of

ILLUSTRATED FOLK-LORE BALLADS.

Mr. Benjamin Vaughan Abbott, in

THE TRAVELLING LAW SCHOOL, will deal with American institutions and laws; while

Rev. E. E. Hale, in his TO-DAY Papers, will discuss in his vivid, dramatic way, what is timely and important in the world's affairs from month to month.

Some highly interesting papers, under the quaint titles of OLD-TIME COOKERY & A SUIT OF HOMESPUN, descriptive of early days and ways, have been written and illustrated at one of the oldest New England homesteads.

Miss Harris has prepared a most charming set of

WILD FLOWER PAPERS,

to be fully illustrated from nature by Miss L. B. Humphrey.

DELIGHTFUL EXTRAVAGANCE!

Last spring the publishers of WIDE AWAKE offered American artists $600, in Three Cash Prizes, for the Three Best Drawings for Frontispieces to the Magazine. These Prize Frontispieces will appear in WIDE AWAKE during 1882. The Cash Award of $300.00, and the cost of engraving (nearly $300.00 more), amounting in total expense to $600.00, make a prize picture, A-MAYING, the most costly frontispiece ever given in a juvenile magazine.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY!

The Subscription Price of WIDE AWAKE is $2.50 per year; and as a special liberality the Publishers have decided to give each new subscriber for 1882, whose name with $2.50, is received before January 1st, the October, November and December numbers of this year free! Address O: LOTHROP & CO., Publishers, Franklin street, Boston.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

Sunday, Oct. 16th, and Monday, the 17th, were observed, by the Church of England, as days of prayer for Sunday Schools. What think our friends, who continually allege that the Church of England has no sympathy with Sunday Schools, of such action?

A PROMINENT Sunday School worker recently delivered an address, under the head of "Plain Work in the Sunday School for Plain People." That is the kind of work upon which every Sunday School, as well as every other agency, must, in the long run, depend. One of the points he emphasized was, that a tobacco using teacher or pastor was a stench in the Sunday School room, and a pernicious example to the young. To all of which we say, Amen and Amen.

TEACHER: You may know and be able clearly to explain the whereabouts of the ark of the covenant, the pot of manna, the tables of stone and the wrecked fragments of Pharaoh's chariots. You may be able to speak eloquently and learnedly of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. May be up in the Jewish dispensation and know, to an inch, the length of the High Priest's robes. May be able to explain creation, and even to draw a diagram of the Garden of Eden, but knowledge of these never will bring your pupils to Christ. Better evidence than all this is supplied by a knowledge of Christ in your own heart; by honesty of purpose, truthfulness of tongue, a pure and godly life.

THE time when it was necessary to warn teachers, superintendents and preachers against being too dignified in their speech to children, is not far in the past, but those who think it needful now to avoid the use of "big words," and to come down to the level of the children, are greatly mistaken; and, in endeavoring to reach the plane of their imagination, liable to do great harm. Possibly the warning may still be needed by some, but the contrary warning is needed by more. There are those who insult their young hearers, and be little their office and themselves by "coming down" to those whom they should endeavor to uplift. The children of to-day do not need "coming down" to. They are not so lacking in intelligence as to make a dialect of silliness, slang and baby talk necessary to their comprehension of a truth. Story telling may have its uses for purposes of illustration, but there is no excuse for puerile jokes whose only result is only too often a laugh in places made sacred to the praise and worship of God, and at the expense of subjects upon which angels would enter with fear and trembling. The average Sunday School scholar is able to look up to his pastor, superintendent or teacher but has contempt for one who condescends to come down to him. He does not come to the Sunday School as to a show or circus. He comes with a fair amount of common sense, with ability to learn, richness of comprehension, and some instructive apprehension of the proprieties of God's day and His house. Upon this level he is willing to meet his elders, and from this level be built up in Christ Jesus unto the statue of the perfect man.

THE half yearly teachers' conference in connection with the Canterbury (New Zealand) Sunday-school Union was held in the town of Christchurch on Thursday, June 19. The Lyttelton Times, of Christchurch, thus reports the meeting: "The proceedings commenced with a social tea-meeting, at which about three hundred persons sat down. After tea the conference was held, the room being filled to excess. The Rev. E. Walker read an interesting paper on the 'Means for the conversion of scholars,' in which he laid down the following principles: '1. A Sunday morning service where there is no morning school. 2. An occasional Sunday afternoon devoted to special prayer and appeals, instead of class work. 3. An arrangement under the Union for securing a large united gathering of children about once a quarter in connection with anniversary services or otherwise. 4. A Canterbury Sunday-School Union children's special service mission, and a regular Sunday evening meeting for street children in connection therewith. Means for nourishing the life and developing the faculties and fruitfully exercising the gifts of young Christians: 1. A scholars' Christian Society in each school. 2. A short teachers' and scholars' or scholars' prayer-meeting at the close of the school every Sunday afternoon. 3. A Scripture mutual instruction class every Sunday afternoon for the elder youths and maidens. Means whose object is simply the promotion of a more general knowledge of God's word: 1. A quarterly or half-yearly public examination of the scholars on a week night, or a scholars' Scripture bee. 2. The use of a catechism with wholly Scripture answers. 3. Sunday afternoon Bible classes for men and women. More general means of promoting the objects of our Sunday-school enterprise:—1. A periodical New Zealand Teachers' Conference, if ever practicable. 2. The celebration of the Sunday-school Centenary, and the formation of an Evangelical Sunday-school Alliance for the World.'" A resolution was adopted requesting the committee of the Sunday-school Union to take in to its consideration the question of the centenary, teachers' institute, children's mission, and teachers' examination, referred to in Mr. Walker's paper.

It is a blessed privilege to have to trust God day by day for the supply of our needs. There is a happiness in walking by faith that is not to be found in walking by sight. Or it would be better, perhaps, to say, that there is a happiness in flying by faith that is not to be found in walking by sight; for Dr. Bushnell has made this distinction in a sermon from the text, "When they stood, they let down their wings." He suggests, that even the cherubim had to yield something when their feet touched the ground at every step; and that so we must all choose, in our Christian life between flying like eagles and walking like cranes. When God had his people in training in the desert, he sent them day by day just manna enough for the day. They were thus brought nearer to him in trustful dependence than they could have been if he had filled great magazines with manna for them to look at and to draw from. That is the way in which God always leads those dearest to him. He gives them no large supply in advance; but he ministers to them day by day as they have need. Let those who are called to use the wings of faith in passing over the space between their daily temporal necessities, rejoice that they do not walk in the mud as they would have to if their supply was always in "sight."

"So runs the law, the law of recompense

That binds our life on earth and heaven in one; Faith cannot live when all is sight and sense.

But faith can live and sing when these are gone."

—[Exchange.]

RULES OF THE MISSIONARY BOARD

The following are the rules which experience has found necessary for the efficient regulation of our missionary work. They should be preserved for reference:

1. In order to receive aid from the Missionary Board of the Diocese towards the establishing of services in a place, and securing a minister, application must be made for it to the Bishop, with whom is the nomination of missionaries.

2. Missions are under the control of the Bishop and the Board of Missions, and no money is appropriated except by vote of the Board of Missions.

3. An indispensable condition to the granting of Missionary aid to a place is that the Church people there shall (1) send to the Bishop its application for help, and its pledge of the amount of a minimum of what it can contribute in monthly payments towards the salary of its Missionary; (2) within three months from the time that a minister commences his labors among them, from an Auxiliary Missionary Society to help in raising funds for Diocesan Missionary purposes, or else see that a Diocesan Missionary collection is taken at least once a quarter by each mission.

4. From each mission the quarterly report, according to blanks furnished, missionary collections, any other canonical collection due during the quarter, and one fourth of the convention assessment must be sent to the Secretary at the expiration of the quarter, and before he can remit the stipend. The collection for the Theological Educational Fund shall be sent by November 30th; that for the Disabled Clergy Fund by February 28th; and that for the Permanent Episcopal Fund by May 31st. All collections shall be sent to the Secretary of the Missionary Board, who will give credit, and distribute to the several Treasurers.

5. It is to be understood that Missionaries, whether they receive their stipends from the Domestic Committee in New York, or from the Diocesan Board in St. Louis, are alike subject to the rules of this Board, and all must alike make regular reports to this Board, according to blanks furnished.

6. The regular offertory shall be established as early as practicable, not only as the easiest way of raising money, and of dividing the expenses equitably among the people, but also that the duty and habit of Christian giving may be practically inculcated.

7. In addition to the place or places named as a Mission, the Missionary shall supply such other contiguous place or places with such frequency as may be directed by the Bishop.

8. The Missionary stipend shall, in all cases, be considered as attached to the Mission, and payable to the Missionary only as belonging to it; and the stipend shall, in all cases, be paid to the Missionary directly, and not to the Vestry of any Parish at that Mission; nor shall it be considered as forming a part of any contract between the Vestry and the Missionary.

9. Every Missionary shall be resident within the bonds of the Mission, nor shall the stipend be payable to him until he is thus resident; and absence from his Mission (except for reasons approved by the Bishop, or, in his absence, by the committee), shall involve a forfeiture of the stipend for the period of such absence.

10. The appointment of Missionaries shall continue in force for the year ending August 31st, unless otherwise stated; and the applications and pledge must be renewed, from each place, at the beginning of each year, so long as the Mission expects to receive aid. The committee always retains the power of discontinuing at any time, the appointment of a Mission or a Missionary.

11. The amount of services of a Missionary to which each Missionary shall be entitled, shall be proportioned to the part of salary of said Missionary, which such Mission shall pay, subject to such modification as the Bishop may deem expedient.

12. A Missionary receiving aid from any other Society, may also receive a stipend from this Board, provided a full report of the amount and source of such aid be made to the Bishop, and by him approved, the purpose of this Board being only to sustain Missionaries whose stipend is otherwise deficient.

13. The failure of the Mission to fulfill its stipulation may warrant the Bishop in withdrawing his Missionary, and dissolving the organization.

Habitual Costiveness,

The bane of nearly every American woman. From it usually arises those disorders that so surely undermine their health and strength. Every woman owes it to herself and to her family to use that celebrated medicine, Kidney Wort. It is the sure remedy for constipation, and for all disorders of the kidneys and liver. Try it in liquid or dry form. Equally efficient in either day Budget.

Editor Church News:

There exists in this city an organization, of but a few years' growth, that is one of the mightiest engines for culture, in every direction, that St. Louis has ever known. The Young Men's Christian Association was revived, six years ago, by five young men in this city, and now it numbers eleven hundred members. All the Christian churches are largely represented in its work except our own. These churches have constantly added to their strength and numbers, through co-operation with this body. Our own Church sustains a continued injury in holding aloof from this work, both in losing opportunities for adding to her fold, and in the actual loss of members. There is nothing in the constitution of this organization that can, in any way, compromise the distinctive character of the Church. There is much, in the working of this body that will, in every way, add immense power to the Church. If the experiment were once tried, we would find immediate results in the quickening of Church life as well as religious ardor.

I enclose an article that I hope you will admit to your columns, showing the attitude of our mother Church of England toward this Association.

Very truly, yours,

BENJ. E. REED.

Exeter Hall was for fifty years a great centre of influence for the Evangelical Churchmen of England and throughout the world. The original shareholders, however, were unable to retain possession of the building in consequence of the expenses involved in certain changes required by the civic authorities for the public safety.

Through the munificence of five gentlemen—(four of them Evangelical Churchmen and one Nonconformist)—who subscribed $25,000 each for the purpose, the structure has been saved, and presented to the Young Men's Christian Association. Nearly $100,000 more have been expended for alterations and improvements. At the public meeting to signalize the opening of the building, the platform was crowded with distinguished clergymen of the Church of England, may noble men and others. The chair was taken by Lord Shaftsbury who for many years, has been President of the Association.

He said that he had been accustomed to meetings in Exeter Hall, but he was perfectly overawed by the circumstances and the appearance of this meeting. It was a great and remarkable event in the religious and social history of the country.

The Archbishop of Canterbury moved the first resolution, which expressed deep thankfulness to God for the enlarged sphere of usefulness now presented to the Young Men's Christian Association, gratitude for the great blessing which has attended its efforts throughout the world, and dedicated the building "to the praise and glory of our Lord Jesus Christ."

His grace said that of the many pressing duties he had to perform, he considered this one of the most pressing and important. He commended the spirit by which this Association was pervaded—first because it is a religious spirit, and secondly because it was a comprehensive spirit.

Editor Church News:

The NEWS, though not large, is the most welcome visitor in our family of all the papers that come. St. Paul's Parish is not rich in the blessings and helps which the Church and her service bring. We can seldom have service. We have a good sized, comfortable church and no debt, and land enough on which to build a rectory. If we could only see the way to build a home for a rector, I think that the growth of the Parish would be assured. Rev. E. R. Richardson, of Moberly, gave us service on the 5th Sunday in October, morning and evening. He is capable of doing the Parish great service. His two sermons here attracted much attention and thought, and it is the general desire to hear him again. Many who heard and many who did not enjoy that privilege, but heard about the sermon preached on the evening, are anxious to have him repeat it.

There was a large reception given at the residence of Mr. Peery in honor of Mr. Richardson's visit to us, on the Saturday before, where many made his acquaintance, and consequently a large congregation were brought out next day. I wish we could have him often.

THE LAW OF CORRESPONDENCE.—The Bishop of Missouri requests, "Will persons writing to the Bishop kindly fully pay the postage of their letters?"

Another Bishop is emboldened to add, "Will persons writing on their own business kindly and fully provide for the postage on the answer?"

And again, "Will people to whom letters are sent for their perusal, not keep them but promptly return them?"—[Bishop Gillespie in Church Herald.

"How Are You, My Old Friends?"

Asked a bright looking man. "Oh! I feel miserable. I'm bilious and can't eat, and my back is so lame I can't work." "Why in the world don't you take Kidney Wort? That's what I take when I'm out of sorts, and it always keeps me in perfect tune. My doctor recommends it for all such troubles." Kidney Wort is the sure cure for biliousness and constipation. Don't fail to try it. —[Long Branch News.

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

Our stock in this department is unusually attractive, our assortment of styles and patterns being more extensive and varied than for any preceding season. We extend an invitation to all to call and examine our immense stock and nobby styles.

We will make it to the interest of every one (as we have done heretofore) to trade with us. We will not only give you better made goods but lower prices than you can find in any other store in the country. We shall continue to do as we have done since opening in this city, namely, represent truthfully all goods sold by us, make but one price, mark the price in plain figures on each garment, and should any article bought of us prove unsatisfactory after home inspection, it can be returned at any time within thirty days, and we will exchange it or cheerfully refund the money for the same.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

THE NEWS.

We have never pestered our readers with the recurring statement that very many of them are in arrears to us on account of subscription, and while the several amounts are small, the aggregate is considerable, and the loss of it would occasion much inconvenience. Many papers do this, and we have had troubles which we have thrust on the attention of the public. As a rule however, we have sent the paper to those who have subscribed for it and paid; and then when their time ran out and they took no notice of the bill for the next year, we have had to drop the name. We have lost hundreds and hundreds of dollars by unpaid subscriptions. There is no pecuniary profit to any one in the News. It does its work, and is its own reward. For twelve years it has served the Diocese, and it proposes to keep on.

We cannot afford solicitors' fees, and therefore the paper is likely to drop out of the attention of those who have ceased to subscribe, or of those who have newly come into the Church or the Diocese. It must depend upon Rectors to whom it is a help and to others for aid in increasing its circulation. It does not receive this aid in the degree to which it is entitled. Now that its year is closing and many subscriptions running out, will not the clergyman, and perhaps some faithful woman in the parish, take the matter in hand, make an honest canvass, and send lists and money for the coming year to the Publisher, whose address is given elsewhere. No work done will pay for the labor so well in making the people intelligent and sympathetic concerning the larger interests of the Church.

THE CHANGES IN OUR CANON LAW.

As was intimated last month, the business which took the greater part of the time of the late Convention resulted in giving to the Diocese a new code of Canon law. It was the result of long and painstaking work by the committee, after a wide examination of the laws of most of the Dioceses. The action had with regard to the proposed new Constitution was preliminary, and must receive more formal approval next year to be effectual. The canons passed went into operation immediately, except in so far as they conflict with the old constitution. The new constitution can have consideration afterward; the matter of more immediate importance is the Canon law which we have imposed on ourselves, and which has already gone into effect.

It will be noticed that many matters before governed by Canon are now placed in the constitution, as being permanent in their subject. The most extensive change is that in the trial of a clergyman; but the details of the change are so minute that we would hardly be able to give a clear impression without a reading of the entire Canon. The most marked alteration is the substitution of a fixed ecclesiastical court for a changeable one. The court is made the judge of the competency and relevancy of the testimony, and can adopt its own rules of practice.

The Missionary Board consists now of three clergymen and three laymen, the latter elected by Convention instead of Laymen's Society, and does not now include the Deans of the Missionary Convocations.

The representation in Convention of a Mission is put on the same basis as that of a parish, and others besides wardens may be delegates.

In the organization of new parishes the absolute restriction of five hundred yards within which it cannot be done is relaxed and left to the judgment of the Bishop and Standing Committee acting jointly.

In parish elections the electors and persons chosen as vestrymen are restricted to baptized persons of full age, not under discipline, and eligible as delegates to Convention.

The Bishop's power of objecting to a clergyman taking charge of a parish or of becoming assistant minister is restricted, so that when he does so it must be for cause stated in writing, which shall receive the concurrence of the Standing Committee.

There is a new canon touching dormant parishes, and the old 22nd and 25th canons are repealed.

Parish treasurers are directed to pay the amounts over to the treasurers of the respective funds immediately after the collections are made. The diocesan missionary collections are to be made in the months of February, May, August and November.

In the definition of a communicant in the canons the evidence of it is changed from his receiving three times to his receiving the Communion once in each year. The minister is not required to receive any person into his parish as communicants except upon their presenting letters of transfer from their last parish.

The copies of the canons as they are received should be carefully preserved for use; and one copy should be kept safely in the vestry room. As amendments are made from year to year, they should be entered in the interleaves.

THE ALMANACS.

Many of our people do not know the interest and value of our Church Almanac which will be issued now in a few weeks. They think it but a dry calendar of dates and figures. In fact they are very different. They are the year books of the Church's work and progress. Besides all that is usually found in almanacs, there is the clergy and parish lists from which you can see where any clergyman is, and who is the rector of any parish; the officers of the Dioceses and the names and addresses of all the organizations in them and the general church; the summaries of the condition and progress of all Dioceses, the names of the clergy who have died during the year, and much else that is most interesting to any one disposed to follow the Church's work. It is a book that you would turn to many times every week for information.

All this comes at a very slight cost. There is the Church Almanac, of which we have the bound files for forty years. It is published by James Pott, 12 Astor Place, New York. The smaller edition costs 15 cents, and that with the list of parishes 40 cents. The other is Whittaker's Churchman's Almanac, which is in its twenty-eighth year, and costs 25 cents, and is published by T. Whittaker, No. 2 Bible House, New York. Both are excellent and strive to give the latest and most exact facts. For the above amounts they will be sent postpaid to any address. In this city they probably will be kept on sale by the Hildreth Publishing Company on Fourth street, but can certainly be had of the publishers. Will the clergy direct attention to this matter.

GENERAL CHURCH PAPERS.

The News fulfills an important function in the Diocese, but it was never intended to supersede the taking and reading of the more general and larger papers and periodicals of the Church. It has never had any greater ambition than to fill worthily its more modest place in our own diocesan household. It is not fitted for other work. So far as may be our people should take one or more of the Church papers, which abound in intelligence and enforce principles with which they should be familiar. It is something to widen the horizon of knowledge from parochial to diocesan limits, but better yet to know of the work and the thought of the Church in the country and in the world. The amount to be paid is quite within the reach of most families, and the enjoyment and improvement is worth much more than the cost. We give in another column a list of papers and periodicals from which choice could be made. There can in a few minutes be seen in the conversation of a person whether he is abreast of the times, has read the Church papers, is alive to the religious issues of the day, not as given forth by an irresponsible secular press, but by competent knowledge and sympathy, or whether the thought is confined. Take some good general Church paper and read it. You will be a better and more useful person for it.

THE STANDING COMMITTEE.

FRIDAY, Oct. 21st.—The Committee met and organized by the election of the Rev. M. Schuyler, D. D., President, and the Rev. P. G. Robert, Secretary.

The papers of Mr. R. J. Walker were signed, recommending him to be admitted as a candidate for holy orders.

Ordered: That the regular meetings of the Committee be held on the first Friday in each month at 8 P. M., in the vestry room of the Church of the Holy Communion.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—In the recent laying of the corner stone of the Chapel of St. Mary's School, Knoxville, all the Bishops in the State took part, and the formal notice of the act in Latin was deposited in the stone, the Bishops signing themselves thus: Alexander Quinciensis, Gulielmus E. Illinoisiensis, Georgius Springfieldensis.

—Bishop Jagger, of Southern Ohio, is in such a broken down condition of health that, although he has been resting for months, he has now been ordered to Europe peremptorily for an indefinite time. His wife has recently become insane, the original cause of which was sunstroke.

—Rev. Dr. Courtland Whitehead, has been elected Bishop of the Diocese of Pittsburg, to succeed the late Bishop Kerfoot. He has been Rector in Bethlehem, Penn., for a number of years, is probably about 40 years of age, and declined the election last fall to the Missionary Episcopate of Montana. He has accepted the election, and the 25th of January has been designated, as the date of the consecration.

—Bishop Whittingham was little given to joking, but on one occasion he was out on a visitation in the diocese, and another clergyman was with him. Their coats had become dusty from travel, and on arriving at their destination after the clergyman had brushed the Bishop off, the Bishop insisted, in spite of remonstrances in cleaning the other's coat. "No," said the Bishop, "I must insist. At times there is nothing that I enjoy more than in dusting off a presbyter's coat."

—Dean Millsbaugh, of the Cathedral in Omaha, has married Bishop Clarkson's daughter.

—The Churchman calls attention to the bad health of a number of the Bishops, and attributes it to the strain of their work, which it suggests may have been caused by the strain put on their slower pace by the younger clergy. Bishop Quintard has been off duty most of the time for a year or two. Bishop Cox was compelled to go abroad for a respite this summer. Bishop Wilmer was seriously threatened last year, and went over

Bishop Niles is only now back after more than a year's absence, and with only partial relief. Bishop Whipple is never well. Bishop Talbot has had some very disquieting symptoms, giving more than portents of danger. Bishops Smith and Green are largely disqualified from duty by extreme old age. Bishops Lay and Pinkney and Young have all had to withdraw appointments, and take enforced rest. Bishop Kip has just had to submit to an operation for his eyes. And now Bishop Jagger is compelled to give up in early manhood.

—Our friend, Dr. Cross, has made another change in his parish, this time from Michigan to Moravia, N. Y.

—The younger daughter of the Rev. Dr. Jennings, formerly of this diocese, was recently married to the Rev. George Hodges.

—Bishops Elliott and Garrett, of Texas, are in New York, laying siege to the pockets of Churchmen there for help. Bishop Dunlop will not go east until General Convention. He has bought lots in a number of towns in Arizona, where he is now traveling, getting by a judicious use of special gifts to him and by local effort property now worth $3,000, but sure to be worth in a short time $10,000.

Parents,

Who have never used our Poys and Children's Clothing, we invite you to come and examine the extensive lines we display in these goods. If you wish, select half a dozen different styles, Suits or Overcoats, or more if you desire, and let us send them home for you. Then do the same with some other houses. Make a close comparison of all of them; and if you find our's of better fabric and superior make; if they fit better and have a certain elegance in shape which the others lack; and if, withal, you find our's much lower in price, we shall expect to make the sale; but if, after purchasing, you desire, for any reason, to return them, bring them back if not worn, and we will cheerfully refund your money. We desire to give buyers full value for their money, and never wish them to buy an article that is not going to give them entire satisfaction.

The amounts in the first column were due at the last Convention, in September, and are due now, and represent in some cases, the accumulated delinquencies of several years. The amounts in the second column are the assessments laid at the last Convention, one quarter of which is due Oct. 1st; another on Jan. 1st; three-fourths are due April 1st and the whole is due July 1st. The amounts in the third column show what has been paid on the above at and since Convention.

BOOK NOTICES.

The discussion of "The Christian Religion," by Col. Ingersoll and Judge Black, which was commenced in the August number of the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW, is continued in the November issue of that publication. Col. Ingersoll now replies to the strictures of his opponent, and presents much more fully than he has ever before done the grounds for his opposition to Christianity. The article will be received with interest by those who have read the first part of the debate. An early number of the Review will contain an exhaustive reply. In a Symposium on Presidential Inability, four of our most eminent jurists, Judge Thomas M. Cooley, the Hon. Lyman Trumbull, Prof. Theodore W. Dwight, and Gen. B. F. Butler, discuss the several weighty problems, arising out of Article 2 of the Constitution, "England's Hereditary Republic" is the title of a significant paper contributed by the Marquis of Blandford, and Senator George F. Hoar writes a statesmanlike article on "The Appointing Power" of the President of the United States.

THE MEISTERSCHAFT SYSTEM, a "Meisterschaft School of Practical Linguistics for Non residents" has been established in New York by Dr. Rosenthal, the author of the system, the name of which this school bears, and which has awakened so much interest in Europe. His school at Leipsic has had over 50,000 non-readers students in the past two years, including many members of royal families, foreign ministers, lawyers and business men of all classes.

The author has undertaken the introduction of his system in America. The school in New York is under his personal supervision. It is a feature of the school that the student does not need to leave his home, as the lesson each week are sent out in printed form, and all question are asked and answered in writing. In this way the class can be without limit in size, and all members, without leaving their homes, be actually under the tuition of one of the most famous of European linguists. The price of the complete course of instruction, including the printed lesson and answers to questions, is but five dollars. No continuous study is required. It is claimed that ten minutes' study repeated three or four times a day for ten weeks will enable one to converse freely in a foreign language. All communications are to be addressed to the publishers of the system I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

With the November number, Scribner's Monthly takes on its new name. The first feature to attract attention is the frontispiece-portrait of George Eliot, which is published through The Century Magazine by Mrs. Cross's family, and is the one by which they desire that she should be known to posterity, its life-likeness and authenticity being vouched for.

Not inferior, perhaps, is the Salvini interest of the number. It was announced some months ago that the tragedian had written a paper, giving his impression of certain Shakspearian characters. This paper now appears. The subjects are "Hamlet," "Othello," and "Macbeth," and some extent the paper is necessarily a defense of the writer's own splendid impersonations.

The fiction of the number is especially readable. Mrs. Burnett begins her new novel of Washington life, "Through One Administration," and stakes out an interesting field, embracing a Smithsonian professor, an army officer, and an ingenious and charming young heroine. The fun of the number is chiefly in the two short stories: "A Curious Experience," by Mark Twain, and "Eli," by the author of "The Village Convict."

The art features of the number are chiefly a number of exquisite engravings, by Cole and Closson, of Fortuny and Regnault's pictures, of a jaunt though Spain to Algiers; and the "So-called Venus of Melos"—a paper by W. J. Stillman, the art-critic.

The only change in the department is the rechristening of "Culture and Progress," which is now called "Literature." "Topics of the Time" was written by the late Dr. J. G. Holland, who, a few days before his death, had the pleasure of seeing a bound copy of the first number of The Century.

The December number will be in large part a memorial of Dr. Holland and of President Garfield. It will appear Nov. 19th, the day the latter would have been fifty years old, and will contain a portrait of each by Cole, with material of unusual interest regarding both. Mr. Howells's new novel, "A Modern Instance," will begin in this number, and there will be several papers of adventure of a curious character.

THE EVOLUTIONIST AT LARGE. BY GRANT ALLEN. J. Fitzgerald & Co., 143 4th Avenue, New York. Price, 15 cent.

If the pernicious habit of novel reading is ever to be abated, that end will only be attained by bringing within the reach of all classes of readers, and especially the young, works which, while marked by all the graces of style that attract us in works of fiction, at the same time possess the higher merit of being instructive. The charming series of Natural History studies to which Mr. Grant Allen gives the above not very descriptive title, is characterized no less by poetic insight and sympathy with nature than by scientific precision. The book is published as Number 26 of the Humboldt Library of Science, and is for sale by news-dealers.

INGERSOLL ANSWERED.—Colonel Ingersoll has lately had a rather rough handling by Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker, of London. His much delivered lecture—"What shall I Do to be Saved?"—was simply "laid out" by the London divine. Dr. Parker's publishers in New York, I. K. Funk & Co., have republished for 15 cents these discourses as No. 67 of their Standard Series. Thinking it would be but fair to Mr. Ingersoll to allow him to be heard, they wrote asking permission to publish his lecture side by side with those of Dr. Parker. It was supposed that the colonel would be but too happy to avail himself of this opportunity of being heard; but, to their surprise, the colonel's discretion proved to be the "better part of valor," and he replied that he could not think of allowing his address to appear in the same volume with those of Dr. Parker. 27 Dey St., N. Y.

Bishop Littlejohn's "Conciones ad Clerum" is to appear in a third edition with a very full table of contents forming an epitome of each concio, which was lacking in the previous editions. Mr. Whittaker will also bring out Dr. Shelton's Rector of St. Pardolph's, a book which never should have been out of print so long.

AMILIUS: A Tale of the Decian and Valerian persecutions; 60 cts.

EVANUS: A Tale of the Days of Constantine the Great; 60 cts. Both of these little works are by the Rev. A. D. Crane, written by one who is accustomed to deal with and interest youth, for the purposes of instructing the young in the history of earlier Christian days. In this end the facts are veiled in a dress of fiction, not for the purpose of fastening the thoughts upon the fiction, but of helping the mind to enter vividly into the scenes portrayed. They would be entertaining and useful in the home or Sunday School Library. E. & J. B. Young & Co., Cooper Union, New York. MISS BENT; or, At His Footstool, by Mrs. J. Burge Smith. This is the second volume in the Bishop and Nannette series, the other volumes of which have been so deservedly popular in our Sunday School Libraries. The object of this is, that while maintaining the story to teach some lessons about the Litany and the Occasional Prayers and Thanksgivings; $1. T. Whittaker, Bible House, N. Y.

That Acts at the same time on

THE LIVER, THE BOWELS, AND THE KIDNEYS.

WHY ARE WE SICK?

Because we allow these great organs to become clogged or torpid, and poisonous humors are therefore forced into the blood that should be expelled naturally.

KIDNEY-WORT

WILL SURELY CURE

KIDNEY DISEASES,

LIVER COMPLAINTS,

PILES, CONSTIPATION, URINARY DISEASES, FEMALE WEAKNESSES, AND NERVOUS DISORDERS, by causing free action of these organs and restoring their power to throw off disease.

Why suffer Bilious pains and aches? Why tormented with Piles, Constipation? Why frightened over disordered Kidneys? Why endure nervous or sick headaches?

Use KIDNEY-WORT and rejoice in health.

It is put up in Dry Vegetable Form, in tin cans one package of which makes six quarts of medicine. Also in Liquid Form, very concentrated, for those that cannot readily prepare it.

It acts with equal efficiency in either form. GET IT OF YOUR DRUGGIST. PRICE, $1.00

Address or call on DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

IMPORTANT!!!

I want it distinctly understood that I am prepared to offer to the public greater inducements to buy PIANOFORTES FOR HOLIDAY PRESENTS than ever before. Why buy Grand, Square and Upright Pianos and pay manufacturers such enormous profits. Before you decide to purchase a Piano elsewhere, stop! Write at once for valuable information. Tricks of the trade Where the cost comes in; how a $227.50 Piano cost $1000 through agents—Profits of from $500 to $700 made on a single sale. A $1000 Piano sold to one man for $300, to his neighbor, the same Piano precisely, for $500, to another for $650. Is this just? I have one price, no agents, sales are made direct, my catalogue has no fictitious prices—ONE PRICE TO ALL.

"I cheerfully testify to the merits of Dr. Scott's Electric Hair Brush. It cures my headaches within a few minutes. It is an excellent Hair Brush, and worth the price."—
J. H. Chapman, Mayor.

[From
Rev. Dr.
Bridgeman.]

BROOKLYN.

"Gentle—I have never before given a testimonial, but am willing to encourage the use of an honest remedy. I am so pleased with your Hair Brush that I deem it my duty to write you recommending it most cordially. My hair, about a year since, commenced falling out, and I was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Brush a thick growth of hair has grown, its appearance, quite equal to that which I had previous to its falling out. I have tried other remedies, but with no success. After this remarkable result I purchased one for my wife, who has been a great sufferer from headache, and she finds it a prompt and infallible remedy."
A. C. Bridgeman, D.D.

THE WONDER OF THE AGE.

Piano or Organ playing learned in ONE DAY!

MASON'S CHART. This most wonderful invention has been before the public (in its perfected form) but a short time and has sales have been immense, which is the surest test of its unparalleled merit; and orders are received from every country on the globe. It is a new theory, and a decided departure from the old method. Mason's Chart fits over the keys of a Piano or Organ, indicating exactly where and how the hands are to be placed, and the proper keys to strike, changing its position and arrangement to suit the key in which the piece is written that you wish to play. 22 years are perfectly fulfilled in their results. If you can read you can play the Piano or Organ in one day better than some teachers could teach you in three months. If you have no Piano you can learn at some friend's house, and astonish all with your knowledge. DEXTER SMITH, the editor of the Blue Banquet, says: "They should find a place in every house, whether there is a Piano or Organ or not." It gives decided satisfaction in every case. It cannot do otherwise saving as it does, a hundred times its cost, and it is greatly simplified by its unequaled success. MUSIC TEACHERS THEMSELVES UNWITTINGLY ENLIGHTEN IT. The price is one dollar for a complete set (10 forms) and includes payment of postage by us. $7 per doz. to Agents, or the trade by express. SPECIAL OFFER: to every purchaser of MASON'S CHARTS who will write in what paper they saw the advertisement, and will agree to show the charts to their friends we will give as a FREE PRESENT a Music Album with 16 pieces of choice music, instrumental and vocal. Those wishing the Album sent by mail prepaid, and 10 cents extra, otherwise send by express. No one will regret having to play the Piano or Organ, it is the greatest of all accomplishments. The Thirty-fourth year will begin September 7th, 1881.

All branches of an English, Commercial, Scientific and Classical course are thoroughly taught in this Institution. The Faculty are the best of Instructors, who are ever ready and willing to devote their time to the welfare of their pupils, and scholars will find everything here just as advertised. Good business education is imparted, and students are prepared to matriculate in any college in the land. St. Paul's offers superior advantages this year to its students. As empowered in its charter by legislative enactment it will hereafter confer degrees (A. B., A. M.; &c.,) upon those students who have completed the collegiate course. It is the only school in the Diocese that has this authority. The privilege of graduating is thus extended this year to old students of the Institution who wish to return and complete the course. A student can enter any one department and graduate in it alone. And at the close of the year the student who can pass satisfactory examination in all the studies of the year will receive a diploma as a testimonial of scholarship.

The school year consists of two terms of twenty weeks each.

TERMS.
Boarders, including board, tuition, laundry, per term.....$100
Day Scholars, per term..... 20

The Church News.

VOLUME 12, WHOLE NUMBER 144.

ST. LOUIS, DECEMBER 15, 1881.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

EPISCOPAL APPOINTMENTS.

18, Sunday, Palmyra, Consecration.
25, " Hannibal.

An offertory will be made at every service for Diocesan Missions, or some other canonical object; of which offertory the minister is requested to give notice.

THE Bishop will be at home as usual, and glad to see his friends on New Year's Day.

THE Bishop has received contributions from Messrs. E. C. Simmons and Joseph Franklin for the Church at Cape Girardeau.

EVIDENTLY Mr. Barclay, a reference to whose lecture is given in another column, is likely to produce a wide and profound impression by his exposure of Mr. Ingersoll's sophistries.

WE were afraid that we should have had to chronicle this month the removal of the Editor of our Sunday School department, Mr. J. J. Wilkins, to New York, to enter into advantageous business there. But we are gratified to be able to state that he has reconsidered the matter, and that on account of representative to him by his company here, he will remain in St. Louis, and in charge of his department in the NEWS. All will be glad to hear this.

THE Bishop is very glad to draw attention to the mention in other columns of the work of the Church of the Good Samaritan in this city. Mr. Mason is holding cottage services among his people in Carondelet, Rock Springs, Elbeardville and Bellefontaine, and the numbers of influential people who are showing a purpose to unite with his Church is most significant. A help given now will take the work out of its dependent missionary condition and make it strong and self supporting.

There never was a time of as much encouragement as now. The Convention Journal shows the number confirmed in that mission were only two less than those presented in the largest parishes, and in this respect it ranks third in the Diocese. A still larger number are now preparing for the class next year.

CHRISTMAS OFFERTORY.

The Bishop reminds the clergy and the congregations that the offertory in our churches on Christmas day is for the Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen of the Diocese, and for the widows and orphans of clergymen. It is being drawn on now, and will be more and more needed hereafter. It should be liberally remembered, and the amounts sent to the Treasurer, Mr. Joseph Franklin, corner of Sixth and Olive, St. Louis.

THE REV. MR. HOLEMAN.

The sympathy of the many friends of this long-time faithful presbyter of the Diocese will be aroused in learning of the very dangerous sickness under which he is lying at the present time in Kansas City. He was sick while in attendance on Convention, and returning took to his bed at a friend's house, and has been there ever since. It was originally an attack of malarial fever, but has been complicated by a long-seated dyspeptic habit. He is very much reduced, is exceedingly feeble, and his physicians give but slight hopes of his recovery. His wife is with him, and he receives tender nursing care. He suffers intense pain, but his mind is perfectly clear. May our Heavenly Father give him grace to bear his sickness patiently, and if it be in accordance with His will, grant him a longer continuance with us.

UNREASONABLE PEOPLE.

WE come at times on experiences which fit so exactly into apostolic words and terms of expression, that the suggestion comes to us that under other skies they had to deal with people and circumstances very much like those of our own day. St. Paul asks his Thessalonian brethren to pray for him that he may be delivered from unreasonable men. We can imagine the irritations and perplexities which had come to him because of unreasonable people, and how it gradually pressed on him so that at length he breathes forth his sigh for relief in asking his friends that they would pray for his deliverance from such unthinking persons.

We all have felt this, and persons in different positions in life feel it in different ways. The laymen sometimes feels it in some impossible demand of his clergyman, to be perhaps at a service at an hour when he might remember that he must be at his business or—his lodge. The minister feels it in the expectation that he should instantly know when a parishioner is sick, or some new family has moved into town, even though no one has told him of it.

The Bishop has his experience of it in his way, in the desire expressed that he should find employment for all the different people who write to or call on him; that he will act as purchasing agent for all sorts of things and forward them; that he will have a trust fund which shall have a mysterious perennial supply which can on tap let out hundreds of dollars for enterprises, as though the one asked for was the only need in the Diocese; that he will send clergymen who shall have an impossible collection of aptitude on a salary of four or five hundred dollars a year. Telegrams are sent to him implying his presence in the city at a time when the NEWS had months before announced that he would be hundreds of miles away; and to send in a few hours, some one of the supposed large force of unemployed clergymen in the city for a special service on a Sunday, in a distant town; and annoyance expressed because it is not done, when the telegram only reached him days after the service, and the task could not have been done if the dispatch had reached him in time.

And so on.

RESPONSIBILITY.

With a knowledge of all the parishes in the Diocese the Bishop has observed that in very few is there any full and real illustration of the possibilities of glow and life and enjoyment from the responsive idea of our worship. In some, and he names them over to himself, in different parts of the State, with pleasure, there is strength and vivacity; but in most there is a varying condition of meagreness. A system however good when realized may have no beauty, and be ludicrously awkward when its idea is not worked out. A liturgical system, uplifting and grand when it does what it sets out to do, is pitifully weak with only one or two voices timidly sounding through a congregation, and the rest only a smothered murmur, with a variety of standing and sitting and lolling, when all are presumed to be on their feet. Rather than this, for symmetry, it would be better for the minister to do it all. The inadequacy of result, the difference between ideal and fact, is ludicrous and exasperating.

There is in places a difference in different parts of the service. The Psalter is well responded to, the Litany not quite so well; but when the prayers are reached, what between listlessness, and the voice smothered behind the pew back or in the handkerchief and muff, very little of the Amen gets to the clergyman. A dispassionate layman should at times stand on the chancel platform before a congregation which has presumptively good lungs, and then declare whether he could, from any evidence which comes to his senses, say whether the people were or were not deaf mutes. The writer has more than once been absolutely at a loss when to begin his portion of the responsive worship, from not hearing the slightest murmur of what was supposed to be read by the congregation. This was of course in a large city.

Bishop Talbot tells the story of one of his earlier experiences in Nebraska, wherein the dimly lighted school house at night, to which each had brought his own candle, they were beginning the service from the Mission Service Books, after the prayer had been given out. One farmer who was not disposed to be cheated out of his part, called out from the congregation, "Hold on, parson, I have not found the place yet." The Bishop replied with his accustomed bonhomie, "All right, I will wait for you." So each one should claim and use his right to have a part in the common worship.

But this is not possible when persons leave their prayer books and hymnals at home. It is not uncommon to see a large part of a congregation, especially in places where persons have no fixed pews, standing up unable to respond or sing, because they have left their books at home. In these days where the hymnal is used, but not yet owned by all, it is wise for the minister to state the number of the hymn in the hymnal and also in the Prayer Book collection, if it is in that.

In some large churches in New York the custom is being adopted, which is in use in England and Germany, of placing in one or more prominent places in the Church a case which with moveable figures will give the day and the month and the successive numbers of the hymns which will be used in the service, and perhaps also the name of the tune to which it will be sung. This obviates the necessity of announcing the psalter and the number of the hymns. The service would gain in smoothness, if there were not these needless interruptions.

BISHOP'S VISITS.

The notice of the Bishop's visit to a parish is given at least a month, and generally two or three months beforehand, through the CHURCH NEWS, his official organ; which, from its character as his organ and that of the Treasurers, from its long continuance, its cheap price, and its indispensableness if one would keep up with the work of the Diocese, may be supposed to be taken by all the clergy and in all the parishes. Thus announced, the Bishop usually finds that his coming has been long looked for and service announced, persons prepared for confirmation, the clergyman at the train to meet him, and all the arrangements made for his entertainment. Of course he has to encounter, and if possible, adjust differences and problems in many places, but the visiting of the parishes is one of the very pleasantest of his duties, as the warm welcome in many homes is most restful after the knocking about in all sorts of travel.

Lately, however, he met an experience which was different and not so pleasant. He came at the appointed time, after over two months' notice, to a parish which has monthly services from a missionary, but found no one awaiting him. He went to the hotel, as the family where he has for years been entertained lived a mile away, and the day was rainy. He expected, perhaps, the clergyman would come on the next train. No one appeared, and there was no notice of the service in the town papers, and the church at night was unlighted. Evidently no one in the parish took the News, and the services had not been announced. The Bishop took a room and wrote his letters.

The next morning he went on to the next appointment, under the charge of the same clergyman, where similar notice had been given. No one met him, but he went to the store of the principal parishioner, and found that he had not been expected, that the services for the last two months had not been held, and so the notice of the visitation had not been given, that the subscription for the single copy of the News had expired two months before, and that an intimation of the Bishop's coming had been had only when letters from him began to arrive. They had been wondering whether it was not getting to be the time for the visit; at least one person was desirous of confirmation, but she lived two miles in the country. Here again the visitation came to small result. They renewed their subscription to the News. The Bishop was naturally disturbed. The clergyman, it appeared afterward, had somehow overlooked the matter. There are certain reflections which emerge from all this (one certainly that more copies of the News should be taken and the subscription kept up), which may be left to suggest themselves to the mind.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Jefferson City, 2; Warrensburg, 1; Lexington, 3; Ironton, 6; Grace, Kansas City, 3; St. Mary's, Kansas City, 6.

—The Rev. Mr. Henry having gone to Fari-bault, the parishes at Carrolton and Brunswick, and the Mission at Norborne are vacant.

—The Rev. Mr. Crouch, after having charge of the Mission at Liberty for a time, has relinquished the work, and the Mission has desired the Bishop's assistance in securing a minister.

—The Rev. Dr. Foster has ceased his temporary charge of the parish in Jefferson City, and the Church there now desires to have a clergyman who can live among them, and devote his entire time to their interests.

—The parish at Boonville think that it will be impossible for them to undertake the support of a clergymen until next spring, when their parsonage will again be available. In the meantime, here and in Jefferson the faithfulness of a few Christian women serves to keep up vigorously the Sunday School work.

—During his recent visit to Kansas City the Bishop visited the site of the proposed mission church of St. Augustine for the colored people, under the charge of the Rev. Mr. Cummings. St. Augustine was a noted African Bishop, hence the appropriateness of the name. It is in a very eligible location and good neighborhood. After it was bought several hundred dollars was offered for the bargain. The foundation of a brick church which will hold about 300 persons has been laid. The Bishop then with Mr. Cummings met twenty or more of the members of the mission to make their acquaintance, and encourage them. He addressed them on some of the principles of the Church, advised with them about their future work, and had prayers with them. It was a very pleasant interview, as it showed that Mr. Cummings was securing a hold upon some of the best representatives of his people in Kansas City.

—The vestry of Christ Church, St. Louis, has we understand, concluded to call the Rev. Mr. Sylvester, Professor in Griswold College, Davenport, Iowa, and Canon of the Cathedral, as assistant minister. He created a most favorable impression in this city during his visit in St. Louis at the time of our late convention.

—The vestry of the Church in Mexico have concluded, because of the difficulty of warming the church during the winter, and for other reasons, not to endeavor to secure a clergyman until spring. Many of the congregation greatly regret this decision.

Dr. Schuyler has had this fall, in contemplation, a plan for dividing Christ Church Chapel into two stories with a view to making rooms above for ladies' societies, and other forms of parish work. The Chapel is very lofty and a floor thrown across on a level with the present galleries, with clear glass placed in the windows would give a large chapel, well lighted, and conveniences for all kinds of church work. If the Convention meets there next spring it would afford ample facilities for the session, and for committees, and a place too, in which a sandwich might be served and eaten. An architect has estimated that the cost involved will not be more than $700, and the matter is likely to be undertaken.

—The Rev. Octavius Parker has resigned the charge of Christ Church, Springfield, after an energetic and useful incumbency. Debts were all paid, and there was money in the treasury from the beginning to the end. The contributions to Diocesan Missions and St. Luke's Hospital were never so great. It is only another proof that a strong parish with a feeble leader does not accomplish as much as a smaller parish with an efficient leader. It depends upon the leader. People will give and do if they are shown how to, and held up to it.

—The Bishop had occasion recently to stop over in a place where our services had never been established. He called on the one family of church people of whom he knew anything, and asked them whether they knew of any others in the town. They had lived there two years, and said that they knew of none. A Church lady who had recently removed to the town wrote him shortly after, expressing her distress at her deprivation; and the Bishop wrote of the other family, asked her to call on them, and then if possible ascertain whether there were any others of our people there. She did so, and soon reported that there were about twenty of our communicants there. This is only an instance of the number of our people who are scattered about through the Diocese unknown and uncared for.

—The Humane Society of St. Louis requested the attention of the churches on Sunday, 20th ult., to the objects of their society, and offerings for its purposes. Mention was made on the following day of the addresses made by a number of the clergymen, and the liberal collections that were made.

—Grace Church, Jefferson City, through its Sunday School, sent a few months ago an offering for Miss Davison, a Missionary in Jaffa in the Holy Land. She has kindred in Jefferson, and had visited there.

—The Rector of St. George's, St. Louis, put out a pastoral letter to his congregation on the Twenty-second Sunday after Trinity, in which, after commending them for their work in the past which has brought them out of the days of parochial difficulty, he urges liberal giving to Diocesan missions, saying that he thought they should rise to the amount of $1,000 for this object, and also to a personal attendance upon the Ladies' Aid Society. There is some thought of so modifying the Chapel that it may furnish a church parlor and other necessary parish accessories. The Rector also mentions the increased attendance upon the Holy Communion.

—At Mount Calvary Church, St. Louis, the matter of building a new church is being actively canvassed. The purpose is to build on the front part of the lot, leaving the present building facing Jefferson Avenue, for a Chapel and Sunday School room. The present space is all taken, and more seats are needed. The Rector thinks that this need is so immediate and pressing that he cannot allow his parish to be canvassed for anything else.

—Miss Triplett, the Diocesan Secretary of the Woman's Auxilliary of the Board of Missions, has had conferences with the Ladies' Societies of the St. Louis parishes, and has written to the Rectors of all the larger parishes in the other parts of the Diocese. From these last she has heard nothing as yet. Understanding has been reached by her with Miss Emery, the General Secretary in New York, as regards the missionary boxes of the Diocese. The Ladies' Societies of Christ Church and St. George's and the Holy Communion are working on these boxes with their usual zeal and energy.

—At a meeting of the city clergy called by the Bishop at St. Luke's Hospital two or three weeks ago, a statement from the Rev. Mr. Mason was listened to in which he stated that his congregation, out of their poverty had raised and paid in $400, toward their building fund; that in their want of any place of worship they had accepted the invitation of the Rector of Trinity Church for their congregation to meet with them, but that this was an inconvenience to Trinity, and they decided so soon as might be to proceed to building a church of their own. He asked the endorsement of the Bishop and the clergy to his proposition to ask for subscription for his work from the Churchmen of the city.

—Trinity Church, Independence, has carried its brick walls up to the eaves. The design is a very handsome one, prepared by Mr. Sturges of Boston, and the work is being solidly carried on. The nave is 50x26, the chancel 18x18, vestry room 13x13, choir recess on the south side will be about 10x13, porch in front is 10x10. The roof will be very heavy, requiring rafters 22 feet long, and will be open to the top. The church will cost about $4,000. Mr. Dunn collected about $1,000 in the East; about $450 was made by the exchange of lots, there has been and will be raised in the town about $1,500, and the balance will have to be borrowed. The parish is suffering from being so long out of its own place of worship. It is nearly two years since the other church was blown down.

—Our Missouri exchanges come to us with numerous notices of an address delivered by our fellow Churchman, D. Robert Barclay, Esq., of St. Louis, in reply to Ingersoll. Mr. Barclay seems to have been well received by large and attentive audiences, and "from the standpoint of a lawyer," is doing good work and making for himself a name as an efficient worker and an eloquent man.

—It has been found necessary to postpone the consecration of St. Paul's Church, Palmyra, until after Christmas.

—The Bishop has purchased the Springfield Academy property from the Rev. Mr. Parker, for the purpose of having the Church school maintained, for which evidently there is a strong demand. It is large enough to have quite an extensive boarding department.

—We learn that the Rev. Mr. Talbot is shortly to begin his work of canvassing the Diocese for his work in Macon City. He has now 93 pupils, and has 25 boarders in his own family, all that he can take with his present accommodations.

CONVOCATION OF ST. LOUIS.

At the call of the Rev. Frederick B. Scheetz Dean, this Convocation met for organization at Grace Church, Kirkwood, November 30th. This Convocation includes twenty-three counties and is now represented by the Dean and the Reverends Wm. Johnson, R. H. H. Thos. H. Gordon, Oak Hill; G. E. Purucker, DeSoto, and Charles H. Gauthier, Laclede.

Awaiting the arrival of the Reverends Messrs. Johnson and Gordon, those members present held an informal and most enjoyable conference on matters of parochial interest. It was later, and with great regret, learned that the two last named gentlemen were by sickness compelled to be absent.

At 8 p. m., divine services were held at Grace Church, the Rev. Mr. Purucker having been appointed to supply the place of the Rev. Mr. Johnson, who was to have made the opening address. The text was from St. Luke 17: 26: "As it was in the days of Noah so shall it be also in the days of the Son of Man." The exposition was forcibly put and this awful declaration well driven home.

On Thursday, 10 a. m., the Convocation was called to order, prayer was said and business commenced. The Dean in the chair; Mr. Gauthier was appointed secretary pro tem. The Dean then nominated as his successor for the appointment of the Bishop on Easter next, the Rev. Mr. Johnson; but the well known experience, as a missionary, of the present Dean—his rare administrative abilities, as well as the central location of his parish all tended to carry the day for the present incumbent and he will be nominated to the Bishop or reappointment. The Rev. Thos. H. Gordon was elected secretary and treasurer for the ensuing year, and it was decided to meet, God willing, on the last Wednesday in each quarter, the first meeting to be held at DeSoto, January 25, 1882. (The members present having felt the refreshing of the Holy Spirit do urge upon the absent ones the hope of their ability to be with them at the time and place specified.) The duration of the Convocation shall be not less than two nor more than four days. The hours of service to be under the direction of the resident minister. The expenses of travel, stationery, etc., to be defrayed from collections to be taken up by each member at his respective station once prior to each quarterly meeting of the Convocation.

The following Rules of Order were adopted:—All meetings shall be opened with prayer.

1st. Wednesdays. Meeting of Clergy and Lay delegates at 3 p. m.

2d. Regular evening service with sermon by the minister appointed at previous Convocation.

3d. Thursdays A. M. Morning prayer or litany with an address.

4 h. P. M. Reading of paper by person appointed at previous Convocation.

5th. Night. Missionary meeting, at which addresses from all members of the Convocation will be expected.

Then passed the following resolutions:—That next meeting should be convened at DeSoto; the subject of the paper to be: "The best methods of working a parish," and the Dean was elected to prepare an essay on said subject. The Rev. Thos. H. Gordon was appointed to preach the opening sermon, January 25, 1882. The meeting was then adjourned.

Thursday night. All the members present urged upon the laity the need of an united, untiring effort in the cause of missions; the Holy Communion was administered amid the solemnity and silence of the night, farewells were spoken, and the members of the Convocation separated each to his respective duty, feeling that where two or three are gathered together in His name Christ is indeed in their midst. The abundant hospitality of the Dean and his people cannot be soon forgotten.

KANSAS CITY CONVOCATION.

The Convocation of Kansas City met on Monday, 4th instant, at Grace Church on the occasion of the Bishop's visit to the parishes. There was in attendance, during the session, besides the Bishop, the Rev. Mr. Jardine, Dean, the Rev. Messrs. Mann of Grace Church, Cummings of St. Augustine Dunn of Independence, and Valiant of Liberty besides lay delegates from three parishes and missions. There were present besides the Rev. Dr. Runcie of St. Joseph, Messrs. E. Talbot of Macon, Smith of Cameron, and Crouch and Hahn, of Kansas City; and chaplain Woart and Rev. Messrs. Barry of Leavenworth, Leonard of Atchison, Bennett of Wyandotte. The clerical attendance was thus quite large, and gave increased interest to the occasion.

On Monday afternoon, after service, addresses were made in regard to the missionary work that was doing in the Convocation, and especially in Kansas City. St. Augustine mission to the colored people was particularly mentioned. The foundation of their church is nearly completed on an eligible site, and a large number of intelligent persons are becoming connected with the work. A new mission in the southeastern portion of the city is projected by persons mainly from St. Mary's parish.

A business meeting was afterwards held, when a committee consisting of Rev. Messrs. Jardine, and Dunn, and Henry Morton, Esq. were appointed to prepare an expression of the sympathy of the Convocation for the Rev. Mr. Holeman, lying dangerously sick in this city. On Monday evening the service was in St. Mary's church and the congregation was large. The matter for consideration was, the best way to present the historical claims of the Church. After an introductory statement by the Bishop, the Rev. Mr. Talbot delivered a very strong address, followed by Rev. Mr. Barry, Dr. Runcie and Chaplain Woart. In this and indeed in all the services the attendance increased, the attention of the people were fixed and intense throughout, and the time was fully occupied with an impression that much more would have been said had time allowed.

The members of the Convocation were very agreeably entertained at supper by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ray.

On Tuesday afternoon also, at St. Mary's Church the topic was the proposed measures for enrichment and increased flexibility of the liturgy. The Bishop stated the case as it stood now before the Church, and the Rev. Mr. Leonard made a clearly put opening address, followed by Messrs. Mann, Chaplain Woart, Barry, Bennett and Jardine, and the, at times, warm discussion only closed when it became dark. It was evident that if the commission of the general convention on the subject has in it the representation of as many wants as had the Convocation, their report will arouse much debate.

The closing service of the Convocation was on Tuesday night at Grace Church, and the subject the Revised Version of the New Testament, drew forth a large congregation. After the Bishop's address he called on Chaplain Woart, who was followed by Messrs. Talbot, Bennett, Jardine and Mann in very interesting statements. Dr. Runcie expressed the feeling of the others in an address of appreciation for the hospitality which had been extended. And thus closed a very interesting and useful series of services.

WHEREAS, it has been announced to the Convocation of Kansas City, that one of its members, Rev. F. R. Holeman, is now suffering from serious illness in this city, Therefore, be it, Resolved, that we extend to him our warmest sympathy and express our sincere hopes of his speedy recovery.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 7, 1881.

Editor Church News:

DEAR SIR:—I desire to state that I am well informed as to the work the Rev. C. N. Mason is trying to do for the colored people of this city, in the direction of raising funds for the erection of a church for them. Upon the report of a committee appointed by the Bishop he moved his congregation from the unsuitable building on the corner of Cerre and Sixth streets and found a temporary place of worship in Trinity Church chapel. Here, although occupying only temporary quarters, he has added 73 per cent. to his membership and increased the number under pastoral care by more than 100 per cent. His congregation which is rapidly growing and weekly receiving accessions from the best classes of the colored people, desires a church and are making strenuous exertions to secure one. There is reason to believe that a particularly eligible lot can be obtained, and that with comparatively slight assistance from outsiders a church can be erected, which when completed will be entirely free from debt, and which will be thronged at every service. Those who make subscriptions to the work can be assured that their money will not be wasted in a doubtful experiment or in attempting to bolster up a debt-ridden parish, but will assist in permanently establishing an active, aggressive, self-sustaining and much needed church.

Yours, truly,

NEWTON CRANE.

LAYMEN'S SOCIETY.

Editor Church News:

Before this is read it is supposed that each clergyman in the Diocese will have received circulars from the Laymen's Aid Society, appealing to him for aid in endeavoring to reach every one who will assist by his alms in sustaining and enlarging the missionary work of the Diocese. While this appeal ought to come with force to every clergyman, yet should those actually engaged in missionary work feel that it applies to them with special emphasis. It is their work which is meant; to sustain them in it; to make their way more pleasant and more useful. Nothing draws such large alms from the strong places as the known fact that those they are called on to help are doing the most they can for themselves. And as there are but a few months till convention will again meet, let each one act promptly. The plan of the Laymen's Aid Society is now universally made known. It has received the sanction of the general convention. It is no experiment, but has been for years tried in this Diocese; and with success wherever faithfully worked. But like all other machinery it must be worked, and worked well, to produce its largest results. Its plan is simple; definite pledges, payable at short intervals, and faithfully and promptly collected and forwarded to the treasurer. Where there are not enough in a place to organize an auxiliary society, let the missionary, or some one appointed by him, take the pledges and see to the collection. Let each clergyman as soon as possible, and make it possible soon, to have the service called for by Canon ix. §8. Let it have a fair trial, that if it does not prove satisfactory, it may be abandoned and something better be substituted. F.

WEBSTER GROVES.

Editor Church News:

I come demanding satisfaction. The cause is this: My family and self had been spending the day on Thanksgiving last at the residence of one of those hospitable families whom God hath raised up to care for poor ministers; when on approaching the rectory its windows seemed all ablaze with 150 candle power. One of the noble order of Vestry pretended to arrest me, but proves an Arnold in the camp. I enter the gate and a burly Presbyterian meets me. I am carried into my parlor. The din deafens. More Presbyterians, a "right-smart" sprinkling of Congregationalists, Methodists, Christians and Baptists. The whole Evangelical Alliance seemed pitted against me. The Episcopalians were outnumbered 2 to 1. Besides the assistants appeared all armed with ammunition in plenty. What could a poor deacon do? Now the batteries began to play; pickled tongue, corn beef, peaches and tomatoes, sugar, tea and coffee, preserves with sundry lots of flour and crisp greenbacks. Our poor table used only to frugal johnny cake and purest rain-water, fairly groaned beneath such foul proceedings, such as chickens, turkey and ducks, cake and jellies. There fell into my hands most of the camp-equipment, all the ammunition and a big bundle of loving kindness unmeasurable, and may God bless all such beleaguers. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord and what he layeth out it shall be paid him again."

And now Mr. Editor, I ask you to publish this that the world may know the ways of Webster Groves, and the struggle of,

Very, truly yours,

CHAS. W. GAUTHIER.

GOOD SAMARITAN, ST. LOUIS.

The Church of the Good Samaritan now numbers fifty-eight communicants, with twenty-five other persons under instruction for confirmation, and a total of one hundred and fifty under parochial care.

We have no place of worship, and ask your aid toward building. We have already given out of our poverty $400, which is now in bank. Subscriptions as paid will be placed in bank to await the raising of the required amount.

We do not propose to go in debt. Will you help as God has prospered you?

CASSIUS M. C. MASON,

Deacon in charge.

ALBERT BURGESS,
Warden.

The bishop and clergy of St. Louis commend the Church of the Good Samaritan to the generosity of the Churchmen of St. Louis, in its proposed work of erecting a church building. The mission is prospering under the efforts of the Rev. Cassius M. C. Mason, and there is now a crisis in its history of which it ought to be permitted to avail itself.

C. F. Robertson, Bishop; M. Schuyler, Rector of Christ Church; John Fulton, Rector of St. George's Church; J. P. T. Ingraham, Rector of Grace Church; Geo. C. Betts, Rector of Trinity Church; Benj. E. Reed, Rector of Mt. Calvary Church; J. T. Wright, Rector of St. John's Church; J. Gierlow, City Mission.

The following are among the subscriptions which have been thus far received:

Church of the Good Samaritan, $400; Jas. W. Branch, St. George's Church, $100; John W. Gilkerson, Christ Church, $100; Edwin Harrison, St. George's Church, $100; D. P. Dyer, Holy Communion, $100; Mrs. Ann C. Moore, Christ Church, $100; Mrs. Agnes Kennett, Christ Church, $50; W. P. Pye, Trinity Church, $50; Newton Crane, Christ Church, $50.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Trinity College, Hartford, has recently received $125,000, from a gentleman who had a little time before spent $40,000, to put up a hall there.

—The extent of railway building in Missouri can only be understood by those who are constantly watching it. Almost every point of the State is feeling the growth. The line from Pleasant Hill South, through the western counties of the State pass through a magnificent country, and now extends nearly to Joplin, and is a great feeder to Kansas City. From Fort Scott the road is through to Springfield, and pushing on toward Memphis. From Sedalia the road now extends to Warsaw; from Jefferson a branch is pushing South, and the Booneville road now runs to Versailles. The Iron Mountain has many new feeders, to Crystal City, the St. Joe mines and to Cape Girardeau. On the San Francisco road the Eureka Springs branch is going to be a trunk line down through the Indian Territory, into Texas. In the North, St. Joseph is putting out a good many feeders seeking for trade. The line from Kirksville is pushed West nearly to Albany, and will be a complete line across the State. The short line from Hannibal is pushing through Lincoln county for the St. Charles bridge. Besides these many other roads are in contemplation and progress, and the growth of our towns and the taking up lead has never been equal to what it has been this fall. The growth of Kansas City, St. Joseph, Sedalia, Springfield, Carthage and Nevada is something amazing.

—A Washington letter says: As a commentary upon the fickleness of the public, one should now go to the plain little church on Vermont avenue and note the falling off in the size of the congregation since last spring, when Gen. and Mrs. Garfield were attendants. The small church is now quite large enough for the number who go there to worship God, and not the man who holds the highest office. There is no necessity now to build a larger church, and the subscriptions have long since ceased. Take a look at St. John's church. That time honored old building has not seating capacity for the recent additions to the congregation. The new president attends that church.

—Baroness Burdett Coutts has had to pay for marrying her young husband by giving up her half interest in the bank, the courts having adjudged him a foreigner.

—At the recent Methodist Ecumenical Conference, in London, the influence of the older Wesleyan branches induced the use of the prayer book service for the opening religious exercises. It must have seemed strange to some of the American members.

—The following advertisement which appeared in the London Daily Telegraph, is too good to be lost:

A gentleman (R. C.) of very respectable family, and holding a good business appointment, is anxious to acquire a LOAN for a short time, in order to enable him to settle his mind in religious matters. Kind offers, in strict confidence, to etc. —[Living Church.

—The Trustees of the Andover Theological Seminary require a physical examination of every student, and a regular course of gymnastic exercise is prescribed.

—Two of the larger churches of the country which have been some time without Rectors, have at length secured them, the Rev. E. T. Attvill, of Burlington, Vermont, takes Trinity, Toledo, Ohio, and Rev. S. D. McConnell, of Middletown, Conn., goes to St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, to succeed Dr. Rudder. Calvary and St. George's, New York, are still vacant.

—The brother of Cannon Knox-Little, a clergyman, with his family has just been received into the Roman Church, as have been an ex-curate of Clure and of Bournemouth, both parishes are famous for a certain school of theology. Mrs. Nathan Matthews of the Church of the Advent, Boston, whose husband was the founder of Matthew's Hall, Denver, has become a Roman Catholic.

—It is officially stated that the cost of administering the work of the Domestic Missionary Committee in New York had been brought so low that 96 cents of every dollar received was sent directly to the missionaries. The cost used to be from 12 to 15 per cent. The amount asked for on general mission work each year is $364,250, divided nearly equally between domestic and foreign work.

—The Guardian of New York has consolidated with itself the Baltimore Church News, and the Church Times published at Atlanta, Georgia, and has received quite an accession to its list of subscribers.

—The pew in St. John's Church, Washington, which was occupied by Mr. Madison, and since then by generations of Presidents, has been taken possession of by Mr. Arthur.

—There are now in the General Theological Seminary in New York 84 students, of whom 65 are graduates of colleges, and who represent 25 dioceses.

—The Bishop of Jerusalem has died recently; the nomination to which is alternately with the Queen of England and the Emperor of Germany. The next person to be consecrated Bishop will be nominated by the Emperor.

—The freshmen classes at the different colleges are: 255 at Yale; 250 at Harvard (the largest class ever entered at this institution), 97 at Amherst, 85 at Williams, 70 at Brown.

—Bishop Whipple has in an emergency, licensed two ladies to act as lay-readers, to say the service and read a sermon in connection with the Sunday School.

—Bishop Huntington wonders if it were proposed, for the first time at a half dozen points in the service, that the prescribed order he interrupted, and then for a while some layman or woman should have the free use of the church for a voluntary performance at discretion, on a musical instrument, whether there would not be a hubbub, and the bishop be badgered, and canons be proposed to stop it. He calls the interlude an inter-ludicrousness, and thinks both preludes and inter-ludes are worse than useless.

—In the recent New Hampshire Convention an amendment of the Constitution was passed giving the Bishop a veto over any amendment to that instrument, and requiring a two thirds vote to pass such amendment over his veto. The proposition to restrict the choice of Lay Delegates to communicants was lost by a non-concurrence of orders.

—In the new cathedral at Denver the first seat on either side of the main entrance is set apart and marked with the wand of office for the two war-dens and distinguished visitors. That on the right is for the senior warden, the governor, Secretary of State, and the three judges of the Supreme Court; the one on the left is for the junior warden, the mayor, sheriff, and chief of police.

—Through the Rev. Dr. Rulison, of Cleveland, the Bishop of Michigan has had the pleasure of receiving for the fire sufferers in that State, a cheque for one hundred dollars from Mrs. Garfield, widow of the late President. It was sent with the request that it should be distributed by Christian hands to those in need; by Miss Smiley, if she were still at work in that region under the Bishop, or by the Bishop himself.

—The Rev. H. L. Everest, Rector of the St. James' Church, Batavia, western New York, Bishop Robertson's old parish, has been granted an indefinite leave of absence by reason of ill health. This is, the Living Church says, another instance of a man young in the ministry, undertaking the work of a large Parish before having laid the foundations of success in a smaller field, and breaking down in consequence of overwork.

—A petition is now being circulated, and has received the signatures of some of those accustomed to travel on the New York and New Haven Railroad, requesting the Directors of that road to set apart a rear car on each of the morning trains for the use of those who desire to hold religious services on the train.

—The Standard of the Cross, from an examination of the list of parishes contributing to the general missions of the Church, comes to the conclusion that free churches are those which appear least on such a list; that cathedrals in this list don't appear to advantage, and that many small parish churches do much better; that moreover the churches which have an extreme ritual as a rule, do not appear prominently as giving for missions; and further, that as the plain Johns and Marys and Elizas do better work in the long run than the Gwendolines and Violyans, so it is the St. Paul's, or Grace or Trinity churches, rather than the St. Sacraments and Holy Sepulcher or those of strange medieval names who carry the laboring oar in the work of spreading the gospel.

—The first year of the enlarged Church Review has cost its energetic publisher and editor, the Rev. H. M. Barns, $6,000 more than the receipts. He is fully determined to keep on however, in the same line, and if he is at all fairly sustained, he will make it self-sustaining. He ought to be more largely encouraged however, for the Review is an honor to the Church.

—The Church Congress held in Providence, R. J., at the first of the month was the occasion of presenting some strong, bright papers on living questions in society and the Church. They will be published by Whittaker and should be read by those who desire to keep abreast of the times. A difference between our own and the English Church Congress is the smaller number with us, outside of the prepared writers and speakers, who are ready to take part, and the smaller number of lay speakers with us.

—Bishop Vail is projecting a hospital in Topeka. He and his wife have given seven acres of land worth $3000 to it.

—The convicts in the Ohio penitentiary by denying themselves the use of tobacco, and by the sale of trinkets which they made, have sent $100 to the sufferers from the Michigan fires.

—St. Alban's Church, New York after being long disused, has been sold to the Church of the Epiphany, a parish of an entirely different ecclesiastical tone.

—A very important work is under way, in view of the approaching centennial of the American Church, in the publication in two large quarto volumes of the History of the American Episcopal Church. The work which is very comprehensive is distributed among sixty eminent writers, who are masters of their several subjects.

—A parishoner of St. Paul's Church, Buffalo, N. Y., has made the church home there his residuary legatee on conditions which will be complied with, and which will bring to the Home an estate valued at from $30,000 to $40,000.

—The hard worked Bishop of Western Michigan is rejoicing in his recent entrance upon the occupation of his Episcopal residence. He wisely expresses his objections to the removal of the names of communicants from the parish register during a vacancy in the rectorship. He says that this should only be done by the minister, is too serious a business to be done by any one else, as it implies and should be preceded by warning. Persons may neglect the church, but the Church must think twice before it determines to cut them off from its recognition and care.

—St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, has four endowed beds, and property worth $80,000. Sixteen persons and churches last year gave $300 each for the support of beds. Of the 384 patients treated during the year there were more than twice as many Roman Catholics as Churchmen.

—The fund for the benefit of Mrs. Garfield and her children closed at $357,851.

—The Postivists in France have devised a substitution for the baptism of children. It is called initiation and consists in a dinner, toast, and the tying of a red ribbon about the child's neck.

—A church in Chicago wanted an attractive minister in Boston. The congregation in Boston demurred, and Chicago paid them $5,000 to make it right, and to compensate for their vested right. This is a new application of the principle of tenant right.

—Mr. Richard Graham, who has been very successful in organizing Church of England Temperance societies, and who was in this country last winter and made a number of effective addresses, which led to the organization of a similar movement in the East, has returned to America, having been engaged for a year by the society in New York, to promote temperance work on Church principles throughout the country.

—St. Luke's Hospital, New York, had during the last year 1,665 inmates, of whom on October 1st, 166 remained under care. The resources were taxed to the utmost, and there was a deficit of $11,365.

—At a recent service in St. Luke's Hospital, Chicago, there was presented $3,000, as the endowment of a cot for sewing women.

—Mr. Mudge, who recently died, built, and before his death, saw the completion of a beautiful memorial church in Lynn, Mass., which cost $300,000. He had asked Bishop Huntington, his old pastor in Boston, to preach at the consecration service, as he said he had taught him to give. In his sermon the Bishop said:

"Once, I remember, when he was warden where I ministered, I said to him on a week-day in his counting room, 'I shall come, Mr. Mudge, in a few days, to ask you for some money for one of our ministers.' With the smile and gesture which marked him as finished in grace as any gentleman we have known, he said, 'Very well, I hope I shall be ready for you. If I were to ask my confidential clerk, sitting at the inner desk yonder, the books would tell me how my charity account stands as exactly as any account I have with any firm or factory; but,' he added, 'to tell the truth, I think it best for your purpose that I should not turn to that balance.' On an Easter morning he laid several thousand dollars in the alms basin for a charitable object. Before night he knew that the night before a destructive fire in a distant manufacturing town had swept a vast property belonging to him away. When a friend offered his sympathy he only said with reverent solemnity of manner, 'I thank heaven I did not hear of my loss till the Church service was over.'"

—Two of the three Church papers recently issued in Baltimore have stopped again, one of which is in the hands of a receiver.

—An influential Congregational minister recently wrote to Bishop Bedell the following: "I must give expression to the hope and large faith that I have, that moderate Episcopacy is to prevail. All my sympathies are with it. If the Episcopal Church but knew its strength, and some of the weaknesses that are found connected with it, it could but commend itself to the American people and the world. That time is coming."

—In South Carolina in 1813, after they had a Bishop, the Convention proceeded by ballot to elect a Residueul. The choice fell upon the Bishop, but what if it had not so fallen?

—Fifty three children were registered in Paris last year under the name of Judas Iscariot.

—Missouri is the best Southern corn State, the yield there being 37 bushels to the acre. The following is the yield of the other Southern States: West Virginia 25, Maryland and Kentucky 24, Tennessee 22, Texas 20, Arkansas, 18½. Virginia 17, North Carolina and Mississippi 14, Louisiana 13, Alabama 12¾, Georgia 11, South Carolina 10¾, and Florida 9.

—The scales for weighing gold in the Assay office at New York are so delicate that when brought to a balance with two pieces of paper of equal size in the pans, the mere writing of a name with a lead pencil on one of the pieces of paper will add enough weight to the paper to turn the scales in its favor.

—The Revised New Testament has 384 changes in the Epistle to the Ephesians, which contains only 155 verses.

—An old gentleman in Massachusetts died recently leaving a will in which he directs that each boy and girl who will regularly attend the Sunday School of a Church in the town in which he resided, shall receive $3 50 a year. The money is not to be paid to the children, to be used by them ad libitum, but will be deposited in a savings bank to accumulate; and to be paid to the girls when they are 21 years of age and to the boys when they are 25. This is offering a substantial inducement to young persons to lead them to a place where good influences may be brought to bear upon them. The results of this experiment remain to be seen.

THE CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL ASSOCIATION.

Obviously Sunday Schools are growing in importance, and are looked to more and more to accomplish the education of the young in spiritual things; and to develop all their powers for good. Therefore, any association having for its object the encouragement and improvement of our Sunday Schools, should continually be maintained and nurtured. Its life needs to be quickened, its methods of procedure intelligently and critically examined, and if needs be readjusted to the ever changing requirements of the times, its essential principles remaining unchanged. That of the Sunday School is the only religious instruction the almost countless multitudes of children receive. Fathers and mothers are so engrossed in business and professional duties, so busy in the discharge of the purely secular obligations to society and the household, that spiritual culture of the young is wholly ignored or relegated to the Sunday Schools hence, the great need, their influence should be enlarged, their power increased by making them able successfully to meet the prevailing indifference to religious things, the almost absolute disregard of the authority of the Church, the conspicuous growth of general knowledge, and the increased spirit of enquiry among us. The spirit of the times is such that religious teaching should have a decided mental power, more of strong spiritual force, and intellectual grasp of the truth that effective resistance to attack may be made, and the issues raised by the brilliant peripatetic peddler of paganism successfully be met.

If it would accomplish results worth living for, the Sunday School must rise to the work of to-day, and thus be made on all sides a potential factor in Christian and Church life. This is just where the organization known as the Church Sunday School Association may be of assistance. Its proper work is to set before the schools a high standard of excellence, keep it ever in mind and help them all to reach it. But in order to be thus valuable to the schools it must seek and receive the counsel and views of those known to have large experience; must consider and reconsider plans of work; must show itself to be plastic and elastic as well as firm; capable of receiving and acting upon new ideas; fairly instinct with life infused with enthusiasm; impatient of plans whose only merit is age; full of nineteenth century energy, with powers of expansion and progress, yet rooted and built up in one loving Saviour, and established in the faith once and for all time delivered.

It becomes then an important question how best to revivify the Association and extend its usefulness. It goes without saying that the influence of any Church organization is in exact ratio to the recognition it receives from the parish or parishes. In this day the Sunday Schools is the feature of every well regulated parish—a barometer indicating the exact ebb and flow of parochial life—and any institution whose design is to foster, strengthen and intelligently control the Sunday School, is entitled to a whole-hearted and active support. There is great danger that teachers, and clergy too, think oftentimes exclusively of their own schools, forgetting the many engaged in the same good work, who, with themselves stand continually in need of instruction, sympathy and encouragement. It has been urged that the work of the Association is shadowy, unreal abstract, that its aims are remote, that time and energy fail in any practical way to grasp them, and that its promoters have no proper apprehension of what they would accomplish. If these objections be grounded in fact, the greater the reason for united effort, for there is a duty to the organization that would aid the Sunday School quite as important to be performed as that to the school direct. Teachers meetings we know are not common among us, but when they are regularly held, may they not with profit occasionally be exchanged for the larger circle of the Association, the study of lesson sometimes be arranged by the Association, that reading and discussion of papers, interchange of views and widening of sympathy and knowledge may follow? Was there ever greater need than now for the strength to resist, and advance, which is found only in co operation and the sympathy of numbers." Here as in all else, union is to stand, division to fall, and if in church life every thing outside the parish limits is ignored, that life itself inevitably will suffer, and like its prototype congregationalism become compound and narrow. Our interest in and labor for the association will not in any way conflict with the truest devotion to, and greatest pride in the individual school. In many quarters, places where a true catholicity is preached, but the narrowest congregationalism lived, there is an entire forgetfulness of its claims, its interests are overlooked and its pleadings met with the faithless and empty query, "what's the use?" So true is this and so common that the officers of the Association and the few faithful ones have become wholly discouraged. The work the Association would do is worthy our best and noblest effort. We plead these for a hearty thoughtful loving and sustained recognition in every parish, a recognition that shall have larger place in the Sunday school arrangements of the year, and still better enlist the energies and prayers of clergy and teachers in its behalf. Such recognition will give it new life and strength and whatever enlivens and energizes must extend its usefulness and enlarge its powers.

(The Association and its work will have farther consideration in another number.—ED.)

CHRISTMAS.

"While shepherds watched their flocks by night," the cry of a new born babe broke the stillness of the air, and to Him strong men of the field gave reverent worship, the Magi of the East "precious gifts," the angels of heaven glad and joyous welcome. The month containing "merry Christmas" has come again with all its joy and gifts, its songs and hymns of praise, its gatherings and blessed memories. Midst them all may none forget to recall "the little town of Bethlehem," its fields and skies, the angels glad acclaim, the awe and wonder of the shepherds, and all that then was done for man. Down through all the ages hallowed by the devout observance of saint and martyr, interpreted by poet, priest and king, those scenes have come to us. The "Birth," the "Infant light," the "Star," the manifestation, the "Cross" and the "Throne." are one with the "glory" that "shone" around, and the angelic songs of praise and we understand the "glad tidings," the proclamation of peace as the shepherd did—could—not. During the blessed tide our thoughts all are brought to the babe in the manger, to the "Holy child Jesus," and to the sweet and "child-like temper" He enforced and so devoutly illustrated, and it will be well if we think of and look to the children now here among us, and to those in Paradise as well, for whose salvation He came. He was once a child, let us remind our children and other children of His, and bring them to Him by prayers and holy teachings.

To our friends everywhere, and particularly those of the same "household of faith," to every Sunday school teacher and scholar, to those who love us and to those "who have done or wished us evil," indeed to God's people everywhere, we wish the happiest Christmas they ever have known and may God of His infinite love and mercy keep and bless us every one.

THE MINISTER IN THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

"How frequently should a minister visit the Sunday-school?" I asked a superintendent the other day, "Every Sunday," was the prompt and decisive reply, though afterwards my friend qualified his answer by explaining that ministers who preached three times on the Sunday could scarcely be expected to visit the school with unvarying regularity. But this is not the unanimous opinion of the teachers. There is a Sunday-school in the north of England which resents even the appearance of the minister within its boundaries. At a recent meeting of the teachers it was duly moved and seconded that the minister be not permitted to enter the school, except with the consent of two thirds of the teachers. This is, doubtless, a very exceptional case. Still, neither ministers nor teachers are agreed as to the precise position of the minister in the school, and it may be of some service to discuss, with equal frankness and fairness the place and duties of a minister in the Sunday-school.

It may be assumed as incontrovertible, or at least as sufficiently proved by argument and experience, that the minister ought not to act the part of an autocrat, or to assert the authority of a master in the Sunday school. Some clergymen and paster are accustomed to speak of the school connected with their place of worship as "my Sunday-school." There are instances, I allow, in which the phrase is used in a sense entirely unobjectionable, and these ministers would be the first to admit that superintendent, or teacher, or scholar had the same right as they to refer to "my Sunday school." I venture, nevertheless, to remark that however innocent the meaning attached to the phrase, it ought to be discarded because it may, and occasionally does, signify far more than any minister has a right to claim. There have been ministers of religion—let us hope that the last of them has found his way into the world where the righteous can do no wrong—who have spoken of "my Sunday-school" as the spinner speaks of "my mill," or the merchant of "my office," and who within the Sunday school have swayed the scepter, sometimes of a mild and beneficent despotism, at other times of a despotism neither beneficent nor mild. All this is contrary to the genius of the Christian ministry. . . .

The minister, if he be the president of the Sunday school, should be the trusted counsellor of its officers. A superintendent of a Sunday-school occupies an honorable, but exceedingly responsible post. He has charge of a work which we should not rank as inferior to the work of the preacher. A president, worth the name and worthy of the position, should sympathize with the superintendent in his cares and toils. He cannot, without exposing himself to misunderstanding, and should not, for volunteered advice is never highly valued, thrust his counsel on Sunday-school officials. But he ought to be easily accessible. Superintendent or Secretary should never have reason to fear or doubt whether he will gladly welcome him, and patiently and lovingly talk over any matters concerning school work. Friendly and confidential, unreserved, and earnest intercourse between president and superintendent on all questions affecting the efficiency of school work, should be as common as mutual consultation between pastor and deacons on church matters. For want of this many superintendents mourn the difference of mind which has become alienated from those who should find in them the most trusted of fellow-laborers; and through the absence of this, many ministers feel as though they had neither part nor lot in the direction of Sunday-school work, and consequently do little for the school. A cordial co-operation between the pastor of the church and the superintendent is essential to the peace and success of both school and church.

The minister can render immense service to the Sunday-school by assisting teachers in preparing for class work. Many ministers are already thus engaged, and the good they accomplished is so great that the sermons they preach are not more directly helpful than the instruction they give to the teachers. Nor can we allow that the pastor is excused from this service by inability. A minister who is "apt to teach" lacks an essential qualification for the office of a bishop. The pastor should be ex officio president of the Bible students, explaining difficult texts, unlocking with "the key of knowledge" the door of the treasure-house, and bringing therefrom "things new and old." It is his business to make clear to others the meaning of Holy Writ. For this he was educated at college; and except to him it is given "to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven," and he is "able to teach others also," why is he a minister of the word? A little practice in class work, frequent conversation with individuals on Scripture narratives, doctrines, and precepts, and a resolve to tell all he knows to those who are willing to communicate knowledge, and so to spread it, will make any minister an efficient president of a teachers' class. But the obstacle to this utilizing of a minister's gifts and acquirements is frequently in the teachers. Unless they thirst for knowledge, they will not care to drink of water of life. Too often teachers fail to realize their need of instruction. It is a notorious fact that classes which ministers have held in the interest of the Sunday-school have not been attended by the teachers by whom they were especially needed, that only those have come to learn who least needed to be taught, and that occasionally little interest has been taken in such classes by the officers of the school. If the teachers really desire what help a minister and his books can afford them in the study and preparation of lessons—not otherwise—let them ask the minister for his assistance. I refuse to believe that my brethren will withhold the required help. —[The Rev. C. Williams, in The Church.]

IRONTON.

According to appointment Bishop Robertson, of the diocese of Missouri, preached on November 27th, in St. Paul's Church, Ironton.

The Bishop is a gentleman of fine personal appearance, evidently a fine Biblical scholar, a very impressive and interesting speaker, and evidently perfectly at home in his great work. He is a very earnest Episcopalian.

The very impressive introductory services appropriate to that day, according to the order of the Protestant Episcopal Church, were effectively given. The singing was excellent.

The Bishop chose as his theme of discourse Revelation, 22d chapter and 7th verse, and went squarely into his subject. The discourse was eminently practical. He made a departure from the usual line of modern sermonizing in that his sermon followed the letter and spirit of his text. This is an improvement, for when the text has to follow the sermon the text is apt to be lost.

To give an outline of the sermon would require a reproduction of it; it was so full of valuable suggestions. Every sentence, and in many places every word, became the key note of a new melody of thought. In short, it was preaching; that is, it was the explanation of the word of God for the salvation of man. As the sermon was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, but walked humbly with it, their fellowship was loving all the way through and the profound attention of an intelligent audience showed a good appreciation of the speaker and his subject.

Bishop Robertson is a live working man, a very, valuable factor in the religious interests of Missouri, and worthy of the high place he occupies in that branch of the Church which has produced so many great and good men.—[Iron County Register.]

ANNOYANCE AVOIDED.—Gray hairs are honorable but their premature appearance is annoying. Parker's Hair Balsam prevents the annoyance by promptly restoring the youthful color.

The Reason Why.

The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its cleansing and purifying action on the blood. Where there is gravelly deposit in the urine, or milky, ropy urine from disordered kidneys, it cures without fail. Constipation and piles readily yield to its cathartic and healing power. Put up in dry vegetable form or liquid (very concentrated), either act prompt and sure.—Troy Budget.

BOOK NOTICES.

THE VOTER'S HAND-BOOK, or the National and State Constitution combined. This is one of a series of works to be put out for each of the states, and to contain the Federal and the Separate State Constitutions. It is an excellent idea to popularize the knowledge, which is now too greatly lacking, of the organic law under which we live, and on which we are often required to act and vote. Sherman Spencer, 202 Market street, St. Louis. 50 cents.

LANDHOLDING IN ENGLAND. The Humboldt Library, of which this is No. 27, puts out a monthly part in convenient pamphlet form, of works by distinguished scientists. A year's subscription, $1.50, puts one in possession of quite a volume of well printed works of authority. This is on a subject of delicacy and difficulty which lies at the root of any relief to the agricultural classes. It traces the history of the tenure of land from the earliest days. 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., 143 Fourth Ave., New York.

THE SPECTATOR. We are glad to add this admirable society journal to our exchange list. It can be enterprising, and yet there can take place a low scandal within a thousand miles of it and the prurient details not be given. G. I. Jones & Co., 212 Pine street, St. Louis.

SERMONS TO THE PEOPLE, by Canon Liddon. These sermons were taken down from the preacher's lips, and have been corrected by an American editor. They were mainly preached in St. Paul's Cathedral. They all have that great body, and loftiness of purpose, and intense glow of conviction, which mark the utterances of the great preacher of the English Church. They make us see, again, what the possibilities of a sermon are, and what its great capacity, even in this hurrying age, to restore the reality of lofty purposes and better aims. Preacher and people would be vitalized by assimilating these thoughts. $1.25. E. & J. B. Young & Co., Cooper Union, New York.

HELEN'S BABIES. This charming book of merry household lip, and which led the way for a host of imitators, has been put out in a new edition with an illustrated cover, with portraits of the redoubtable Budge and Toddie. Read it during these Christmas times, and it will make the old heart young and warm again. Paper, 50 cents. T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia.

COMPLETE THEOLOGICAL CATALOGUE with prices and names of publishers. 9 cents in stamps. N. Tibbal & Sons, 37 Park Row, New York.

WIDE AWAKE for December is out with a gay little operetta for the young folks, which they will welcome for Christmas entertainments. It is entitled "Prince Puss-in-Boots," and all the performers represent cats and are clad in the most bewitching of furry costumes. The music given entire. A more dainty and laughprovoking entertainment could not well be desired. The number opens with the best short story of the year, "Rob's Father," with five spirited illustrations. Another beautiful full page engraving accompanies "The Baby's Escape," "How Alice Spent Twenty-Five Dollars" is a good story for everybody. "Hitty's Last School" will be enjoyed by all those interested in the early days of Boston. The Serials, "Polly Cologne," "Sharon," and "Having His Own Way" finish satisfactorily, and leave the reader wishing for three more as good stories. The pretty rhyme of "Wee Willie Winkie" is developed into a piquant ballad and has six beautiful full-page drawings. Another very enjoyable poem is "Criselda In Pound." The readings for the C. Y. F. R. U. are well worth while the attention of young folks everywhere; and it is to be hoped that thousands of our young people will join the Reading Union before the Course for 1882 is completed.

Wide Awake permanently enlarged, is but $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The Editor and proprietor of the North American Review announces that the Review will be hereafter published at No. 30 Lafayette place, and will appear under its own imprint. He states that he has found it impossible to conduct the publication in the spirit of the motto adopted by its founders, making it a forum of independent thought, and extending, at his discretion, the hospitality of its pages to thinkers and scholars of all creeds and forms of belief, and at the same time to maintain relations with a publishing house having extensive school-book and other interests of its own to promote. This change of imprint will involve no alteration whatever in the organization or service of the Review.

LITTELL'S LIVING AGE FOR 1882. This standard periodical has been published for nearly forty year with uninterrupted success. It is a weekly magazine, and gives over three and a quarter thousand well-filled pages of reading matter yearly, forming four large volumes. Its frequent issue and ample space enable it to present, with a freshness and completeness attempted by no other publication, the ablest essays and reviews, the choicest serial and short stories, the most interesting sketches of travel and discovery, the best poetry, and the most valuable biographical, historical, scientific and political information from the entire body of foreign current literature, and from the pens of the ablest writers of the day.

As periodicals become more numerous, this one becomes the more valuable, as it continues to be the most thorough and satisfactory compilation of the best periodical literature of the world. Its importance to American readers is evident; in fact it is well nigh indispensable to those who would keep well informed in the best literature of the day; and hence its continued success.

The subscription price ($8 a year) is cheap for the amount of reading furnished, while the publishers make a still cheaper offer, viz: to send The Living Age and any one of the American $4 monthlies or weeklies, a year, both postpaid, for $10.50; thus furnishing to the subscriber at small cost the cream of both home and foreign literature. The publishers also offer to send to all new subscribers for the year 1882, remitting before Jan. 1st, the weekly numbers of 1881 issued after the receipt of their subscriptions, gratis. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

THE SANITARIAN FOR DECEMBER is of unusual interest. An increase of reading matter of sixteen pages, including an illustrated page of recent sanitary patents, and an index to the whole series of nine volumes, now complete, swell this number to almost twice its ordinary size. It not only looks well for The Sanitarian, but for the readers of this useful magazine for every household, to have their facilities increased for acquiring that kind of knowledge—the best means of preserving the health of our bodies and minds—which, next to godliness, is best calculated for the promotion of both our temporal and eternal welfares. The chief articles in this number are: Influence of Various Articles of Food in Spreading Disease, Sewage Irrigation a Sanitary Success, Distinctive Characteristics of Disease Produced by Eating Pork, Suppression of Incompetent Medical Practitioners and Small-pox, $3. a year. A. N. Bell, New York.

THE CENTURY.—December. The second number of the old Scribner contains appropriately several memorials of its old and only Editor, Dr. Holland, with an excellent likeness. This number affords the first opportunity the magazine has had to make extended mention of the death of President Garfield. A paper on his personal and public qualities is contributed: "The Story of President Garfield's Illness" is told by Dr. D. W. Bliss, which will be as eagerly read for the authenticity it gives to events already reported as occurring as for those which it newly records. There are two striking portraits—one engraved in August, 1880, and the other engraved after the daguerrotype of "Garfield at sixteen." To many readers the most interesting of all this material will be the fac-simile of the President's first writing after his assassination—his name and the words Strangulus pro Republica ("Slaughtered for the Republic"), which Col. Rockwell authorizes The Century to publish.

The Life-Mask of Lincoln and how it was Made," by Leonard W. Volk. Mr. Volk's record of his interviews with Lincoln while taking the life-mask gives characteristic glimpses of the great President. An engraving by T. Johnson of the hitherto unpublished mask (in profile) shows an heroic aspect in features which were generally considered homely.

Mr. W. D. Howells's new novel, which begins in this number, is entitled "A Modern Instance," and is evidently going to deal with marriage in New England. Mrs. Burnett, in her second installment of "Through One Administration," continues to pique curiosity regarding her heroine.

St. Nicholas for December is the finest number of that magazine ever issued; and therefore, probably, it is also the finest number of a children's magazine ever printed. Its ninety odd pages full of fine illustrations make it a delightful Christmas present for a boy or girl. It opens with a superb frontispiece, which figures as one of the illustrations of an article about court-jesters in the olden time. The number contains the opening chapters of two new serial stories:—"Donald and Dorothy," by Mary Mapes Dodge, the editor of the magazine;—and "The Hoosier School-boy," by Edward Eggleston. In it appears, also, the beginning of a series of "Stories from the Northern Myths," and it includes the second installment of "Recollections of a Drummer-boy," in which are narrated some exciting experiences of the author when serving during the civil war—Mrs. Clara Erskine Clement's admirable "Stories of Art and Artists" are continued in a paper upon Raphael, splendidly illustrated with reproductions of his portrait of himself, his Sistine Madonna, and the Madonna della Sedia of the contents relating especially to the holiday season, the most striking are: Some entertaining glimpses of life and manners in the United States "A Hundred Years Ago," the first half of a characteristic "fairy" story,—"The Poor Count's Christmas,"—Washington Gladden's story of what happened Christmas-day, entitled "An Angel in an Ulster"; and the conclusion of "The Magic Pen," an operetta of which the first part was printed in the November number, the pictures, stories, poems, and lively pieces in this beautiful number will, of course, interest the boys and girls. One thing in this number which is most likely to rivet the attention of the young folk is "Deacon Green's Offer" of one hundred brand-new one dollar bills to the one hundred boys and girls who best shall do a certain pleasant piece of work for him.

The following are among the contents of the December number of The Homiletic Monthly: Sermonic:—"The Transient and the Permanent," by Llewellyn D. Bevan, D. D.; "The Training of Moses," by Cannon Farrar; "Where the Money Goes," "The Pulpit a Light and Power," "The Withered Fig-Tree," by Joseph Parker, D. D.; "Hunger-Bitten," by Rev. C. H. Spurgeon; "On the Way to Emmaus," by Canon Liddon; To Teachers—"The Instincts of Childhood," by Rev. W. F. Grafts. There are many valuable hints to preachers and Bible students in this number. Price, single number, 25 cents; per year, $2.50. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Day St., New York.

Don't Get The Chills.

If you are subject to Ague you must be sure to keep your liver, bowels and kidneys in good free condition. When so, you will be safe from all attacks. The remedy to use is kidney-Wort. It is the best preventative of all malarial diseases that you can take. See advertisement in another column.

THE CHURCH NEWS

DECEMBER 15, 1881.

No communications can be inserted, in any current number, which reach the office after the 10th of the month.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

RESOLVED, That the CHURCH NEWS be made the official medium of communication between the Treasurers of the different Diocesan Funds and the Parishes, and that the Treasurers be instructed to except for all payments to the several funds through the NEWS.

RESOLVED, That it be made the duty of the several rectors and missionaries of the Diocese to extend to the utmost of their power the circulation of the Diocesan paper, the CHURCH NEWS.

THE pressure on our columns is so great this month that in order to give proper space to reading matter, we have to enlarge the number to sixteen pages.

Now that defaced silver and nickel pieces of money are only received in trade at a large discount, it is curious how many such pieces find their way into the offertory basin. There is much human nature in the coincidence.

THE great religious daily, starting from a recent sermon of Bishop Ryan, is trying to get up another theological battle in its paper. A picador article, pricking up both sides, and inviting them out into the ring, appeared, evidently under the editor's inspiration, a few days ago. Wonder whether any one will pick up the glove. Mr. Holland is not here now.

If Church books and Sunday School facilities of any kind are wanted, it is better to send direct to New York for them. The postage is no more and it only takes a few days more time. There is no assurance of getting the right thing in St. Louis. Send to James Pott, 12 Astor Place, or to T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, or E. & J. B. Young & Co. Cooper Union, or E. P. Dulton & Co., 731 Broadway.

Now is the time to look after the broken windows and the open seams and cold drafts in the church; to the clogged up and smoky chimnies, to the furnaces and stove which need repairing or new pipe, to the wood pile or coal supply. When it is cold insist that the fires shall be made in ample time, and if you use stoves that they be replenished at some convenient time in the middle of the service. Do not let your church get the name early in the winter of being cold or smoky. If you do, some will stay away until next spring.

THE CHURCH ALMANAC.

We have received promptly our old friend the Church Almanac. It is full and exact in information of great value to all Churchman. With the same number of Bishops there are this year 3,496 clergymen as contrasted with 3,432 last year. Notices are given of 66 clergymen who have died. There have been 136 deacons ordained this year as against 125 last year; 8 clergymen were deposed this year; the net gain seems to have been 64 in clergymen. There are now 295 candidates for Orders against 374 last year. 75 churches were consecrated against 77 last year. Baptisms 42,519 this year against 46,582 last year. There were 23,967 confirmations this year, and 25,632 in 1880. There were 352,590 communicants reported this year against 338,333 last year. The contributions reported are $6,749,043 20, about $20,000 more than last year.

There is an interesting guide of the New York City churches which shows that of the 67 churches in that city below 130th street, more than 50 per cent. are free; in one third there is the Holy Communion every week, and about one fourth have surpliced choirs.

Copies of this edition can be had of James Pott for 15 cents, or of the edition with parish list, which will be out in a week or two, for 40 cents.

CHANGE IN THE PRAYER BOOK.

A change in the Prayer Book, in order to be effected, has to pass our General Convention, be notified to all the Dioceses, and then be duly passed at the next General Convention. In the General Convention of last year a proposal to this effect was passed in the shape of an amendment to the Ratification, as it is called, of the Prayer Book. This is found in the beginning of the book, just before the Preface. The relaxation which it was desired to effect was proposed to be effected in this way as liking to create thus less friction than a number of minute changes which would need otherwise to be made in the rubrics.

The substantial change proposed to be made was in the addition of the following words: "On days other than Sundays, Christmas Day, the Epiphany, Ash Wednesday, Good Friday and Ascension Day, it shall suffice if the minister begins Morning or Evening Prayer at the General Confession or the Lord's Prayer preceded by one or more of the sentences appointed at the beginning of Morning and Evening Prayer, and end after the collect for Grace, or the collect for Aid against Perils, with 2 Cor., xii., 14, using so much of the Lessons appointed, or the Psalter as he shall judge to be for edification. Also that on any day when Morning and Evening Prayers shall have been said, or are to be said, or upon days other than those above mentioned, it shall suffice, when need may require, if a sermon or lecture be preceded by at least the Lord's Prayer and one or more collects from the Prayer Book, provided that no other prayer besides those in the Prayer Book or any portion of the office for Holy Communion shall be said before or after such sermon or lecture."

This proposal should be carefully studied. It is the final result of an effort for relaxation which has been made for many years, and has taken at length this form. This has received its preliminary adoption, and was as required made at our late Convention. No formal action is required to be had in the Diocese. The purpose is to show that the measure will come up for final action at the next General Convention, and for sentiment on the subject to be shaped, so that the choice and opinion of deputies may be affected by it, as they will have to vote on the question.

This proposition must be adopted or rejected in the precise form in which it was first approved. If approved this is likely to be all that will be done on this subject for many years. Precisely what it effects then should be seen now.

If adopted this does not work any change in the law as it stands now, so far as any Sunday service is concerned. Nor does it work any relaxation so far as concerns any of the greater festivals mentioned. It is declared that the offices of Morning Prayer, Litany and Holy Communion may be used in varying order so that none be disused habitually. The relaxation affects evidently those who have daily service, or frequent week day prayer in Lent and other times of the year. What the proposal mainly effects is that for such week day services, except on the greater festivals, the minister may begin with the Lord's Prayer and end with the second collect, using if he chooses, only one Lesson. It is on this proposition substantially and nothing else that the next General Convention will pass. And this must, if adopted, suffice for a long time.

JOURNAL OF CONVENTION.

The Journal of our Diocesan Convention came out shortly after the first of this month. Owing to the insertion of the Constitution and Canons passed upon this year, it is somewhat larger than usual. It is, so far as we can discover, singularly free from typographical errors, which easily occur in the case of so many proper names. It shows the care of the Secretary and his assistants. We have already given a synopsis of the business of the session, and will only refer our readers to the Journal itself, a reading of which is indispensable to any complete knowledge of the many interests which are astir in the Diocese.

We give the footings of the tabular statement of the condition of things. The returns are in many cases most unsatisfactory, but are not likely to be more incomplete this year than last. The adult baptisms this year are 97, last year 151; infant baptisms this year 399, last year 593; confirmations this year 337, last year 404; communicants this year 5,318, last year 5,353; Sunday School teachers this year 463, last year 465; scholars this year 4,061, last year 4,094; marriages this year 199, last year 238; burials this year 309, last year 307. These footings should be thoughtfully studied in connection with the fact that there were more clergymen at work in the Diocese this year than there were last year.

There are reported as having been paid for salaries this year $34,570.30, and last year $32,911.48; for communion alms for the poor this year $1,718.49, last year $1,567.26. The total offerings this year were $105,104.04, last year $187,320.44. It ought however, to be said that an item of $59,000 of this last from St. George's Church should have been in the exhibit of 1879.

The report of the Missionary Host shows that during the year it raised $570 from the Sunday Schools for our home missionary work. The report of the Treasurer of the Diocese shows that during the year $2,500 had to be raised by notes on which $65 had to be paid for discounts, the notes were all paid, but $730 was due the Treasurer. Over $2,650 is due from delinquent parishes, nearly half of which was owing by three St. Louis parishes.

There is $6,529.22 belonging to the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund; and $2,896.13 to the Theological Education Fund, for which however, only $170 was received from the parishes during the year. Of the amount received by the Bishop for general trust purposes throughout the Dioceses $535 seems to have been contributed by the Bishop himself. The report of the Finance Committee gives a resume in several particulars which ought to be noticed. The report of the Permanent Episcopal Fund should be more condensed, so as to be more intelligible. No one cares to know whether it was on the 23d or 24th of May that an amount was received; but if without dates the parishes contributing were given in alphabetical order, and then under general headings of taxes or repairs, etc., the outlays were summed up, the situation could be better seen. Only $170 was contributed to the fund during the year, of which more than one fourth was given by Christ Church, which was the only one which gave more than $10, and some of the larger churches gave nothing.

At the close are given the Constitution and By-laws of the Layman's Missionary Society, the rules of the Missionary Board, and the boundaries of the Convocation.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment of a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

A RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to one of the greatest newspapers of the age—one that secures the best writers in this country and Europe, regardless of expense; has the best and fullest book reviews of any paper in the country; has able articles upon financial subjects; has departments edited by specialists and devoted to Fine Arts, Music, Science, Religious Intelligence, Missions, School and College, News of the Week, Hymn Notes, the Sunday-school, Legal and Sanitary questions, Biblical Research (something that cannot be found in any other newspaper in the United States), Farm and Garden, Insurance, Weekly Market Reports, etc., in fact, a newspaper fully suited to the requirements of every family, containing a fund of information which cannot be had in any other shape, and having a wide circulation all over the country and in Europe. We refer to THE INDEPENDENT, of New York. "The largest, the ablest, and best." See advertisement, in another column, and send a postal card for free specimen copy.

Beatty Organs and Pianos.

We learn that Mayor Beatty, of Washington, New Jersey, is receiving hundreds of orders for his Pianos and Organs for Christmas presents. We advise our readers to order early and avoid the rush. Read his advertisement.

THE annual Christmas Dinner will be given to the children at the Home Thursday, December 29th, at 12 o'clock. The Board of Managers will be pleased to see all the old managers and friends of the Home present. Mrs. T. McCLEAN.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Talbot will by request of the Diocese take a six months leave of absence for his health. He will spend the winter in Florida.

—Bishop Riley of Mexico went to Europe directly after his consecration, and did not return to his jurisdiction for eighteen months, then only at the urgent request of the Bishop, of the Mexican Commission. After being at home less than a year he is going abroad again and has delegated his authority to a Bishop elect in Mexico.

—Rev. Mr. Frothingham began in N. Y. over 20 years ago as an orthodox Unitarian minister. Soon after he became more radical and advanced. But as he inherited from his father the earlier and better traditions of his denominations, he revolted at the results to which he found himself drifting, and two years ago he gave up his ministry and went to Europe, proposing to give himself up hereafter to literature. He has just returned and the statements he has been making are most significant, that, (1) the drift of free thought is unquestionably toward a dead materialism, (2) that free thoughts lead to nothing, and that the the opponents of religion have made no headway, and (3) that revealed religion is stronger to-day than it was twenty years ago. He was moreover much disgusted because he was expected to give aid to any whose ideas of right and wrong differed from those of other people, and his Church became a magnet for queer and not altogether pleasant persons. He has determined to stop denying and await for more light.

—Bishops Reikens and Herzog have attended some meetings held in England for the purpose of showing sympathy with the Old Catholics. At the Communion before receiving they put on their pectoral crosses to show that they engaged in the service in their official character, —Bishop Gillespie has recently deposed from the ministry Rev. Wm. W. Fellows, Presbyter, of Muskegon, and Bishop Doane has deposed Rev. Isaac Newton Dexter, Deacon of Coxackie, New York.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland, delivered in Chicago on the 3d instant, a lecture before the Philosophical Society, a lecture on the Real Presence of Christ in the elements in the Holy Communion, in which he defended it as accordant with the very essence of religion, the nature of God, and the constitution of man. He says that, "what love were, without embodiment or keepsake, what the nation were without ensign, that the Church would be without the Sacramental presence of her Lord." He says however, that it was not his aim to prove that "the words of institution which are attributed to Christ must be taken in their literal sense, or that, when taken in their literal sense, they imply transubstantiation or consubstantiation, or any other theory as to how He is present in the appearance of bread and wine."

—The Rev. Mr. Betts of Trinity was chosen president of the Irish National Convention, in Chicago, a week or so ago. Two hundred Roman Priests who were present arose and shouted for his nomination, to give the lie to the statement that the land league was a scheme to advance Popery.

—The Rev. Mr. Prout of Maryland recently died, and has left $74,000 to various Church objects. For years he toiled in a retired rural parish.

HUNDREDS RESCUED.—Hundreds of men, women and children rescued in every community from beds of sickness and almost death, and made strong by Parker's Ginger Tonic are the best evidences in the world of its sterling worth. —[Post.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

EX-SOLDIERS and their HEIRS should all send for sample copy of that wonderful paper, THE WORLD & SOLDIER published at Washington, D. C. It contains Stories of the War, Camp Life, Scenes from the Battlefield, and a thousand things of interest to our country's defenders. It is the great soldiers' paper. It contains all the Laws and Instructions relating to Pensions and Bounties for soldiers and their heirs. Every ex-soldier should enroll his name under the WORLD & SOLDIER banner at once. Eight pages, forty columns, weekly, $1 a year. Sample free. Address WORLD & SOLDIER, Box 588, Washington, D. C.

MISCELLANY.

—Josh Billings is likely to become a star of the first magnitude. His last scintillation was to some purpose: "I wouldn't give five cents to hear Bob Ingersoll on 'the mistakes of Moses,' but would give $500 to hear Moses on the mistakes of Bob Ingersoll."

—Sidney Smith once rebuked a swearing visitor by saying "just assumed everything and everybody are damned, and proceed with our subject."

—A skeptical hearer once said to a minister: "How do you reconcile the teachings of the Bible with the latest conclusions of science?"

—"I haven't seen this morning's papers," naively replied the minister. "What are the latest conclusions of modern science?"

—One of our contemporaries calls attention to a well-known fact—that when the circus comes to town, or when the theaters are opened, neither have bell to call audience together; yet they come, and no one comes late! Right curious, is it not? And another matter; the great singer Patti is coming in New York, and the price of seats has been fixed at from $5 to $10 in order to listen to her. Difficult as it is to get money for charitable purposes, there will be no trouble in getting money for this purpose. Another curious matter: that the persons who give this live or ten dollars to hear Patti will do it pleasantly and think nothing about it, but the person who gives like amount to charitable purposes will think about it for a week and conclude what a remarkable person he is; how very good; like Mr. Horner who pulled the plum out of his Christmas pie.

THE INDEPENDENT.

The foremost religious newspaper of the United States.—[The Rev. Joseph Cook.]

ESTABLISHED in 1848, as an advocate of anti-slavery and of reforms in religion and politics, The Independent at one became a recognized power throughout the country. Its influence has ever since been constantly growing. As it has fought against slavery and for cheap postage, so it will fight against Mormonism for Civil Service Reform, and for purity in politics, and general uprightness in all things. It employs the best editorial talent and speaks fearlessly on all subjects. It pays for contributed articles and for editorial services more than double the amount paid by any other weekly newspaper.

It publishes more religious discussions than the religious reviews, more poetry and stories than the popular monthlies, and give more information than an annual cyclopaedia. The long cable dispatches recently published from the great Methodist Council in London are a good illustration of what The Independent is constantly doing. A list of the most prominent religious and philosophical writers, poets, and story writers in the country is the list of the contributors of The Independent. Besides the space set aside for these writers and for editorials, there are twenty two distinct departments, edited by twenty two specialists, which included Biblical Research, Sanitary, Legal, Fine Arts, Music, Science, Pebbles, Personal ties, Ministerial Register, Hymn Notes, School and College, Literature, Religious, Intelligence, Missions, Sunday school, News, of the Week, Finance, Commerce, Insurance, Stories, Puzzles, Agriculture. 32 Pages in all.

Littell's Living Age

THE LIVING AGE has been published for nearly forty years, and has met with continuous commendation and success.

A Weekly Magazine, it gives more than THREE AND A QUARTER THOUSAND double-column octavo pages of reading matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a satisfactory completeness attempted by no other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticisms, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature.

It is therefore invaluable to every American reader, as the only satisfactorily fresh and COMPLETE compilation of an indispensable current literature,—indispensable because it embraces the productions of the ABLEST LIVING WRITERS in all branches of Literature, Science, Politics and Art.

"No other periodical can compare with THE LIVING AGE in interest and value. A veritable thesaurus of the best work of the most celebrated writers in literature, science, politics and art."—[Boston Traveller.]

"It supplies a better compendium of current discussion, information and investigation, and gives a greater amount and variety of reading-matter, which it is well worth while to read, than any other publication."—[Boston Journal.]

"It contains not only the best solid literature, but also the best serial stories of the day. Its pages are sufficient to keep any reader abreast with the best printed thoughts of the best of our contemporary writer."—[Episcopal Register, Philadelphia.]

"The ablest essays and reviews of the day are to be found here. We know of no investment of eight dollars in the world of literature that will yield equal returns."—[The Presbyterian, Philadelphia.]

"To praise it is a work of supererogation."—[New York Christian Advocate.]

"It is indispensable in every household where any attempt is made to keep up with the current thought of the day. It is a thorough compilation of what is best in the literature of the day, whether relating to history, biography, fiction, poetry, wit, science, politics, theology, criticism or art."—[Hartford Courant.]

"It being a weekly publication is, comparatively speaking, the cheapest magazine published."—[Commercial Advertiser, Detroit.]

"No reader who makes himself familiar with its contents can lack the means of a sound literary culture."—[New York Tribune.]

"It enables its readers to keep fully abreast of the best thought and literature of civilization."—[Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.]

"The oldest and best."—[Courier Journal, Louisville.]

CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?

Some interesting Letters from the People.
Which should be read by those afflicted.

Dr. Schenck gives the evidence on which he bases his assertion that

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

CLEAR AND EXPLICIT STATEMENTS FROM WELL-KNOWN PERSONS
WHICH SHOULD CONVINCE THE MOST SKEPTICAL.

For other Certificates of Cures send for Dr. Schenck's Book on Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. It gives a full description of these diseases in their various forms, also valuable information in regard to the diet and clothing of the sick; how and when exercise should be taken, &c. This book is the result of many years of experience in the treatment of Lung Diseases, and should be read, not only by the afflicted, but by those who, from hereditary taint or other cause, suppose themselves liable to any affection of the throat or lungs.

From Springfield, Ohio.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, Jan. 29, 1880.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—From a feeling of gratitude and a desire to benefit others, I send you this certificate that all may know of the virtues of your remedies. For over one year my case seemed hopeless: I had night sweats, loss of appetite, a very severe cough, and complete prostration of my whole system. My physician pronounced my disease Consumption. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and all the medicines I took failed to give me any relief. I had fully made up my mind that I was incurable, when an acquaintance recommended your remedies. I had little faith in them, however, having lost all hope; but, in a very short time after commencing their use, I found to my great surprise that I was getting stronger and that my worst symptoms were fast disappearing. I persevered in taking them until I was restored to perfect health. I assure you that language fails to express the gratitude I feel towards you for your skill in preparing so good and great a remedy.

Gratefully Yours,

CATHERINE A. STEWART.

Cured of Consumption after Two Years of Severe Illness!
NEWBURGH, N. Y., March 4, 1879.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—I feel that I am doing good to others by telling you what your medicines have done for me. I was sick with Consumption for over two years, and after trying many remedies and employing the best physicians in this city, without benefit, I was induced to use your medicines. I had hardly taken the first bottle before I felt much better, and after continuing their use for some time was entirely cured. This was over six years ago, and as I have continued to enjoy good health since, feel that my cure is permanent. I am happy to add my testimony with many others to the efficacy of your medicines. I know many others in Newburgh who have been benefited by their use.

MRS. SOPHIA M. LAWSON, No. 59 Ann Street, Newburgh, N. Y.

From Mr. Harley P. Hopkins, of Providence, R. I. He is cured of Consumption by Dr. Schenck's Medicines, after being given up to die by some of the best physicians of the city.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—I have been cured of what three of the best physicians of this city told me was Consumption of the Lungs, by the use of your medicines. I was first attacked with the disease in October, 1830, and although I was from that time continually under the care of a physician, I grew worse and worse, until I was confined to my bed. I can hardly say that I was first attacked with the disease in 1830, for my lungs had been weak many years previous to this, and I would quite often have severe pain in my breast if I took the least cold or exerted myself too much in any way. I grew worse, my cough became very bad; I had night sweats so severe that my bed, through the night would be as wet as though water had been thrown over me. I was continually raising blood and large quantities of offensive matter from my lungs, and at last had all the well-known symptoms of Consumption in its last stages.

At the request of my family, my physician called in two other doctors of this city, and they, after an examination, agreed that my case was hopeless. They informed my wife that I had better be told that I could not live, as my time would be very short for arranging my worldly affairs. They also said that no medicine would be of any use to me. The next day my friend, Mr. H. I. Leith, hearing of my condition, sent me a bottle of your Pulmonic Syrup, thinking it might relieve my cough, and make my expectation easier. I began using it, never even hoping that it would cure me, but finding great relief from its use. When the first bottle was gone I sent and got more, so I continued it until I had used seven or eight bottles. All this time I was in bed and was so weak that I had to be lifted. This was not a difficult thing to do, however, as I only weighed about ninety pounds. As I have said, I commenced the use of the medicine with no thought of its curing me, but after taking the eighth bottle I would sometimes feel a little better, a thing I had not before done for many months. I omitted to mention that after taking four or five bottles of the Pulmonic Syrup, I also began taking the Seaweed Tonic, and I also took some of the Mandrake Pills.

It is needless for me to give you an account of all my feelings during my recovery. Of course it was slow but it was also sure. I gradually gained strength, the character of what I raised from my lungs was changed—not being so offensive—and at last I was able to get up and walk about my room. From this time my recovery was rapid. I gained flesh fast and soon went out doors, and now I am entirely well, a wonder to all my acquaintances who saw me when I was so low.

I weigh one hundred and sixty-two pounds, appetite good, and I can truly say that I never felt better in my life. I consider your medicines as wonderful in their effects. They have saved my life, and I feel so thankful to you that I am anxious that all who are suffering with lung troubles should know how good they are. Of course, I can give a better account of my case in telling of it than in writing, and if any who read this are interested, they are welcome to call on me at my residence.

Yours Truly,

HARLEY P. HOPKINS,

May 19, 1881.

No. 2 Howell St., Providence, R. I.

Mr. Harley P. Hopkins, who writes the foregoing letter to Dr. Schenck, of Philadelphia, is an old resident of Providence. I have known him well for the last fifteen years, and I can assure the public that all he has written in regard to his sickness and recovery is strictly true. He was considered a consumptive in the last stages of the disease, by his physician and friends, and I believe that his recovery is entirely due to the use of Dr. Schenck's medicines.

No. 282 N. Main St., Providence, R. I.

CONSUMPTION PERMANENTLY CURED

Connersville, Ind., January 21st, 1881.—Dr. Schenck: Dear Sir—In 1861 I took a heavy cold, which quickly fastened on my lungs. I became unable to do anything. I was confined to my bed. My case went on from bad to worse, and developed rapidly into consumption. At the time of the draft during the war, the examining physician rejected me as being unfit for service, one of my lungs being nearly gone. I had given myself to die, when John S. Benson, who formerly lived near this city, now living in Indianapolis, recommended me to use Schenck's Remedies, as he had done in his own case and had been cured thereby. I did as he advised me, which proved to be my salvation. I procured some of your "Pulmonic Syrup," "Seaweed Tonic," and "Mandrake Pills." I commenced to use them, and found them to benefit me from the start. I continued to use your medicines faithfully, and in six months' time I was entirely cured, my lungs becoming as strong as ever; and your medicines did the work.

Yours, respectfully SANDFORD CALDWELL.

I wish to add that since that time—20 years ago—I have had no return of my trouble. The cure was a perfect and lasting one.

S. CALDWELL.

I know of the above case and can certify to the truth of the foregoing.

L. RAWLS, Druggist.

FROM AKRON, OHIO--CONSUMPTION CURED!

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 17th, 1881.—Dr. J. H. Schenck: Dear Sir—Having been asked by many in regard to your medicines, and the benefit I had received from them, I have concluded to give you an account of my case. In the Winter of 1873 I was pronounced an incurable consumptive by every physician in this place, as well as several in Cleveland. I had all the symptoms—cough, night sweats, great debility and loss of flesh. I was reduced in weight from 150 pounds to 80 pounds. I had given up all hope of recovery, when I was told by Mr. James Scanlan that he had used your medicines with good effect, and he advised me to give them a trial, although I do not think he believed they would cure me, for I was so sick at this time that no one thought that I would ever get well. I thought, however, that they might give me temporary relief, and with this object I commenced to use your Pulmonic Syrup. I had not taken it two days before I felt great relief, especially in the severity of my cough. I then took the Mandrake Pills and Seaweed Tonic, and in two weeks my appetite came back, and I began to gain strength. I took your medicine for about three months. I was too sick to do any kind of work for 2 years. Your medicines made a perfect cure, and I have been in good health ever since. I do not know that I can say more than this unless it be that I believe your medicines to be good, and that they will do all that you say they will do. Yours, very truly,

J. A. REILLY.

FROM MR. JOHN G. NOTHACKER, OF SHELBY, OHIO.

Dr. J. H. Schenck, Philadelphia: Dear Sir—In May, 1879, I caught a heavy cold, which gradually settled on my lungs, causing great difficulty and pain in breathing. I could not rest at night, being kept awake by coughing. The loss of sleep and appetite at last reduced me very much—from 160 pounds, my usual weight when in health, to 133 pounds. I took the prescriptions of physicians, but they did me no good. One day, while looking over the Cleveland Herald, I noticed that your medicines had cured many cases that were at least as bad as mine, and so concluded to use them. They were rather slow in their action at first, but after I had used them for a couple of weeks, I saw that I was getting better; my appetite improved, the pain and difficulty in breathing was relieved, and after using eight bottles I felt that I was restored to perfect health. I was restored to perfect health. I soon recovered my former weight, and I am satisfied that I owe my recovery entirely to your Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills.

Truly Yours, JOHN G. NOTHACKER,

Feb. 21st, 1881.

With C. H. Asken, Shelby, Richmond Co., Ohio.

FROM MR. ROBERT W. JONES, OF LONDON, OHIO.

Dr. Schenck: Dear Sir—About four years ago I was taken sick with what my physician told me was Consumption of the Lungs. I had a bad cough, and was reduced very much in my weight. At different times I had seven physicians of this place and also one from Bloomsburg, attending me, and although they all thought they could help me, I grew worse very fast under their treatment. I was compelled to give up all business for over two years, and no one believed, nor did I myself believe, that I should ever get well. One day I happened to call at Mr. Auburn Smith's Drug Store, in this place, and picked up one of your pamphlets. In reading the certificates of cures, I found one case so nearly like my own, that I at once concluded to give your medicines a trial. I bought the Seaweed Tonic, Pulmonic Syrup and Mandrake Pills, and began their use according to the printed directions, and I can truly say, that from the first I saw a marked improvement in all my symptoms. This encouraged me to continue their use until I was entirely well. I have had good health since my recovery, and I believe your medicines saved my life. I know of several other persons in this city that have been cured by your remedies.

Yours Truly,

ROBERT W. JONES.

London, Ohio, October 9th, 1880.

Guard the system against MALARIA by using Dr. Schenck's MANDRAKE PILLS.

The Great Vegetable Substitute for Mercury. They will cure Chills and Fever. They will cure Diarrhoea. They will cure obstinate Constipation, leaving the Stomach and Bowels in a healthy condition. They will cure Liver Complaint, that great forerunner of Consumption.

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Do not produce sickness at the stomach, nausea or griping. On the contrary, they are so mild and agreeable in their action that a person suffering with a sick headache, sour stomach, or pain in the bowels, is speedily relieved of these distressing symptoms. They act directly on the liver, the organ which, when in a healthy condition purifies the blood for the whole body.

They are a perfect preparation of that great and well-known remedy, Mandrake or Podophyllin, a remedy that has displaced the use of mercury, as well as many other poisonous drugs, in the practice of every intelligent physician.

Prof. John King, of the College of Medicine, of Cincinnati, says: "In constipation it acts upon the bowels without disposing them to subsequent costiveness. In Chronic Liver Complaint there is not its equal in the whole range of medicines, being vastly more useful than mercurial agents, arousing the liver to healthy action, increasing the flow of bile, and keeping up these actions longer than any other agent with which we are acquainted." (See American Dispensatory, page 720.)

In all cases of Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, where there is great weakness or debility, Dr. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic should be used in connection with these Pills.

DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES:--MANDRAKE PILLS, SEAWEED TONIC, AND PULMONIC SYRUP

Are sold by all Druggists, and full directions for their use are printed on the wrappers of every package.

COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

Has been Continuously Published Over Half a Century.

This is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture. In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, it occupies the FIRST RANK. It has no superior in either of the three chief divisions of FARM CROPS and PROCESSES, HORTICULTURE and FRUIT GROWING, LIVE STOCK and DAIRYING, while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee-keeping, Greenhouse, Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News Stories of the Week. Its Market Reports are unusually complete, and much attention is paid to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important of all questions—When to Buy and When to Sell. It is liberally and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term,

A LIVE AGRICULTURAL NEWSPAPER.
Its Editors, in addition to their own labors, are regularly assisted by an extensive corps of Special Correspondents and Regular Contributors, among whom are included many Leading Agriculturists here and abroad, and by OVER EIGHT HUNDRED Occasional and Voluntary Writers.

A $6.00 REVOLVER FREE TO YOU.

WEIGHT 7½ OUNCES.
THIS CUT IS 2-3 SIZE.

THE BLUE JACKET

is the most elegant Revolver in the world, as well as the most perfect in design and finish. It is made of the very best steel. The barrel and frame is Nickel Silver-plated, with Gold-plated Cylinder, Ivory Stock, and the whole beautifully engraved and enameled, making a beautiful contrast of four different colors. The cut represents only two thirds the actual size, and as it is impossible to show the beautiful contrast of Gold, Silver, Blue and Ivory, it covers but a slight idea of its handsome weapon. It is almost beyond description. It is the first IVORY HANDLE, ENAMELED AND ENGRAVED REVOLVER ever sold for less than $6.00, and is the most remarkable bargain we ever offered in firearms. This Revolver cannot be made today for twice what we are offering it for, and it is also along before we will be able to offer another such bargain. We have 5,000 only; when these are sold, no more can be had except at regular prices. THE BLUE JACKET is as well known as any Revolver in the world, and the new Russian Model No. 100 is the best of the kind, enabling you to hold it firmly and steadily. It has a finely ribbed barrel, positive stop-action holding the cylinder firmly in place, and uses the extension cartridge. With the BLUE JACKET you can shoot a squirrel or partridge from ten to twenty paces. We have no equal. We purchased stock not perfectly satisfied with it. WE WILL REFUND THE MONEY EVERY TIME. Revolvers are not our fourth best, and we wish to give all who read this the benefit, and at the same time let our publication THE HOUSEHOLD QUEST MAGAZINE. $5. The Wonderful Mechanical Piano-ette. $5.

The most marvelous mechanical invention of the age. It will play any tune in a melodious and pleasing manner. Difficult and simple music produced in a masterly style, and it can be played by a child as well as by a grown person and will furnish music for social gatherings of any description, and playing with perfect ease, and any knowledge of music being required in the operation. The most wonderful of all musical inventions is a machine which in a purely mechanical manner produces any kind of music, Waltzes, Polkas, Marches, etc., etc., without any practice or knowledge of music. It is a new and perfect respect far superior to any music-box, for there is no limit whatever to the number of tunes it will play. The perforations in a flexible strip produce the effect. It has just been perfected (the accompanying cut showing it in improved form), and having the latest and best ever obtained by a most conscientious inventor. It has the choicest cases, highly decorated, the notes or bars (the music producers) are metal, on some principle as a tuning fork, which produce clear and most melodious notes, and never get out of tune; the bars are struck by strikers, the same as the wires are in a piano, and they work automatically instead of by the fingers. The strip of paper is run by a which the tune is stamped or perforated, is about the size of a card, and is spring through the perforations in the paper and strike the right note; this is all done automatically, without any assistance from the operator (except turning the roll), and the tune is played perfectly. It would be one of the most appropriate presents to make any one, especially where there is no other musical instrument. Its sound is admirable, and its ease of carrying or capability almost unrivaled. It is selling faster than any musical instrument ever invented. The models are, and every body delighted. The price of this Piano-ette only $5, including a selection of popular tunes. Music, 20 cts. a tune.

SPECIAL TO AGENTS. Wishing an agent in every town, we have concluded to offer sample of Piano-ette with two tunes, to those who will push the sale, for only $4.00 or $5.00. Address, MASSACHUSETTS ORGAN CO., 57 Washington St., Boston, Mass., Sole Agents.

LADIES' SOLID GOLD WATCHES.

Almost every young gentleman prides himself upon carrying a watch of some kind, and gentlemen can with perfect propriety, carry a silver watch, an imitation gold, or a nickel watch, provided it is a good time-keeper. Although ladies have the same pride about carrying a watch, and take the same pleasure in doing so that gentlemen do, still the great majority of ladies do not carry watches. There are two reasons for their not doing so. First it is not considered quite the proper thing for a lady to carry any but a Gold Watch, and second, Gold Watches have heretofore been so high in price that the majority of young ladies could not afford to own one. Realizing this condition of things, we have, after much time spent in experimenting, and at great expense perfected a beautiful Ladies' Watch, which we are enabled to sell at the extremely low price of Twelve Dollars, making it the cheapest Gold Watch in the world, and thus placing it within the reach of almost every young lady in the land. Young gentlemen have desired to make their favorite sister or sweetheart a present of a Watch, (and, by the way, a nice Watch is one of the prettiest and most desirable presents that can be given,) and who have been prevented by the high price of watches from doing so, can now purchase an Elegant Cold Watch, without feeling impoverished a whole year afterward. We make the cases of our New Ladies' Watch of Solid Gold, Elegantly Engraved, and in very truth, they are "Things of Perfect Beauty." They have fine Nickel Movements, and are fully guaranteed for time. Every Watch is put up in beautiful velvet lined Case. Sent by Registered mail, on receipt of $12.00. If you order before Christmas, and send full amount of cash, we will ENgrave YOUR INITIALS FREE OF COST. We send a Double Extra fine Cold Plated Opera or Long Chain with the Watch, valued at $3.00 additional. Send money by Registered mail, P. O. Money Order, or Draft on New York. WORLD MANUFACTURING CO., 122 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK.

MOURNING DEPARTMENT,
Wm. Barr Dry Goods Co.'s Great Central Store.

Aisle No 3, in a Line With the Locust and Olive Street Entrance.

We are showing in this Department the finest and most complete stock of Black Goods ever brought to this city, and as we are determined to reduce our large assortment during this month—previous to stock-taking—purchasers will find our prices from 15 to 25 per cent. less than any other house in St. Louis.

We invite Special Notice to our superb selection of Silk and Wool Brocades, Camel's Hair Goods, Shoodahs, Cordurettes, Indian Cashmeres, Armures, Momie Cloths, Armenia Cloths, &c., &c., together with many other new fabrics which for Fall and Winter wear are perfectly elegant, surpassing anything previously shown this season.

BLACK FRENCH CASHMERES.

We are still offering special inducements to buyers of Black French Cashmeres. Our stock is now unusually large, and our customers will bear us out in the assertion that the average quality, weight and finish have always been better than those of any other establishment in this city, while our prices are always as low as any in the market.

FAMILY MOURNING GOODS.

Just received through Custom House and of stock, full lines of English and French Bombazines, Henrietta Cloths, Crape De Alma, Imperial Serge, All Wool and Silk Wool Armures, Ba althea, Crape Cloths, Canton Cloths French Cords, &c., &c. Particular attention is devoted to this branch of this important Department. The very choicest of goods only kept.

THE ELECTRIC LIGHT at BARR'S.

The introduction this Fall of 40 of the celebrated Brush Electric Lights into our new building is a feature worthy the attention of every citizen of St. Louis.

We now light with these 40 lamps only the basement and 1st and 2nd floors, which will give some idea of the magnificent effect produced.

The lamps are all placed over the fixtures so that the light is thrown right on the goods as they lay before customers on the counters.

Ladies are requested to note the effect of this light upon the colors shown them.

Hereafter it matters not whether it is a dark day or after nightfall colors will appear just as they look in the day, and people will know just what they are buying.

We would call special attention to the effect produced in our basement, which is now one of the best floors we have for showing goods in.

Our new House Furnishing Department has now magnificent quarters and should be patronized by every house-keeper in the city.

Customers can hereafter come to BARR'S at any hour or on any kind of day and feel sure of having first-class daylight to purchase by.

BOYS and CHILDREN'S CLOTHING!

Our assortment of the above goods was never larger or more attractive than at present. We are showing many

BOYS AND CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

Our stock in this department is unusually attractive, our assortment of styles and patterns being more extensive and varied than for any preceding season. We extend an invitation to all to call and examine our immense stock and nobby styles.

We will make it to the interest of every one (as we have done heretofore) to trade with us. We will not only give you better made goods but lower prices than you can find in any other store in the country. We shall continue to do as we have done since opening in this city, namely, represent truthfully all goods sold by us, make but one price, mark the price in plain figures on each garment, and should any article bought of us prove unsatisfactory after home inspection, it can be returned at any time within thirty days, and we will exchange it or cheerfully refund the money for the same.

Has been Continuously Published Over Half a Century.

This is the Leading Journal of American Agriculture. In amount and practical value of contents, in extent and ability of correspondence, in quality of paper and style of publication, it occupies the FIRST RANK. It has no superior in either of the three chief divisions of

FARM CROPS and PROCESSES, HORTICULTURE and FRUIT GROWING, LIVE STOCK and DAIRYING, while it also includes all minor departments of rural interest, such as the Poultry Yard, Entomology, Bee-keeping, Greenhouse, Grapery, Veterinary Replies, Farm Questions and Answers, Fireside Reading, Domestic Economy, and a summary of the News of the Week. Its Market Reports are unusually complete, and much attention is paid to the Prospects of the Crops, as throwing light upon one of the most important When to Buy and When to Sell. It is liberally and is intended to supply, in a continually increasing degree, and in the best sense of the term,

THE ORGANITA!

MUSIC AND MUSICIAN COMBINED; PLAYS ANY TUNE!

THE FINEST INSTRUMENT OF THE KIND IN THE WORLD.

The ORGANITA has 14 notes or reeds, a black walnut case, handsomely finished and decorated, five very powerful bellows, full sized Cabinet Organ reeds, an improved automatic pull-off, and a most ingenious double expression swell, by which the tone is greatly varied. Great effects are obtained from this instrument, owing to the peculiar position of the reeds and construction of expression box. The ORGANITA is almost as loud as a Cabinet Organ—very melodious, and will play dance music loud enough for any medium sized hall. Its attractive shape, simple construction, and the various improvements it possesses, place it at once far in advance of all competitors. Price, in black walnut case, with selection of music, only $8.00. Over 300 tunes now ready. Music 4c. per foot.

SPECIAL TO AGENTS. We have concluded to offer a sample of the ORGANITA to those who will push the sale, for only 5 DOLLARS or, with 25 feet of music, $6.50, with 100 ft. of music, $8. Money refunded if not as recommended.

It is with pleasure that I offer the most perfect musical combination and wonderful musical instrument ever made.

The "Mozart" New Style No. 12,000 which is destined to be the most Popular Organ the world has ever seen. My success in the past having been so unprecedented, I feel warranted in doing better than ever before for my customers, hence this unparalleled offer. I have now the LARGEST FACTORY IN THE WORLD that ships its products direct to the purchaser, avoiding extortionate profits, middlemen and agents, manufacturing my own organs in my own factory, and being sure of selling thousands of this charming style every month. I offer this organ, combining a grander variety of stop work, greater power, more musical effects, and the most elegant exterior, including a first-class stool, book and music, boxed and delivered on board cars here.

YOU CAN TEST IT IN YOUR OWN HOME, free of expense, FOR ONE YEAR.

PLAN OF REEDBOARD.—A caveat for Patent is filed at the Patent Office, to protect this valuable invention. No other manufacturer can build an organ with this Reedboard at any price.

Very Important when you Order. Write your name plain. Letters short as possible. We have no time to read very long letters. Be sure to give Post Office, County, State, Freight Station, on what Railroad, &c.
REMEMBER SATISFACTION GUARANTEED or money promptly refunded after a Year's constant use. Beware! I unhesitatingly advise those who are about to order from other manufacturers or their agents, not to do it. Order only the latest and best of Organs. If you have already ordered, countermand your order. It may not be too late yet. An Organ lasts a lifetime, get only the latest style and best music combined. Remit by Post Office Money Order, Express Pre-paid, Bank Draft, or Registered Letter. Money refunded and freight charges paid if not as represented after a year's constant use. It is a well-known fact that I am the man that had the nerve to reduce the price of Pianos and Organs in the face of untold abuse from the monopolists. The public should remember this and patronize me. REMEMBER, any offer made by other manufacturers, no matter how low I can do better. WEIGH THESE WORDS CAREFULLY. I dare not ship you a poor instrument as it is not possible for me to know who will test it. Agents invariably conceal defects and claim advantages for Organs they sell. My instruments must be good enough to silence maligners and defamers. They invariably prove satisfactory. THOUSANDS ARE NOW IN USE.
IMPORTANT TO THOSE WISHING TO BUY ORGANS.—Since the destruction of my factory by fire, I have rebuilt on a much larger scale than ever before. It now covers nearly four acres within the walls. Capacity two thousand instruments every twenty-six days. By the addition of the very latest labor-saving wood-working machinery, FAST CAPITAL, I am now enabled to deliver for far less money than ever, and I propose to give my patrons this benefit, which no other manufacturer can do for they have no such facilities. Hence, this unparalleled offer for the "MOZART" Cabinet or Parlor Organ. PRICE ONLY $60.00.
POSITIVELY NO DEVIATION IN PRICE.—The price of the "MOZART," ($60.00, which includes Stool, Book, and Music as above), is so very low, I regret to announce that I cannot allow $5. or anything whatever for traveling expenses. ORDER AT ONCE, NOTHING SAVED BY LONG CORRESPONDENCE. REMEMBER! Entire Satisfaction Guaranteed in every instance or money promptly refunded after the "MOZART" has been in constant use a year.
Visitors are always Welcome. Visitors are always welcome at my warehouses, offices and manufactory, no matter whether you desire to purchase or not; come anyway, you are cordially welcome. Free coach with polite attendance meets all trains. ADDRESS OR CALL UPON

DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, New Jersey.

The above stool is securely packed in the same box (making no additional transportation charges or annoyance, with every "MOZART" Organ for which no extra charge is made. Such a stool is retained in music stores all the way from $2.50 to $5.

BOOK AND CHOICE MUSIC
With every "MOZART" Organ, shipped (bear in mind) a very useful Instruction Book, suitable for beginners, containing the elements of music, progressive exercises and studies, to which is added over sixty Polkas, Marches, Galops, etc., including some of the very latest Songs, etc. Also a choice piece of new sheet music, all neatly packed and shipped FREE with the instrument in same box so that when the organ arrives you have everything complete. No extra charge for them or boxing. The piece of music alone, if sold in sheet form at music stores, would be worth from $10 to $15.

SHEET MUSIC
The above roll of choice Sheet Music is sent with every "Mozart" Organ, also a COMPLETE MUSICAL GUIDE, which will enable any person to learn to perform upon the Pianoforte or Cabinet Organ in a very short time. This Guide will be found very useful for new beginners.

The Church News.

VOLUME 12, WHOLE NUMBER 145.

ST. LOUIS, JANUARY 15, 1882.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

16, " night, St. Peter's, "
- May 3, Wednesday, DIOCESAN CONVENTION, Christ, St. Louis.

These are the appointments as far as made. On account of the early meeting of the Convention this year, a number of the confirmations will have to be postponed until after its session. The Bishop invites communications from ministers in the matter of their appointments, and will do what he can to serve them.

KINDLY ACTION.

The following explains itself, and had better be published as it stands:

1122 N 20TH STREET,
ST. LOUIS, January 10, 1882.

My Dear Bishop:

Will you please give the Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Holy Communion, mention in the CHURCH NEWS for the following interest and generous kindness in behalf of our Missionary work at the Advent. They have at no little expense made the church warm and comfortable by weather stripping the windows, (saying that the Bishop's suggestion in last month's NEWS should not be without good results); and also, cheering me up in the way of a valuable missionary box.

Affectionately,

J. N. CHESNUTT.

THERE is always sure to be in any Sunday-school of any size two, three or more of the teachers absent on any one occasion by reason of sickness or other necessary detention. It is a source of great encouragement for those engaged in Sunday school work to see any of the parents or members of the congregation expressing an interest by coming in upon the school from time to time. More than this those at all enabled and inclined to do a good work would serve a useful end if they would offer to act as volunteers in the temporary vacancies. If thus two or three each Sunday would appear and offer to take such care as they could, and give such instruction as they were able to the restless, teacherless classes, which are the despair of the Superintendent, they would render a kind and important office.

THE Bishop knows of two churches in the diocese where they have with great effort just finished their buildings without debt, but have no carpet for their chancels, nor indeed any furniture for them. They look cheerless in consequence. Could any kindly disposed persons give carpets in these cases; from thirty to forty yards for each? New, of course, would be preferable, but otherwise, carpet of quiet, proper pattern, not too much worn. The old carpet of St. George's Church in this city is seen in several of our smaller churches yet.

RECTORS AND MINISTERS.

Inquiries come in frequently asking the meaning of the terms used for the ministers of a parish, and the difference between them. It is well that Church people should understand that they deal with, and have often to speak of.

A Rector can only be a Presbyter, or a deacon who has passed his examination for Priest's orders. He is elected to his office at a meeting of the vestry duly convened, and must receive a two-thirds majority of the Wardens and Vestrymen of the Church. His election is not complete until he has been transferred, and been recognized as in good standing by the ecclesiastical authority of the diocese, and he has the consent of the Bishop for taking charge. Being elected, formal notice is to be given to the Bishop by the vestry of such action. A Rector's connection with the parish is indefinite in regard to time. He is a member of the corporation. The relation can only be terminated by mutual consent, except that if there arises a difference between the minister and congregation which they cannot settle, the canons provide for an appeal to the Bishop, and a board of arbitration, by which the matter may be decided. The matter of salary is one of mutual agreement. If it is so much per annum, it goes on at that rate, like any other contract, unless there is a mutual agreement to change it. Of course the vestry can use any means that they choose to secure the amount, by pew rent, or annual subscriptions, or by the offertory; and it may be paid as agreed monthly or quarterly. These details are in the hands of those who have charge of the temporalities of the parish, the rector simply looking to the fulfillment of their contract with him.

There is sometimes mention made of the position of rector emeritus. This signifies one who, by reason of long residence, retains the honorary title, with perhaps an annuity, but with no other rights. The position of associate rector is not known in our canons, perhaps because the idea of the Church is in favor of one head to a body, and not a divided responsibility.

The assistant minister of a church must be elected by a majority of the vestry; he may be a presbyter or deacon, and must be a clergyman who has been recognized as in good standing and transferred to this diocese, and have received the consent of the Bishop before taking charge. Notice of such election must be given to the Bishop. The official settlement of a rector or assistant minister, as here stated, gives a title to a seat in the convention. All the arrangements as to duties and salary, term of service, right of succession, etc., are matters of arrangement between the rector, assistant minister and vestry.

Sometimes a clergyman is secured by a rector to be his assistant, when the vestry have nothing to do with the matter. Then he holds from the rector, and looks to him and not to the vestry for his salary; and the nature and tenure of his office is arranged between him and the rector. This action is not necessarily certified to the Bishop, although, he has no right to officiate in the diocese for more than six months without being transferred to it as a clergyman in good standing. This tenure of assistant to a rector does not give him a seat in convention.

When a clergyman forms an arrangement with a parish to take charge of it for a limited time, he is generally called the minister of the parish. He, like the rector, presides at all meetings of the vestry, but this gives him no seat in convention. This arrangement is not certified to the Bishop, and the agreement as to salary is between the minister and the vestry of which the Bishop has no official knowledge.

A rector or other ministers may receive a missionary stipend through the Bishop's nomination. This gives the missionary such a standing as confers on him the right of a seat in convention. In addition to the canons under which he lives as rector or assistant minister, he is, as missionary, subject to the rules of the Missionary Board.

This article has given the framework of law on which the ministerial relation is based, but as in life, the skeleton for use and for beauty is not shown but is clothed upon and rounded off with muscle and flesh, while these all the time need for their maintenance and support, the staying up of firm bone below; so in the Church and for our spiritual life the law is needed, but is almost never resorted to or asserted, but so overlaid with the lofty constraints of high motives on the one side and the kindly and loyal appreciation of honest service on the other.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—One by one our churches are having gas introduced into them. This has been the case for some time in the larger towns, like Kansas City, St. Joseph, Hannibal. But more recently it has been put into the churches at Moberly, Springfield and Boonville; and just now we hear of it as introduced in Calvary church, Louisiana.

—The Rev. Mr. Parker, of Springfield, in leaving his parish, generously offered to pay half the expenses of adding an additional room to the new parsonage of the parish, which has just been completed on the church lot. This will make a complete little home for their minister, all paid for, and comfortably furnished by the ladies' society.

—St. Louis, we notice, stands as the forty-first city in the country in the order of those giving for our general Church missions. Small towns like Potsdam, Rye, Newburg, in New York, Pomfret, Stamford and Norwich in Connecticut, &c., precede it on the list.

—If the paying of Convention assessment is any test, Kansas City is not likely, apparently, very soon to be the centre of any new Diocese, which will impose heavier Diocesan burdens.

—Although the consecration of St. Paul's church, Palmyra, was postponed, yet the Bishop visited the parish on the 18th, as promised. The new church had just been presented by Dr. White, Jr., of the congregation with nearly 200 yards of handsome carpeting, of a warm, rich color, and of good pattern, which has greatly added to the beauty of the church. The congregations were large, and at night packed the building, the vestibule being crowded with large numbers who had to stand through the whole Service. There was an interesting confirmation of Mr. R. J. Walker, until recently a Methodist minister, but now a Candidate for Holy Orders, with his family, and others. Six were confirmed.

—The Bishop has requested the Bishop of New York to advance the Rev. Sturges Allen to the Priesthood. Mr. A. is acting as assistant to the Rector of St. George's church, Newburg, N. Y., and will probably be soon transferred to that Diocese.

—At the Service for deaf mutes on the first Sunday of last month, in Christ church chapel, there were present about eighty of the mutes. The minister, the Rev. Mr. Mann, baptized an infant child of deaf mute parents.

—We are very glad to announce that the Rev. W. W. Silvester, recently in parochial charge of the Cathedral in Davenport, Iowa, has accepted the position as Assistant Minister of Christ church in this city. He had been in Davenport for three or four years, and was also Professor there in Griswold College. He will be a most valuable associate of the venerable Rector, Dr. Schuyler, and will enter upon the work of developing the activities of the parish with the aid of experience, and the co-operation of many who will further with enthusiasm all his plans.

—Mr. Wm. Barr, of the Wm. Barr Dry Goods Company of this city, made a Christmas present of $200 to St. Luke's Hospital.

—In St. Charles they have reduced their long-standing debt down to $150, and will have that off next year. Then they will have their handsome property clear. During the long vacancy they have all along kept up vigorously their Sunday-school, and several have been confirmed from it, prepared by their teachers.

—St. Luke's Hospital has received its last coat of plastering, and is almost ready for use, except that it should become thoroughly dry before the sick are removed thither. Several of those who offered to furnish rooms have their furniture all ready, in one case made to order. These are loving tributes in memory of departed friends. In one case the person who furnishes the room proposes to endow it at length.

—The Rev. Mr. Wager has been compelled to resign the charge of Kirksville and the connected mission points, because of the inability of the main place to keep up the pledge which had been made for salary, on account of removals. He has been invited to the charges of Mexico and Montgomery, and has entered upon duty there. He will also resume the school which the late Mr. Allen began with so much promise.

—The Bishop visited Trinity church, Hannibal, on Christmas Day. The parish has for some time past been in a depressed condition. Seven or eight years ago a large pipe organ was purchased, which cost about $2,100. The amount was carried for a while by two gentlemen, but there was made a lien on the property. Five years ago $1,200 was paid, and the debt was taken off the property, and assumed by the members of the vestry then individually. It was expected that the balance would soon be paid. Since this time, however, nothing has been paid on the principal, and the fact of the burden of the debt, although it is an insignificant amount as contrasted with the financial ability of the vestry and congregation, has crippled the work of the last two rectors. It seems almost necessary that it should be removed before another Rector is called. An effort to this end will now shortly be made. With the debt out of the way, the parish would resume its place, and have a strong, healthy life.

—The hour of morning service in Christ church and the Holy Communion in this city has been changed from half past ten to eleven. At St. George's the hour had before been placed at a quarter to eleven, and at Trinity to eleven. But in spite of the changes, those who used to come in late come in late still. Some march in complacently at half past eleven.

—The children of the Afton Mission School, in St. Louis county, met with the Emanuel church children for a Christmas celebration, and the latter gave to the former nearly a hundred Bibles and Testaments, with toys and candies. Nearly $500 has been pledged for the new church project for Afton, under the Rev. Mr. Gauthier's care.

—Mr. George M. Edgerton has put in a new and handsome stained glass chancel window in Mt. Calvary church in this city, and spent, we hear, $1000 for the internal decoration of the church. The parish is in a very healthy condition.

—The Church people in Carthage have on hand now $400 for a new church. They have also two lots in an eligible part of the city, on which they can build. They have been offered $1,700 cash for the lot on which their present church stands, and will not sell for less than $2,000. The Rector was presented with $34 in money, and a fine cooking stove for his use at Christmas, and the pledge for support is much in advance of last year.

—The Sunday-schools of this city had their Christmas festivals on different evenings of Christmas week. They generally consisted of a tree, lighted and well loaded with candies, and bright carols sung by the children, and a march into the Church from the Sunday school room and out again. At the Church of the Holy Communion it was on Christmas night; at Christ and St. George's on Tuesday night; at the latter there was a magic lantern exhibition also; at Trinity and Grace it was on Wednesday night, and at St.

John's and in Trinity Chapel for the Good Samaritan Mission on Thursday night. In all places a large attendance and great enjoyment.

—The debt on Christ Church, St. Joseph, amounts to $4,000, contracted several years ago by the building of their new Church. There has been organized in the parish a debt paying society, which with a membership of 70 has an income now of a little over $50 a month. They hope to get the membership up to 150, and, thus secure an income of from $100 to $125 a month. A person who travels very much through the Diocese and lives in this city says that the average congregation there is larger than any other in the Diocese. It is said however that of the 300 communicants not more than three are worth $5,000, and not more than ten are worth as much as $2,000. There is however a large amount of wealth among the attendants who are not communicants, and persons whose wives are communicants.

—We find the following in the Southern Churchman:

Webster Grove, Mo., —,

I am much pleased with the article on the "Parish Treasurer," in our last, that I cannot but drop you a postal of thanks. This parish has a treasurer just the fac simile of the model man your article describes, only mine is—a woman. This, a parish far from rich and with but few Episcopalians, and money hard to collect,—under men treasurers my predecessors always found their salary in arrears. This lady now takes this thankless office, and if not on the previous day, always on the day due, the stipend is ready; and better, without a hint on my part, the amount has gradually increased.

—Christ Church, Springfield, called the Rev. C. M. Gay of Tennessee to the rectorship of their church, but he, after considering it for some time followed the advice of his Bishop that he should stay in the Diocese where he was born, and he accepted instead a duty which gave him a less salary. In Springfield the opportunity is one of rare promise.

—The Rev. Mr. Wager has with the assistance of his wife and sister-in-law, who are experienced teachers, opened a School, which is almost the resumption of the work begun by the late Rev. Mr. Allen, and which he was successfully conducting at the time of his death.

—It may be known that Grace Church in this city has an amount of land about its building greater than is exempted by law from taxation. On this it has to pay taxes, and this is a burden to a weak parish. A few weeks ago they paid their taxes for 1881, the first time they had been paid for years.

—St. Paul's Church, Palmyra, is to be consecrated on the 17th of this month, and the Bishop has invited the Bishop of Springfield to preach the sermon. It is also expected that Bishop Burgess, who was present at the laying of the foundation stone and made an address, will also be present, and preach at night. A number of clergymen will be present. The ladies of the parish propose to use hospitality on the occasion.

—The new Church in Rolla will probably be ready for occupancy this month. The business has been watched and pushed on by Prof. Wait of the school of Mines with an efficiency most praiseworthy. A more complete building could not be had for the small amount at command. No debts will be incurred. A very handsome stove has been presented by Bridge, Beach & Co., and fine lock by Mr. Cammack of the Simmons Hardware Co., and generous pledges by Messrs. Harrison, Gill and the Simmons Company. They still need $75. Could any one help them?

—The Rev. Mr. Talbot is in the city in the interest of his Academy, and is determined to push the raising of the $20,000 needed for the finishing of the fine large building which he has purchased, and of which we have already given a description. The utmost limit of his present accommodations has been reached.

—The Christmas carols in Christ Church, St. Joseph, both in words and music were the work of Mrs. Runcie. They are reported as being wonderfully taking. One of her carols was sung at the Roman Catholic Cathedral on Christmas day. It was sung with great power and delighted all who heard it. She has a rare gift in this direction.

—The Iowa Churchman speaking of the removal from the Diocese of Canon Silvester, who has come to this city, and another clergyman says that in this Iowa will be deprived of the services of two of its ablest clergymen, whose places it will be hard to fill. For their faithful work in two of our largest cities they deserve our grateful remembrances. They have, besides, our best wishes for their prosperity in their new and honorable posts of duty.

—The Bishop made his first visit to the Mission under the care of the Rev. Dr. Gierlow, the services of which are now held in Laclede Hall, corner of Garrison and Easton Avenues, on the 13th instant, and administered confirmation. Dr. Gierlow holds afternoon services in St. James Church, Ellettsville.

—The Rev. Mr. Gray of Columbia, has tendered his resignation of his parish to take effect on the 30th inst., in order to go to Greeley, Colorado, whither he has been ordered by his physician for the sake of his health. His vestry, on behalf of his people, who are greatly attached to him, have preferred not to accept his resignation, but hold the matter in abeyance for six months, hoping that he can then return. He will be greatly missed in his parish and the diocese, to which he has endeared himself, and we hope that he will be able after a while, in confirmed good health, to come back to us.

—The Rev. Geo. H. Ward, some years ago Rector of Boonville, and since then residing in California, has returned to this Diocese, and taken charge of the Springfield Academy. This, it may be remembered, was the property purchased two years ago by the Rev. Mr. Parker, and thoroughly fitted over, and which has been in the meantime carried on successfully by Messrs. Jackson and Barrington. At the Christmas vacation they resigned the work into the hands of the Bishop to whom the property has passed. He has appointed the Rev. Mr. Ward, who has had large experience in teaching, under the Rev. Dr. Rankine in Baltimore, and the Rev. Dr. Beers in Fond du Lac, and in California. We shall be surprised if it does not develop into a work which will be a strong help to the Church in the Southwestern part of the diocese.

—At a meeting of the Standing Committee on the 6th inst., Mr. Herbert L. Gamble was recommended to the Bishop to be admitted as a candidate for Holy Orders, and Mr. Floyd E. West, candidate, was recommended to be admitted to the Diaconate.

PERSONAL.

—The person whom the President has nominated for Chaplain at West Point, Wm. Postlethwaite, was a Church clergyman, and deposed by the Bishop of New York in 1875, and joined the Cummins movement.

—The Bishop of Rochester, England, has, since the beginning of 1879, in three years, received 20,000 letters, and has written nearly 14,000 with his own hand. In four years he has confirmed nearly 33,000 persons; the females are just double the number of males.

—It is sometimes thought that the size of the head has something to do with a person's mental capacity. The following are the sizes of hats worn by certain eminent Englishmen: Dean Stanley, 6¾; Lord Beaconsfield, 7; the Prince of Wales, 7 full; Dickens, 7½; John Bright, 7½; Lord Russell, 7¼; Macauley, 7¾; Gladstone, 7¾; Thackeray, 7½; Archbishop of York 8 full.

—Dr. Storrs, a distinguished Congregational minister of Brooklyn, recently was presented by his people, at the end of his thirty-fifth year with them, with the sum of $35,000, a thousand dollars for each year of his pastorate.

—The Rev. Mr. Matrau, formerly of this Diocese, now of Owosso, Michigan, and who so successfully accomplished the removal of the church, and the building of a parsonage in Louisiana, has since he has been in Michigan secured the money for the completion of a rectory at the cost of $3,500, and also raised $3,000 for a Church at another point of his work. He leaves solid results behind him both in a spiritual and temporal way, by the simplicity and fervor of his nature.

—The consecration of the Rev. Dr. Whitehead, Bishop-elect of Pittsburg, is fixed for the 25th inst., at Trinity Church, Pittsburg.

—Dr. J. P. Newman was the Methodist court chaplain in Washington in the time of Gen. Grant. Desiring to take a trip around the world he was appointed as inspector of consulates with his wife as secretary, and with good salaries of course. His denomination has not regarded with favor his sensational proclivities, and he was much disgusted because he was not recently elected as a Methodist bishop. Now he has become the pastor of a Congregational Church in New York City, and says that Gen. Grant will go with him, perhaps be president of his board of trustees, and he hopes to get other rich men into the body.

—Two Roman priests of this city drove up to a drinking place in the suburbs, and being quite tipsy fell into dispute with the proprietor about drinks, and much improper conversation ensued. The fence paring was used for giving blows, and one of the priests was seriously shot. They were then suspended from their priestly functions. Afterwards the keeper of the place, advised by his counsel, declared that it was all a mistake, and he was hardly sure that they were there at all. Nevertheless, a priest was shot and has not prosecuted the man who done it.

—The obituary notices of the month will not announce the death of one who was a larger, wiser or more loveable man than Dr. John Cotton Smith of the Church of the Ascension, New York. From one who began on a narrower theological platform, he has gone on enlarging his sympathies and horizon, until for a number of years past he has been one whose voice the Church waited for on any large question. He leaves a wide place vacant.

THE ORPHANS' HOME.

The Orphans' Home had its Christmas tree on Christmas eve, and very generous presents were made for it. Mr. Wm. Barr made this charity as well as St. Luke's the recipient of $200 each, out of the $1,200, which he distributed among St. Louis charities. On Thursday, 29th, took place the annual Christmas dinner. A large number of the friends of the Home, and most of the managers were there. Mr. Henry Shaw, the benefactor of the Home was there and entered with spirit into the life and singing of the children, and noted with pleasure their health and vivacity, and naturalness, and good manners. The Bishop, Drs. Fulton and Ingraham, and Rev. Messrs. Reed and Gauthier also were there. After some kindergarten exercises and singing of Christmas carols, the children went down and ate a wonderfully hearty dinner. It was astonishing where all the food was put away. The Doctor was present, however.

There are now 53 children in the Home, and there were none sick in the Infirmary. After the children were done the managers and others present sat down to a very handsome dinner in the long room, which they greatly enjoyed. An invalid daughter of one of our older clergymen in the interior of the diocese had sent fifteen large cards, on which she had tastefully arranged on one side scores of bright pictures, gathered from everywhere, and on the other stories and verses. This was what a sick daughter of the Church at a distance had done for the love of orphan children whom she had never seen.

Mrs. Edwin Harrison has recently at her own expense put down the walk in front of the Home, and Mrs. Wm. J. Lewis has had closets made in the building. When we think out of what sad, broken and at times degraded houses these children are taken, to become of use and not unfrequently ornaments to society, the work done and the money given will be seen to be well bestowed.

RICH HILL.

The Rich Hill town company, through their president, Col. Brown, has executed to the Bishop a bond for a deed of a lot on the public square, which is a large circle, in a most eligible location. The lot is large, being 140 by an average depth of 130 feet. The condition is that an amount equal to the value of the lot, $1,000, be spent within a year on the building of a church there. The town is one of those phenomenal growths, having come to a population of 3,000 within two years, with a certainty of stability and growth. Large buildings, hotel, bank and stores, with plate glass windows, fifteen feet square, line the streets. The coal deposits are of great thickness and close to the surface. The Bishop has urged upon the people to meet and go to work to secure as much as possible for the erection of a church there. We have already a number of our people there.

Editor Church News:

SANTA FE, January 3, 1882.

Please allow me to make your good paper the medium through which to thank our Missouri friends for timely and valuable help towards our recent Fair. Thanks are specially due to Miss Triplett and Mr. Joseph Franklin, of St. Louis. And to Mr. Geo. H. Gill, Mrs. Gill, Mrs. Black, Miss Nellie Black, Mr. Hyatt, Mrs. Tracy, Miss Lelie Tracy, Miss Katie Tracy, Mrs. Hatch, Mrs. Wilson, Miss Bodley, Miss Hensley, Mrs. Edwards, Miss Edwards, Mrs. Enos Clark, Miss Lucy Morris, Miss Effie Morris, Mrs. Lawton, Mrs. Kyle, Mr. Andrews, Miss Lizzie Andrews, Mrs. Hoyt, Miss Helen Tutt and Mrs. Tutt of Kirkwood. The ladies of Emmanuel Church, Webster Groves, also contributed a package.

It will doubtless interest all who entered into our labors, and perhaps others, to learn that our work was not in vain, and that the net profit from the fair is $735.00. We sent a large bundle of left over articles, to Tombstone, Arizona, where a fair was held and $635.00 realized for the Church at that place. MARY C. DUNLOP.

A RELIGIOUS NEWSPAPER.

We desire to call the attention of our readers to one of the greatest newspapers of the age—one that secures the best writers in this country and Europe, regardless of expense; has the best and fullest book reviews of any paper in the country; has able articles upon financial subjects; has departments edited by specialists and devoted to Fine Arts, Music, Science, Religious Intelligence, Missions, School and College, News of the week, Hymn Notes, the Sunday-school, Legal and Sanitary questions, Biblical Research (something that cannot be found in any other newspaper in the United States), Farm and Garden, Insurance, Weekly Market Reports, etc., in fact a newspaper fully suited to the requirements of every family, containing a fund of information which cannot be had in any other shape, and having a wide circulation all over the country and in Europe. We refer to THE INDEPENDENT, of New York. "The largest, and ablest, and best." See advertisement, in another column, and send a postal card for free specimen copy.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

To the Editor of Sunday school Department of the CHURCH NEWS:

Among the enjoyments of the happy season of Christmas, perhaps there is none that, to the thinking and observing mind, is more pleasant than the Sunday-school festivals and celebrations. Consider them as we may, either as simply the pleasure given to the lambs of the flock, or as emblematic of the love and joy brought to man by the wondrous birth at Bethlehem, they are equally touching and equally desirable. None can witness the enjoyment of little ones without an echo in his own heart of that enjoyment, none can listen to the hymns and lessons without thanking God that he and they are all members of God's Church militant.

Of such festivals, that at the Church of the Holy Communion, held on Christmas night was one of the most pleasant and impressive. The decorations of the church had been supplemented by a good sized Christmas tree placed in front of the chancel, well lighted by gas jets enclosed in colored shades, the effect of which from the body of the church was very good. The service began by a processional hymn, "Brightly Gleams our Banner," to which the school, numbering between 200 and 250, marched in, led by the Rector and the Superintendent. As class after class came in and passing up the center aisle filed right and left to their respective positions, the chorus of school and congregation rung out louder and louder, heartier and yet more hearty, until when the last class entered, among which was the Sunday school choir, such a volume of sweet voices uniting in the praise of God, arose as has been seldom heard in this sacred edifice.

The order of service was as follows:

Silent Prayer.

Sentences, Confession and Lord's Prayer.

Psalm cx., chanted by school and congregation.

Creed and Prayers.

Gloria in Excelsis, sung by school and congregation to music composed by Hunt.

Lesson, St. Luke, i., 46 to 56

Hymn, While Shepherd Is Watched.

Superintendents Address.

Infant class Hymn, "Christ was born on Christmas Day."

The Archangel's Descent, Read by the Rector. Offertory, during which the Sunday-school choir sang, "Hark to the Merry Bells."

Closing Hymn, "God rests you all Good Christians."

Benediction.

After the service the usual presents were made to the children, and in many of the classes the pupils showed their appreciation of their teacher's efforts by presenting them with some gift as a small token of their esteem. This reversal of the usual order of things is a very pleasing proof of the love and affection that reciprocally exist among the teachers and scholars in the school.

Of course in carrying out any programme with a large school there must be some shortcomings, but in this case they were but of a minor nature and the general result was most satisfactory and enjoyable to the large congregation who filled the church.

OBSERVER.

[For the Church News.]

We have found it very difficult to keep up our Sunday-school, first for want of teachers and then for want of scholars. We have had, all told from 28 to 30. The removal of one family, and the expected removal of another will reduce our number still more. All the children in the place are gathered up by the other schools, except some 15 or 17 who belong to us by right, and these schools are generally large and well conducted. What we have determined on is to cease calling it a Sunday-school, or reporting Sunday-school scholars. We will call them catechumens, and will try to catechize in the church once every two months at least. We will delegate the teaching part to their parents or sisters at home, and will simply ask them to teach the catechism. We will try to furnish Sunday-school papers, which we will send to them or take to them with as much regularity as we can. This is all the library we will furnish them, while for their instruction book we will furnish the Calvary Catechism.

Half of our own scholars are in the country from two to seven miles distant. They cannot, or will not be brought to the church in winter, nor in summer either, when the roads are muddy, and they become very muddy after every rain or freeze. This is the best we can do and we will do it with as much persistency as possible. We are sorry that we did not adopt this plan a year or too ago. Now we hope to have five or six little classes with as many teachers. When we were carrying on the Sunday-school, which was found to be most conveniently done in the morning before church, we were always annoyed by the scholars, even grown girls, taking themselves off before service. They went home, and considered their duty to attend church service done before the service commenced. They did so because that was the fashion in other schools. This we hope to avoid by the plan that we propose. Hereafter we will report catechumens and hope to get back to the good old fashion of regular catechizings in the church.

"THE heart knoweth his own bitterness, and a stranger doth not intermeddle with his joy." Responsibility is individual. Final decision, notwithstanding counsel of wisest and dearest friends, must rest with ourselves. In every emergency, it is best for each one, to say what he will do. This is the voice of experience, no less than divine wisdom. That it is wrong to follow many to do evil, has passed into an axiom. It should be no less axiomatic to say: it is not right to let the multitude determine what is evil. True, "no man liveth or dieth unto himself," but there is an absolute separateness of every individual soul. There are times when all by himself each soul must sorrow, be uplifted or depressed; times when most kindly thought of dearest friend is an intrusion word of sweetest sympathy a mocking. Every one of us shall give an account of himself. Doubtless there are periods in each life when the individual can recognize no right or prerogative of friendship to interfere with the line of conduct and method of procedure for which he and he alone will ultimately be responsible. In our innermost experiences there is between every soul a partition wall over which none can ever come, a separateness which behooves us to recognize our sole responsibility for individual conduct and to be rightly independent accordingly.

Substitute for Calomel and Quinine.

Simmons Liver Regulator, purely vegetable, is equal in power to blue mass or calomel, but without any of their injurious properties.

A VARIED PERFORMANCE.—Many wonder how Parker's Ginger Tonic can perform such varied cures, thinking it simply essence of ginger, when in fact it is made from many valuable medicines which act beneficially on every diseased organ. See other column.

If You Are Sick, Read the Kidney-Wort advertisement in another column and it will explain to you the rational method of getting well. Kidney Wort will save you more doctor's bills than any other medicine known. Acting with specific energy on the kidneys and liver, it cures the worst diseases caused by their derangement. Use it at once. In dry and liquid form. Either is equally efficient, the liquid is the easiest but the dry is the most economical.—[Interior.]

ELEGANCE AND PURITY.—Ladies who appreciate elegance and purity are using Parker's Hair Balsam. It is the best article sold for restoring gray hair to its original color beauty and lustre.

CHICAGO.

EDITOR CHURCH NEWS:

It has been nearly two years since we exchanged our St. Louis home for one in Chicago. With every approaching season of the Church, my heart goes forth in longings for the old accustomed place. Perhaps a word or two will be welcome from the wanderer!

As soon as we had determined upon the location of our home here, we sought the nearest church with the determination to enroll ourselves, whether we were prepossessed with the Rector or not. We did so, and were delighted with the result. From the pleasing and oft repeated comments upon our conduct, we concluded this was not the course generally pursued by new comers into the parish. The churches here are almost congregational, so slight is the bond of sympathy between them. There is never an exchange of pulpits, nor is there one united service during the whole season of Lent.

There is no apparent interest or concern of one parish regarding the affairs of the other.

Generally speaking, unless one applies directly to headquarters or to the local papers—one may ask in vain as to the location of the various churches, to say nought of their rectors. During one of our meetings last week, I suggested the propriety of sending tickets for a coming entertainment to the different congregations, asking their efforts in the disposal of them.

I was looked upon as one demented, and was told the idea was visionary in the extreme, that there was probably not a Rector in the city who would consent to have a name taken from his records for such a purpose.

There is but a single Church charity in Chicago. St. Luke's Hospital, situated near the work-shops of the Illinois Central R. R. Co. It is sustained by voluntary subscriptions and donations. R. R. companies giving largely. The donation of the Illinois Central was $1,000 last year. Of course they supply the hospital with any number of patients during the year.

I was surprised and somewhat amused to hear our Rector speak of us as one of the oldest families in St. Mark's, excepting the families of the wardens and few vestrymen whose secular interests center in the locality. I see it is so. The people shift themselves from point to point like figures in a kaleidoscope—scarcely ever remaining over a year in one neighborhood. The great number of people living in flats, boarding and doing light house-keeping in the upper story of private houses will account for the ease with which they change their quarters, and in consequence their church. This restlessness may account in a measure for the clannishness.

Rt. Rev. Bishop McLaren confirmed one of my own family last winter. He is not nearly so impressive in the service as Bishop Robertson—he is however very much beloved by his people.

Christmas decorations and music are now under discussion. The finest choir is that of the Cathedral of S.S. Peter and Paul, consisting of some twenty-odd male voices. The Rev. Cannon Knowles is a fine musician and takes charge of the rehearsals, leading during the service with a pace difficult to follow, but very enjoyable.

—In England the average girl-graduate is over twenty-five, while in France she is twenty two, and in America under eighteen. According to the statistics of an Indiana lady, who has been collecting the facts for more than twenty years, 37 per cent. of girl graduates die within two years after taking their diploma.

DIED, at her home near Fayette, on the 29th ult., MRS. SARAH LELAND, widow of Judge Leland, who died in 1847. Mrs. Leland was born in Northumberland county, Virginia, in 1806, and had therefore passed her three score and ten and half a decade more. She was brought up in affluence and refinement—a refinement that characterized her to the end of her days, and made her to be much beloved by all who knew her. One of her ancestors, a great grand father was a clergyman of the Church in the old Colonial days of Virginia. He came from England and brought the bricks for his church with him.

BOOK NOTICES.

The leading article in the NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for January, contains the judgment of five of the most distinguished American authorities upon "The Moral Responsibility of the insane. Just at present this subject occupies a very prominent place in the minds of the American people but quite a part from its momentary interest as connected with the extraordinary trial now in progress in Washington, the problem of determining the fact of insanity and fixing the limits of responsibility of the insane, is one that in itself possesses an irresistible attraction for every generous mind. The wreck and ruin of Intellect appeals at once to our highest sympathies, and to whatever is noblest in human curiosity. The authors selected for the discussion of this subject are Drs. Beard and Seguin, of New York; Dr. Elwell, of Cleveland; Dr. Jewell, of Chicago, and Dr. Tolson, of Boston. The other articles in the January number of the Review are as follows: "The New Political Machine," by Wm. Martin Dickson: "Shall Women Practice Medicine?" by Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi: "The Geneva Award and the Insurance Companies," by G. B. Cole; and "A Chapter of Confederate History," by F. B. Ruffin.

The announcement is made that the February number of the Review, to be issued January 15th, will contain Part III. of the Christian Religion," series of articles, and that it is to be a very able defence of the Christian faith.

One Hundred and Fifty Thousand copies of "Helen's Babies," have already been printed and sold, and the demand for it continues as lively as ever. It is a book that all should read, old and young. It is published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia, price fifty cents in paper cover, or one dollar in cloth.

The January number of THE HOMILETIC MONTHLY has among its contents the following:—"Man's Place in the Universe," by Eugene Bersier, D. D.; "Corrupt Literature," by T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D.; "Strong or Weak—Which Shall it be?" by Thomas Armitage, D.D.; "The Faith of Moses," by W. J. Tucker, D.D.; Rev. Arthur Crosby; "The Years Fleeting and Heaven Nearing," by C. L. Goodell, D.D.;—"Theology for Children," by C. F. Ceems, D.D. "Bible Reading and Memorising for Children," by Rev. W. F. Crafts; Under "Living Issues for Pulpit Treatment," Important suggestions are made, touching "The Crime of Mormonism"; "Danger in the Abundance of Light Literature," and "The Plague of Strog Drink." Many suggestions are printed from clergymen from all parts of the country under "Preachers Exchanging Views." This is a very valuable number of this Monthly. Price, single number 25 cents; per year, $2 50. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

ST. NICHOLAS for January, 1882, has eighty pages and more than sixty illustrations. Its frontispiece is a beautiful picture by Robert Blum, illustrating a fairy story of the Rhineland. There is the conclusion of "The Poor Count's Christmas," and a curious tale of Modern Greek Folk-lore. Celia Thaxter contributes a fine poem on the great Sir William Napier's chivalrous conduct toward a peasant child. In an article entitled "How to make Puppets and Puppet-shows, Mr. Daniel C. Beard explains to the boys and girls how they may entertain the family circle, or parties of their companions, with a delightful in-door amusement; and besides furnishing a brisk, dramatized version of "Puss in Boots." For representation, he supplies examples of all the puppets, diagrams of the way to produce funny stage-effects and hints and suggestions how to present the shadow-play.

This month's in tallments of the two serial stories—"Donald and Dorothy," "The Hoosier School boy,"—contain novel scenes, characters, and incidents, and are well illustrated.

Humorous verses and funny single pictures are given here and there in the number; there is a story of 4 pages with five pictures for the Very Little Folk; "Jack-in-the-Pulpit" discourses with his usual good spirits about matters and things; and the "Riddle box" closes the number with an assortment of puzzles including a curious Maze.

THE CENTURY Magazine for January. The third number of the new series of Scribner presents, as a frontispiece, a tint-printed engraving of Bonnat's portrait of Thier, accompanying a paper of personal recollections of the first President of the French Republic. It is a popular record of stirring events in the establishment and life of the Republic, and acquires especial value from the intimate acquaintance existing between the writer and his subject. Colonel Rockwell's paper of reminiscences of Garfield, appears in the present issue under the caption "From Mentor to Elberon." Colonel Rockwell writes in the spirit of warm personal friendship, the home life at Mentor during that summer; his forebodings after the election; the preparation of the inaugural; the harassing crowd of office-seekers; the fortitude of the illness, etc. With this paper is given an engraving. The most elaborately illustrated paper of the number is Mrs. Mitchell's account of "Oriental and Early Greek Sculpture"—the first of several on Ancient Sculpture. The engravings which accompany this paper augur well for the papers to come, which will deal with the richer period of the Phidian age, etc. The Assyrian pieces, such as the "Lion from the Gate of Nimroud" and "The Wounded Lioness," are particularly fine.

The unillustrated material is not less interesting in topic. Mrs. Burnett's "Through One Administration," gives a glimpse of the evils of the spoils system from behind the scenes. Mr. Howell's "Modern Instance" is, unusually full of action. "The Increase of Divorce" is the subject of an essay by Washington Gladden, which makes exhibit of some startling figures, and will be read with close attention. "The Legal Aspects of the Mormon Problem" are clearly set forth by Arthur G. Sedgwick, who finds no defect in the law as it now exists, and thinks that the decline of Mormonism will result from disintegration rather than from the passage of additional laws that cannot be enforced. The World's Work Department is given over to material about the Atlanta Cotton Exhibition, the result of the writer's personal inspection of the exhibits. The subjects treated are: Improved Cotton Planter, Insect-destroying Apparatus, Gins, and Seed-cotton Cleaners, Gin saw Sharpener, New Cotton-baling Press, and Direct Process for Yarns.

THE SANITARIAN for January is fully up to its usual degree of excellence. Suvern's Method of the Disposal of Excreta, as practiced in the "Jacob's Hospital," at Leipzig, is especially worthy the attention of all persons concerned for the health of public institutions, summer hotels, and small country towns, to which it is equally applicable. Progress of Sanitary Protection at Newport. The Fatal Effects of Impure Drinking water in Buffalo on Health, the True Nobility.

This Magazine is necessary to all persons who would be abreast with the best means of preserving and promoting health. And here it may be observed, it is a great mistake to suppose The Sanitarian is exclusively intended for physicians and other scientific readers; it is adapted to and may be read with profit by all who can read, no matter what their avocation. $3 a year. A. N. Bell, New York.

DRINKS FROM DRUGS.—This is a startling exposure of the means which are used now to concoct and adulterate spirits. It shows what a vast business is done in charging spirits with tinctures, and acids and coloring matter, making what was injurious before ten times more so afterwards. Those who have any appetite for intoxicants should read this and see what noxious drugs they are putting into their systems. Price 10 cents. Temperance Publishing House, 148 Madison street, Chicago.

THE DEBT TO AFRICA, THE HOPE OF LIBERIA.—Dr. Bell's articles in the October number of the Church Review has been republished separately in pamphlet form. He details the steps by which the slave trade in this country was repressed and the Colonization Society was organized. The capacities of Liberia are stated with great force, and the climate asserted to be more healthful than in the same latitude in America. He states that there are 500,000 colored persons in this country now who are considering the matter of removal.

THE INDEPENDENT.

The foremost religious newspaper of the United States.—[The Rev. Joseph Cook.

ESTABLISHED in 1848, as an advocate of anti-slavery and reforms in religion and politics, The Independent at once became a recognized power throughout the country. Its influence has ever since been constantly growing. As it has fought against slavery and for cheap postage, so it will fight against Mormonism, for Civil Service Reform, and for purity in politics, and general uprightness in all things. It employs the best editorial talent and speaks fearlessly on all subjects. It pays for contributed articles and for editorial services more than double the amount paid by any other weekly newspaper.

It publishes moral religious discussions than the religious reviews, more poetry and stories than the popular monthlies, and give more information than an annual cyclopaedia. The long cable dispatches recently published from the great Methodist Council in London are a good illustration of what The Independent is constantly doing. A list of the most prominent religious and philosophical writers, and for editorials, there are twenty two distinct departments, edited by twenty two specialists, which included Biblical Research, Sanitary, Legal, Fine Arts, Music, Science, Pebbler, Personalities, Ministerial Register, Hymn Notes, School and College, Literature, Religious Intelligence, Missions, Sunday school News, of the Week, Finance, Commerce, Insurance, Stories, Puzzles, Agriculture. 32 Pages in all.

THE CALLING OF A RECTOR

It is astonishing to observe the mistakes that sensible men who are vestrymen make in the matter of calling a Rector. It a parish becomes vacant that can give but $600 or 800 salary, the vestry seems to think that, because it is their particular parish, they can obtain the services of almost any clergyman in the country. They seem to forget that clergymen, like other men, must live and must support their families; and they wonder why it is difficult to get a man who is worth $1,500 or 2,000 salary, and is perhaps getting it, to come and take their parish for 8700. A vestry should remember that the best talent can only be commanded by the best salary. If they want a man with all the graces and gifts of the ministry, the experience is that they cannot get him, because he is already well settled elsewhere.

The average vestryman thinks that any clergyman almost in the country would gladly accept the rectorship of his parish, whatever the support might be. But it often happens that large and important parishes have some difficulty in procuring Rectors, Calvary Church, New York; and St. Stephen's Church, Philadelphia have been vacant for a long time. Each of these have made repeated calls, and their calls have been declined. If this is so in such cases, why not to a greater degree in smaller parishes? The parish that is usually a desirable one for clergy, is one that is united, harmonious and filled with a people interested in the work of the Church, and anxious to do what they can to promote its interests.

Parishes have reputations, as well as clergy. If a parish treats its minister well, pays him promptly all that it promised him, and all that it can pay him, helps him in his work, throws no hindrances in his way, is not cut up into cliques and factions, or honeycombed with jealousies, it may be said to have a good reputation, and vice versa. It is a rare thing that such a parish is obliged to wait long for a clergyman, unless, indeed, it expects to get a man for $700 worth twice as much, and probably receiving it. If vestries and congregations realized how difficult it is to supply vacant parishes in these western Dioceses, they would not be so ready to part with their present Rectors. But they often think that a change would be beneficial, they let their minister go, and then they are months and sometimes years vacant, running down and losing ground all the while. They want an eloquent preacher, a learned scholar, an affable gentleman, a devoted pastor, a live man, and all this for $700 a year.

And sometimes they feel as if the Church at large had slighted them because they cannot on the instant secure such a Rector for such a salary. —[Church Guardian.

THE CHURCH NEWS

JANUARY 15, 1882.

No communications can be inserted, in any current number, which reach the office after the 10th of the month.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

RESOLVED, That the CHURCH NEWS be made the official medium of communication between the Treasurers of the different Diocesan Funds and the Parishes, and that the Treasurers be instructed to receipt for all payments to the several funds through the NEWS.

RESOLVED, That it be made the duty of the several rectors and missionaries of the Diocese to extend to the utmost of their power the circulation of the Diocesan paper, the CHURCH NEWS.

THE NEWS with this number begins its thirteen volume, and is by long odds the oldest of the Diocesan papers. A Church paper which in our first year offered to buy out what there was left of us at the end of that volume, has long since disappeared and its name is almost forgotten. We have kept on our way quietly, doing effectively the task before us, not losing what we have by needlessly attempting to vie with the general Church papers, but faithfully reflecting the life and the work of our own Diocesan family.

We give the reminder again to our friends to send in their names and the amounts of their subscriptions so soon as may be after their time has run out, as we cannot afford to make and keep sending bills. Those who persist in ignoring a bill will be presumed not to want the paper. The NEWS is sent without charge to the missionaries of the Diocese, but with the expectation that they will in their several districts act as agent to extend its circulation, and send in names and amounts.

THE ministers in a large city in the East have determined not to conduct funerals hereafter on Sunday, except in cases where they are clearly necessary. They say that the appliances for preserving the bodies of the deceased are so complete now that there is no longer such necessity as formerly for a rapid burial; that the funerals involve a large amount of labor for hackmen, undertakers and others, and this intrusion on Sunday rest should not be made unless in an emergency; that in the distance of cemeteries from cities now the time and labor on the minister in going and returning affects his efficiency for his work in Church for his congregation; and that the motive often for fixing on that day, to promote display, and save time in a business day, is utterly unworthy. They insist also that they should first be consulted before the time of a funeral is fixed and announced. These principles are good and worth thinking about here in St. Louis as well.

HERE is something very much to the point from the Western Michigan Church paper. A good many others are asking the same question: "Bishop Spalding wants $1,000 to rebuild the barn of Jarvis Hall, Denver, recently burned down. There are very few days of the 365 that Bishop Spalding does not feel himself in need of a $1,000. By-the-way, when is Western Michigan, a much poorer Diocese than the Jurisdiction of Colorado, to be relieved from paying a portion of Bishop Spalding's salary and traveling expenses? Colorado ought to be a Diocese and take care of its own Bishop and build its own barns. It is waiting, we are told, for some one to endow it, but after waiting awhile it will have to make up its own endowment as other Dioceses have been compelled to. It has been waiting a good while already." Since this barn was asked for a fortnight ago, there is a simultaneous plea in all the Church papers from Denver for the endowment of a Hospital.

PARTISANSHIP.

There are many experiences which one meets with in life which reminds one of the old lines:

"The painful warrior famous'd in fight,
After a thousand victories once foiled,
Is from the book of honour razed quite,
And all the rest forgot for which he toiled."

There is a vast amount of selfishness in average human nature, and much of the suavity and good fellowship is maintained on the implied condition that one will continue to minister to the other's selfish interests. This being stopped, the whole intimacy tumbles, and reveals the unreality which had been about it from the start. For some persons you must do the last thing always, or it is the same as though nothing had been done.

You may praise, but think twice before you administer any advice or suggest blame. All is well as towards the Diocese and the Missionary Board while they continue the stipend, but let this stop or be reduced, no explanation will be received that it was needed more elsewhere. Bishop Spalding says that a Bishop is always popular while making investments in a place. A difference may spring up between the vestry and the minister, or between two parties in a parish. None others may be at all involved. Appeal is made to the Bishop or Standing Committee, and because they generally find that both are in part at fault, and do not side wholly for one or the other, whatever prejudice the parties may have against each other, they are both pretty likely to have a decided opinion about the innocent arbitrators.

"No man e'er felt the halter draw with good opinion of the law." When the Bishop of Oxford vindicated the restraining and paternal character of his order against the courts in the Clewer case, he was applauded by those whose views then were helped by his action. But that same paternal authority is scouted at when claimed by the Bishop of Manchester as against Mr. Green confined for ritualistic practices.

WHITTAKER'S ALMANAC.

We spoke last month of the Church Almanac. Since then we have received Whittaker's Almanac, which shows great enterprise, and some features which place it before its competitors. Whittaker reports 3,401 clergymen, the Church Almanac 3,496. And so with other statistics, we give Whittaker's total first, then that of the Church Almanac. Ordinations, Deacons, 139,136; Priests, 118,112; Candidates for Orders, 391,295; Confirmations, 25,401, 23,967; Offerings, $7,311,784 91; $6,749,043 20.

It gives full information about the dioceses in Canada, and many statistics and other facts of the greatest possible usefulness to all who desire to keep up with the growth of the Church. The price is 25 cents, and it may be had post paid, from T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

LIVING CHURCH ALMANAC.

The latest and in many respects the fullest of all the almanacs is that of which we give above the name. It is the first issue of the series, and put forth by our enterprising contemporary of Chicago. It incorporates much valuable information from the Mr. Whittaker, of the well-known English almanac. It gives, besides the usual matter found in a Church almanac, the secular history of principal events of the year, the present conditions and sketches of the reigning sovereigns of all countries; a history of the different branches of the Church, and a sketch of Church law. It gives in its Calendar, however, names of saints which were deliberately omitted from the Prayer Book at the Reformation, and instructs about the colors of the hangings by the Sacrament or Roman, or some other use, which when carried to this minuteness seems unworthy of men.

This book will reveal to the editors of our older almanacs what can and should be included in such a volume. That this full and accurate summary could have been made on the first issue is quite remarkable. We think that it would be better, if the advertisements were put together, and not interjected through the book. 25 cents. E. and J. B. Young & Co., Cooper Union, New York.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

A DELICIOUS ORDER is imparted by Floreston Cologne. And it is always refreshing, no matter how freely used.

THE REV. MR. TALBOT of Macon is now in the City in the interests of his school. Of the $20,000 necessary to complete the building $15,000 has been secured. The Diocese cannot afford to lose this opportunity, and we are glad to hear that our people appreciate its importance and are contributing to the object. Mr. Talbot hopes to secure the entire amount by the opening of the Spring.

MEETING OF CONVOCAATION.

There will be a meeting of the Mexico Missionary Convocation of the Diocese of Missouri (D. V.) in Calvary Church, Louisiana, Pike County, commencing on Wednesday, February 1st, and closing Saturday, February 4th. The opening service, with a sermon, on Wednesday night, at 7 o'clock. Clergy and lay delegates entitled to seats are requested, and other clergy cordially invited to attend.

THE STANDING COMMITTEE.

November 29, 1881.—The Standing Committee consented to the consecration of the Rev. Cortland Whitehead, D. D., to the See of Pittsburgh.

January 6, 1882.—Mr. Herbert Landowne Gamble was recommended to the Bishop, as a candidate for Holy Orders.

Same date, Mr. Floyd Edgar West, was recommended for Deacon's Orders.

January 12, 1882.—The Rev. Wm. A. Hatch was recommended for Priest's Orders.

The amounts in the first column were due at the last Convention, in September, and are due now, and represent in some cases, the accumulated delinquencies of several years. The amounts in the second column are the assessments laid at the last Convention, one quarter of which is due Oct. 1st; another on Jan. 1st; three-fourths are due April 1st and the whole is due July 1st. The amounts in the third column show what has been paid on the above at and since Convention.

GENERAL NEWS.

—In October, Rev. Dr. Samuel M. Haskins celebrated the 42d anniversary of his connection with St. Mark's Parish, Brooklyn, New York.

—The sale of the Moody and Sankey hymns, in all the various editions, has reached a total of nearly 10,000,000 copies.

—Henry F. Durant, late of Boston, has bequeathed $1,500,000 to be available on the death of his wife to Wellesley College for higher education of women.

—The Chaplain of Pentonville prison, London, reports that after a long experience he finds a higher education now among the prisoners than formerly, but that his observation does not show that this is reducing crime, but is only altering its character, that there are improved systems of burglary and forgery, and that murders are more skillful and less brutal.

—It is said that there are more Hebrews in Chicago than in any other city of equal population in the world.

—The Mayor of Norfolk has prohibited a raffle for the benefit of the orphan asylum of that city, as being contrary to law.

—The Rev. Mr. Masker has begun in his Parish in East Saginaw, Michigan, the publication of a parish monthly which shows that his work is being pressed with much vigor there.

—Miss Florence E. Cory, of the New York Woman's Institute for Technical Design, receives $4,000 per year for furnishing designs to a carpet factory. She says that the occupation is pleasant, and that an excellent opportunity is offered to women with a talent in this direction.

—The great weight of Christian principle, and the high expediency of taking into full account religious intelligence and feeling were seen in the instant way in which the Messrs. Appleton discontinued their connection with the North American on account of the insertion of Mr. Ingersoll's second attack on the Christian religion without giving Judge Black an opportunity to appear with his refutation in the same number. Mr. Ingersoll in the last presidential campaign had to be called away from Maine, as his fine eloquence could not make up for the harm which any advocacy of his did among the better sections of his party.

—Mr. Beecher has surprised his congregation by protesting against the smallness of their contributions. He said the amount of the collections had run as low as $75, and even special appeals, as that for the Home Missionary Society, with objects as broad as the continent, elicited only $300. A congregation of 3,000 people, Mr. Beecher declared, should never contribute less than $500 on any occasion, and he hoped that fewer five cent pieces would hereafter find their way into the baskets that were passed around.

—In Yale College in the last class the valedictorian was a Jew, the salutatorian a German, and the prize declaimer was from China.

—A Universalist congregation has recently decided to celebrate the Lord's Supper without distributing the elements to the people. They are to stand on the table as sacred symbols, to speak through the eye to the heart, the ministering interpreting. This is a new form of the solitary communion which in many ways by historic efforts strive to get rid of reception as an essential part of the Sacrament. "Take, eat," is the command, not "meditate" or "adore."

—In an account of the bank clearings in twenty-two of the largest cities of the country last year, the gain of business on that of the preceding year was 27.1 per cent; that of St. Louis was 17 per cent; that of Kansas City was 32.9 per cent, which last was as great a growth as that of any city in the country.

—Bishop Howe of Central Pennsylvania in consecrating a new church recently introduced a new feature. He headed a procession to the building which was empty with the exception of a single clergyman. Coming to the front door, the bishop rapped with his pastoral staff, and demanded admission, the door was opened, and the building taken formal possession of.

—The reduction in the public debt of the United States last year amounted to $134,000,000, and the reduction in the amount of annual interest paid is $16,300,000.

—In Cincinnati the ordinance requiring those who use furnaces, to consume their own smoke, has gone into effect.

—The board of revision of taxes in Philadelphia, has decided that parsonages and church property not forming an integral part of a church, are subject to taxation, and will be assessed.

—The $200,000 needed to endow the new Diocese of Newcastle in England having been secured, the Bishop will now be appointed.

—At an ordination recently in central New York of three Deacons, one had been a Unitarian, the second a Universalist, and the third had been a Baptist preacher.

—The Rector of the St Thomas Church, New York, who is a very moderate man, has had placed in the pews of his church a notice that "inasmuch as the last General Convention authorized the use of the 'magnificent' and 'Nunc Dimittis' in the service, the Rector permits these well known canticles to take their old time places after the lesson in Evening prayer, according to the seasons of the Church year.

—At the recent annual dinner of the British Medical Association, of the 141 members present, it was noticed that 49 refused wine. This was more remarkable in a country where wine drinking at a dinner used to be universal.

—The following has been compiled as a complete statement of the number and the causes of the murders in the United States, for 1881:

An Old Doctor's Advice.

Many an old doctor has advised the habitually costive to take Kidney Wort—for no other remedy so effectually overcomes this condition, and that without the distress and griping which other medicines cause. It is a radical cure for piles. Don't fail to use it. —[Translated from the New Yorker Zeitung.

DERSEVEDLY POPULAR.—Unless it had great merit Parker's Ginger Tonic could not be so popular. Its sale has spread remarkably all over this country, because invalids find it gives them new life and vigor when other medicines fail entirely. —[Ohio Farmer.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1082 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

CAN CONSUMPTION BE CURED?

Some interesting Letters from the People.
Which should be read by those afflicted.

Dr. Schenck gives the evidence on which he bases his assertion that

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

WHICH SHOULD CONVINCE THE MOST SKEPTICAL.

For other Certificates of Cures send for Dr. Schenck's Book on Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. It gives a full description of these diseases in their various forms, also valuable information in regard to the diet and clothing of the sick; how and when exercise should be taken, &c. This book is the result of many years of experience in the treatment of Lung Diseases, and should be read, not only by the afflicted, but by those who, from hereditary taint or other cause, suppose themselves liable to any affection of the throat or lungs.

IT IS SENT FREE--Post Paid, to all Applicants.

From Springfield, Ohio.

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, Jan. 29, 1880.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir--From a feeling of gratitude and a desire to benefit others, I send you this certificate that all may know of the virtues of your remedies. For over one year my case seemed hopeless: I had night sweats, loss of appetite, a very severe cough, and complete prostration of my whole system. My physician pronounced my disease Consumption. I was reduced almost to a skeleton, and all the medicines I took failed to give me any relief. I had fully made up my mind that I was incurable, when an acquaintance recommended your remedies. I had little faith in them, however, having lost all hope; but, in a very short after commencing their use, I found to my great surprise that I was getting stronger and that my worst symptoms were fast disappearing. I persevered in taking them until I was restored to perfect health. I assure you that language fails to express the gratitude I feel towards you for your skill in preparing so good and great a remedy.

Gratefully Yours,

CATHERINE A. STEWART.

Cured of Consumption after Two Years of Severe Illness!

NEWBURGH, N. Y., March 4, 1879.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir--I feel that I am doing good to others by telling you what your medicines have done for me. I was sick with Consumption for over two years, and after trying many remedies and employing the best physicians in this city, without benefit, I was induced to use your medicines. I had hardly taken the first bottle before I felt much better, and after continuing their use for some time was entirely cured. This was over six years ago, and as I have continued to enjoy good health since, feel that my cure is permanent. I am happy to add my testimony with many others to the efficacy of your medicines. I know many others in Newburgh who have been benefited by their use.

MRS. SOPHIA M. LAWSON, No. 59 Ann Street, Newburgh, N. Y.

From Mr. Harley P. Hopkins, of Providence, R. I. He is cured of Consumption by Dr. Schenck's Medicines, after being given up to die by some of the best physicians of the city.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir--I have been cured of what three of the best physicians of this city told me was Consumption of the Lungs, by the use of your medicines. I was first attacked with the disease in October, 1880, and although I was from that time continually under the care of a physician, I grew worse and worse, until I was confined to my bed. I can hardly say that I was first attacked with the disease in 1880, for my lungs had been weak many years previous to this, and I would quite often have severe pain in my breast if I took the least cold or exerted myself too much in any way. I grew worse, my cough became very bad; I had night sweats so severe that my bed, through the night would be as wet as though water had been thrown over me. I was continually raising blood and large quantities of offensive matter from my lungs, and at last had all the well-known symptoms of Consumption in its last stages.

At the request of my family, my physician called in two other doctors of this city, and they, after an examination, agreed that my case was hopeless. They informed my wife that I had better be told that I could not live, as my time would be very short for arranging my worldly affairs. They also said that no medicine would be of any use to me. The next day my friend, Mr. H. I. Leith, hearing of my condition, sent me a bottle of your Pulmonic Syrup, thinking it might relieve my cough, and make my expectation easier. I began using it, never even hoping that it would cure me, but finding great relief from its use. When the first bottle was gone I sent and got more, so I continued it until I had used seven or eight bottles. All this time I was in bed and was so weak that I had to be lifted. This was not a difficult thing to do, however, as I only weighed about ninety pounds. As I have said, I commenced the use of the medicine with no thought of its curing me, but after taking the eighth bottle I would sometimes feel a little humfry, a thing I had not before done for many months. I omitted to mention that after taking four or five bottles of the Pulmonic Syrup, I also began taking the Seaweed Tonic, and I also took some of the Mandrake Pills.

It is needless for me to give you an account of all my feelings during my recovery. Of course it was slow but it was also sure. I gradually gained strength, the character of what I raised from my lungs was changed--not being so offensive--and at last I was able to get up and walk about my room. From this time my recovery was rapid. I gained flesh fast and soon went out doors, and now I am entirely well, a wonder to all my acquaintances who saw me when I was so low.

I weigh one hundred and sixty-two pounds, appetite good, and I can truly say that I never felt better in my life. I consider your medicines as wonderful in their effects. They have saved my life, and I feel so thankful to you that I am anxious that all who are suffering with lung troubles should know how good they are. Of course, I can give a better account of my case in telling of it than in writing, and if any who read this are interested, they are welcome to call on me at my residence.

Yours Truly,

HARLEY P. HOPKINS,

May 19, 1881.

No. 2 Howell St., Providence, R. I.

Mr. Harley P. Hopkins, who writes the foregoing letter to Dr. Schenck, of Philadelphia, is an old resident of Providence. I have known him well for the last fifteen years, and I can assure the public that all he has written in regard to his sickness and recovery is strictly true. He was considered a consumptive in the last stages of the disease, by his physician and friends, and I believe that his recovery is entirely due to the use of Dr. Schenck's medicines.

CONSUMPTION PERMANENTLY CURED

Connersville, Ind., January 21st, 1881.--Dr. Schenck: Dear Sir--In 1861 I took a heavy cold, which quickly fastened on my lungs. I became unable to do anything. I was confined to my bed. My case went on from bad to worse, and developed rapidly into consumption. At the time of the draft during the war, the examining physician rejected me as being unfit for service, one of my lungs being nearly gone. I had given myself to die, when John S. Benson, who formerly lived near this city, now living in Indianapolis, recommended me to use Schenck's Remedies, as he had done in his own case and had been cured thereby. I did as he advised me, which proved to be my salvation. I procured some of your "Pulmonic Syrup," "Seaweed Tonic," and "Mandrake Pills." I commenced to use them, and found them to benefit me from the start. I continued to use your medicines faithfully, and in six months' time I was entirely cured, my lungs becoming as strong as ever; and your medicines did the work.

Yours, respectfully SANDFORD CALDWELL.

I wish to add that since that time--20 years ago--I have had no return of my trouble. The cure was a perfect and lasting one.

S. CALDWELL.

I know of the above case and can certify to the truth of the foregoing.

L. RAWLS, Druggist.

FROM AKRON, OHIO--CONSUMPTION CURED!

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 17th, 1881.--Dr. J. H. Schenck: Dear Sir--Having been asked by many in regard to your medicines, and the benefit I had received from them, I have concluded to give you an account of my case. In the Winter of 1878 I was pronounced an incurable consumptive by every physician in this place, as well as several in Cleveland. I had all the symptoms--cough, night sweats, great debility and loss of flesh. I was reduced in weight from 150 pounds to 80 pounds. I had given up all hope of recovery, when I was told by Mr. James Scanlan that he had used your medicines with good effect, and he advised me to give them a trial, although I do not think he believed they would cure me, for I was so sick at this time that no one thought that I would ever get well. I thought, however, that they might give me temporary relief, and with this object I commenced to use your Pulmonic Syrup. I had not taken it two days before I felt great relief, especially in the severity of my cough. I then took the Mandrake Pills and Seaweed Tonic, and in two weeks my appetite came back, and I began to gain strength. I took your medicine for about three months. I was too sick to do any kind of work for 2 years. Your medicines made a perfect cure, and I have been in good health ever since. I do not know that I can say more than this unless it be that I believe your medicines to be good, and that they will do all that you say they will do. Yours, very truly,

J. A. REILLY.

FROM MR. JOHN G. NOTHACKER, OF SHELBY, OHIO.

Dr. J. H. Schenck, Philadelphia: Dear Sir--In May, 1879, I caught a heavy cold, which gradually settled on my lungs, causing great difficulty and pain in breathing. I could not rest at night, being kept awake by coughing. The loss of sleep and appetite at last reduced me very much--from 160 pounds, my usual weight when in health, to 133 pounds. I took the prescriptions of physicians, but they did me no good. One day, while looking over the Cleveland Herald, I noticed that your medicines had cured many cases that were at least as bad as mine, and so concluded to use them. They were rather slow in their action at first, but after I had used them for a couple of weeks, I saw that I was getting better; my appetite improved, the pain and difficulty in breathing was relieved, and after using eight bottles I felt that I was restored to perfect health. I was restored to perfect health. I soon recovered my former weight, and I am satisfied that I owe my recovery entirely to your Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills.

Truly Yours, JOHN G. NOTHACKER,

Feb. 21st, 1881.

With C. H. Asken, Shelby, Richmond Co., Ohio.

FROM MR. ROBERT W. JONES, OF LONDON, OHIO.

Dr. Schenck: Dear Sir--About four years ago I was taken sick with what my physician told me was Consumption of the Lungs. I had a bad cough, and was reduced very much in my weight. At different times I had seven physicians of this place and also one from Bloomsburg, attending me, and although they all thought they could help me, I grew worse very fast under their treatment. I was compelled to give up all business for over two years, and no one believed, nor did I myself believe, that I should ever get well. One day I happened to call at Mr. Auburn Smith's Drug Store, in this place, and picked up one of your pamphlets. In reading the certificates of cures, I found one case so nearly like my own, that I at once concluded to give your medicines a trial. I bought the Seaweed Tonic, Pulmonic Syrup and Mandrake Pills, and began their use according to the printed directions, and I can truly say, that from the first I saw a marked improvement in all my symptoms. This encouraged me to continue their use until I was entirely well. I have had good health since my recovery, and I believe your medicines saved my life. I know of several other persons in this city that have been cured by your remedies.

Yours Truly,

ROBERT W. JONES.

Guard the system against MALARIA by using Dr. Schenck's

MANDRAKE PILLS,

The Great Vegetable Substitute for Mercury. They will cure Chills and Fever. They will cure Diarrhoea. They will cure obstinate Constipation, leaving the Stomach and Bowels in a healthy condition. They will cure Liver Complaint, that great forerunner of Consumption.

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Do not produce sickness at the stomach, nausea or griping. On the contrary, they are so mild and agreeable in their action that a person suffering with a sick headache, sour stomach, or pain in the bowels, is speedily relieved of these distressing symptoms. They act directly on the liver, the organ which, when in a healthy condition purifies the blood for the whole body.

They are a perfect preparation of that great and well-known remedy, Mandrake or Podophyllin, a remedy that has displaced the use of mercury, as well as many other poisonous drugs, in the practice of every intelligent physician.

Prof. John King, of the College of Medicine, of Cincinnati, says: "In constipation it acts upon the bowels without disposing them to subsequent costiveness. In Chronic Liver Complaint there is not its equal in the whole range of medicines, being vastly more useful than mercurial agents, arousing the liver to healthy action, increasing the flow of bile, and keeping up these actions longer than any other agent with which we are acquainted." (See American Dispensatory, page 720.)

In all cases of Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, where there is great weakness or debility, Dr. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic should be used in connection with these Pills.

Littell's Living Age

THE LIVING AGE has been published for nearly forty years, and has met with continuous commendation and success.

A weekly Magazine, it gives more than THREE AND A QUARTER THOUSAND double column octavo pages of reading matter yearly. It presents in an inexpensive form, considering its great amount of matter with freshness, owing to its weekly issue, and with a satisfactory completeness attempted by no other publication, the best Essays, Reviews, Criticism, Serial and Short Stories, Sketches of Travel and Discovery, Poetry, Scientific, Biographical, Historical and Political Information, from the entire body of Foreign Periodical Literature.

It is therefore invaluable to every American reader, as the only satisfactorily fresh and COMPLETE compilation of an indispensable current literature,—indispensable because it embraces the productions of the ABLEST LIVING WRITERS in all branches of Literature, Science, Politics and Art.

"No other periodical can compare with THE LIVING AGE in interest and value. A veritable thesaurus of the best work of the most celebrated writers in literature, science, politics and art."—[Boston Traveller.]

"It supplies a better compendium of current discussion, information and investigation, and gives a greater amount and variety of reading matter, which it is well worth while to read, than any other publication."—[Boston Journal.]

"It contains not only the best solid literature, but also the best serial stories of the day. Its pages are sufficient to keep any reader abreast with the best printed thoughts of the best of our contemporary writers."—[Episcopal Register, Philadelphia.]

"The ablest essays and reviews of the day are to be found here. We know of no investment of eight dollars in the world of literature that will yield equal returns."—[The Presbyterian Philadelphia.]

"To praise it is a work of supererogation."—[New York Christian Advocate.]

"It is indispensable in every household where any attempt is made to keep up with the current thought of the day. It is a thorough compilation of what is best in the literature of the day, whether relating to history, biography, fiction, poetry, science, politics, theology, criticism or art."—[Harvard Courant.]

"It being a weekly publication is, comparatively speaking, the cheapest magazine published."—[Commercial Advertiser, Detroit.]

"No reader who makes himself familiar with its contents can lack the means of a sound literary culture."—[New York Tribune.]

"It enables its reader to keep fully abreast of the best thought and literature of civilization."—[Pittsburg Christian Advocate.]

$5. The Wonderful Mechanical Piano-ette. $5.

The most marvellous mechanical invention of the age. It will play any tune in a melodious and pleasing manner. Difficult and simple music produced in a masterly style, and it can be played by a child as well as by a grown person and will furnish music for social gatherings of any description, playing hour after hour, without any knowledge of music being required in the operation. The most wonderful of all musical inventions; a machine which in a purely mechanical manner produces any kind of music, Waltzes, Polkas, Marches, &c., &c., without any practice or knowledge of music whatever; in this respect far superior to any music-box, for there is no limit whatever to the number of tunes it will play. The perforations in a flexible strip produce the effect. It has just been perfected (the accompanying cut showing it in its improved form), and is having the largest sale ever obtained by a musical instrument in the country. It has fine, bronzed cases, highly decorated, the notes or bars (the music producers) are metal, on some principle as a tuning fork, which produces clear and most melodious notes, and never get out of tune; the bars are struck by strikers, the same as the wires in a piano, only they work automatically instead of by the fingers. The strip of prepared paper in which the tunes are stamped or perforated, is about 10 inches wide, and as it passes through the rollers and over the keys, the strikers spring through the perforations in the paper and strike the right note; this is all done automatically, without any assistance from the operator (except turning the rollers), and the tune is played perfectly. It would be one of the most appropriate presents to make any one, especially where there is no other musical instrument. Its execution is admirable, and its capacity or capability almost unlimited. It is selling faster than any musical instrument ever invented. The music is fine, and every body delighted. The price of the Piano-ette is only $5, including a selection of popular tunes. Music, 20 cts. a tune.

SPECIAL TO AGENTS. We wish an agent in every town, we have concluded to offer sample of Piano-ette, with two tunes, to those who will push the sale, for only $4.10 or with 12 tunes, for $5.50. MASSACHUSETTS ORGAN CO., 57 Washington St., Boston, Mass., Sole Manuf.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

MR. JAMES POTT, the publisher, kindly gave the Bishop about two dozen copies of this year's Church Almanac, and he sent them so far as they would go to the missionaries of the Diocese. He learns that a number came safely to hand, and hopes that the rest did also.

THERE is very great need of more offerings for the Theological Education Fund. The number of candidates for Orders has increased, and the drafts on the fund have wholly exhausted it. If any treasurers have failed to send in their amounts, they should do so without delay. If any have thus far failed to make the offering, or because of its smallness, determined to present the matter again to their people, they should do so now. The object gets an unjust disparagement in its importance because it is assigned to a day when the offerings and congregations are often small. It is really one of the most important of our objects in the year.

PERMANENT EPISCOPAL FUND.

The Bishop reminds the clergy and congregations of the Diocese that the canonical time for making the annual offerings for the above Fund is on the second Sunday in Lent, which this year comes on the 5th of March. If for any reason this is impossible on that day, it must be made on the nearest possible Sunday to this, and the amount sent to the Treasurer, Mr. C. S. Feeborn, 309 Olive street, St. Louis. This fund is charged with the payment of the taxes and insurance on the Episcopal Residence, and of the taxes on the other land owned by the fund. These items last year amounted to several hundred dollars more than the receipts. The consequence of this was that the capital of the fund had to be impaired to this extent for these payments. This is all wrong, and arises from a carelessness as to the object and its importance.

THE LENTEN SEASON.

In a week from now the Church's season of special devotion will begin, and it never came in a time when we needed more its help. Let the work of self-examination, and penitence, and prayer and good living be, by the help of God's grace, deep and earnest and personal and continued. Let each one begin with motive, and thoughts, and conversation, and association, and expenditure, and ruling ambition, and see wherein there has been fault, and should be honest change. Let more intentness in private devotion, and painstaking effort in the religious life of the family, and a conscientious attendance at church, and an abstinence, social and physical, be called in to help the work which we have in hand. Set yourself at some religious work, in the Sunday School, or in parish visiting, or by placing an hour or two of your week at your rector's direction. Do some honest good reading, and resolve on a distinct advance in religious and Churchly intelligence before the season is over.

For us in the Church much depends upon the right use of the season. If we lose it, we lose very much that cannot be made up during the entire year.

THE MISSOURI RIVER BISHOPS.

The Bishops whose jurisdictions border on the Missouri river have had several meetings to consider interests which are common to them all, in the matter of education, church building, &c. They organized themselves into the Western Church Building Society for the purpose of endeavoring to arrest the attention of the country to the religious needs consequent upon the rapid settlement of the states over which they have charge.

They have just put out a statement and appeal. It bears evidence of having been drafted mainly by the nervous hand of the Senior Bishop. We give the points of it below, which will be of main interest to those to whom this paper comes. :

JANUARY 1, 1882.

Dear Brethren:—Two years ago there was a meeting of the trans-Mississippi Bishops at Davenport, Iowa. They were perplexed and burdened by the vast responsibilities which the Church had laid upon them. They needed each other's counsel and prayers. They desired co-operation in educational and missionary work. These brotherly meetings have drawn them closely together. They ask the privilege of laying before you their plans.

BROTHERHOOD.

There is entire unity of feeling among us. No party strife—no jealousies—no discussions—no entangling alliances mar our work. We have one motto: "Preach Christ and work the Church."

THE CHURCH'S MISSION.

The Church in this new land has a two-fold mission—to lead wandering folk to God, Our Father, and to heal divisions among God's children. The Gospel is not a doctrine. It is the Revelation of God, our Saviour. We must "preach the kingdom of God," and Jesus Christ, its King. We would win sinners by the love of Christ. We would hold up the "olive branch," of God's peace over Christian strife. The things which separate God's children are human opinions. The things about which they agree are the truths of the "faith once delivered to the saints."

THE FIELD.

The country entrusted to our care comprises 995,603 square miles, which does not include New Mexico and Montana. It is capable of sustaining the entire population of the United States. No part of our goodly national inheritance is richer in agricultural, mineral and mechanical resources. It has thousands of miles of navigable rivers, and gigantic corporations are extending railways into every portion of this vast territory. Three national highways to the Pacific pass through our borders.

THE POPULATION.

The people of every tongue and clime are coming here. Over one hundred thousand new homes are made every year. These diverse kindreds are received by the Anglo Saxon to be molded into a new race. They receive our language, our customs, government and laws. The Church of the Saxon carries in its hands an open Bible. Its condition of fellowship is faith in the Incarnate Saviour as contained in the Apostles' Creed.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE WEST.

There are men living who can remember when there were less than ten thousand souls west of Detroit, Michigan; when the entire mail of the Northwest was brought to that border village once a week on horseback. Each year immigration has increased until the land begins to swarm with millions of souls.

DIFFICULTIES.

Infidelity is everywhere. It is open, aggressive and earnest. It uses every means of attack—the daily press, the lecture, tracts, books and personal effort. The Church of Rome claims a very large population. It would control the future by its schools, which are found in all centres of influence. The divisions of Christians hinder Christian work. Worldliness, irreligion and open sin draw multitudes away from God.

NOT FEARFUL.

We are not afraid of the issue. The Church was sent here to accept this wager of battle. Our only fear is lest we fail to do God's work. The Church cannot fail if she works in God's way with His strength and help. "If God be for us who can be against us."

EDUCATION.

The greatest work which man can do is to educate this new race for the Lord's work. In humble faith we have commenced our schools. They are in their infancy, and yet they are in the fore-front of educational work. They have no superior for scholarship, culture and Christian nurture. We are not rivals. Our work is in perfect harmony. Our only rivalry is to strive to do all work well.

GENERAL WORK.

We recognize the fact that the age demands thorough scholarship. The Church must have an educated ministry. Its leaders must be the peers of all true scholars. We have adopted "THE BISHOP SEABURY MISSION," FARIBAULT, as our Theological School. It has an able corps of professors, who are devout Christians and loyal Churchmen. It has a high reputation. It has proved the wisdom of training men in the west for western work. We desire to have it pre-eminent for Biblical Study. Our Church is behind many others in the study of the Sacred Scriptures which can alone make men wise unto Salvation. We mean that this reproach shall be done away. Seabury Mission will receive all of our Theological students who desire a full course of Theology. Others will be trained as they have been in their respective dioceses. It has no aid from any educational society. It relies on the alms of God's people. We ask for it the endowment of its professorships. We also ask the endowments of scholarships, which will be used for such diocese as the founder may direct."

It goes on then to declare that Griswold College, Davenport, Iowa, has been adopted as the College, declares that it has a real property worth $150,000, and $55,000 of endowment, that its course of study is thorough and its students show careful training, and appeals for the endowment of professorships and scholarships.

After speaking of the schools and needs in other quarters, it goes on then to speak of those in this Diocese:

MISSOURI.—In the early days of western missionary work, loving hearts saw that Missouri was the key to the Southwest. They commenced Christian schools, which for a time prospered. The civil war overwhelmed them in utter ruin. Bishop Robertson came to the diocese in the darkest hour of its history. It has taken all his energy to care for missionary work. It is a grief that the Church has had no diocesan schools in such a field.

The way is now open to establish them with certainty of success. The Sisterhood of the Diocese has had for some years a day school of the highest character—the School of the Good Shepherd. Its reputation for scholarship and Christian culture has brought many applications which cannot be received for lack of room. With steadily growing numbers it finds itself compelled at the beginning of its seventh year, after receiving nearly one hundred scholars, including thirty boarders, into its leased building, to turn away many others. An effort is to be made this year to build, for which we need $10,000 to supplement twice as much more which the diocese will raise. A valuable property, which cost $30,000, and erected for college purposes, has been secured on a splendid site, for a much smaller amount, in the healthy and central town of Macon City, where there has been maintained for six years a flourishing Church Academy, which must have more room. Fifteen thousand dollars has been subscribed for this object in the town and diocese. We must have $10,000 to finish and equip the building. Then it will sustain itself and be a great help to Church work. For both of these schools the Bishop needs scholarships for the children of missionaries, of whom are two thirds of his working clergy.

BROTHERS, AND SISTERS IN THE LORD: We have no personal claim upon your bounty. We are your servants for Jesus sake. The Church sent us here to represent our Saviour Jesus Christ. It would be treason if we made no ventures of faith for his glory. We pledge you that we will be faithful almoners. No debt shall hinder our work. We will only build as we have means. Year by year some of you will surrender your stewardships to other hands. If you cannot aid us by present gifts in our sore need, cannot you remember us in your wills and provide that your name may be linked with work which will go on forever. We will give you our love, our gratitude and daily prayers.

SIGNED.—H. B. Whipple, Bishop of Minnesota; Thomas H. Vail, Bishop of Kansas; Robert H. Clarkson, Missionary Bishop of Nebraska and Colorado; Daniel S. Tuttle, Missionary Bishop of Utah; Charles F. Robertson, Bishop of Missouri; John F. Spalding, Missionary Bishop of Colorado and Wyoming; Wm. Hobart Hare, Missionary Bishop of Niobrara; William Stevens Perry, Bishop of Iowa; Leigh R. Brewer, Missionary Bishop of Montana.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Bishop has appointed the Rev. J. M. Curtis of Louisiana Dean of the Mexico Convocation, in place of the Rev. J. R. Gray, who has removed from the Diocese.

—At Grace Church in this city the work of removing the mound on which the building has always stood has been resumed on the southwestern side, the northern half having been cleared several years ago. The purpose then is to let the church down to the grade of the street, and put it in shape, and then remove the remainder of the mound. The church used to be on the general level, but the streets were all years ago cut down, and the elevation has been an unsightly object. At one time the parish raised a considerable amount to terrace the ground, but the project was abandoned, and it was seen that ultimately the church must be brought down to the grade. Only when this is done can any of its superfluous land be available to help build a proper church.

—The Rev. Wm. P. Case, recently of Somerville, Tenn., has been called to Christ Church, Springfield. He is a Churchman born, and his father was a clergyman in the East. He was however ordained in Nebraska, and his clerical work has been in the West.

—The general Society for Aged and Disabled Clergymen in New York has kindly made an appropriation of $100 a year to one of the older clergymen of the Diocese, in a case in which there was none the less need because it was borne so quietly and uncomplainingly.

—The Rev. Thos. H. Gordon, who for somewhat over a year past has been in charge of the Holy Innocents Church, Oak Hill, has resigned his rectorship, to take effect at Easter.

—The Rev. Albert E. Wells, who has for a number of years had charge of the parishes of Mound City and then of Chester in Southern Illinois, has been called to the rectorship of St. Mary's Church, First Ward, Kansas City, which Mr. Holeman has been desirous for some time to resign on account of his necessary absence for a portion of the year in Florida, lately on account of his health.

—The Rev. Mr. Gray left on the first of this month to take charge of his new work in Greeley, Colorado. His parish in Columbia, in which he has done so good a work, should not be left long without a rector.

—On the 15th ult., the Bishop of New Jersey, at the request of the Bishop of this Diocese, advanced the Rev. Sturges Allen to the Priesthood, and he has since been transferred to the Diocese of New York.

—The Bishop of the Diocese has requested the Bishop of New York to admit Mr. Floyd E. West to Deacon's Orders. Mr. W. has been during his candidature assisting in the work of St. Ann's Church, New York, and attending lectures at the General Theological Seminary. He will in the spring take up his residence and begin his work in the northwestern part of the Diocese, in a country where we have never had any regular service.

—The Rev. B. E. Reed has been appointed the preacher of the sermon before the next Diocesan Convention in May.

—The subscriptions to the News in Kansas City had run down because there was no one there to remind the subscribers of renewal and get new names. A lady in one of the parishes was asked kindly to undertake the duty, and she sent in 23 names with the money, regretting only that her health would not allow her to do more, as she thought a hundred copies ought to be taken there. This only shows what can be done with any effort. In some towns there has always been a large list, because there is a careful minister or woman who takes the matter up and puts it through. In some towns, however, of considerable size, where one would little expect it, there is hardly a copy taken either of the News or any other Church paper. It is foolish timidity or carelessness which restrains the minister from urging the reading of Church literature and news.

—We find in the Rich Hill local paper the following item: "A number of Episcopalians, ladies and gentlemen, met at the Masonic hall Monday evening, and preliminary steps were taken towards organizing the Rich Hill Parish and securing the service of a clergyman to hold monthly, or semi-monthly services, also to organize a church choir, and to prosecute the work of adding to the building fund. There are a sufficient number of communicants in the city to necessitate an organization. Now that the ladies are interesting themselves in the work we expect soon to see something accomplished."

—The Rev. Mr. Evans who has been giving his services to St. Jude's Church, Monroe, since the resignation of the Rev. Mr. Scheetz, with great acceptance to the people, will continue to do so until next summer.

—The last number of the Parish Record of the Church of the Holy Communion in this city says that their Parish Air Society, "acting on a hint given by the Bishop in the News, sent Mr. Norrish to the Church of the Advent, and had the windows and doors well weatherstripped, thus making the building comfortable and attractive. The Rector of the parish announces that on every Friday evening during Lent he proposes to deliver a course of lectures on Indifference, Skepticism, Sin, Repentance and the Sole Ground of Hope.

—The Rev. Dr. Runcie has his hours in the Rectory between 9 and 12 in the morning, when not called away, and always on Monday evenings, when he remains at home and receives all who call on him.

--The Rev. Mr. Betts is lecturing on Sunday night, at Trinty Church, St. Louis, on the Rubrics.

--At a large meeting held in St. Louis on the 30th the Rev. Dr. Fulton as chairman of the committee on resolutions proposed an address to our Senators and Representatives in Congress condemnatory of Mormon polygamy in Utah, which were singularly strong and compact, and which were carried in a meeting of large size and marked intelligence. The Bishop of the Diocese moved their adoption in an address. Other addresses were made by Dr. Nicolls, Judge Breckenridge and General Noble.

--The young ladies in Christ Church have in strong force organized a Guild, which is likely to produce good results. They meet every week at Mrs. Fullerton's. Mrs. Dexter Tiffany is the President, and Mrs. Jesse January and Mrs. Newon Crane and Mrs. Chas. Thompson are at the head of departments. The objective point of the work is the decoration of the Church, or else the change in the arrangements of the Chapel. This last is a matter of no secondary importance, as giving rooms for the societies and parish work.

--On the Bishop's recent visit to St. Charles he by invitation conducted religious services at Lindenwood College for young ladies, and made to them an address.

--Mr. Vivian Tippet has been elected President of the Church Sunday-school Association for the ensuing year. There is to be a meeting of it in St. George's Church, on Sunday afternoon, 19th inst., at half past four o'clock.

--Trinity Church in this city is to give an entertainment on Monday evening, 20th inst., in Pickwick Hall, at which there are to be tableaux, music, refreshments, &c.

--There is to be a meeting of the St. Joseph Convocation in Christ Church, St. Joseph, to begin to-day, at which Bishop Vail is expected and it is hoped that Bishop Burgess may be present. The Rev. Hatch of Maryville, having purchased to himself a good degree, is to be advanced to the Priesthood. One would have been present, whose coming to our side of the line was always welcomed, but dear old Chaplain Woart has been ordered to California.

--The Rev. John W. Dunn has gone East again for the purpose of soliciting for the Church in Independence.

--Grace Church in this city is now holding its Sunday services in the hall of the Medical College, the old Orphan's Home, for a month or six weeks, until its church can be removed and let down to the grade, work on which is now being actively prosecuted. The contractor engages to do the work without damage to the building.

--The Rev. Surges Allen, Deacon of this Diocese, was admitted to the Order of Priests on Sunday, January 18th, at St. George's Church, Newburgh, New York, by the Rt. Rev. John Scarborough, Bishop of New Jersey, officiating for the Bishop of New York. The candidate was presented by the Rev. Octavius Applegate, Rector of the Parish. Previous to the service of ordination, a class of sixteen was presented for the Rite of Confirmation, the result of Mr. Allen's work since taking charge of St. George's Mission Chapel, on October 1, 1881.

ST. PAUL'S, PALMYRA.

On Tuesday, 17th ult., St. Paul's Church, Palmyra, was consecrated. Besides the Bishop of the diocese and the rector, Dr. Wainwright, there were present Bishop Burgess, the Rev. Dr. Runcie, and Messrs. Leonard of Atchison, Curtis of Louisiana, Ethelbert and Robert Talbot of Macon, Richardson of Moberly, Elliott of Quincy, and Evans of Palmyra. At the service on the evening before the Bishop of Quincy preached a sermon appropriate for the service of the morrow. It was listened to with rapt attention.

On Tuesday morning a telegram was received from Bishop Seymour, who had been expected to preach the consecration sermon, saying that he would not be able to come on account of a failure of the trains to connect. His duty had to be taken by the Bishop of the Diocese. All the clergy, vested for the consecration, came around in procession to the front vestibule, where the Bishop was received by the vestry. The Rector read he request for consecration, and the Rev. Dr. Runcie read the sentence of consecration. The property had been deeded to the Bishop in trust. There was a number of communicants in attendance from Hannibal, Monroe and other places.

After the service all adjourned to the parlors in the rear of the church, where they partook of a bountiful lunch, which had been prepared and spread by the ladies of the parish. For two hours the time was spent in delightful social intercourse, and this feature added greatly to the pleasure of the day. At half past three a wedding took place in the church, and the throng more than filled the building.

At night the sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. Runcie, and was marked by all the directness and unction which are characteristic of the utterances of the rector of St. Joseph. Thus passed a series of services in which all seemed to have great profit and pleasure.

The church has been already described. It is built of cut stone from the old chapel, and holds easily over 200 persons. It has cost, beside the ground and the furniture, about $3,500, and is a marvel of cheapness, as it is finished throughout in hard wood, has fine glass, and besides chancel, vestry room, vestibule and finished cellar, has parlors in the rear 18x36 feet. The music for the services was marked by the good taste and care in preparation which have for years marked the services of this church.

MEXICO CONVOCATION.

The Mexico Convocation met in Calvary Church, Louisiana, Mo., Wednesday night, Jan. 31, 1882. Present, Rev. J. M. Curtis, Dean; Revs. E. R. Richardson, of Moberly; J. L. Gay, of Fayette; P. Wager, of Mexico and P. G. Roberts of St. Louis. After services and a sermon by the Rev. E. R. Richardson, adjourned to meet at the Rectory at 10 a. m., Thursday, "Purification Day." After the proper services for the day, Holy Communion was celebrated. Convocation met at the Rectory for business. The Bishop being expected by 2 p. m. train, the time was spent in discussing matters of interest to the missionary work of the Convocation, its condition and wants. Of the ten counties in its boundaries, in 7 of them are Church organization and services. As soon as the railroad is opened to Troy, the Dean will visit it and hold services occasionally. The Bishop arrived in time to be present at the services in the afternoon, the sermon by the Rev. P. Wager. At the night services the sermon was preached by Rev. P. G. Robert of St. Louis. Friday morning the Convocation met at the Rectory, the Bishop in the chair. The Rev. P. Wager was elected secretary, Mexico was selected as the place of meeting on Wednesday night, May 31st, the opening sermon by the Dean. At which time it is expected that the Rector of the Parish will be instituted and there will be confirmation. Their order and the subject for discussion will be published in the NEWS. Services in the afternoon, by the Rev. J. L. Gay of Fayette. At night, after services, the Bishop preached.

Thus closed the Convocation which was a decided success, the services were very well attended, the Dean was much cheered by the presence of his brother clergymen. He is to be congratulated upon having such "helping hands," and people who appreciate the services. The willing aid they gave, made the visit of the clergy one long to be remembered by them for the pleasure they enjoyed.

Yours truly,

P. WAGER, Sec.

LITURGICAL WORSHIP.

Professor Samuel M. Hopkins, D. D., writing in the current number of the Presbyterian Review on the liturgical movement in the Presbyterian body, says: "The number of Presbyterian ministers who openly advocate the use of some form of prayer is large, and the number of those who hope and anxiously wait for it, much larger. That the churches themselves are ready to welcome some such improvement is plain enough. That the ministry themselves also feel the want of a liturgy is constantly showing itself. It is by no means uncommon for Presbyterian ministers to use the Episcopal marriage service from preference, of which several cases have come lately within the writer's knowledge; the officiating ministers in these cases being also doctors of divinity. The same thing appears from the disposition to borrow scraps and phrases from the prayerbook, which too often have the effect of purpurei panni sewn on the somewhat threadbare garment of the Presbyterian prayer. This sort of thing is hardly of the highest order of ecclesiastical integrity. We boast our conscientious preference for a plain diet of bread and water; we shall never consent, ho, no! to allow French dishes on our board. But we are quite willing to convey scraps and even whole pieces from the better-furnished tables of our neighbors; A very large number of the children of Presbyterian families and many of the cultivated and tasteful of our members have sought a more cheerful, more varied, more sympathetic service in another communion. On the other hand, the cases are very few, and owing only to special causes, in which any persons, Episcopally educated have come over to the communion of the Presbyterian Church. The tracks are all one way. It is very largely due to this fact that of all the sects in the United States, the Episcopal is growing the most rapidly at the present time. It is forming new congregations and organizing new dioceses with extraordinary rapidity. On the other hand, the Presbyterian Church is almost stationary. It requires a close calculation to show that she is even holding her own. To make the preaching of the Gospel consist exclusively in the delivery of sermons is the fatal mistake of Presbyterianism. All appropriate worship of God through Jesus Christ is the preaching of the Gospel. Devotional singing is setting forth the praises of Christ as our Prophet, Priest and King. The Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, are full of the Gospel. In the Lord's Supper, Christ is set forth evidently crucified for us. There is more of Christ in the Te Deum and the Litany alone than is commonly found in two entire Presbyterian services."

JEWISH MISSIONS.

One of the most interesting Christmas festivals in New York, this year, was that of the Hebrew children belonging to the Missionary School of the Church Society for promotion Christianity among the Jews. About fifty bright and happy little ones assembled, accompanied by parents and friends. There was something inexpressibly touching and significant in the recitation by them of the old Messianic prophecies, and the singing of carols relating to the birth of the infant King of Israel. Many of the older children have become Christians under the instructions of this Christian school, and received Baptism and Confirmation. In some instances the parents also, who are for the most part well to-do and above any temptation from temporal advantage, have embraced Christianity, and are living perfectly consistent lives. The Society is now engaged in building up a similar work among the children in Baltimore.

There are now engaged in Jewish Missions, under the Society, Missionaries at New York, Chicago, Baltimore, St. Louis, Cleveland, Louisville and New Orleans, who are doing a quiet but good work—finding many of the supposed difficulties of this field to disappear before effort. There is also a large body of the parochial clergy co-operating in more than thirty dioceses and jurisdictions.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis. Mo.

To the Editor of the Sunday-school Department of the Church News:

The Church Sunday School Association, held their monthly meeting at 4.30 on Sunday afternoon, the 22nd inst., at St. George's Sunday-school room, with a larger attendance than has graced their meetings for sometime. At the last preceding meeting a committee had been appointed to select a subject for discussion and reported that they had selected for the present meeting the first answer in the Church Catechism. This was taken up and several of those present who had considered the matter expressed their views, after which it was determined that the second answer should be the subject for consideration at the February meeting. The President and officers having held office for a longer time than was originally intended, declined serving any longer, and the following election took place: President, V. W. Tippet of Holy Communion Sunday-school; Vice-president, Owens of —; Secretary, Nelson of St. George's; Treasurer, Mr. Triplett of Christ Church. The outgoing and incoming Presidents made brief remarks, and the meeting closed by singing "Sun of My Soul," followed by prayer by Mr. Owens.

The next meeting will be held in St. George's Sunday-school room at 4.30 p. m., on Sunday, February 19th, when it is hoped many more teachers will be present and take part in the discussion, which is conducted in a conversational manner. OBSERVER.

FAMILIES IN THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL

There is a strong cord binding the true Christian family to the several departments the church. Yet how many of our families occupying the pew are content therewith, and are uninterested and indifferent concerning the various channels of usefulness needing helpers to advance the cause of our Lord Jesus Christ. Perhaps the Sunday-school work is neglected more by many of our Church families than any other work of Church life. The family being a divine institution, in order to maintain its sacredness and enjoy heavenly blessings, should form an important part of every organization effected through Bible counsel. It would be fool-hardy for any one in our day to proclaim that the Sunday school is not of God. Thousands of precious souls are through this holy instrumentality brought to Christ in the pardon of sin, and admitted into the holy family.

Every head of the family in the Church is expected to contribute, not only money, not only the children, but himself also. Wherever this is possible and practiced, our success among the families outside of the Church is very much increased. It is undeniable that one reason why so many unsaved families with their children fail to attend S. S., is found in the fact that so many professionally saved families idle the Sunday-school hour away by non-attendance. The family pew in congregational service, when occupied by all the members of the household, is an impressive sight—father, mother, sons, and daughters sitting together listening to the precious gospel, singing the good songs of Zion, and worshipping God in the "beauty of holiness." Thus should it be in our Sunday-schools. When the hour of Sunday-school arrives, parents with their children should direct their feet toward the school of Bible instruction. What a hallowed effect this would have upon the boys and girls; how salutary an influence it would exert upon our non-going neighbors. Moreover, our own individual experience would be much better, and our hopes of immortality would be more assuring. We have our intermediate, primary, and other departments of Sunday-school life, to which should be added the parental room, for delinquents. Appoint the little ones as committees of invitation, each little boy and girl asking their own parents to attend the services of the Bible-school. The result of "Families in the Sunday school" will be marked in several respects.

First. It will enlarge the attendance, and thus increase the interest. The larger the school, the greater the interest. This is very desirable. Every Sunday-school board of officers should look up this important part of their duties.

Second. It will be mutually beneficial. Children will be encouraged, parents will rejoice, and all together will inspire many others to "come, taste, and see that the Lord is good."

Third. It will add to the enjoyments of our home circles. The lessons, with the excellent helps, will be more interesting. We will read, we will talk, we will sing, we will pray all about the Sunday-school lesson.

Fourth. The souls of the little folks will be trained for God. They will be developed in early life in the right paths. Seed will find good soil in which to grow and become fruitful. God's blessing will rest upon them, and the church will be greatly blessed through them. "All thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children."—[The Rev. W. Adair Dickson in Our Bible Teacher.

Here are two pictures which present two different sides of the work of a Sunday-school missionary. The first is from the pen of a missionary of the American Sunday-school Union in North Carolina. He writes: "Happiest of Christian workers ought the missionary of the American Sunday-school Union to be! Here, for instance, is my Evergreen Hill Union Sunday-school marked attention by the people to the gospel, and a gracious revival season. Our efforts, made a few weeks ago, to establish a Sunday-school in this logcabin at the base of Jump-off Mountain, have been greatly blessed, and now it is a centre of gracious influences." The other picture comes from a missionary of the same society in the Indian Territory. He says: "On my last trip, the first night out, I lost my way in the woods, and slept under the open sky,—wolves howling and wildcats screaming around. But I organized one Sunday-school in a settlement of whites and half-breeds, and another, the next day, in a negro settlement, where I slept on the floor of a negro cabin, and ate at the table of those who had been slaves. Next I started a Sunday school among whites, half-breeds, and fullblood Cherokees. Returning, walked through a drenching rain, mud and water ankle deep; then paddled in a canoe over a furious swollen river, full of drift wood, and then slept in an Indian cabin; and on Sunday started a Sunday-school in an English-speaking settlement."

A MISSIONARY of the American Sunday-school Union in Central Dakota states that at one of his schools, situated on the prairie, one mile from the nearest house, when a meeting was held to organize, the question was asked, "What shall we do for fuel, with which to warm the house?" Coal is there very expensive, and wood is scarce as well as high, so nearly all the farmers burn hay in their stoves at home. One of the young ladies suggested that each family bring some hay in their wagons when they came to Sunday-school. It was so decided, and the children are to twist the hay and place it in the wagons, ready to bring to the Sunday-school. The hay is twisted with the hands into long knots or skeins, resembling, somewhat, a large skein of yarn. It makes a hot fire but burns out quickly, which makes it necessary for one person to remain near the stove and act as fireman.

How to reach those outside of the Sunday-school how to deal with the growing scarcity of teachers in the populous districts of London, and what policy to pursue in regard to the morning Sunday-schools, were the three most important topics discussed at the recent autumnal convention of the London Sunday-school Union. The proposal to establish parlor classes auxiliary to the Sunday-school for those who could not be induced to attend the Sunday-school proper, was received with favor by many delegates, and the opinion was manifested that the real remedy for the scarcity of teachers was a fuller recognition of the Sunday-school as the most important work of the church. The feeling of the convention was in favor of the maintenance of the morning as well as the afternoon session of the Sunday-school.

SAYS the Sunday School Times. Unless we suffer, we can neither sing nor teach to best advantage. Whenever you find a poet or a preacher whose words touch the depths of your own heart, you may be sure that the depths of his heart have been stirred by experiences which were a sore trial to him in their time.

"Our sweetest songs are those Which tell of saddest thought."

And unless you have experiences which cause you "saddest thought," and which stir the depths of your heart, you must not expect to touch the depths of other hearts by your utterances. If you would have a true poet's or a true teacher's power, you must consent to pay its price.

ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.

My son, don't be in too great a hurry to accept "advanced opinions." It is "the thing" to be "advanced" in this progressive day and generation, but there's a heap of shallowness in it. Did you ever notice, my son, that the man who tells you he cannot believe the Bible is usually able to believe almost anything else? You will find men, my son, who turn with horror and utter disbelief from the Bible, and joyfully embrace the teachings of Buddha. It is quite the thing just now, son, for a civilized enlightened man, brought up in a Christian country and an age of wisdom, to be a Buddhist. And if you ask six men who profess Buddhism who Buddha was, one of them will tell you he was an Egyptian soothsayer, who lived two hundred years before Moses. Another will tell you that he brought letters from Phoenicia and introduced them in Greece; a third will tell you that she was a beautiful woman of Father India bound by her vows to perpetual chastity; a fourth will, with little hesitation, say he was a Brahama of the ninth degree and a holy disciple of Confucius; and of the other two one will frankly admit that he doesn't know, and the other will say, with some indecision, that he was either a dervish of the Nile (whatever that is), or a felo de se, he can't be positive which. Before you propose to know more than anybody and everybody else, my son, be very certain that you are at least abreast of two-thirds of your fellowmen. I don't want to suppress any inclination you may have toward genuine free thought, and careful, honest investigation, my son. I only want you to avoid the great fault of atheism in this day and generation; I don't want to see you try to build a six-story house on a one-story foundation. Before you criticise, condemn, and finally revise the work of creation, my son, be pretty confident that you know something about it as it is, and don't, as a man who is older in years and experience than yourself, don't, let me implore you, don't turn this world upside down and sit down upon it, and flatten it entirely out, until you have made or secured another one for the rest of use to live in while you demolished the old one. If ever you should develop into an "advanced" atheist, my son, just do that much for the rest of us.—[Burlington Hawkeye.

"I DON'T WANT A PLASTER,"

said a sick man to a druggist, "cant you give me something to cure me?" His symptoms were a lame back and disordered urine and were a sure indication of kidney disease. The druggist told him to use Kidney-Wort and a short time it effected a complete cure. Have you these symptoms? Then get a box or bottle to-day—before you become incurable. It is the cure; safe and sure.—[Knoxville Republican.

CHURCH YEAR IN RHYME.

With Advent we the year begin,
Prepare the way for CHRIST, the King!
Now Christmas sees in manger laid,
Jesus, in swaddling robes, arrayed,
Twelve days more th' Epiphany Star
Leads us like wise men from afar.
Ash Wednesday's fast begins our Lent,
Forty days in prayer are spent.
Good Friday sees CHRIST crucified,
For one and all the SAVIOUR died.
Easter! the LORD is risen to-day,
From the grave the stone is rolled away.
Ascension Day, the ascended LORD
Is to his Home in Heaven restored.
The HOLY GHOST, at Whitsun-Day,
Come down with us on earth to stay.
On Trinity, the heavenly host
Praise FATHER, SON and HOLY GHOST!
Twenty-five Sundays yet remain
Un til Advent comes again.

A little girl defining "bearing false witness against the neighbor," said, "it was when nobody did nothing, and somebody went and told it."

GET THE BOY'S HEART. Get hold of the boy's heart. Yonder locomotive with its thundering train comes like a whirlwind down the track, and a regiment of armed men might seek to arrest it in vain. It would crush them and plunge unheeding on. But there is a little lever in its mechanism that, at the pressure of a man's hand, will slack its speed, and in a moment or two bring it panting and still, like a whipped spaniel, at your feet. By the same little lever the vast steamship is guided hither and yonder, upon the sea, in spite of adverse wind and current. That sensitive and responsive spot by which a boy's life is controlled is his heart. With your grasp gentle and firm on that helm, you may pilot him whither you will. Never doubt that he has a heart. Bad and wilful boys very often have the tenderest heart, hidden away somewhere beneath incrustations of sin or behind barricades of pride. And it is your business to get at that heart, keep hold of it by sympathy, confiding in him, manifestly working only for his good, by little, indirect kindnesses, to his mother or sister, or even his pet dog. See him at his home, or invite him to yours. Provide him some little pleasures, set him to some little service of trust for you; love him practically. Any way and every way, rule him through his heart.—[S. S. Times.]

It is particularly pleasing to meet with polite children. We like their soft "please," cordial "thank you," and hearty "yes sir." We like to see them pick up mamma's gloves, hand papa's hat and stick, and jump to open the door for half-blind grandma, who is feeling with shaking hands after the knob.

A zealous Sunday school teacher, who had gathered up a class of boys hitherto neglected, was one morning after a regular lesson talking to them about the great evils of intemperance. Suddenly she said, "Boys, I wonder how people learn to drink?" A bright little fellow, son of a publican, said "I know; by tasting."—Children, don't forget this.

WHAT AILS YOU?

Is it a disordered liver giving you a yellow skin or costive bowels; which have resulted in distressing piles or do your kidneys refuse to perform their functions? If so, your system will soon be clogged with poisons. Take a few doses of Kidney-Wort and you'll feel like a new man—nature will throw off every impediment and each organ will be ready for duty. Druggists sell both the dry and liquid.—[Evansville Tribune.]

BOOK NOTICES.

AUTHORIZED REPORT OF THE SEVENTH CHURCH CONGRESS.—The papers and addresses produced at the Church Congress furnish the high water mark of thought in the Church on topics which at that time are burning. Our Conventions have to devote themselves so entirely to method and routine that there is little occasion for the discussions of principles. And how much less our Church newspapers are used than those of England for the statement and counterstatement of exacting questions, by those of authority is manifest to all. Some of the papers in the last Congress are as strong and to the point as any ever presented. Mr. Whittaker has published an entirely full and accurate report, and all should have it who desire to keep abreast of the times. Pp. 292. Paper $1.00. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

THE RECTOR OF ST. BARDOLPH'S by the Rev. Fredrick W. Shelton, L.L.D. Mr. Whittaker has republished this favorite book of the last generation, written by one of our most graceful writers. It tells, with humor and many quaint philosophizings, the story of the life and work of a country pastor, and the classes of persons in his parish, of his bachelorhood, and marrying, of his troubles and foibles, of his decay and at last his death. It should be in every parish library. All will laugh and cry over it. $1.25 post paid. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

MANUAL OF MISUSED WORDS.—O. P. Index, Publisher, Bangor, Maine. A clever little hand-book which exposes some common mistakes. It makes a trip, however, now and then. It says "I had rather be" is not good English. We usually think Prayer Book English is good enough. (Ps. 84: 6.)

THE CHILD'S ILLUSTRATED SCRIPTURE QUESTION BOOK. This reprint of an excellent little book gives in forty-five lessons from the Gospel, the whole of our Lord's life. Price 20 cents. T. Whittaker, New York.

LENTEN THOUGHTS.—This volume of meditations for every day in Lent, night and morning, following closely the spirit of the season as it proceeds is most stirring and wholesome. Some manuals are wholly unnatural; being adaptations in large part from Latin devotions they use terms and have a histrionic exaggeration which palls upon the senses. This is tender and strong, and will greatly help to make the season a reality. It is also appropriately clothed in handsome cloth and red edges. Pp. 217. 90 cents. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

The Christian Year. 1882. Kalendar for the People. Mounted for the vestry room. Price 50 cents, $5 per doz.

THE MEISTERSCHAFT SYSTEM WITH MODERN LANGUAGES. French. Parts I 13. We spoke a month or two ago of rare good sense of this method of imparting a knowledge of colloquial and correct French, both as to vocabulary and accent. Since then we have tried it practically still further, and after an experience of Ollendoff, Value, Ahu and other systems think this is by far the best. Five dollars is the price of membership in the school for each language, and it entitles the person to the books and the answers to all exercises transmitted. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey street, New York.

THE MIDWINTER (FEBRUARY) CENTURY. After the new cover, the first "midwinter issue" of the Century is chiefly distinguished by its unusual range of popular contributors, whose names of themselves awaken in the reader the desire to see their contributions. Of these are Ralph Waldo Emerson, Henry W. Longfellow, the late Dean Stanley, Mrs. Burnett, Mr. Howells, "H. H.," E. C. Stedman, each of whom has his special audience. Add to these attractive names the other features: A fine frontispiece portrait of George W. Cable, author of "Old Creole Days" and "The Grandissimes," with a sketch by Col. Warring; another of the unique and amusing "Tile Club" papers, illustrated by ten of the members; the text (somewhat abridged) of Mrs. Burnett's play of "Esmeralda," now running successfully at a New York theater; an illustrated account of the growing sport of Lawn Tennis, with full directions—and it will be seen that the number contains rare elements of popularity.

Mr. Emerson's paper is entitled "The Superlative," and is an incisive plea for temperance in speech conduct. Mr. Longfellow's melodious poem, "Hermes Trismegistus," celebrates, with characteristic human sympathy, a long-forgotten, semi-mythical author of Egypt. The subject of Dean Stanley's paper is the late Frederick W. Robertson, who is compared with Newton and Dr. Arnold, and pronounced "the greatest preacher of the nineteenth century." Mrs. Burnett's novel, "Through one Administration," is already provoking surmises as to what she is going to make of her interesting Washington material. Mr. Howells' "Modern Instance" bids fair to exceed in rapidity of action and in conciseness any of his previous books.

In the February number of the North American Review, Prof. Fisher of the Yale Divinity School, comes to the defense of the Christian Religion against the attacks of modern doubt and infidelity. No abler or more eminent advocate for the orthodox faith could be summoned into the controversy. He disclaims the position of a debater, and makes no direct reference to Col. Ingersoll's assaults. He shows that Christianity is no new thing whose present existence calls for justification or apology. It is inwrought with the very fibre and substance of the best part of modern institutions and civilization, and has contributed more than any other force to making them what they are. We are impressively invited to imagine what they would have been without its agency. The idea that Christianity has been a bane to mankind is very effectually disposed of by an appeal to history and the experience of the race. He claims that the Divine method was to select chosen people and lead them gradually up to the plane upon which the fullness of truth could be revealed to them with a possibility of being received and propagated. Therewas no sudden transformation of human nature, no violent sweeping away of old institutions and miraculous introduction of a new system, but instead of that the chosen people were dealt with as men of their own era, and those that surrounded or came in contact with them were similarly treated according to the requirements of the stage of progress reached from time to time. Hence the evils and abuses characteristic of ancient days were not suddenly rooted out, but were restrained and mitigated, while the forces were set at work which were to effect their final annihilation. This idea of the gradualness of revelation avoids a vast array of difficulties, but at the same time it approximates the process of religious development to that of political and social development and the growth of civilization general. Other articles in the February number of Review are: "Do the Spoils Belong to the Victor?" by President Andrew D. White; "A Remedy for Railway Abuses," by Isaac L. Rice; "Reputation in Virginia," by Senator John W. Johnston; and "The Lancet and the Law," by Henry Bergh.

ST. NICHOLAS for February Opens with a story of the adventures of a Mexican prince, illustrated with a beautiful frontispiece by F. H. Ljunggren.

Other short stories are: "The Man in the Moon," a tale full of humor, by Sophie Swett, with pictures by George D. Brush;—"The Round Stone," a Hungarian Folk-story, contributed by the Hon. Jeremiah Curtin, and strikingly illustrated—"Cornwallis's Buckles," an incident of Revolutionary times, in which figure a small girl, a cow, and the English commander-in-chief;—and "Lady Ann's Valentine," a tale full of interest and tender feeling, by Sargent Flint, with a fine picture.

"Men-and-Animal-Shows, and How They are Moved About" is the title of an entertaining article by William O. Stoddard, crammed with information about the doings and fittings of circus-menageries. There are many illustrations to this, the first half of the article; the conclusion is promised for the March number.

Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the Editor, relates in this month's installment of her serial, "Donald and Dorothy," a gallant rescue by the hero, who bravely stops a runaway horse that was bearing off the heroine, a picture of the exciting scene being furnished by Frank T. Merrill; and Edward Eggleston, in his serial, "The Hoosier School-boy," carries the young people of the story through stirring scenes of frontier school-life, as it was in his own boyhood. Dr. Eggleston also describes, "A Curious Drama" which he saw in London, and in which Dr. George MacDonald and his family represented scenes from the second part of the "Pilgrim's Progress." Mr. Harry M. Kieffer, in "Recollections of a Drummer-boy," gives graphic accounts of camp-life in winter during the late war, and of the terrible scenes on the field after a battle.

The February WIDE AWAKE opens brilliantly as an after-Christmas number, giving at the outset the "Compliment of the Season" and a sweet little valentine, along with the Third Prize Frontispiece, "The King is Dead—Long Live the King!" with which "A King's Merry Christmas," the poem suits well. All this is followed by a jolly story for the boys, "A Memorable Skate to Long-Level Lock," well illustrated. "How the Little Steadmans spent Christmas," "How Freddy scared Tom," "One Night's Muskrat Trapping," "The Breaking-up of the Ice Bridge," and "Christyann," complete a brilliant galaxy of short stories. Among the illustrated poems are two noticeable ones, "Grand-mamma's Valentine," and "The Rose and the Waif," having three beautiful drawings. The whole number is finely illustrated, there being no less than six full-page drawings. Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston Publishers.

The Reign of Christ on Earth, or the Voice of the Church in All Ages Concerning the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer. By Daniel T. Taylor. Revised and edited with a Preface by H. L. Hastings. 600 pp. Price, $1.25. Boston; Scriptural Tract Repository; H. L. Hastings, 47 Cornhill.

The following are among the contents of the February number of The Homiletic Monthly: "Opposition to the Truth," by John Hall, D.D.; "Christ's Statements as to the Fact and Eternity of Future Punishment—a Discourse to Young Men," by S. V. Leech, D.D.; "Parental Responsibility," by W. F. V. Bartlett, D.D.; "Is 'iving a Help or a Hindrance?" by Justin D. Fulton, D.D.; "The Perfectness of the Character of Jesus," by T. H. Skinner, D.D. Young Men's Service:—"An Important Question Answered," by Edward P. Ingersoll, D.D.; "Vicious Bondage," by Herrick Johnson, D.D. The Power of Persuasive Speech," by Prof. E. P. Thwing. Then there are a number of articles under "Preachers Exchanging Views," and "Living Issues for Pulpit Treatment." "A United Effort Against Polygamy" is a noteworthy appeal to the clergy to assist in arousing public opinion against the crime of Polygamy. Price single number, 25 cents; per year, $2.50. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

HEARTILY RECOMMENDED.

Don't condemn a good thing because you have been deceived by worthless nostrums. Parker's Ginger Tonic has cured many in this section, of kidney and nervous disorders, and we recommend it heartily to such sufferers. News.

THE CHURCH NEWS

*This is the Lenten Ember week, in which one of the prayers for those who are to be admitted into Holy Orders is to be used daily at Morning and Evening Prayers.

THE good results of the Anti-Mormon agitation through the country are seen in the fact that the motion in Congress against the admission there of polygamists, which at the last session was given only an indifferent go by, was a few days ago passed by an unanimous vote. There is an article on this subject on page 301 of the February Homiletic Monthly.

It is fair to say that in our notice of the Living Church Annual last month we were mistaken in saying that it had included in the calendar names which the English Church had thrown out at the Reformation. The Living Church, which without calling us by name, sufficiently designates us by saying that we are the best of our class, that is, of Diocesan papers, recalls us to our duty.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

As this building approaches completion, it begins to appear more definitely what the final cost is going to be. Items about which in the distance there was uncertainty, have now a clear, and in some cases a disagreeable prominence and size. Amid it all comes out the fact of which those who thought ahead were always very clear, that the amount subscribed is very far from being equal to the needs. Probably this announcement may occasion some surprise among those who thought the statement that there would be no debt on the building when finished was based upon a subscription equal to the need. But it was all along said that the pledges would not cover the cost of the furnace and the plumbing.

We are of the opinion that the Trustees have been too easy and reticent as to the prospective financial needs. The public should not have been left for a moment in doubt that a large amount must yet be raised before the Hospital can be opened free of debt. They should have had a committee out collecting the old pledges and securing new ones. Very soon the building will be finished, and the contractors will be wanting their money, and then a loan must be negotiated to pay them. The plumbing bills which, it was thought, would come to $800, reach the sum of $2,800; and at least $12,000 more will be needed, we are informed, to pay for the building.

We take it for granted that the money given distinctly for a chapel will be held in reserve and not be used, since the chapel has not yet been built, against the time when it will be erected.

Need there be urgency that effort be immediately put forth, to make good the pledge that the Hospital shall be completed without debt, so that this charity may not be compelled to begin its work in its new home with a paralyzing incubus upon it.

ROOM AT THE FRONT.

It is noteworthy that the two large and wealthy churches in New York, St. George's and Calvary, still continue, as they have done for a year past, to be without rectors, although several ministers have been called by each. Now another, Ascension, in New York, of great importance, is made vacant by the death of Dr. Cotton Smith. St. Stephen's, Philadelphia, one of the most important in that city, has only just been filled, after calling in vain many times. Those who were called to these parishes were already well placed. There is plenty of room apparently at the front, and an unsatisfied demand for first class men.

It has been suggested that our churches do as some of the denominations about us have done of late years, look abroad for supplies. The Presbyterians called Dr. McCosh to Princeton College, and Drs. Hall and Bevan to their largest churches in New York. The Congregationalist called Dr. Taylor and the Dutch Reformed called Dr. Ormiston to their largest congregations in New York respectively. The Roman Catholics would be nowhere if they depended for pastors on the American supply.

The keen material life, the large immediate results of business in this country, is absorbing our best young men. The older colleges were all founded on religious principle and largely to keep up the supply of a learned ministry. The result lately shows however, that but a small proportion of the graduates enter the ministry.

Those in positions to know say that the difficulty of securing rectors for these large churches does not come from the impossible tests exacted. It is said that a minister from Canada recently called to Calvary, New York, with, it is said, a salary of $10,000, and who declined, was but a very ordinary preacher. A gentleman who is said to have been just called to St. George's, New York, at a salary of $15,000, (doubtful we should say) and the handsome rectory, has a simple, earnest style of delivery, which however draws large numbers of cultivated people, not affected by scholarly discourses.

These are indications quite worth considering in summing up the condition of religious life, the need of a ministry and that which is now especially required. The latest report is that the Rev. Dr. Courtney of Chicago, one of our English importations, is likely to be called to the Ascension, New York. His style and character are markedly simple and direct.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

May I ask space, to add the following names to the list of friends mentioned in the January number of the NEWS? Miss Barrington of Springfield, Miss Ella Mansfield and Mrs. Emily Brown, of Kirkwood. It is to be regretted that "Fairs" are ever necessary, but since the need exists we are thankful for every success, and grateful to those through whose aid it is made more complete.

The walls of the Church of the Holy Faith are now ready and waiting for the carpenter. It was found best to send East for lumber. We are sure of at least one handsome stained-glass window. Judge Prince ordered one in New York, to be a memorial to his deceased wife. M. C. D.

ST. GEORGE'S LADIES' SOCIETY.

Editor Church News.

Will you please give the Ladies' Parish Aid Society of St. George's Church mention in the NEWS for having made garments and packed two boxes for missionaries this winter. One box, valued at $146.00, for a minister's wife and seven children. The other box, valued at $58.00, for the three children of one of our missionaries.

Respectfully yours,

SECRETARY AND TREASURER,
St. George's L. A. S.

PERSONAL.

—Of the Rev. Dr. Cotton Smith, who recently died, one of his laymen said that he was always occupied, heart and soul, in some work for improving the condition of the poor around him, and wore out a splendid constitution by devotion to this work. Under his auspices the first successful attempt to erect a model tenement was made, and a block of them is now under the management of an association in his parish. There are nearly 3,000 children in the mission schools connected with his church, and during his rectorship more than a million of dollars has been given to charitable work.

—The ranks of the old evangelical clergy of our Church have been reduced by the recent death of four very able men—Rev. Drs. John Cotton Smith, Dalrymple, Hoff, and John S. Stone.

—Bishop Stevens, of Philadelphia, is president of the new University Club in that city, and is said to be the only ecclesiastical personage who ever held such a position.

—Bishop Howe, of Central Pennsylvania, in the recent commemoration of his being fifty years in Holy Orders, was presented by Rev. Dr. Hopkins with a pastoral staff, and was in an address told all about the mystical significance of its jewels and various woods and inscriptions. The Bishop seemed to be strangely obtuse to the lore. In an address later he said gallantly, while praising his clergy, that he would have to attribute much of their excellence to their wives. The Bishop is a nephew of the Presiding Bishop. He told the story that after his baptism as a little child, he was taken to his home, which was not far distant from the church. The servant undressed him, and left him for a moment, and he ran off with his abbreviated white garment to the church, and his father being there still, heard his pattering bare feet. He early showed proclivities for the linen ephod.

—Bishop Griswold wore short clothes and silk stockings to the end of his days, and the Bishop of Central Pennsylvania wishes that he could see them restored, as being in his judgment, a most dignified and elegant attire. The American Bishops at the Lambeth Conference were the only ones who did not wear knee breeches. Bishop Griswold, one of the meekest of men, as there were not many servants in his house, in the morning blacked the shoes of the visitors who remained over night. Of the 127 Bishops of our Church, Bishop Howe has conversed with 110.

—Senator Vest owns an addition to Kansas City, which is expected in ten years to be worth $10,000,000.

—The papers which the Rev. Dr. Fulton is preparing for Bishop Perry's Centennial History of the American Episcopal Church are on the Non-Jurors in America, and the History of the Church in the Confederate States.

—Bishop Eastburn, when he came to Massachusetts, had been the popular rector of the Church of the Ascension in New York city. When he made his first visitation in Greenfield he noticed that an old lady in the congregation seemed to be deeply moved during the sermon. On returning to the vestry room he spoke of it to the rector, who had also seen it. He wondered whether she was yet there; the rector looked within the church, and saw that she was. The Bishop proposed to go and speak to her. He had a good deal of manner. Approaching the weeping lady, he said, "Madame, I see that you are deeply moved by the sermon; will you tell me what portion of it especially touched you, that we may further improve the opportunity?" Looking up, she said, "Oh, sir, I was not crying about anything you said, but oh, I was crying because I thought we never should see any one like our old Bishop Griswold again." The Bishop turned hastily to the vestry room, and never liked allusion to be made to the subject again.

—The Rev. J. W. Young, formerly of St. George's church in this city, has just been instituted rector of Trinity church, Covington, Kentucky, of which he has been in successful charge for over a year.

—Canon Knox-Little has made a short visit again to this country, remaining only three weeks, and returning yesterday. He preached in St. Clement's church, Philadelphia.

THE SPRINGFIELD ACADEMY has re-opened for the winter term and will hereafter be under the management of the Rev. G. H. Ward. It is his intention to make it a school of the highest order, with a thorough course of study, ranging from the simplest elementary branches through a scientific or classical course that will complete the usual education of young ladies and fit young men for advanced grades in College. Information as to rates of tuition, text-books, &c., may be obtained from the Principal at the Academy, or by mail. Winter term from January 16th to March 26th; Spring term from April 3d to June 11th, 1882.

The amounts in the first column were due at the late Convention, in September, and are due now, and represent in some cases, the accumulated delinquencies of several years. The amounts in the second column are the assessments laid at the last Convention, one-quarter of which is due Oct. 1st; another on Jan. 1st; three-fourths are due April 1st and the whole is due July 1st. The amounts in the third column show what has been paid on the above at and since Convention.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The population of cities of over 40,000 inhabitants has been published. Chicago and Boston have both passed St. Louis during the last decade. The cities east of Buffalo have uniformly in them more females than males; and then coming westward the majority of males increases.

—On the 18th of December, in Advent, one of the four stated times of ordination in each year, twenty-eight Bishops in England ordained 271 persons to the Diaconate, and 301 to the Priesthood.

—The trustees for the Fund for Aged and Indigent Clergymen and the widows and orphans of clergymen in the Diocese of Iowa will receive from the legacy of Mrs. Cook $75,000. This worthy charity has ampler means there than in most of our Dioceses.

—Mr. Miln, the successor of Robert Collyer, in his congregation in Chicago, having from being a Congregationalist become an Unitarian, has now avowed his disbelief in a personal God and the immortality of the soul; and his people are much disturbed by it.

—The Baptist pastors of Chicago have declared themselves against professional revivalists, and for the following reasons: "They cultivate a distracted, one-sided religious life. They give undue prominence to noisy and public efforts for saving souls. They produce the impression that religion is largely a matter of feeling. They savor too much of the burlesque of buffoonery. They lower the dignity of the most solemn subject which can engage man's attention. They put a premium upon ignorant and crude presentations of Gospel truth. They insult the intelligence of the age by making the unlearned and the unwise its religious teachers."

—Kring is to be at public expense, it seems, for another two or three years, until his case can be heard by the Supreme Court of the United States. If he has a right to appeal, it only shows what blundering work the Courts lower down have made, when they are paid and are maintained for nothing else than to be exact in administering law. It seems to imply that our officials have very ordinary intelligence. The law's delays and uncertainty incite to crime and the vigilance committee.

—The Girls' Friendly Society has been established lately in the East, the object is, like the larger kindred organization in England, to form an association for girls, the membership card and guide book of which will be a passport and guarantee of good character everywhere, so that also the care of the associates will follow them from place to place through all their wanderings. There are now twenty-seven branches, and nearly 900 associates and members. Any lady desiring to interest herself in this work for her sister women can procure the pamphlet for 1881 from the secretary, Mrs. Alfred Evan Johnson, Lowell, Mass.

—In Bristol, England, lately on a Saturday night it was found by a census taken that, out of a population of 206,000, more than half of the entire number entered the bar-rooms, 105,000 went; 54,074 being men, 36,803 women, and 13,315 children.

—The St. Louis directory gives the address of a husband who is a carpenter, and the wife who is a regular physician.

—According to a year-book of Episcopal church charities in and around New York, the eighteen or twenty institutions include, in addition to the City Mission and St. Luke's hospital, two homes for incurables, six or seven institutions for children, two for aged people, one for consumptives, two for fallen women, and one each for the blind and for aged and infirm deaf mutes. It is but just to say that the Episcopal Church has largely obtained such a powerful hold in New York in consequence of her numerous and excellent charitable institutions.

—Bishop Harris, of Michigan, has entered into official relation with St. Paul's Church, Detroit, the mother Church of his Diocese, by which, without affecting the authority or pastoral relations of the rector, it becomes designated as the Bishop's Church, and the Church is placed in his hands for use at any time, and when present the direction of its services.

—The Convention of Albany, which has been meeting for several years early in January, have taken the initial steps looking to a change of time to the fourth week after Easter. Of the 120 parishes in the Diocese only 32 were represented in Convention.

—The Rev. Dr. Hopkins went to the Diocese of Central Pennsylvania, determined to bring about a division in a short time. There having been a three fold division of the State within fifteen years, the Bishop and Convention were not very favorable to the project, especially as it looked as though the ultimate purpose was a change in the theological status of the Diocese to be created. But Dr. Hopkins is not a man easily discouraged, and so he has obtained from the Bishop a statement that he will insist upon the sum of $30,000 being subscribed for an Episcopal endowment before favoring the project. Then he set about and secured $16,000, which with the $14,000 belonging to the Episcopal Fund of the present diocese of Central Pennsylvania, which came from the portion proposed to be set off, makes $30,000. Now he asks for favorable action from the Bishop and Convention.

—Bishop Seymour is performing Episcopal duty in Indiana during Bishop's Talbot's sickness. Bishops Peterkin and Dudley are visiting southern Ohio in Bishop Jaggar's absence, but the standing committee find that the Bishops in the neighboring dioceses are in such a state of health, or are so busy that they can afford little help.

—Calvary and St. George's Churches in New York, having failed thus far to find rectors, have for some months now had a number of Bishops to fill their pulpits each Sunday, among whom have been a number of the missionary Bishops. Bishops Hare, Clarkson, Perry, Elliott, Clark, Lay and Harris have done this duty.

—Recently in Virginia, at the same time five preachers of Zion Union Church, a colored organization, were confirmed, all of whom are prosecuting their studies with a view to admission into our ministry.

—Such is the sensitiveness of telephone wires at times that when in 1878 cornet music was sent from Chicago to Steinway Hall, New York, some of the music was heard in the telephones in Elizabeth, N. J., although these wires did not come within a mile of the wires over which the music was sent.

—The annual Epiphany missionary collection in Grace Church, Brooklyn, Long Island, has this year reached the large sum of $12,329 62. This one Church thus gives away in one offertory as much as many large churches spend on themselves for the entire year.

—There seems to be such a preoccupation of mind in New York City, and it holds true of all large cities, that it is impossible to secure a decent congregation, however strong the attraction may be, on any week night. At a recent missionary conference, which gathered celebrities from far and near, it is said that there were only about 125 persons present on any occasion. At the lectures given before the Students of the General Theological Seminary lately by Bishop Harris, to which ample notice was given that they were open to all, it is reported that the audience all told was but ninety. They were evidently worthy of the reputation of the eloquent speaker. They were closely thought out but delivered without any notes. Among other things he refers approvingly to a speaker in the last Church Congress at New Castle, who said that men are seeking in these days not for priests to absolve, but for teachers to guide. Men are eager to listen to any prophet who is really a man of God. The seminary must train men to be more than masters of ceremonies. A young man whom the speaker had met gave as his reason for not going to church, that he belonged to the nineteenth century, while in church he heard only about the twelfth or fifteenth century, about Calvinism, or the plagues of Egypt, or candles. Patristic and mediaeval learning would put the student out of sympathy with the age in which he lives.

—It has recently been decided by a court in South Carolina that a condition in a will which requires a legatee under the will to be reared in the Roman Catholic faith is void, because it is against public policy. —On the subject of pauper relief the Christian Leader well says: "How so to administer charity that it shall not be a curse, so far from being a paradox, is in sober truth one of the toughest and the most serious problems of the age. But give your neighbor's dog a bone for the third time, and the question how to prevent the animal from quivering up on you for the rest of his life becomes a puzzle. And the solution of that problem is—united systematic benevolence discriminately bestowed."

AN ONLY DAUGHTER
CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

During the war, in Somerville, South Carolina, Gen. Edward Beecher, brother of the Rev. H. W. Beecher then in command of a regiment of colored troops, stationed in the village, had frequently attended the services of the Church and had communed with the congregation. On a visit to the interior of the State, however, he had given expression to certain sentiments, which were deemed so incendiary and so unbecoming a Christian, that the Rector, the Rev. Dr. Harrold determined to refuse him the communion, should he present himself. Gen. B. received notice of this on his way to the Church and replied: "I will attend the service, but not present myself at the altar." He sat through the service and when the noncommunicants retired, those in the secret, were rendered not a little nervous to see him retain his seat. He remained in his place until all others had communed, then rising to his feet, with a voice deepened, by his emotions he said. "As a minister of the gospel and a humble disciple of Jesus Christ, I desire to be informed whether it is the intention of the Rector of this Church to exclude me from a participation in the Holy Sacrament?" Without the slightest hesitation and emphasizing each word, Dr. Harrold replied: "I will answer you in the words of our Church. 'If you do truly repent of your sins, are in love and charity with your neighbors and intend to lead a new life' I have no right to exclude you." Beecher placing his hand on his breast continued: "If I know my heart, I do really repent of my sins, &c." Dr. Harrold answered. "Approach then and receive the sacrament," and he did so.

—In a little place in Ohio where there were not enough Church people to form a branch of the Woman's Auxiliary Missionary Society, two ladies formed what they thought they would call a "twig." They met every week, kept a record and a cash box, subscribe for the Spirit of Missions, read it to each other, and anything else bearing on mission knowledge. They say that the condition of the place forbids them ever to hope that the twig will become a branch, but propose to do their best, and report to their Bishop. Is there not a suggestion in this for others?

KIDNEY-WORT

MISCELLANY.

During one of Mr. Moody's sermons a touching interruption occurred. Two or three children in arms were crying, and some persons present were looking rather sternly round on them, when Mr. Moody paused: "Let me say right here that I don't mind those children crying one bit. I pity a man that cannot hear a child cry sometimes. I think it's hard if a mother is to be kept away from the means of grace because she has a little child to take care of. God bless the little children! They were all that Jesus saw when He was on the earth to remind Him of home. 'Of such,' said He, 'is the kingdom of heaven.'"

It was a keen retort which was given by a Chinaman in San Francisco, Cal., who was wantonly pushed into the mud from a street crossing by an American: "He picked himself up, shook off the mire, and looking mildly at our worthy citizen, courtesied like a girl, saying to him in a voice that every one standing around could hear:—"You Christian; me hear then; good by."

"Be ye doers of the word and not hearers." There are some people who are always to be seen, where there is anything to be heard, never where there is anything to be done. They are all ears and no hands.

Did the Church of England Originate with Henry VIII?—In the time of Alfred the Great, a lease was executed from the Church to the Crown for a piece of land to be used for military purposes for the term of 999 years, which has recently expired, and the estate has lately reverted to the party which leased it, viz., the Church of England. In law, on the expiration of a lease, the property reverts to the original owner, or lessor, or legal heirs, and this property, which was leased about the year 872, over 600 years before Henry VIII. was born, falls into the Church. This fact is an absolute demonstration, and will furnish an argument for those who will not understand ordinary Church history, and assert that the English Church is a creature of Henry VIII.

Mr. Isaac Miller of Fort Wayne, Indiana, writes:

February 7th, 1881.

Ten years ago I contracted a severe cold, which brought me very low. I went from one doctor to another, getting prescriptions from each, but the medicines they prescribed seemed to do me no good. I kept getting worse and worse, until at last I became so weak that if I went any distance from my house it seemed that I would never be able to get back. I was in despair, and had almost given up all hope of recovery. As a last resort, I went to Strope's Drug Store, in this city, and asked him if he had any medicine that would help me. He said he had, and he was so confident of it that he said, "Here, take this bottle of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, and if it does you no good you need not pay for it." I took the bottle home and commenced using it, as you directed, and it worked like magic. By the time it was gone, I felt very much better, and so I got another bottle which completed the cure.

I have since used the Pulmonic Syrup in my family many times with the best results. I have also recommended it to many friends among others, Mrs. Hesser, of Plymouth, Indiana, who had Consumption, and she was cured in a very short time by its use.

Consumption Cured—Read this letter from Mr. Ittick, of La Porte, Ind.

DR. SCHENCK:

In the year 1872 I was suffering with Consumption, and had gotten so low that I had no hope of ever getting well again. I waited for death to put an end to my sufferings. There was one of my friends who was persistently trying to have me use your Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, but I utterly refused to get any more medicine. I was disgusted with medicines. I have tried so many different medicines without being helped by any. Finding that I was not to be persuaded, he bought some of your Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic himself, and brought them to me. I at first refused to touch them. I did not want to be experimented on, but finally consented to use them merely to satisfy him, not that I expected they would do me any good. I commenced taking the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, and to my great surprise felt almost immediate relief and was encouraged to continue using them. My condition improved under their use, until, in time I grew perfectly well, no trace of the disease remaining. My lungs had healed up and grew stronger than ever. I was permanently cured, as I have had no trouble with my lungs since that time.

I owe my life entirely to your medicines. Nothing else saved me, I will bear cheerful testimony to the great virtues possessed by your medicines. I know of several other cases here where your medicines have been used with entire success. I am well-known here, being one of the original German settlers in La Porte Co., and having been in the Livery business for many years.

JOHN ITTICK.

N. B. I can and will if necessary, swear before any Justice of the Peace, to all that I have said in the above statements.

Another case of Consumption Cured at La Porte, Ind.

DR. SCHENCK:

About twelve years ago I was dangerously ill with Lung Fever. I had great trouble in breathing; every breath I drew caused me pain. I had three doctors treating me, but I grew worse all the time. I was at that time connected with the Lake Shore R. R. Co. One of my fellow clerks induced me to get some of your medicines, saying that he had used them himself with entire success. I sent for some of your Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and the Mandrake Pills. I used them according to the directions, and in a short time noticed a marked improvement in my health, which kept up as I continued using your medicines. After taking several bottles each of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic I got entirely over my sickness.

Since that time I have recommended your medicines to many other people living in La Porte, who used them with great success.

E. W. NEBELTHAU,
Ex-Trustee of La Porte Co.

Mr. J. B. Miller, of Newcastle, Ind., writes:
New Castle, Ind., January 22d, 1881.

DR. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—My wife was troubled with Lung Disease, attended with weakness and prostration. I had doctors in New Castle and Hagerstown attending her, but their skill was of no avail. She did not grow any better under their care. She became so low that their seemed to be no hope for her recovery. I then came across one of your pamphlets, and after reading of the many cures made by your medicines, I concluded to give them a trial. So I bought one bottle each of your "Pulmonic Syrup" and "Seaweed Tonic," which she used, and showed such a marked improvement that I got more of the medicines. After using a half dozen bottles, she became quite well and strong again. My wife has great faith in your medicines, and she thinks there is nothing better in the world. We keep them always in the house.

Yours Truly,

J. B. MILLER.

My wife's mother was seized with bleeding of the lungs. She also used your Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, and, as in my wife's case, the Pulmonic Syrup healed her lungs, and she found the Seaweed Tonic to be possessed of wonderful strengthening properties.

J. B. MILLER.

From Henry Morgan, Esq., of Springfield, Mass.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK: Dear Sir—In the Winter of 1862, having been in delicate health from weakness of the lungs for over two years, I took a heavy cold, which settled on my lungs and completely prostrated me. I had a very bad cough, which kept me awake nights and racked me so that I gradually wasted away until I did not weigh more than two-thirds my usual weight. I was at that time living at Chicopee, Mass., and I consulted the best physicians in that place, but they only gave me temporary relief. It was the opinion of all that I was fast going into Consumption, and I was advised by my friends to consult a prominent doctor of Boston. I did so, but his remedies did not benefit me any, although I took them for a long time. I was very much discouraged, and thought there was no hope for my recovery.

About this time I happened to read your advertisement, and among those who testified to the benefit they had received from your medicines, I noticed the name of the Rev. Henry Morgan, of Boston. Being personally acquainted with him, although no relation, I concluded to write to him, as I had some doubt about the genuineness of the letter. He answered my letter, saying that it was all true, advising me to at least give your medicines a trial, and he believed they would cure me if I was not too far gone.

I at once began using the Mandrake Pills, Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup, as directed by you on the printed wrappers, and I soon saw a marked improvement in all my symptoms—my cough began to get better, my appetite improved, the soreness left my lungs, and I could see that I was gradually getting stronger every day. I continued with the Medicines faithfully until I was entirely well, and although my business is one that is considered injurious to the lungs, (brass finisher) I have enjoyed good health ever since.

I thoroughly believe in the curative properties of your remedies, not only from my own experience with them, but from the cures I have heard of their performing among my acquaintances, some of whom were very much worse than I was.

You are at liberty to refer to me, and I will cheerfully answer letters from those who are similarly afflicted. Yours Truly,

HENRY MORGAN,

No. 200 Carew St., Springfield, Mass.

From MRS. J. V. WELLINGTON, of Cambridgeport, Mass.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, Esq., Dear Sir—Over 28 years ago I was attacked with a hacking cough, which continued for about three months, when I was suddenly taken with a severe hemorrhage. After this I gradually lost strength, and finally got so low as to be confined to my bed. From the first, I employed what we considered the best physicians of Boston, but all to no purpose; their medicine gave me but little relief, and I felt, as did all my friends, that I had but a short time to live. In fact, the last doctor I had told, my sister that I could live but a few weeks. While in this apparently hopeless condition I was visited by an uncle from California, who strongly advised me to take your remedies, saying he had been cured of Consumption by them. My husband, who had no confidence in patent Medicines, was very much opposed to my taking them, but I concluded that as my doctor could do nothing for me, I could not do better than give them a trial.

At this time your father was making professional visits to Boston, and although I was so weak that I had to be lifted into a carriage, I went to see him. He gave but little encouragement, saying that I, like many others, only came to see him after being given up by all other physicians. He promised to do what he could for me, however, and I immediately began taking the Mandrake Pills, Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup as he directed. After using them for three weeks I began to improve, and continuing their use for some months I got well enough to make a visit to my friends in Philadelphia. I was so low that it took a long time to entirely recover, but I was permanently cured, for I have had excellent health for the last twenty years, with the exception of a slight weakness of the lungs, which compels me to be careful not to take cold.

Soon after my recovery, happening to meet the last physician I employed before taking your medicine, he was much surprised to see me alive but said that he could truly say that I was not the only one he knew who had been greatly benefited by the use of your Medicines.

I feel that I cannot speak too highly of your remedies, believing, as I do, that they saved my life. I have, since my recovery recommended them to a great many people, and they have almost invariably cured them, the only exception being those who were beyond the power of all medicine. I always keep your remedies in the house and now consider them the best of all Medicines for the diseases you recommend them for.

Yours Respectfully,

MRS. J. V. WELLINGTON,
12 Tremont Street, Cambridgeport, Mass.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

October 29th, 1881.

DR. SCHENCK: Dear Sir—I have reason to know the value of your Remedies: the Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. I have used them in my family for many years. They were first brought to my notice in 1862. I was then very far gone with Disease of the Lungs, and had been given up by physicians to die. Mr. A. B. Griffin, of Ravenna, Ohio, induced me to try your Medicines, saying that they had cured him of Lung Disease after he had been in as low a condition as myself. I consented to do so, as I had no other hope of being cured. I used the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic, and began to pick up right away. Feeling my condition improving, I kept on using the Medicines, and finally became quite well and strong again, and have continued so to this day.

ASTHMA Quickly and Permanently CURED
Dr. Stinson's Asthma Remedy is unequalled as a positive Alternative and Cure for Asthma and Dyspepsia, and all their attendant evils. It does not merely afford temporary relief, but is a permanent cure. Mrs. B. F. Lee, of Belmont, O., says of it: "I am surprised at the speedy effects of your remedy. It is the first medicine in six years that has loosened my cough and made expectoration easy. I now sleep all night without coughing." If your druggist does not keep it, send for treatise and testimonials to $5. The Wonderful Mechanical Piano-ette. $5.

The most marvellous mechanical invention of the age. It will play any tune in a melodious and pleasing manner. Difficult and simple music produced in a masterly style, and it can be played by a child as well as by a grown person and will furnish music for social gatherings of any description, playing hour after hour, without any knowledge of music being required in the operation. The most wonderful of all musical inventions; a machine which in a purely mechanical manner produces any kind of music, Waltzes, Polkas, Marches, &c., &c., without any practice or knowledge of music whatever; in this respect far superior to any music-box, for there is no limit whatever to the number of tunes it will play. The perforations in a flexible strip produce the effect. It has just been perfected (the accompanying cut showing it in its improved form), and is having the largest sale ever obtained by a musical instrument in the country. It has some colonized cases, highly decorated, the notes or bars (the music producers) are metal, on same principle as a tuning fork, which produce clear and most melodious notes, and never get out of tune; the bars are struck by strikers, the same as the wires are in a piano, only they work automatically instead of by the fingers. The strip of prepared paper in which the tune is stamped or perforated, is about 10 inches wide, and as it passes through the rollers and over the keys, the strikers spring through the perforations in the paper and strike the right notes; this is all done automatically, without any assistance from the operator (except turning the rollers), and the tune is played perfectly. It would be one of the most appropriate presents to make any one, especially where there is no other musical instrument. Its execution is admirable, and its capacity or capability almost unlimited. It is selling faster than any musical instrument ever invented. The music is fine, and everybody delighted. The price of the Piano-ette is only $5, including a selection of popular tunes. Music, 200 cts. a tune.

Wishing an agent in every town, we have concluded to offer sample of Piano-ette, with two tunes, to those who will push the sale, for only $4.10, or with 12 tunes, for $6.50. MASSACHUSETTS ORGAN CO., 57 Washington St., Boston, Mass., Sole Manufacturers.

A FATAL NEGLECT.

How Careless Oversight Brought About the Most Serious Results, and How it Might Have Been Avoided.

The Importance of Attention to the Details of Life.

Early last spring the elegant mansion of one of New York's wealthiest capitalists, situated on a beautiful hill in New Jersey, was turned into a house of mourning. It had been constructed on the most approved sanitary and scientific principles. Thousands of dollars had been expended in the drainage, plumbing and ventilation. The surroundings were healthful, the air was pure, and yet an epidemic of diphtheria swept away a family of young and beautiful children. It was the theory of the physicians that the house was filled with malaria, which always invites diphtheria, and, skeptical as the father was, he instituted a rigid examination. Every closet, pipe and drain was found to be perfect, and they were about to give up, baffled, when by accident they examined the furnace fresh air box, and a few feet from its opening, in a neighbor's lot, they discovered a mass of putrefying garbage! The mystery was explained. The malaria had found an entrance through the "fresh" air flue, and three loved ones perished because "somebody had blundered!" The same result was seen at Princeton College, seven students losing their lives by the faulty drainage of the college grounds. These occurrences were not "dispensations of Providence," they were the result of plain carelessness.

Life is a constant struggle for existence, and as the fittest always survives, it is the duty of every man to acquaint himself with the methods of prevention and cure of influences which would hurry him to the grave. There is much doubt nowadays as to what, for instance causes malaria, but there is no doubt that it is the basis of the most obstinate chronic disorders. Not many years ago a celebrated physician of London discovered what it is known as Bright's disease of the kidneys. While most of the characteristics of this dreadful malady have been known yet one of its most peculiar features is of recent discovery, i. e., that it produces general derangement of the tissues, and involves other organs of the body long before the kidneys seem to be affected. There is no pain in the kidneys nor in their vicinity. The water may not be albuminous; there may be no casts, and yet Bright's disease may exist and disorder the entire system.

Prof. Wm. H. Thompson, M. D., of the chair of Materia Medica, in the University of the City of New York, in a recent lecture before the students of Bellevue College Hospital, says "Bright's Disease has no symptoms of its own, but has the symptoms of every other disease you can think of." Albumen and casts may or may not be present; nor is the specific gravity an absolute and infallible test. Dr. Thompson says kidney disease is probably the commonest cause of death in this climate among adults, more so even than consumption, but it is a very deceptive disease. If a man breaks a limb he will expect pain in the injured member; if a bullet crashes into the body he will at least suffer pain in the wounded part, but in the disease of the kidneys he will suffer most in the other organs of the body. These sufferings are only the effects, the cause is behind them, and if that cannot be removed there can be no cure of the effects. Some of the commonest ailments of humanity are the sure symptoms of Bright's disease. When the kidneys have been diseased for a certain time there will occur strange disorders in the head, throbbing headaches, disturbed vision; the memory loses its power. These are secondary symptoms of Bright's Disease.

Again, the lungs are a favorite field of operations, and diseased kidneys produce pleurisy, bronchitis, (with or without cough) great paleness, sudden and strange attacks of asthma, and the spitting of blood. These are secondary effects of Bright's Disease.

The heart, in the effort to force blood into the diseased organs, which are swollen by reason of kidney disease, become exhausted, hardened or enlarged, or valvular disease follows, with great distress under the breast bone. These are secondary symptoms of Bright's Disease.

Dr. George Johnson, a great authority, over 20 years ago pointed out that whatever disease affects the kidneys produces the same effect in the liver, and the purging of blood, nausea, vomiting of bile and food, indigestion, constipation, piles, dizziness, persistent diarrhoea coming on suddenly to a person who has always been robust are certain secondary symptoms of Bright's Disease.

Having made a tour of the body and finding no other organs which it can destroy, then the disease returns to the kidneys; the back aches intolerably, the urine is dark, full of brickdust and rosy; casts appear, albumen is abundant; then come great muscular relaxation and nervous prostration; great puffs appear under the eyes, the countenance is pale and wears an appearance of fright, convulsions ensue, the fatal diarrhoea or pneumonia sets in, and death is the end. These declarations are the warnings of men of high authority in medical science, whom we cannot dispute if we would. We expect, when our physician visits our bed-chamber, he will come with the possibility of healing, but there is no disease which he approaches with the certainty of failure like, Bright's Disease. Is there no hope of cure? Must this great malady increase the number of its victims at the rate of 25 per cent. a year and we be powerless to prevent? Dr. Holland says all medical practice is experimental, and that any remedy that cures is entitled to the confidence and patronage of the people. The only criterion of excellence is success, and, he says, this is the basis of popular judgment. The doctors admit they can do nothing for a person in the toils of Bright's Disease: but happily, the oft-times wiser school of independent investigators has not so failed. A few years ago a well known medical practitioner found the vegetable elements which diseased kidneys and liver needed as a food and restorer, and knowing how widely these disease prevailed, he sold the formula to Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y. This gentleman began its manufacture on a most extensive scale, and to-day Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure is used more generally than any other known compound. The manufacturers of this remedy know, from the unsolicited testimony of hundreds of cases cured of the worst form of Bright's disease, that it is an almost absolute specific, based on a new and proved theory of treatment for every form of kidney and liver disease and they are ready to prove to any one that they make no claim that others cannot verify by their own experience. Indeed, the best physicians prescribe it, and it is everywhere conceded to be one of the greatest discoveries modern medical science has given the world. The following items are the facts of science and authority:

First--More persons are afflicted with or die of Bright's disease than any other one disease except consumption.--[Authority--Drs. Roberts and Thompson].

Second--The disease has no certain symptoms of its own, revealing itself through disorders in other organs.--[Roberts, Thompson and Johnson].

Third--"While the medical fraternity is loth to acknowledge itself baffled, it cannot be denied that with the exception of one proprietary medicine, there is no known cure of Bright's disease.--[Craig].

What that remedy is has been fully explained in this article, and in commending it to our readers we appeal not to their credulity, but to their judgment and common sense. It is not only pure and vegetable in its nature, but it has proven so effective that it is used more extensive than any other known remedy now before the people. It has cured even the most pronounced cases of Bright's disease, and it is an absolute specific of all kidney difficulties, which are the first stages of this most terrible complaint. These are facts which every one of forethought can appreciate, and by the observance of which all can avoid the misery of "a fatal neglect."

BEATTY'S BEETHOVEN ORGAN

Walnut or Ebonized (Gold Laid) Case as desired. 5 Octaves, 10 Sets Reeds, 27 Stops.

PRICE, delivered on board cars here, with Stool, Book and Music (a complete musical outfit) for ONLY $90.00

The Beethoven Organ can be shipped in 5 minutes notice. (now shipping over 50 a day, demand increasing.) Working nights by Edison's Electric Light to fill orders for this style promptly. Remittances may be made by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter, or by Express Prepaid.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED if the Beethoven Organ, after one year's use, does not give you entire satisfaction, I will return it at my expense and I will promptly refund you the $90 with interest. Nothing can be fairer. My object in placing this organ at $90, is to have it introduced into every home in this country. Every one sold is sure to sell another. Often 50 sales can be traced from the first one introduced. All that is asked of the purchasers after giving the instrument a fair trial, kindly bring friends to see it and hear its musical effects, having no agents, no warehouses in large cities (selling direct only), I rely solely on the merits of the Beethoven to speak for itself and kind words from satisfied purchasers, which I am proud to say are many.

THE BEETHOVEN CASE.

[Height, 75 inches; Length, 46 inches; Depth, 24 inches.] Is, as the cut shows, the most magnificent ever made. The view is of a walnut case, highly polished, and ornamented with gold, but when preferred, you can order an ebonized case in pure black, inlay ornate in gold, which produces a fine effect, now very fashionable, and is furnished at the same price. When ordering, specify definitely which case is wanted. The designs are alike and no case as beautiful was ever put upon the market for any such money, even when ordinary music--as used by other builders--was put in them. Read the following description of Reeds and Stop Combinations carefully, and then give this more than liberal offer a trial by ordering one. The world can not equal this beautiful Organ for anything like the money asked.

Ten (10) Full Sets Golden Tongue Reeds.

It contains 5 Octaves, 10 full sets of GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, as follows: (1) Manual Sub-Bass, 16 feet tone; (2) Diapason, 8 feet tone; (3) Dulciana, 8 feet tone; (4) Cello, 8 feet tone; (5) French Horn, 8 feet tone; (6) Saxophone, 8 feet tone; (7) Vox Celeste, 8 feet tone; (8) Viola Dolce, 4 feet tone; (9) Violina, 4 feet tone; (10) Piccolo, 4 feet tone; also, Coupler Harmonique, Harp Eoline Grand Expression, Vox Humana, Vox Jubilante and other grand accessory effects.

27 STOPS! (NO DUMMIES, ALL OF PRACTICAL USE.)

There are no Reed Organs made in this country but what when the stops are used wrong, some will give no sound, hence are then dummies. If used as directed every stop in the Beethoven is of practical use. Don't be deceived by misrepresentations of Monopolists or their agents. There are 14 perfect combinations on this organ, equal to 14 common organs usually sold by agents combined, and the full effect cannot be produced with less than 27 Stops and not then, without my Stop action (applied to my Reeds) which is fully covered by patents, and can be used by no other manufacturer.

SPECIFICATION OF STOP WORK. 27 IN ALL.

(1) Cello, (2) Melodia, (3) Clarabella, (4) Manual Sub-Bass, (5) Bourdon, (6) Saxophone, (7) Violin Gamba, (8) Diapason, (9) Viola Dolce, (10) Grand Expression, (11) French Horn, (12) Harp Eoline, (13) Vox Humana, (14) Echo, (15) Dulciana, (16) Clarinet, (17) Vox Celeste, (18) Violina, (19) Vox Jubilante, (20) Piccolo, (21) Coupler Harmonique, (22) Orchestral Forte, (23) Grand Organ Knee Stop, (24) Right Knee Stop, (25) Automatic Valve Stop, (26) Right Duplex Damper, (27) Left Duplex Damper.

THE FIRE in, nothing but ashes remaining where was one of the largest factories of the kind in the world.

RE-BUILT Three days afterwards, with my own hands I lifted out the first relic where it stood, and by the aid of vast capital, perfect knowledge of what was wanted, and kind words of cheer from thousands, I was enabled in 130 days to put on steam and start more machinery, in a larger and better equipped factory than ever on the same ground. The present establishment covers nearly 4 acres of space, and is now turning out a larger number of better instruments daily than ever before. This achievement is unsurpassed in the history of enterprise.

I am now receiving orders for the BEETHOVEN (price $90) at the rate of over 1,000 per month, and as I run my great works far into the night by the use of $20

EDISON'S ELECTRIC LIGHTS, the only Organ and Piano Factory in the world that uses it, I can fill all orders promptly for this style as I have now with a 300-horse power engine, driving over 100 wood-working machines in their construction.

REMEMBER! By the addition of the very latest approved wood-working machinery, (which no old establishment has), vast Capital, a new factory built after long experience of the wants to do work well and economical, and the addition of private switches and railroad tracks to the various doors of the factories, I am now enabled to build better instruments for less money than ever before, and my patrons have all the advantages of these facilities.

THE BUSINESS BEFORE THE NEXT CONVENTION.

The interval between the last Diocesan Convention and the next is a shorter one than usual, being but little over seven months. Many of the parishes visited in May and June will not have been able to have their confirmations therefore until after Convention, and the aggregate number reported may for this reason be less than usual. The Bishop will immediately resume his visitations after Convention.

The time at which Convention meets this year is not that at which it will hereafter regularly assemble. The proposed time hereafter will be on the fourth Tuesday in May.

That which will probably constitute the main business before the Convention will be the final action on the proposed new Constitution of the Diocese, the preliminary approval of which was given last September. The final action must be more formal and deliberate. The majority of both orders, voting separately and concurring, must be had for the several articles before they are finally adopted. An amendment made would send that portion back to its primary approval. It would be well if a careful revision was made by all of the work done last fall, in order that any result when reached may be conclusive for some time to come.

All the usual business, the making up of reports, election of officers, &c., will take place as usual, and the interval between this Convention and the next will be about thirteen months.

There were three special committees appointed to report to the coming convention on the subjects named: one (p. 13) touching the expediency of the increase of the assessment of the General Convention, so that it can provide for the payment of the expenses of the Bishop and deputies attending it. The members of this committee are the Rev. Mr. Gray, who is not now a resident in the diocese, Judge Pope and Mr. Lycett. Another committee (p. 14) has to report on certain resolutions from the General Convention touching the Fund for Aged and Disabled Clergy and their families. The members of this committee are the Rev. Dr. Ingraham and Mr. Reed, and Mr. F. B. Hoff. The third committee to report on the Temperance movement in the Church, and consists of the Rev. Messrs. Robert, and Leonard (who has removed from the Diocese,) and Mr. H. H. Hough.

OUR MISSIONS.

It is very hard to make even the best of people realize and believe in what they do not themselves see or enjoy. It is a severe test of principle to keep up a lively interest in and liberality for Church work that is not directly under our eye, and this is the harder the more distant that work is. Diocesan missions are less tangible than parochial, but more manageable than domestic, and these have a larger clientage than foreign missions. To give for religious purposes at all is beyond some people, but to give hoping for nothing again, overtaxes the power of even some Christian persons.

The work of supplying the needs of some of the poorer members of our diocesan family needs constant incitement. Being out of sight, it goes out of mind. All the primal conditions of fellowship and duty need to be again and again gone over. The fact that no part of our diocesan growth is more marked than that which is now doing in the weaker places; that local self-help is insisted on always; that the most marked instances of sacrifice and work done well on meagre allowances abound; that there is the closest oversight; that every penny given goes directly to the object without diminution; that those who administer the trusts are chosen by and may be presumed to have the confidence of the whole diocese; that as contrasted with other dioceses, not so strong, we are not at best doing half that we should:—all this is perfectly assured. And yet the work does no secure the means and help that it should have.

Ministers are more interested than the people. They know more about it; they see the connexion between external liberality and internal spiritual health. But yet coming in contact with the greater indifference and more critical habit of the people, they lose some of their purpose, and come almost to concur in the principle that "that we are poor, and need all of our money at home." They take little heart in extending interest in the object, and then they fail to push the collections.

Then those who do not care at any rate to give, try to make their failure more respectable by saying that they do not know about the principle on which the money is used, and that is used for some of whose views they do not approve. Thus at different times some persons and parishes have refrained from doing much or anything for missions in the diocese, because they said that some who were helped used too much ritual, or were not correct in doctrine, and more recently some have declined to give because they said that some clergymen were refused stipends on the score that they were ritualists. So there has been alleged dissatisfaction on both sides. This probably proves that there was no real ground for objecting on either side.

The fact that all who receive stipends have been nominated by the Bishop, and approved by the Missionary Board, which is elected every year by the Convention, proves fairly well that the persons are likely to be efficient and not out of the way in belief or practice. There may be differences in individuality and modes of presenting the truth, but a very fair guarantee may be had that the missionaries are in every way worthy of confidence and sympathy.

Just now we do need earnest loving work in widening the knowledge and deepening the interest, and increasing the gifts for this most vital interest. Persons will recede in interest and liberality unless there is constant urgency and reminder.

CANON DEFINING PARISH LIMITS.

A situation brought about by the adoption last fall by the Convention of one of the new canons of the Diocese is one which probably has not occurred to many persons. The boundaries of parishes within which, under specified conditions, the minister has jurisdiction, and no one else can intrude, is left by the general legislation of the Church to the Diocese, failing of which it is declared to be that civil division which has been recognized as such bounds by the Bishop acting with the advice and consent of the Standing Committee.

Until last fall we had acted upon the matter in this Diocese up to this point. By the second section of the old eleventh canon of the Diocese we had forbidden any new organization from being effected or to acquire ground on which to erect a church within five hundred yards in the direct line from the place of worship of any other parish. This left the implication that outside of this limit, organization might freely go on. This legislation covered the ground, and discharged the Bishop and Standing Committee of the duty of declaring what civil division they recognized as the bounds of a parish.

This canon was last September superseded by another, in which the element of five hundred yards distance is to be mentioned in the application for permission to organize a new parish, but is not necessarily to form any bar to such consent. The whole question is left to the discretion of the ecclesiastical authorities. This absence any longer therefore of any definite diocesan legislation calls back the situation referred to in the general canons, when the duty of defining the boundaries of existing parishes, if not of establishing those of new ones, devolves on the recognition by the Bishop and Standing Committee of some municipal division, as constituting the boundaries of a parish.

This power can be resumed by the Convention if it will think proper to use its inherent rights in the matter.

THE Bishop has received the following note on a postal card from the Treasurer of the Diocesan Missionary Board, and conceives that he will be best complying with the suggestion which he gives by sending it to the NEWS:

Dear Bishop:—The following city parishes have made no returns for Diocesan Missions since Convention: Trinity, St. John's, St. Peter's, Grace, Holy Communion and Calvary. Do they need a little stirring up?

March 6, '82. D. F. LEAVITT, Treas.

HOLY WEEK SERVICES.

For thirteen years at least in this city the practice has been uniform of having united services in the evenings of Holy Week, with sermons on subjects appropriate to the several days. It has each year been a series of services apparently enjoyed by the people, who have by general attendance shown their interest in following our Lord's footsteps day by day, during the last sad hours of His life. The arrangements are left by the Chapter to the Bishop. At the meeting of the Chapter to be called to consider this matter at the Bishop's house, while a resolution was passed to have such services also this year, the meeting had but a small attendance, several clergymen being absent, and there being no lay representation from Christ, St. George's, St. John's, the Holy Communion, and other churches. The expression therefore was less decisive.

For this and other causes which need not be stated, the Bishop finds himself unable this year, to his great regret, to make the customary arrangements for the united Holy Week services, except for the celebration of the Holy Communion on the evening of Maundy Thursday in Christ church. This service, held for so many years, on the night of the institution of the Lord's Supper, and an occasion, with its simplicity and quietness, of deep spiritual comfort and profit to such a vast throng of devout communicants, will of course be had. It begins at a quarter to eight, and the offerings will be devoted as usual to St. Luke's Hospital.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Vestry of Grace Church, Carthage, has sold its lot and church for $2,500. The building is small and of little value now. The lot is close up to the square, no longer adapted for a church, but becoming valuable for business. It was bought a few years ago for $400. The original lots on which the church first stood, and from which it was moved five or six years ago to the present location, are still held by the parish. The Rev. D'Estaing Jennings, the first minister, has been staying for some weeks in the parish.

—Mr. Floyd E. West, Candidate for Orders of this Diocese, was admitted to Deacon's Orders in St. Ann's Church, New York city, on the 12th ult. He had been assisting the Rev. Dr. Galland in lay work for several years, and desired on account of his friends residing there, that his ordination might take place in that city. The Bishop therefore requested Bishop Potter to ordain him, but he, being unable to do so, desired Bishop Seymour to act for him, and he accordingly officiated. Mr. West will reside in Rockport, Atchison County, in the extreme northwestern part of this Diocese, where up to this time we have never had any regular services.

—The Rev. Mr. Mason, for the Church of the Good Samaritan in this city, has laid out for Lent, besides other services a scheme of lectures for Wednesday evenings, in Trinity Chapel. On March 2nd the duty was taken by the Bishop; on the 8th by the Rev. Mr. Reed, on God's call to us, on the 15th by the Rev. Mr. Wright, on our Response to God; on the 22nd by the Rev. M. Silvester, on Motives to Repentance, on the 29th by the Rev. Mr. Betts, on Recouiliation.

—In Lent the Rev. Dr. Schuyler put out the following address to Christ Church:

It has been proposed by the Ladies' Missionary and Sewing Society to undertake a much needed improvement in the Chapel. According to the original plan of the Architect, the Chapel was to have been of two stories; the Chapel proper being entered from the flight of stairs now in the rear of the Church. It is proposed to carry out this design; dividing the lower story into two or three rooms, which can be thrown together and used with the Chapel for the Sunday School, also as rooms for the ladies to meet, for Mothers' Meetings, for a sewing school which is now much needed; and for many other purposes in carrying out the beneficent works of the Parish. The stained windows on the lower floor will be replaced with glass admitting more light.

To accomplish this, at least, eight hundred Dollars will be required. The offerings at Easter have always been given to some Parochial charity; and the congregation are now earnestly solicited to make this the special object of their savings during Lent; it is confidently expected, that the comparatively small sum required, will be presented as an Easter Offering to gladden our hearts on that joyous Festival.

—The concurrence of Ash Wednesday and Washington's Birth Day, which is a legal holiday, induced a larger attendance of men in most of the St. Louis churches for the morning service. It was a beautiful day, clear and sharp, and the congregations were almost equal to those of Sunday.

—Those who have contracted to let down Grace Church, St. Louis, to grade, divided the Church in two parts, and first moved the western portion, consisting of chancel and transepts, to the timber on which it is to be let down, and then went at the other. It is hoped that the work will be finished and the church restored to its former condition and renovated by Easter.

—In Grace Church, Kansas City, the Lenten order of services includes a daily order of service: on Monday at 7:30, Tuesday and Wednesday 4 p. m., Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 10:30 a. m. The lectures on Mondays are to young men and on Wednesdays to young women. On Sunday mornings there is a course on Church History and Idea: the Plan and Growth of the Church Catholic, History of the Anglican Branch, Church Idea of Faith and Doctrine, of Ministry and Sacraments, of membership, and of Civic and Social Life. On Sunday evenings the course is on the Seven Deadly Sins. The Easter Offertory is to be devoted to the improvement of the interior of the Church. Daily services and sermons in Holy Week.

—In Christ Church, St. Joseph, until Holy Week, there are services on Wednesdays and Fridays at 9 a. m., and 7:30 p. m., and on Saturday at 4:30. The Holy Communion is celebrated every Sunday. At Holy Trinity Chapel there is service on Tuesday at 9, and on Thursday at 7:30. The Easter offering is for the reduction of the Church debts, which now amounts to something over $4,000.

—The Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, D.D., of St. Louis, has accepted an appointment as Local Secretary for Missouri of the Church Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, to which he was nominated by Bishop Robertson.

—In Christ Church, St. Joseph, on Wednesday, 15th ult., the Bishop of the Diocese advanced to Priest's order the Rev. Wm. A. Hatch, the faithful missionary at Maryville. The Bishop of Kansas was present and preached the sermon. The candidate was presented by the Rector of the parish, the Rev. Dr. Runcie, and was joined in the laying of hands by the Rev. Messrs. Waterman, Leonard and Richardson.

—By the failure of the two banks in Macon City besides other losses in the community, which have occasioned anxiety to the Rector in behalf of his College work, the wife of the Rector has lost over $250, which had been placed in the bank from time to time, and had been handed over to her as marriage fees.

—The Bishop spent the first Sunday in Lent in Carthage. The church, which is not a large building, was filled in the morning, and at night was so densely packed that many ladies stood throughout the service and many had to leave unable to get inside the building. The Bishop preached, and confirmed five persons.

—Calvary parish, Sedalia, has sold its church building and is worshipping now in a hall. We have not learned that work on the new church has yet been begun. The residence on the new lots has been removed and nicely fitted up, and is occupied by the Rector. It is a larger building than the old Parsonage.

--The annual visitation of Mt. Calvary Church, St. Louis, took place on the morning of Sunday, 5th inst. The church was completely filled. On the front seats across the church were placed the children of the Orphans' Home who behaved throughout admirably, and followed the service in the prayer books most intelligently. The hymns were taken up by the great congregation and sung with warmth and spirit. The Bishop preached and confirmed seventeen persons, and addressed them. They showed a deep and tender appreciation of the solemnity of their act. The beauty of the church has been greatly enhanced by the coloring and lettering of the walls, and the rich chancel window, all of which has been done by Mr. B. M. Edgerton.

--The Rev. H. A. Grantham has resigned his charge of the Church of the Good Shepherd in this city, to date from Easter.

--At the Chapter meeting in St. Louis held before the Lenten season began it was determined in the matter of Daily Services down town for business men that they ought to be held. There was ample assurance on the part of the clergymen present that they were willing to perform the duty among them. The laymen present were constituted a committee to procure a suitable place, provide seats and issue notices. They did not however do this, and it is to be presumed that they either were unable to find a proper place or met with other obstacles. The failure to make the arrangements is very much to be regretted.

--A parish guild has been organized in St. Paul's Church, South St. Louis, which has divided up its work into committees on Mission and Sunday School work, on Charity and Hospitality, on the Sanctuary and Services, and on Social Entertainments. All seem to have been gotten to work. A Sunday School is proposed to be undertaken down by the Vulcan Iron Works.

--The regular meetings of the Standing Committee are on the first Friday evening of the month, and they do not usually have any intermediate meetings. Papers therefore which are not received then go over for the next meeting.

--The erection of the lofty tobacco factory to the north of Christ Church in this city gives a very disagreeable reek of tobacco throughout the neighborhood, and to the church when the wind is in the north.

--Rev. Wm. H. Goodisson, Presbyterian minister in Unionville, Putnam Co., has made his preliminary application to the Bishop with a view to becoming a Candidate for Holy Orders. He was born in Ireland, but has lived the greater part of his life in this country, has taken and read The Churchman for the past nine years. He will probably remove to Macon, to be under Mr. Talbot during the period of his candidacy.

--The Rev. Ethelbert Talbot has been elected by the Bishop and Standing Committee as alternate member of the Ecclesiastical Court in place of the Rev. A. Leonard, removed from the Diocese. This holds until convention.

--The Rev. Mr. Thorpe is in New York city, acting as the general agent of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association.

THE INSTITUTION OFFICE.

This Service which was introduced into the Prayer Book in 1804, and is but little used now, was at first commanded to be used in the induction of every new rector. The object in speaking of it here is to dwell for a moment on the argument which is sometimes drawn from the use in this office of a term not elsewhere used in the Prayer Book. The Communion Table in other places is uniformly called the Lord's Table, the Holy Table, or simply the Table. In this office, however, the expression Altar is used.

On this circumstance has sometimes been based an argument that the sacrificial idea in the Holy Communion is more distinctly affirmed in the Prayer Book, as proven by the phraseology of this office. With the question of the belief of the Church as shown in the Communion Service we have at this writing nothing directly to do. The purpose is to ascertain what amount of meaning there is in the use in this office of the term altar, as contrasted with other terms used in other parts of the Prayer Book.

From our knowledge of the condition of liturgical science at the beginning of this century, and the internal arrangement of the churches built about that time, an impression could fairly be gained that there was then but little thought of nice distinction in phraseology. The Church in this country was in a less hopeful condition then than when it was organized in 1784. There were only six Bishops, Bishop Seabury had died; Bishop Hobart had not yet been consecrated; Bishop Mone had not yet gone to Virginia, and it was yet languishing under Bishop Madison. This was about the lowest point at which we ever touched. The churches had reproduced the most awkward model of the basest period of English Church life.

The three decker arrangement prevailed. Sometimes the chancel was at the other end of the church from the prayer desk, and the clergyman marched from the one end to the other after morning prayer. When this was not the case, all the appliances for worship were crowded within the chancel rail. The ante-communion service was often said at the prayer desk, without going to the chancel. On each end of the Holy Table were huge cushions on which rested easily the books, and often the arms of the minister. The offertory was made while the minister was in the vestry room putting on his silk gown for the sermon, and the plates were then placed on the floor inside of he rail.

Now it is said that, while things were in this situation, a service was introduced into the Prayer Book which purposely brought out a term having a sacrificial bearing, such as had not before been employed by the Church. The probabilities, looking at contemporaneous events, are largely against it. If they did so, they build differently from what they knew. This likelihood is increased as we look further into the structure of the service in question. A meaning of the term altar then, and which is wholly used among the Methodists and others now, is the space within the communion rails, and there is very much to cause one to think that this space, and not any one thing within the rails is that which is meant by the term altar, as used in this service. The expression, "coming to the altar," was then often used for coming forward to the chancel rails for the purpose of receiving the Holy Communion or for Confirmation.

The instated person is directed to "kneel at the altar;" the other clergy are spoken of as "standing without the rails of the altar," or "within the rails of the altar." It all looks as though the term was used in the popular senses in which we know otherwise the word was employed at that time. To assume that it was used in any other than in this way is to bring into a generation when the Church was struggling for existence, and had other things in hand than the niceties of liturgies, the afterthought of days of larger strength when the science of ritual had come to the front. The nature and extent of the sacrificial idea in the Holy Communion will have to seek other ground from which to argue than the loosely framed Institution Office. OLD TIMES.

CONVOCATION OF ST. JOSEPH.

In compliance with a call from the Dean, Rev. Jas. Runcie, D. D., of Christ Church, St. Joseph, the clergy of the district assembled at Christ Church Rectory, Wednesday, February 15, at 3 o'clock p. m., and were called to order by the Bishop of Missouri.

The organization was completed by the election of Rev. Wm. A. Hatch as Secretary, Rev. Jas.

Runcie, D. D., was nominated to the Bishop for appointment as Dean for the ensuing year.

The following members of Convocation were present. The Dean, Rev. Dr. Runcie of St. Joseph; The Rev. J. H. Waterman, Chillicothe; The Rev. E. R. Richardson, Moberly and Brunswick; The Rev. Sydney Smith, Breckenridge and Utica; The Rev. Wm. A. Hatch, Maryville.

The Convocation was greatly cheered and assisted in its deliberations and discussions by the following visitors: The Rt. Rev. C. F. Robertson, Bishop of Missouri; The Rt. Rev. Thos. H. Vail, Bishop of Kansas; The Rev. Dean Ellerby, of Topeka, Kansas; The Rev. Abiel Leonard, Atchison, Kansas; The Rev. Frederick T. Webb, Council Bluffs, Ia.

The evening session was held at Christ Church, commencing at 7:30 p. m. Evening prayer was said by Rev. Dr. Runcie and Rev. E. R. Richardson.

The discussion of the collateral questions: How can we best meet the prevailing forms of unbelief, and how can we best develop the Spiritual life of the Church, was clearly opened by the Bishop of Missouri, ably continued by Rev. Dean Ellerby, Revs. Abiel Leonard, F. T. Webb and Sydney Smith, and closed in a masterly manner by the Bishop of Kansas.

The afternoon session of Thursday, February 16, was opened at Christ Church at 3 p. m. with prayers, and the Convocation listened with pleasure to a very practical and eloquent address by the Bishop of Kansas, on the "Principles of Christian Giving."

On motion of Rev. J. H. Waterman it was voted to meet at Grace Church, Chillicothe, in April, at the call of the Dean.

The discussion of the remaining questions on the programme gave place to a very interesting visit to the chapel of the Holy Trinity, South St. Joseph, where, after evening prayer was said by the Rector, Rev. Dr. Runcie, the Bishop of Kansas delivered a very earnest address on Personal Religion, and administered the Apostolic Rite of Confirmation to two persons.

Thus closed a very interesting, and let us hope spiritually profitable session of St. Joseph Convocation, in which we were cheered and assisted by the presence of the visiting clergy of other jurisdictions, and by considerable numbers of the laity of Christ Church and Holy Trinity, as also by the generous hospitality of the people of St. Joseph. WM. A. HATCH, Secretary.

A DIFFICULT CHURCH.—What they wanted in the way of a Pastor.—The faculty of one of our largest theological seminaries received some time since a letter, in which the inhabitants of a small town in Kansas applied to them for a young clergyman to take charge of their spiritual education. The long and formidable array of qualifications which the minister must possess, and the extremely meagre salary attached to the position, threw the good doctors of the faculty into something akin to despair. After much thought, one suggested that the reply should run thus: "The only man of whom we know who could satisfy you is our reverend college president, now dead some few years, and who, having accustomed himself to heavenly food (air), could perhaps eke out a bare subsistence upon the salary which you propose." This after due deliberation, was rejected, and the next proposal listened to: "We know of no one, excepting the Apostle Paul, who approaches to your standard of piety; he might preach of a Sunday, and get his living by sail-making on week days." This was also rejected, and the following reply finally hit upon and dispatched: "We know of no man upon earth good enough for you, or who could possibly live on the salary you mention. We therefore advise you to make an effort to secure the angel Gabriel, who could board in heaven, and come down Sunday to preach."

Insist upon obtaining FLORESTON COLOGNE. It is preeminently superior in permanence and delicacy of odor.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

HERE is something for boys to make a note of. The medical examiner of one of the great life-insurance companies, who is not a total-abstainer, in talking about the use of liquor the other day said substantially this: "Young men frequently make application for insurance who testify, in answer to the inquiry on the blank which they are required to fill, that they 'take a glass now and then,' or words to that effect. No such applicant ever gets insured by me. I throw him out in a minute. He who takes a glass now and then when he is young is pretty sure to take it oftener as he grows older, and the effect upon his health is almost certain to be injurious in the extreme. Speaking simply as a physiologist, and not as a moralist at all, I say that no person can afford to touch liquor before he is twenty-five years old. The young man who 'takes a social glass now and then' is a bad risk for any life-insurance company."

IN looking back over the years of one's life, it often seems as though the so-called "accidents" had played a more influential part than the deliberately made plans. How light was the feather which seemed to turn the scale which settled our place of residence, and all that followed the choice! How trivial was the chance which decided what our avocation should be. How little did the speaker of the stray word which first made us really think about religious things, know of the effects of his utterance. And so on, through all our experiences, we see the apparent accident becoming the moving power, and the carefully planned purpose coming to naught. But he who stops at this point has read the lesson of life amiss. It is not for us to say what are really "accidents;" and even with our poor, dull eyes we may, if we will, behold how a personal and omniscient God has himself directed our every step. It is when we have looked back upon our lives in amazement at God's wisdom and our weakness, that we really see how a power infinitely above our own has wrought with us for the best; and it is then, as never before, that we exclaim with all our hearts, "Thus far the Lord hath led me on."

A SUNDAY-SCHOOL worker in New York has this to say of the effect of Sunday-school conventions in his section of the state. "There are twenty towns in Saratoga county. Three-fourths of these are now in active operation, holding their conventions regularly, quarterly or semi quarterly. As a county officer, I am often solicited to attend these, and I have yet to see or hear of a convention which has not proven a success, and been a great strength to the work in the town, and especially to the school that entertained the convention. In several instances such schools have doubled their membership, and in three of the towns the total number in the schools has been more than doubled during the past year. To-day I attended a convention in a town where two years ago the people were so incredulous that several strenuous efforts were made before a convention could be held. But to-day when the motion was made to have a committee appointed to fix the time and place for holding the next convention, it was greeted by a perfect round of applause. One speaker, in witnessing to the good of conventions, said that his school, which heretofore had regularly gone into winter quarters, had this year, in spite of the unusual severity of the cold, kept open during the whole winter, and was now in a better state of prosperity than ever before."

IN the absence of catechetical instruction, it is sometimes said, a generation is growing up ignorant of the doctrines of the gospel. The old catechisms have fallen into partial disuse because their methods of statement are thought by some not always to fairly represent the views of truth entertained at the present time by evangelical Christians, and the various attempts to frame new ones have not been very successful. The more thorough study of the Bible may go far toward supplying the lack in the study of the catechisms. It may really turn out that children who know the Bible pretty well have a more comprehensive view of religious truth than those who are brought up on any or all of the catechisms. But, allowing that there is some force in the criticism that there is less of formal doctrinal instruction of children now than in former times, why should not every pastor undertake to supplement the teachings of the Sunday-school, by meeting, once a month, the children of his church, or as many of them as he could gather, and giving them in clear and simple language, instruction in the essential truths of our religion? The truth about God, about Jesus Christ, about sin and its penalty, and the way of salvation, about baptism and the Lord's Supper, and membership in the church, could be made plain to the comprehension of most intelligent boys and girls. The definitions should be few and brief, and might be written on the blackboard; the illustrations should be abundant, and the method conversational. The exercise would be an excellent one for the minister, and most helpful to the children. At any rate it would afford the minister an opportunity of meeting, now and then, as their religious teacher, in a familiar way, some of the children of his congregation; and that would be something quite worth while.

A father and his little son were once driving along a familiar road with a gentle horse. To gratify the child the father placed the reins in his hands, but at the same time, unseen, retaining a hold on them. As they drove on they saw approaching them at terrific speed, a runaway team. The danger was great and imminent. But the father guided his horse so that the collision was avoided and the danger escaped. When all was over the little son looked up to his father, and with choked utterance said, "I thought I was driving, but I wasn't, was I, papa?" So often does the child of God, when some peril has been escaped, or some deliverance has been granted in ways unforeseen and unthought of, have occasion to say, "Father, I thought I was driving, but I wasn't."

WHAT SHE SAW IN CHURCH.

He staid at home and she went to church; after dinner he asked her:

'What was the text, wife?'

'Oh, something, somewhere in Generations; I've forgotten the chapter and verse. Mrs. High sat right before me with Mother Hubbard bonnet on. How could I hear anything when I could not even see the minister? I wouldn't have worn such a looking thing to church, if I'd had to have gone bareheaded.'

'How did you like the minister?'

'Oh, he's splendid! and Kate Darling was there in a Spanish lace cape that never cost a cent less than $50; and they can't pay their butcher bills, and I'd wear cotton lace or go without any first.'

'Did he say anything about the new mission fund?'

'No, and the Jones girls were rigged out in their yellow silks made over; you would have died laughing to have seen them. Such taste as those girls have; and the minister gave out that the Dorcas Society will meet at Sister Jones' residence—that old poky place.'

'It seems that you didn't hear much of the sermon.'

'Well, I'm sure it's better to go to church if you don't hear the sermon, than to stay at home and read the papers; and oh, Harry! the new minister has a lovely voice; it nearly put me to sleep. And did I tell you that the Riches are home from Europe, and Mrs. Rich had on a real camel's hair shawl, and didn't it look like anything on her?'

MALARIAL DISEASES.

A sure and effectual prevention and cure is found in Simmons Liver Regulator. It originated in the South and there achieved its great fame for diseases of that section.

THE AGONY.

What said Christ, when He grew fonder
For the Sunny Isles of Day?
"Sit ye here, while I go yonder
In the Garden there to pray."
Then His fond Disciples, weary,
Waiting for their Lord so nigh,
Fell asleep at midnight dreary,
On the ground where they did lie—
Hearing not His "Eloi!
"Lama sabachthani!"

As He prayed within the Garden—
Garden of Gethsemane—
So I pray to God for pardon:
"Father! pass this cup from me!"
For it is too bitter—bitter—
Though I thirst—am more than dry!
Is not death far better—fitter,
Than the death that I now die?
Answer, Saviour! "Eloi!
"Lama sabachthani!"

As the bloody sweat of anguish
Oozed from out His pearly brow,
While His trouble soul did languish,
Trampled down by bitter woe;
So, from out my wounded spirit,
Bleeding now with agony,
Flow such drows, (I cannot bear it!)
And must staunch them, or must die—
Crying, likewise, "Eloi!
"Lama sabachthani!"

As His heart was torn asunder—
Sighing out His soul in pain,
When the earthquake of the thunder
Rent the mountain rock in twain;
So my soul, forever wounded—
Trampled down from Heaven on high—
By God's Love feels still surrounded,
And has hopes that cannot die—
Though I cry out, "Eloi!
"Lama sabachthani!"

LENT, 1882.

GIERLOW.

A PLEASANT INCIDENT.

On a recent Sunday evening, three young men entered one of our Baltimore churches, and were shown by the warden into a seat. He noticed their becoming behavior in silent prayer on entering the pew, and solemn attention throughout the service. Persons near them were charmed with the sweet singing these young men added to the praise of the worship. It being the evening before the solemn services held the day of the late President Garfield's interment, the choir remained to practice the music for the special occasion. The young men referred to also remained, and offered themselves to aid the choir. One had a deep bass voice which evinced perfect cultivation; another possessed a tenor of the purest notes, and the third a baritone, so mellow that the effect of all three was perfect. The Special Service in that Church was one of great beauty and solemnity, and made so especially by the singing of the three strangers. They announced themselves Englishmen, and that, wherever they might be traveling, they never omitted attendance at their Church, devotion on their part appearing all the more strange when it is known they were all members of a traveling minstrel troupe! We may be vuit to condemn the performances and performers of theatrical characters, but if all performers are such as the young men referred to, the members of this English Minstrel Troupe are not without their good points.

WHY ARE YOU BILIOUS?

Because you have allowed your bowels to become costive, and liver torpid. Use Kidney-Wort to produce a free state of the bowels, and it will stimulate the liver to proper action, cleanse the sin of its yellowness, cure bilious headache, and cause new life in the blood. Druggists have it, both dry and liquid.—Zion's Herald.

BOOK NOTICES.

The NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for March present a striking array of articles, every one of which possesses the characteristic of contemporaneous interest. First we have a contribution from Senator George F. Edmunds, on "The Conduct of the Giteau Trial". Ex-Minister Edward F. Noyes communicates the results of his observations of political affairs in France under the title, "The Progress of the French Republic". In "Trial by Jury", Judge Edward A. Thomas describes the social conditions under which our jury system had its origin, and notes its defects in view of the altered relations of modern life. Mr. John Fiske makes an analysis of that great intellectual movement, the Reformation, educating therefrom the "True Lesson of Protestantism". In "Law for the Indians", the Rev. William Justin Harsha endeavors to demonstrate that the one rational and effectual cure for our Indian troubles is to extend the jurisdiction of the civil and criminal courts over all the social relations of the red man. Prof. A. B. Palmer writes on the "Fallacies of Homeopathy". Finally, the Hon. Neal Dow contributes an article on the "Results of Prohibitory Legislation", demonstrating the success of the efforts to suppress the liquor traffic in Maine.

THE COMMUNICANT.—A Manual of Devotion, for Holy Communion, by Rev. W. O. Parton, and adapted for use in the United States. An excellent companion, preparing the mind and heart for coming into the august Presence, while there, up to better thought, and helping it to realize a blessing from the gracious privilege. Cloth, pp. 127, 40 cts. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

CYCLOPEDIA OF PRACTICAL QUOTATIONS.—An acquaintance and a comparison of this large octavo of nearly 900 pages with the works of Allibone & Bartlett, proves the vast superiority of this work. With all the rest, there is a complete system of cross-indexing which makes the accumulation available. We quite agree with the following from The Boston Post:

The entire reading public, but more especially the great army of students and literary workers, will hail this volume with undisguised satisfaction, for it is a boon to them that they have time out of mind longed for in vain. * * * Is a monument of industry, research and learning. * * * The book is indexed in the most superior manner, both according to topics and by a concordance to the English quotations. The magnitude of the work which has been done in the compilation of this Cyclopaedia impresses one at the very outset, and the authors have every reason to be proud of what they have jointly accomplished. Mr. Hoyt is a trained journalist, having been managing editor of the Newark Daily Advertiser for many years, and the arrangement of the book and all its methods show a thorough understanding of the needs of those for who it is intended. Miss Ward is said to be a lady of exceptionally fine culture and literary taste, and of this the work gives good evidence. For convenience and usefulness the work cannot, to our mind, be surpassed, and it must long remain the standard among its kind, ranking side by side with, and being equally indispensable in every well-ordered library, as Worcester's or Webster's dictionary, Roget's Thesaurus, and Brabb's Synonyms.

Third Edition. $5.00. I. K. Funk & Co. 10 & 12 Dey street. New York.

THE WORDS ON THE CROSS.—Seven sermonettes, by the Rev. C. M. Parkman. As furnishing suggestions for a course of Lenten lectures, or for those who on Good Friday have a more continuous service, or more frequent services, and then follow our Lord's words and sufferings, these short meditations furnish excellent material. They are tender and reverential in their spirit. Paper 35 cts. Cloth 60 cts. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York City.

The March CENTURY.—The frontispiece portrait of Mr. Cable in the February Century is followed in the present number by a half length of Mr. W. D. Howells.

As usual in this magazine, there is a decided prominence of timely or seasonable topics. "Broken Banks, and Lax Directors" is the subject of a paper of the widest commercial interest by John Burroughs, who describes exactly how the directors may keep the cashier from going to Europe. "Has Utah a Republican Form of Government?" is the question asked by Mr. A. G. Campbell, the anti-Mormon contesting delegate. In "The Copyright Negotiations," Mr. A. G. Sedgwick contributes to the popular understanding of international copyright. "A Ramble in Old Philadelphia" includes seven picturesque and delicate etchings by Pennell. Mr. Richard Grant White, in his first paper on "Opera in New York," in a readable style and with much interesting anecdote, traces the beginnings of the musical drama in America. The unillustrated papers include a scholarly study of "Lord Beaconsfield," by Professor Bryce, the historian and member of Parliament, which is a solid contribution to political biography. Under the caption "Bryant and Longfellow" are reprinted some early letters of the two poets. In Mrs. Burnett's novel, "Through One Administration," the reader obtains characteristic glimpses of Washington life.

St. NICHOLAS for March.—The circus is ever a fascinating subject to young people, and the second part of Mr. Stoddard's article, "Men-and-Animal Shows," in which he gives a vivid account of one of these amusement-towns on its travels, is one of the most prominent and entertaining features. There is, also, for those who delight in the imaginative, a fairy tale by Thomas Dunn English, and some humorously decorative verses, illustrated with five clever page illustrations. The present installment of "The Hoosier School boy" is of unusual interest. "The Drummer-boy," in the rifle-pits before Petersburg, and "Donald and Dorothy in a novel fencing-match, still closely hold the attention of their friends. Mrs. Clement, in her "Art and Artists" paper, writes of the painter Titian, and a beautiful reproduction of his famous portrait of himself forms the frontispiece illustration to the magazine.

The March VIDE AWAKE is brilliant with fine pictures, Mrs. Jessie Curtis Shepherd has a beautiful full-page engraving. "They who wear fine gloves," and Jessie McDermott another, with two full-length figures, to illustrate the poem entitled "A Girl of the Period." Bodfish also has three full-page drawings in the number illustrating "Hannah's Snares," "A Sawing Match," and "The Story of Maple Sugar." "How I Entertained Two Little Girls," full of charming reminiscences of Louisa M. Alcott. Then there are some excellent articles, solid, yet as entertaining as the stories: "To-day" in which Edward Everett Hale explains the tariff, "Short Stories from the Dictionary" by Arthur Gilman, "A Pair of Gloves" by Mrs. Dickinson. Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Publishers.

The SANITARIAN for March contains a paper by the Editor on How Complete is the Protection of Vaccination, and what are the Dangers of Communicating other Diseases with the Vaccinia?—National and International Sanitary Jurisprudence.—Impure Water, its Dangers.—The Progress of Sanitary Protection at Newport, R. I.—House Inspection by Prof. Fleming Jenkin, is a very sensible paper on the importance of competent periodical inspections of domiciliary sanitary appointments, not merely with regard to bad work, but the ordinary wear and tear of such work.—$3.00 a year, 30 cents a number. A. N. BELL, New York.

The following are among the contents of the March number of THE HOMILETIC MONTHLY: Sermonic:—"Religion and the Medical Profession," by John Leyburn, D.D.; "Job's Comforters; or, Scientific Sympathy," by Joseph Parker, D.D.; "The Fall of Satan," by George C. Lorimer, D.D.; "Accepting or Rejecting Christ," by Rev. Sylvanus Stall; "The Significance of Christmas," by Charles Wadsworth, D.D.; "The Necessity of Earnest Living," by T. I. Cuyler, D.D. Among the other papers are: "A Clergyman's Discretion in Performing the Marriage Service," by John Hall, D.D.; "Light on Important Texts," No. XVI, by Howard Crosby, D.D. Price, $2.50. per year; single number, 25 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York.

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.—The series of articles in The North American Review by Col. Ingersoll, Judge Black and Rev. Dr. Fisher, have been gathered into a pamphlet of 143 pages, and published at 50 cts. It is for sale at book-stores and stands. It is difficult to place one's self outside of the circle of all past habits of thinking, and say just what value the one side and the other in this case have; but if one will go through the book carefully, we think that he will say, considering that revelation has been progression, and Mr. Ingersoll's destructive criticism has left him little time to say what he would put in the place of the religion he is so eager to destroy, that one's faith will be the stronger for reading the book. N. A. Revue, 30 Lafayette Place, N. Y.

PULPIT TALKS ON TOPICS OF THE TIME.—By the Rev. J. H. Rylance, D.D. The Rector of St. Mark's, New York, has in this little pamphlet terse and effective lectures on religion and Science, Religion and Social Organization, Religion and Popular Literature, and Religion and Popular Amusements. 25 cts. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 & 12 Dey St., New York.

DAY BREAK.—An Easter Poem, by Julia C. R. Dore. A delicately published Easter present on heavy paper, the leaves tied together with white ribbon, with handsome colored cover. The verses are very sweet. 60 cts., post paid. A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 900 Broadway, New York.

THE EASTER HERITAGE.—A book of verses in the shape of an anchor, bound together with ribbon, and the cover beautifully illuminated appropriately for Easter. 35 cts., post paid. Randolph & Co., 900 Broadway, New York.

THE TREASURY OF DAVID.—By Chas. H. Spurgeon, Vol. 1. This first of six volumes of commentaries on the Psalms is the life-work of the great preacher. For us, who read the Psalter so constantly, there is peculiar need to stop and inquire of the meaning of what is repeated so often. In this volume the author collects what is best from Bonar, Leighton, Gurnall, Bishops Hall and Wilson and others, and makes a work rich in devotional treasures. The paper and type, work and binding are rich, and the price, $2.00 a volume, is only half of that of the English edition. Oct., 483 pp. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Recently Bishop Brewer of Montana, reported that he had traveled 3,000 miles, but only 30 of these by railway.

—To show the tremendous hold which business takes on men in large cities, lately a missionary bishop suggested to a metropolitan rector in New York to ask the attendance of business men at a week day missionary meeting, and he said: "Get a man to come up here from Wall Street in the day time to attend a missionary meeting! It is as much as I can do to get a man to come up town in the day time to attend his wife's funeral!"

—In the ecclesiastical province of Illinois, the presiding bishop is to be called the Primate.

—There are now, in spite of the executions, twenty-two prisoners confined in St. Louis jail on the charge of murder in the first degree.

—Dr. Tolman Wheeler of Chicago, who gave, if we mistake not, the Episcopal residence of Bishop McLaren there and lately $20,000 for the cathedral to improve its property, has also, we learn, just given $5,000 for the colored church building, for which the Rev. Mr. Thompson, who used to be here, has been trying to raise the money. The land had previously been given. If only some one in this city had a like disposition and would put our colored church on its feet.

—The Presbyterians of Rochester resolved to hold week of prayer at the beginning of the new year. The effort was begun, and everything was done to arouse a proper interest, but the business men excused themselves from attending the prayer meetings, and after two or three services, it was found expedient to discontinue, with the understanding that daily prayer-meetings should be held during the first week in Lent.

—Half of the volumes drawn out in the Public School Library in this city, are works of fiction. These constitute less than one-seventh of the whole number of volumes.

—Wisconsin is out of debt, and has $117,000 in its treasury. Illinois is in the same happy condition.

—Oscar Wilde has been here, and the price of sunflowers went up. He told a Chicago reporter afterward that St. Louis had the best arranged museum of art he had ever seen, that while it did not as yet contain very much, all that it has has been excellently chosen, nothing in it could possibly lead a young student's tastes astray.

—Think what a healthy country, this is when you are informed by the official reports that there are now on the pension lists the names of 26,000 of the widows of the soldiers of the Revolution, and yet that closed a hundred years ago.

—This is the way one paper announces it: Wednesday will be confirmation service at the Episcopal church. The Bishop of West Virginia will be present and administer the rites of confirmation to a class of eight or ten. Miss — will take the solo parts.

—Notwithstanding the larger population the latest tax valuation of Chicago is but $121,000,000, while that for St. Louis is $192,000,000. If they are not poorer, they have tougher consciences about swearing.

—It was nineteen years after the first Bishop was consecrated in South Carolina before the first confirmation was reported.

—The rectorship of Calvary Church, New York, in succession to Dr. Washburne, has at length been filled by the choice of the Rev. H. G. Satterlee, of Wappinger's Falls, New York. He goes there from a large interior parish.

—The Bishop of Virginia has deposed for moral charges T. Jervis-Edwards, Presbyter of Virginia.

—The Presiding Bishop is the senior prelate in the Anglican communion, and perhaps in the world. He has been in the Episcopate longer than any bishop of the church in this country, having overpassed the extraordinary Episcopate of Bishop White, which exceeded forty-nine years. If he lives until June 14, he will have entered on his 89th year, and if until Nov. 1, he will have completed his 50th year in the Episcopate; and yet his hand-writing is still as firm and legible as copperplate.

—Dr. Bevan, one of the distinguished Presbyterian ministers of New York City, whom the historical Brick Church there called from London five years ago, is about to return to clerical duty in England. He says that for him the London climate, for all its fogs is more bracing. Professional men there, he says, do more hard work and with smaller loss of vitality; they do not think much of working twelve hours a day, but here it would soon kill them. He thinks that while business men here do not accomplish more, they use up twice as much strength in doing it. He thinks, moreover, that here clergymen are restricted to a narrower sphere of purely professional work than there, that it is considered wrong to interest himself in politics, or social or educational questions. He thinks that in England intelligent men admit a liberty of discussion, and give each other a fair hearing, when here the caucus system in politics and religion crystalizes men into parties who think alike and talk alike, believe in each other, and look askance at all the rest.

—By a strange coincidence the graves of the grandfathers of Abraham Lincoln and John Wilkes Booth are found in the same grave-yard in England.

GREAT temptations are not the most dangerous to Christian people. We are not likely at once to deny the Lord, or to commit flagrant violations of the law. There is more danger of yielding here a little and there a little from the right. One does not become a Sabbath breaker or profane because any one great temptation is too strong for him, but by a gradual process. He does not become cold in his service through any sudden chill, but by first neglecting one duty and then another. The disciples slept during Christ's agony before they forsook him and fled. Peter followed afar off before he denied Him. Those who would serve faithfully must avoid the beginnings of evil.

SATISFACTION FOR TEN.

In our family of ten for over two years Parker's Ginger Tonic has cured headache, malaria, and in fact all other complaints so satisfactorily that we are in excellent health and no expense for doctors or other medicines.—Chronicle.

It never tends to conciliate an audience for a speaker at a public meeting to begin with saying: "Since no one else is inclined to speak, I think I will have to say something." It is time not well used when it is employed in making such introductions.

At the first of the Lenten Conferences the Bishop called attention to the number of vacant pews at the front, while all the other parts were filled, and he asked that hereafter persons would fill up the front seats first, that it had great moral effect. They came up and filled them then. This is important everywhere. It looks like skulking to keep as near the door as possible. Close up at the front.

THE treasurer of one of our city churches, was stating the other day his experience as to the amounts given on the different aisles of his church. He knew which always yielded the most and which the least; and the first he said had in it the standbys, those who were always there; he knew, he said, that there would always be at least two bills on that plate.

PRESIDENT WOOLSEY, in his enlarged work on Divorce and Divorce Legislation, on which for many years he has been an authority, insists that in cases of divorce for adultery the guilty party should not be allowed to marry the partner in guilt, and that an adulteress should be made incapable of marriage of any kind. It has been suggested furthermore that, inasmuch as adultery is a punishable crime, when a party has been divorced on this ground, the evidence of guilt which was sufficient for divorce should be also sufficient to convict, and that the law should require him to be arraigned for adultery.

AN interesting feature about the present season of Lent, as showing the very large attention paid to it by the public at large, is the able and appreciative editorials on the subject which have appeared in the secular papers in this city and in New York. They were written in a large, humane way, showing how this feature of the Church's life fits into the wants of human nature. In the Unitarian church in this city daily Lenten services have been announced. We hope that the recognition of Good Friday, which has for years closed all the Exchanges in New York, and for a year or two past has done the same thing in Chicago, will reach this city, and that in this slow city, what has for years been counted as decent elsewhere, will be observed here. Little can be done in business anyway, as there are no markets or quotations coming from the centres either in this country or England.

TIME FOR OFFICIAL DUTY.

We live in very busy times, and while we are likely to spend no more time than is for our good in considering ecclesiastical or religious questions and interests, still it is not to be forgotten that many persons have other duties on them as well. In the various offices in the Church with which persons are charged there is often need for time to be given for consultation and wise consideration. Those called on to act have a right to receive the help which comes from a comparison of views. It is always the case that one is struck with the new lights thrown upon a matter by the different intellectual habits and lines of business of various individuals.

In vestry meetings, in meetings of parochial and diocesan committees, of trustees of Diocesan trusts, of Standing Committee, of the Chapter, there is need, for the proper execution of business, that the separate experience and wisdom of each member be had in order to reach a wise result. The sense of the pressure of time and other duty weighs on those with whom lies the business of calling the meetings, and it may be safely taken for granted that no meeting is ever summoned unless there is an imperative call for urgent business. The question is sometimes asked: "Is the attendance of all required? Cannot you do without me?" If one relaxes another may, and so a meeting fails of a quorum, or is less decisive in its results, because of the absence of some of those who should be there, and the time and convenience of those who attended is wasted, and all has to be done over again, or by delay the chance of action is lost.

It is a Christian act to make all effort to be present and thus render all proper help to reach a conclusion, in any office which one has accepted.

THE Bishop of the Diocese has in the Churchman of the 11th inst. an Open Letter to the Presiding Bishop, in response to one from the Bishop of Western New York, who requested that a meeting of the House of Bishops be summoned in October next to consider the important matter of Theological Education. He calls attention to the fact that for over thirteen years there has been a Commission of the House of Bishops on this subject, of which Bishop Cox is a member, and that during all this time there has been no report from it, and that no report is assured even if a meeting were called for October. He points out the constitutional difficulty, that no meeting of the House of Bishops could be called for this purpose, independent of the House of Deputies. The House of Bishops can only hold an extraordinary session to elect a Missionary Bishop, or receive the resignation of a Bishop. He shows also the inconvenience of gathering such a numerous and busy body of men at such a distance, and says that he has had experience of travelling on to New York for a meeting and then finding no quorum, and even the nearest bishops absent, who had received intimation that it was evident that there would be no quorum, which notice could have been sent by telegram to the remoter Bishops, but was not. The Bishop suggests that the Commission prepare its report and make it known, and thus opinions could be formed before the General Convention of next year.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

LENTEN CONFERENCES.

The following circular was put out in St. Louis at the beginning of the session:

A series of Conferences, similar to those held last year, and which attracted such attention, will be held during Lent, in Christ Church Chapel, at which the following topics of common and pressing interest will be considered and discussed by clergymen and laymen. The Bishop will preside, and after the opening of the question by a clergyman and a layman previously requested to do so, the subject will be further considered by any other persons who have suggestions to offer.

The following are the subjects in their order:

February 22nd. Ash Wednesday.

"The Revision of the English Version of the New Testament."

February 28th. Tuesday.

"The current forms of Religious Doubt and Unbelief in our day; and how best to meet them."

March 7th. Tuesday.

"The proposed action of the Church in the direction of Liturgical enrichment, and increased flexibility of use in the Prayer Book."

March 14th. Tuesday

"The right use of the Lord's Day."

March 21st. Tuesday

"What is the best course of action for Christian persons with regard to the Temperance Question?"

March 28th. Tuesday.

"Hindrances to the development of the religious life in great cities."

The Conferences will begin with a short service at a quarter to eight o'clock. It is hoped and asked of all who can, in our congregations, that they will attend regularly all these Conferences and contribute in every possible way to their usefulness.

At the time of the preparation of this number of the News three of these conferences have been held. The numbers present at the first were very good, although the Chapel was not filled. The Rev. Mr. Robert gave a full and animated statement of the merits and defects of the New Version, and the discussion was further engaged in by Major Pope, and the Rev. Mr. Wright, the Bishop summing up the case.

The attendance on the next conference was larger, and in the absence of the Bishop the chair was taken by the Rev. Dr. Fulton. More gentlemen took part in the discussion, among others Dean Hammond of the Law School, the Rev. Messrs. Roberts, Silvester, Wright, Messrs. Pope, Leslie, M'nor and others, and the Chairman summed up the points made. In both evenings when the time to close had arrived it was evident that many others were just prepared to express themselves.

The third of the series secured a large attendance, a noticeable proportion of whom were persons of thoughtful character and of position. No layman seemed willing however to venture on this question, which was treated by the Rev. Messrs. Robert, Betts and Wright, the historical statement of the matter, and then the summing up being made by the Bishop.

The Conferences serve an excellent office in familiarizing our people with the merits on the one side and the other of questions out of the course of Sunday discourse, and treated in a way which enables each to form his conclusion fairly after all has been said on both sides. Let the remaining meetings be attended by still larger numbers.

—In the "ecumenical conference" in London, Bishop Simpson said the loss of children of Methodists in America in favor of other denominations was one of the most disastrous facts connected with Methodism.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Harris has been appointed by the Board of the American Bible Society to represent the society at the anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, May, 1882.

—The present Congress at Washington numbers among its members eight Irishmen, five Englishmen, four Scotchmen and three Germans.

—We fear that our old friend, Bishop Dunlop, is having his full share of Episcopal anxiety. The hardest thing for him is to get good clergymen for his work. His friend, Dr. McNamara, after a short stay in Las Vegas, returned to his home in Nebraska, because there was no rectory. The Bishop thought he had gotten the right man for Tombstone, Arizona, but after a month's trial it was found that the person was wholly unfit, and he returned. The Rev. Mr. Jackson, also, who went later to Las Vegas, has returned. All this has occasioned large cost and much anxiety.

—Mr. Joseph E. Sheffield, who died recently in New Haven, Conn., had given in his lifetime $650,000 in educational benefactions, besides $75,000 for a parish home in connection with Trinity Church, New Haven. In his will he left $100,000 to the Berkeley Divinity School at Middletown, Conn.

—Bishop Talbot is not recovering as it was hoped that he might. He has had in the South another paralytic stroke, and his recovery is very doubtful.

—The Rev. E. W. Donald has been called to succeed Dr. Cotton Smith at the Church of the Ascension, New York; Dr. Worthington of Detroit has been called to St. Paul's Buffalo; and Dr. Huntington of Worcester, to St. Paul's, Boston.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1082 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

HOW WOMEN LEARN.

Women everywhere use Parker's Ginger Tonic, because they have learned by experience that it overcomes despondency, indigestion, weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles of the sex.—Home Journal.

The amounts in the first column were due at the late Convention, in September, and are due now, and represent in some cases, the accumulated delinquencies of several years. The amounts in the second column are the assessments laid at the last Convention, one quarter of which is due Oct. 1st; another on Jan. 1st; three-fourths are due April 1st and the whole is due July 1st. The amounts in the third column show what has been paid on the above at and since Convention.

MISCELLANY.

—"The very word humanity," says Max Muller, "dates from Christianity." No such idea, and therefore no such era, was found among men before Christ came.

||—The passage from the New Testament, "It is easier for a camel, etc.," has perplexed many good men who have read it literally. In Oriental cities there are in the large gates small and very low openings, called metaphorically "needle's eyes," just as we talk of windows on shipboard as "bull's eyes." These entrances are too narrow for a camel to pass through in the ordinary manner, or even if loaded. When a loaded camel has to pass through one of these entrances, it kneels down, its load is removed, and then it shuffles through on its knees. "Yesterday," writes Lady Duff Gordon, from Cairo, "I saw a camel go through the eye of a needle—that is, the low arched door of an enclosure. He must kneel and bow his head to creep through, and thus the rich man must humble himself."

—A missionary in Ceylon writes as a "noticeable fact" that where Christian women are married to heathen husbands, generally the influence in the household is Christian, whereas, when a Christian man takes a heathen woman, he usually loses his Christian character, and the influences of the household are on the side of heathenism.

—Can you account for the disposition manifested by so many in church to fix themselves at the entrance of the pew to the manifest inconvenience of those who fill the rest of the pew?

—When the Pilgrim Fathers established their places of worship the community lived in constant fear of the sudden attack of the Indian foe, who was often ambushed near, ready to take advantage of an unguarded moment; hence the males went with loaded musket as well as prayer book, and the head of the family placed himself at the outer end of the pew to be ready to give battle without delay if the meeting were disturbed.

—The question has arisen at St. Thomas, Canada, whether a man who rents a pew at church can use it for a sleeping apartment during the hours of service. The courts decide that a pew is like a berth in a sleeping car, and a man can sleep in it or sit up and listen to the sermon.

—A returned missionary said to an audience that he was addressing in the interests of a foreign field: "If you give me $1,000 for our brethren in Shanghai to-night, I'll telegraph the news to them at once, and they'll get it last evening."

—A little boy, who was reading one of the illustrated Church papers, discovered the shortest way to get rid of the "Mrs. Lydia Pinkham" and "Dr. Benson" inflections. "Papa," said he, "couldn't they get married, so there wouldn't be one of them, and then the editor could put in a different picture—a dog, or a sheep, or something?"

—It happened once in a Roman Catholic Chapel in Ireland, that during High Mass three ladies of the Church of England were obliged to take shelter from a shower. The officiating priest, knowing who they were, and wishing to be respectful to them, stooped down to his attendant, who was on his knees, and whispered, "Three chairs for the Protestant ladies." The man, who was rather ignorant, stood up and shouted, "Three cheers for the Protestant ladies!" which were given with hearty good will by the congregation.

—A Canada farmer did not like this way the congregation had of rising when the alms were presented, making such a time of singing. He said: "It seemed to him absurd to make such a fuss over the few shillings they put on the plate Sunday by Sunday. If they were to stand up and so profess before God that they were actually making to him an offering from the means he had given them, it would be necessary to make this matter of the Sunday collection more a matter of conscience, and to give something proportionate to their means and worthy of the Great Being to whom the offering was made." He, therefore, preferred the old fashioned idea of the "penny collection," which touched no man's conscience, and extracted from his purse but a few paltry cents.

—Some one has illustrated thus the wrong of weakening persons by giving them too much help in entering the ministry: Men are apt to value anything in proportion to what it cost them. In grasshopper years the men who paid nothing for their lands in Nebraska rose up and left them; those who bought their lands stayed and struggled on.

—A Connecticut pastor declined an addition of $100 to his salary, for the reason, among others, that the hardest part of his labors heretofore, had been the collection of his salary, and it would kill him to try to collect $100 more.

—"You are now one," said the minister to the happy pair he had just joined together in a knot that they could never undo. "Which one?" asked the bride. "You will have to settle that for yourselves," said the clergyman.

—Give the new minister a little time to become adjusted to new conditions. Do not treat him worse than you would a new horse.

—A rather gaily dressed young lady asked her Sunday school class, "What was meant by the pomps and vanities of the world." The answer was honest, but rather unexpected, "Them flowers on your hat."

—A gentleman who was not a religious nian was amusing himself twitting an old black man on the subject of religion, and asked him:

"Well now, Joe, do you really believe in this matter of election by God?" "Deed I do, Master," was the reply. "Well then, do you think I am elected to be saved?"

"I scasely knows, Master, but I nebber hearn o' ny one being 'lected what wa'n't a candidate."

—Slightly sarcastic was the clergyman who paused, and addressed a man coming into church after the sermon had begun, with the remark, "Glad to see you, sir; come in; always glad to see those here late, who can't come early." And decidedly self-possessed was the man thus addressed, in the presence of an astonished congregation, as he responded: "Thank you, will you favor me with the text?"

—A man was conscientiously opposed to the envelope system of making contributions, on the ground that we are commanded not to let our left hand know what our right hand doeth. The system being adopted by the church; he gave nothing, for fear his left hand would find it out. In this way he kept his conscience unspotted and got ahead of his left hand.

THE SALUTARY EFFECTS.

of Simmons Liver Refulator upon the nervous system, prostrated by long suffering with dyspepsia, constipation and kindred diseases, is without a precedent. Its tonic, cathartic and alterative effects are truly wonderful.

NATURE'S SLUICE WAY.

The kidneys are nature's sluice-way to wash out the debris of our constantly changing bodies. If they do not work properly the trouble is felt everywhere. Then be wise and as soon as you see signs of disorder get a package of Kidney-Wort and take it faithfully. It will clean the sluice-way of sand, gravel or slime and purify the whole system. Druggists sell it, both liquid and dry, and it is equally efficient in either form.—Independent.

CHILD'S CATARRH SPECIFIC

So marked has been the success attendant on my method of treatment, and so thoroughly has my statement that Catarrh can be cured been proven, that thousands and tens of thousands from all parts of the world have been interested to write and obtain my method of treatment, and where it has been given an honest trial it has invariably proved a grand success. Year by year my business has grown until now my correspondents number nearly 100,000, and I have been compelled to add largely to my force in order to meet the growing demand for my Catarrh Specific.

Perseverance and Catarrh.

I MEAN HONEST, HARD WORK; I USE HONEST METHODS; I DO NOT attempt to cure in a day a disease that has been growing for a lifetime, increasing in power and gathering strength daily for years. I DO NOT ask my patients to attempt, nor do I want them to try their cure unless they mean to fight the battle for health and strength manfully and with a determination to win. I DO TRY to encourage every sufferer with catarrh to believe they can be cured if they will persevere in the use of means I provide.

BY ACCIDENT, CARELESSNESS, INATTENTION, HEREDITARY TAIN, or in some unknown way, you have secured and are nursing in your system a poison that is surely eating its way to your vitals, carrying untold misery and suffering in its progress. DO NOT WAIT until your body is racked with pain, until the passages of your head are eaten away, until the foul mass of corruption running down your throat, has affected the lungs, poisoning the whole system, causing Consumption, Liver Complaint and Chronic Diseases of many kinds. DO NOT WAIT until Catarrh has prostrated you and the complication of diseases arising from the neglected Catarrh has placed you beyond the reach of any human aid. Obtain the means that has cured so many thousands, and, having secured it, with honest, straightforward work, persevere in its use, and you will be blessed with renewed health and strength. I especially desire to treat those who have used other remedies without success.

THIRTEEN YEARS AGO

Catarrh was considered an incurable disease. I had then suffered for thirteen years in a manner only known to those who have this disease in some of its worst forms. My professional duties made exposure a necessity, and I was first attacked by a slight cold; terrible headaches, which could not be cured followed, with deafness and ringing in the ears, soreness of the throat, disgusting nasal discharges, weak, inflamed eyes, hawking, raising of vile matter, black and sometimes bloody mucus, coughing, with great soreness of the lungs. The liver and stomach were polluted with the diseased matter running from the head until dyspepsia, indigestion, and liver complaint made me a wreck and incapacitated me for my professional duties and confined me to my bed. Compelled to resign my pastorate, and feeling that my end was near, in desperation I gave up the physicians and compounded my Catarrh Specific, and wrought upon myself a wonderful cure. Now, at the age of sixty-seven, I am wholly restored, can speak for hours with no difficulty, and never have had, in the whole thirteen years, the slightest return of the disease.

EVERY PHYSICIANS who has examined my Specific says it is certain, and thorough, and perfect.

T. P. CHILDS.

TO THE READER:

Can you comprehend in its terrible significance that this disease is more fatal to mankind than all the fevers and ailments that we know of, or the millions of people that labor under it? Many are often unconscious of its ravages until the discharge from the nose and throat brings it painful before them, in effective efforts to cough and expectorate the offensive matter. Can anything be more disgusting to the on-looker than this spectacle? Yet none are so frequent. You will find it in every street car in every public conveyance. This is only the beginning of the disease. It requires instant scientific treatment. From the delicate organization of the parts affected, there is no time to lose; nothing but the most decided measures will arrest the silent progress of this cruel malady. There must be no neglect.

WHAT THE EDITORS SAY:

"The publisher and editors of the Journal and Messenger have known Rev. T. P. Childs for many years, and feel every confidence in any statements he may make. Our subscribers can feel every confidence in giving their cases into his hands for treatment."—Journal and messenger, Cincinnati.

"While not supposing that all cases of Catarrh will be cured by the prescription advertised, the publisher of the Illustrated Christian Weekly, after diligent inquiry have reasons to believe that it has, in many cases, proved effectual."—Illustrated Christian Weekly.

"The publisher of the Congregationalist, with multitudes of other people are somewhat suspicious of patent medicines as a rule, and when we received the advertisement of Mr. Childs, we at first declined its insertion; but on making inquiry, we received such satisfactory replies and one especially from a well-known Congregational pastor not far from Rev. Mr. Childs, the proprietor of the medicine, that we withdrew our objections."—Congregationalist, Boston.

PERMANENT CURE OF CATARRH!

100,000 Catarrhal cases have applied to me for relief. Many thousands have received my Specific, and are cured. We deem it only fair that every one who wishes should have the opportunity to ascertain whether we are able to accomplish all that we claim; and for this purpose we add a few of the many hundreds of uncollected certificates which have been sent to us by grateful patients—as well as the addresses of some who have been successfully treated, almost any of whom will doubtless respond to any inquiry by letter, if accompanied by a stamp to pay postage. Having been cured themselves, they doubtless will be willing to let the afflicted know where they can find certain relief. We have thousands of these certificates from all classes, physicians, clergymen, lawyers, judges, merchants, bankers, and business men.

OUR LETTER BOX:

Below we give a few of the thousands of letters we are constantly receiving. The record is a guarantee that CHILD'S CATARRH SPECIFIC is no new untried cure, but a positive and certain remedy. We above all things desire to establish confidence in our treatment, so that every sufferer from Catarrh and Bronchitis may feel certain of success in its use.

Your treatment has cured my daughter of Catarrh induced by a severe attack of measles.—[John W. Riley, U. S. express Agent, Troy, O.]

My health is fully restored. The horrid and loathsome disease is all gone. My lungs feel all right.—[Mrs. W. D. Lincoln, York, Neb.]

Your treatment did me great good. I have not lost a day by sickness this year.—[Abner Graham, Biddle Univ'ty, Charlotte, N. C.]

I am glad to say that I found your medicine all that can be claimed for it. I am fully restored.—[J. H. Sigfried, Pottsville, Pa.]

I do not regret the money it cost in using your medicine. I can heartily recommend you treatment.—[E. J. Jippincott, Clarksboro, Clouceston Co., N. J.]

I have used your Catarrh treatment and am cured. A thousand thanks to you for so sure a remedy.—[Fannie Dement, Dyer Station, Tenn.]

I am much pleased to say that I have used the treatment faithfully, with the happiest and best results.—[John A. Pratt, Goffs Falls, N. H.]

Your treatment cured me; your inhalers are excellent. This is the only radical cure I have ever found.—[E. S. Martin, Pastor M. E. Church Port Carbon, Pa.]

No amount of money could induce me to be placed in the misery I was in when I commenced using your medicine.—[J. C. McIntire, Fulton, Mo.]

I have so far recovered that I am able to attend church, can walk half a mile. Have a good appetite, am gaining all the time.—[Mrs. A. N. Munger, Detroit, Mich.]

Now I am cured; head free; air passages all open, and breathing natural. A thousand thanks to you for so sure a remedy.—[Judge J. Collett, Lima, Ohio.]

Your Cold Air Inhaling Balm has proved a great benefit to Mrs. Marble as well as myself. I can heartily recommend it to others.—[E. Marble, Concord, Mich.]

It affords me great pleasure to notify you that I have, as I sincerely believe, entirely recovered from that loathsome disease, catarrh; through your very beneficial treatment.—[B. Benedict, Petrolia, Pa.]

Passages of the head began to open, throat and bronchial tubes grew better, cough ceased and now I can see to write. I owe my life to your treatment.—[Thos. J. Daily, Homer, Champaign Co.; Ill.]

I received your Catarrh Specific some time ago, and used as directed. It acted like a charm. It cured my cough and stopped that wheezing I had in my throat.—[James W. Sanders, Five mile, Mason Co., W. Va.]

My throat is now so well restored that I can lecture daily without any difficulty, and find no difficulty whatever in preaching.—[E. B. Fairchild, D.D., LL. D. Chancellor University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.]

I am cured, another formidable case at last yielded to your treatment.—[W. B. Morse Bryan, Texas.]

I am now entirely cured. When I had used it three months I felt like a different woman. Too much can not be said in favor of your Catarrh treatment. It has saved my life.—[Mrs. E. G. Mitchell, Fairbury, Ill.]

Mrs. Mitchell lives near me and has used your treatment with perfect success, and is now well and hearty. This I am witness to.—[John G. Streets, Fairbury, Ill.]

I was thought to have had Consumption, and had suffered many years with what was really Catarrh, before I procured your treatment. I have had no return of the disease.—[Miss Louie James, Crab Orchard, Ky.]

My wife continues in the best of health and has no cough. It is with great pleasure we are able to recommend so wonderful a medicine as yours has proved to be to us.—[J. H. Bullard, Springfield, Mass.]

Between nine and ten years ago, being afflicted with Catarrh, I obtained your course of treatment, and after persisting in its use some months was completely cured, and have had no return of the disease.—[A. J. Still, Pattenburgh, N. J.]

I was terribly afflicted with nasal and bronchial Catarrh, and concluded to give your treatment a test. In a short time it cured me. I induced my brother to try it, and he too was cured.—[R. C. Jones, Rock River Falls, Wis.]

More than a year ago I used your Catarrh remedies, with almost untold benefit to myself. I prize your remedies, more than I can tell you.—[Mrs. E. P. Hooker, Defiance, O.]

Since receiving your Specific, I have been hitting hard. It takes hard hitting to make such an enemy as catarrh surrender. What ever may be said of other cures effected either by your treatment or any other, mine is really a marvelous one. I am close to sixty-nine years old and can endure nearly as much labor as I did at forty I have a good appetite, not ravenous, but healthy one, good digestion, and enjoy excellent sleep, undisturbed by any symptoms of strangulation.—[R. E. Melvin, Ofahoma, Leak Co., Miss.]

Brother Pettigrew was at the convention: could you have seen that robust, healthy man, who a few years since was brought to death's door by Catarrh, and, but for your remedy, would now probably be in his grave, and especially could you have heard his voice in that assembled you would have realized that had you never done anything more, your life has not been in vain. Your friend.—[R. E. M., Camden, Miss.]

For fifteen years I have been under the care of physicians for Consumption. In a letter dated four months later she says: I am almost cured.—[Mary J. Holley, Mountain Park, Ellis Co., Tex.]

will effectually and permanently cure any case of Catarrh, no matter how desperate. The treatment is local as well as constitutional, and can only be obtained at Troy, Ohio. We especially desire to treat those who have tried other remedies without success.

Childs' Treatment for Catarrh, and for diseases of the Bronchial Tubes, can be taken at home, with perfect ease and safety, by the patient. No expense need be entailed beyond the cost of the medicine. A full statement of method of home treatment and cost, with scores of testimonials from those who have been cured, will be sent on application. Address

Dr. Stinson's Asthma Remedy is unequalled as a positive Alternative and Cure for Asthma and Dyspepsia, and all their attendant evils. It does not merely afford temporary relief, but is a permanent cure. Mrs. B. F. Lee, of Belmore, O., says of it: "I am surprised at the speedy effects of your remedy. It is the first medicine in six years that has loosened my cough and made expiration easy. I now sleep all night without coughing." If your druggist does not keep it, send for treatise and testimonials to

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

UNTIL this year, the only representative in the Diocesan Convention that could be sent from a Mission was the Warden. Now, however, it may be recalled that any person may be sent otherwise qualified, and that the scale of representation in Convention for a mission is the same as for a parish.

ABOUT a month ago, the small pocket case containing the Bishop's railroad passes was stolen from him. He promptly notified the companies, and their courtesy has supplied him with duplicates. He learns that one of the passes has been found in Chicago, the thief having offered these for sale, and been detected.

THE Convention meets in Christ church, but for convenience, the Bishop's Address, which is read on the evening of the first day, will be given from St. George's church, immediately after which will be held the annual reception at the Episcopal residence, to which are invited the clergy and delegates to Convention, and also the Church people of the city generally, of which notice is requested to be given.

It will be remembered that licenses for lay readers expire, and are renewable at Easter. It will be expected that in all recommendations made by rectors for this office, it will be stated that the persons whose license is asked will really execute it. In many cases the nomination has been made without consultation or consent, and no duty has been performed under the license. The business is too serious to be asked for or held as a personal compliment.

EVERY parish and mission should have a decent chalice and paten at least, for the reverent celebration of the Holy Communion. The rector of Wallingford, Conn., where a large part of the plated ware of the country is made, the Rev. J. E. Wildman, offers for $5 50 to see that such a set, heavy plated, shall be sent to any address, in a neat box. The chalice stands six inches in height, with bowl two and one-half inches in depth, and three and one-fourth inches across the top. The paten is four and one-half inches in diameter. Both pieces are plain, excepting that each bears an engraved cross. The suggestion is worth acting on.

THE recently published life of the Rev. Mr. Lowder, for so many years the laborious and successful vicar of St. George's in the East, in London, has in it the following wise comment of the editor on his work: "It is astonishing how much can be done by good, honest, thorough visiting. As it is the custom nowadays amongst a certain clique of younger clergy to disparage visiting, and to say that the people must come to them, and that the priest's place is in the church, and not in the parish, I am the more anxious to give my testimony to the value of house to house visiting. Our work was entirely done by visiting. We made friends with the people in their own homes, and thus got them to attend the services of the Church. I have no patience with those who make a ridiculous theory the cloak for their own incompetence and laziness. Our blessed Lord chose not angels, but men for his ministers, that by means of human sympathy, men might win an entrance into sinner's hearts for the Divine love."

ST. LOUIS CHAPTER.

The Chapter of St. Louis is a voluntary body, consisting of the Bishop, the clergymen having parochial cures in St. Louis, and two proctors from each of their congregations, elected by the vestry. It is called together from time to time by the Bishop to consult and act upon matters of special interest and importance to Church work in this city. Information and joint actions are often required, and the Bishop is helped by the advice of the brethren. This body has been in existence for this purpose for ten or twelve years.

As time has gone on, vacancies among the proctors have arisen, which have not been promptly filled, or else the persons have not been informed as to the nature of the duties involved. A meeting is never called unless it is for some business of special interest. Will the Rectors see to it that any vacancies among their proctors are filled, and that their names and addresses are sent to Mr. John A. Harrison, Clerk of the Chapter, 404 Market Street.

ONE of the most helpful things in the development of Christian character is a habit of looking constantly for something to do for Christ, rather than something to do for one's self. Edward Payson once said: "The reason why the men of the world think so little of Christ is, that they do not look at him. Their backs being toward the sun, they can see only their own shadows, and are, therefore, wholly taken up with themselves; while the true disciple, looking only upward, sees nothing but his Saviour, and learns to forget himself." And just as we think less of our Helper and more of ourselves—even of our best and truest selves—do we miss the highest attainment; for self-consciousness is inconsistent with the best spiritual results. As we work for God and his children, so shall we strengthen ourselves. "Love's secret," says F. W. Faber, "is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind because they are such very little ones."—[Ex.]

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—In the distribution of Mr. Schnaider's bequest of $4,000 for the orphans of St. Louis, our Orphans' Home received $193.

—The Rev. D'Estaing Jennings, who used to be in this Diocese, and organized the parish at Carthage, and afterward had charge of Pleasant Hill and Warrensburg, has been spending a month or two with his friends in the southwest. He has concluded to remain in Missouri, and has begun a school in Carthage, for which he is well qualified. He has also started services in Pierce City, where we have a number of Church people. On the famous rainy Sunday in February, when there was hardly a handful at any of the churches, even in St. Louis, there were 75 at services morning and night in Pierce.

—In digging down the mound on which Grace church stood, a large quantity of human bones were brought to light. The land about had been a city burying ground; no interments had however been made since 1850, and most families had long since removed the remains of their dead. Those bones which had been exhumed several years ago when a portion of the land was dug away, and those which had been exposed by crumbling away of the banks, had been placed in a vault under where the church stood before. Now, however, a new vault under the present lowered site of the church has been made, 30 feet long by 5 feet wide and 4 feet deep, in which the remains have been deposited.

—The Rev. G. E. Purucker has resigned the rectorship of Trinity Church, De Soto, and the charge of Ironton and Crystal City, and has removed to the Diocese of Indiana.

—The little church at Rolla is finished, and it was expected that it would be used for the first time at Easter. They succeeded beyond their expectations in making collections, mostly in the place for it, and by strict care and scrutiny, have been able to accomplish very much for comparatively little. The church has been plastered and colored, and the woodwork stained and varnished. There has been collected $936.60, and paid out $922.45, leaving on hand, together with collectable assets, $75.65. Out of this, however, was to be paid $107.50, for the pews and making, leaving a deficiency of about $25. Then they need 32 yards of carpeting, and ought to paint the outside of the building. This, however, would cost $50 or $60. Who can send the carpeting, or any part of this money to the Rev. Mr. Johnson there? They have bought a cabinet organ, and are paying for it by installments. The minister and one of the professors in the School of Mines there, made the communion table and chancel rail with their own hands. They anticipated a happy Easter in a building over which they had struggled so hard.

—St. John's church in this city has no longer a choir of boys and men, but depends upon a quartette who sit on the choir platform.

—To give an idea of the unfixed condition of even an old city congregation, it is stated that in St. George's church, St. Louis, the removals and deaths among the communicants represent forty per cent. of the number in the parish two years ago.

—The Rev. Mr. Mann, the missionary to the deaf mutes, is to hold services in Christ church chapel for them on Sunday afternoon, 16th inst.

—The Rev. Mr. Silvester was, greatly to his distress, laid up from duty two or three weeks during the Lenten season.

—The debt on St. John's church in this city has been fully paid. The arrangements for its consecration are delayed because of the desire to expend some money first on necessary repairs. In the eight years since the completion of the building, the congregation being in debt, there was but little disposition or ability to keep up the necessary improvements.

—The editor of the American edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica, has requested the Rev. Dr. Fulton to prepare an article on Deaconesses, on which the English edition is deficient, emphasizing his superior qualifications for the task.

—The Rev. Mr. Waterman has resigned his charge of Cameron, finding his work becoming extended beyond his strength. He will confine himself hereafter to Chillicothe.

—At the Bishop's visit to Trinity Church, St. Louis, when nine persons were confirmed, the congregation was very large, and the service a very strong one. There was present and assisting on that day the Rev. E. M. Pecke, of the Diocese of Springfield. It was with regard to him that Dr. Fulton recently wrote a letter to the Living Church, asking for $600 for a clergyman who had pledged his library for this amount to help build a church in his district, and who, by the failure of another party, thus became liable for the amount. The appeal was successful, and the sum has been given.

—Solicitors for the Living Church and the Guardian have been at work in this city for some weeks to secure an increase of the circulation of their respective journals. An arrangement has been made between the publishers of the News and the Living Church by which for $2.25 a year's subscription to both may be secured; the amounts separately are $2 and $1.

—The Bishop recently confirmed 17 persons in Mt. Calvary Church, St. Louis, at a service that was deeply touching. The candidates quite thronged the chancel rail, and evidently had a deep and tender consciousness of the important step which they were taking.

—The Young Ladies' Guild of Christ Church, St. Louis, which has been very busily at work now for three months, have concluded to postpone their bazaar until the fall. Preparations during the summer will be going on under the direction of a committee of gentlemen, to prepare for a grand entertainment to be given in the new Armory Hall, of a representation of a street in an old English town, with shops of various kinds in which trading will be done, in costume, with village green and May pole. In the meantime, however, the beautiful products of deft fingers are to be sold. The object is the beautifying of the interior of Christ Church.

—It is presumed that very shortly practical measures will be taken to prepare for the mid-summer fete champetre at the Fair Grounds for the furnishing of St. Luke's hospital. The one had last year was so admirably conducted and resulted so successfully that there has been a pleasant anticipation all through the year of its repetition in June.

—St. Augustine's mission in Kansas City has paid $750 for their lot, and $293.10 for putting in the foundation of their church, and have now in hand $200 towards their building. In this last they need $1000. They do not dare to go into debt, and yet they sorely need their building. Cottage lectures are now held in private houses. Much of the amount which has been raised has come from outside of their numbers and outside of Kansas City. Efforts have been made to solicit more abroad; but little success, however, has been recently met with. If they only had a building, a large and influential congregation of colored people could be gathered. Can no one give them a little help? The money may be sent to the honorary Treasurer, Jas. W. Ripley, Esq., Armour Brothers' Bank, Kansas City, or to the Bishop, or to the missionary, Rev. Chas. E. Cummings, Box 1198, P. O., Kansas City.

—The mission of the Rev. Dr. Gierlow, which has held its services since last fall in the hall, corner of Easton and Garrison avenues, St. Louis, has been organized under the name of St. Luke's Mission. Dr. Gierlow's afternoon services are held in St. James Church, Ellettsville. The Bishop, on a visitation of the parish last month, confirmed six persons. That which stands greatly in the way of the success of the St. Luke's Mission is, that the services are held up two flights of stairs, are thus difficult of access, and not prominently before the notice of the public.

—On the morning of Easter Eve in the Oratory of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd at their house on Lafayette Park, the Bishop admitted Miss Adderly as a confirmed sister—Alice. She has been here for one year a member of the Community as Probationer. The retable was beautifully, but simply adorned, the flowers of Easter hope mingling with the crape of Good Friday sorrows. The Holy Communion was afterwards celebrated.

—Among the many beautiful donations to the Orphans' Home this year none have been more acceptable than the "New Home" sewing machine, the generous gift of Mr. O. D. Gray. Mr. Gray has the exclusive sale of the New Home machine in St. Louis, and we wish him much success.

—The Bishop confirmed seven persons at St. Paul's Church, South St. Louis, on Wednesday evening in Holy Week. The Church has recently been very handsomely decorated at the chancel end, and the whole interior greatly brightened and improved. There is a very vigorous parish guild at work, in which duty is divided among the members according to the time and ability of each. There is in contemplation a literary and musical entertainment for the 18th inst., the object of which is the purchase of a lot of ground on Fourth Street, with the hope of building the church there after a time, still keeping the present property. The whole parish shows vigorous life.

—St. George's, St. Louis, has in contemplation some plan by which they can secure for themselves rooms for parish purposes. Dr. Fulton has in contemplation the Sunday school in the afternoon, with a service and catechizing in connection with it in the church proper.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed in St. Luke's Hospital, 3; Christ, St. Louis, 14; Trinity, 9; St. John's, 10; Mt. Calvary, 17; St. James, 6; St. Paul's, 7; Macon, 17, Holy Communion, St. Louis, 22; good Samaritan, 15.

—The Sunday school in Christ Church, St. Louis, has greatly increased in numbers and interest within the last few months. Its work would be prosecuted under better advantages if it had better facilities. The infant school, numbering over a hundred, has to be taught under one of the dark galleries of the church. Whatever may be said about dim religious light in other places, a Sunday school room ought to be light and bright.

—The Rev. Mr. Chestnutt, of the Church of the Advent, in this city, is approaching an interesting crisis in his work. The payment of the property, which cost about $4,500, was divided into seven annual payments, of which five have already been met. There is about $1,400 now due on the property, one half this year and one half next. Mr. Chestnutt was encouraged to think that it might be wise to try to raise the whole sum now. Some were ready to pay more if the whole thing was to be settled now; the spirit of his work would be better if he could have the debt out of the way. He has now gotten over $1,000, and thinks his own congregation will give $250 more, and this if done will leave him only a little over $150 to raise, and then his church can be consecrated and the parish organized. Can any one help him a bit? He has almost made himself sick in the effort.

—The Rev. Mr. Dunn of Lexington, has just returned from the East, after an absence of one month soliciting for his church in Independence. He secured $1,000, but wanted $1,500. They will soon occupy the building, although it will be unfinished.

—The first of the night services at Christ Church, St. Louis, will take place on the Sunday after Easter. There will be a choir of over thirty men and boys carefully trained.

—The united celebration of the Holy Communion at Christ Church, St. Louis, was as usual very largely attended. In the congregation, which was made up wholly of communicants, and which nearly filled the nave, were representatives from all the congregations in the city. In the chancel, besides the Bishop, there were the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, Ingraham and Gierlow, and Messrs. Robert, Silvester and Barr. The Rev. Messrs. Reed, Phelps and Gauthier also were present.

—The Rev. Mr. Wright, of St. John's Church, has been suffering very severely for some time past from acute rheumatism, and has hardly been able to maintain his services.

—The missions at Cape Girardeau and Jackson, in the southeastern part of the diocese, have aroused to much activity. They have finished and paid for a handsome chancel, and have the money to build a fence to enclose the church lot. It is expected that they will have regular services immediately, for which for some time they have been very solicitous.

—The Rev. Albert E. Wells, of Chester, in the diocese of Springfield, has become the assistant of the Rev. Mr. Holeman, in St. Mary's church, first Ward, Kansas City.

—A Mexico, on the 25th ult., while the Rev. Peter Wager was sitting in the vestry-room of the church, some evil-disposed person threw a large iron bolt directly through one of the windows, breaking out the sash and glass, the murderous missile striking with great force in close proximity to where the minister sat.

—In view of the deep interest and varied usefulness of Mrs. Robert Lyle, the organist of Christ church in this city, her prospective removal very shortly to Dacotah, becomes a matter of more than parochial interest. Many interests here will greatly miss her.

—The Bishop has, on nomination of the several Convocations, appointed the following clergymen Deans of Convocations for the year beginning at Easter: The Rev. F. B. Sheetz, St. Louis Convocation; the Rev. James Runcie, D. D., St. Joseph Convocation, and the Rev. J. H. Curtis, Mexico Convocation.

—At St. Mary's, Fayette, they had the largest congregation, communion and offertory that they have ever known. The rector went to Franklin, and gave them service at night.

—It is said that the canvasser for the New York Guardian secured 174 subscribers in St. Louis recently.

—The Bishop was induced to defer his appointment in Trenton, for the 12th inst., because of a small pox panic there, which had closed the churches and stopped all assemblages.

—The last thing is of an incident told of one of our larger city churches on Easter morning. A young gentleman, admirer of the soprano singer, wanted one of the ushers to take a basket of flowers up to present it to her at a point in the service. His flowers did not go.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland, of Chicago, expected to have had the debt of $29,000 on his church there paid on Easter. We have not heard the result.

Strength for Mind and Body.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than in a bushel of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body. See other column.

EASTER IN ST. LOUIS.

Easter was a perfectly radiant day. The day before had been sultry, and there was a heavy storm at night; but Easter was mild and bright, and quiet. The congregations everywhere were very large. In St. Louis, Christ church had every seat filled, and the service was very grand. In the afternoon the Sunday school celebration was held, which showed that there were 274 scholars on the rolls.

St. George's was thronged. The floral decorations consisted mainly of trees and pot plants. At the Sunday school gathering at night the children marched in from the chapel, and the attendance was crowded. The Superintendent's report showed an average attendance from September to Easter of 235, but on account of the absences during the summer, the average for the year was brought down to 184. An interesting feature was the singing of the 338th hymn of the Hymnal at the close, to the tune of "Bonnie Doon." The touching music, the beautiful words, and the strong manner in which the singing was taken up, produced a grand effect.

The congregation of Grace church hoped to have gotten into their removed and renovated building. But it was found that more repairs were needed than had been foreseen, and it will yet be weeks before they can get into their church. They had to have their Easter service in the Medical College.

The Bishop was at the church of the Holy Communion in the morning, and confirmed 22 persons. There had been 90 communicants at the early service, and there were nearly 200 at the later. At the Sunday-school celebration at night, there was as usual, a great throng. The Superintendent's report showed that the average attendance for the year had been 258, and the highest had been 327. He said they needed more teachers, especially men.

At Trinity a new altar cloth was used, which had been painted by Carl Gutherz. It was a medallion of our Lord's head against an inclined cross, with cherub's heads in the arms of the quatrefoil, painted most beautifully on blue satin, the medallion being placed on a cloth of white satin. The other adornments of the chancel, including a number of brass candlesticks, were of great beauty and richness. The financial condition for the year was found to be very satisfactory; the parish, after having all of its dues, including $300 of Convention assessment, and amounts for all canonical objects, having an amount in the treasury. There were 120 present at the early, and as many more at the later celebration of the Holy Communion.

The Bishop at night confirmed for the mission of the Good Samaritan at Trinity church. The church was completely filled, and mainly with colored persons, and many had to stand. A more devout and reverent congregation has never assembled in St. Louis. They all seemed to take an active part in the service, and the singing, especially of the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," was thrilling. Fifteen were confirmed, almost all married persons, and of mature age. The work has evidently taken a strong hold upon the very best and intelligent classes of our colored citizens. Mr. Mason is to be congratulated upon the solid advance of his work. We presume, however, that the very extension of it makes him more anxious about the securing of a church for his people. He has had some good subscriptions, but needs yet very much more. His people gave on Easter night $60, for the building fund, from their Lenten savings.

The Bishop made his usual visit to the Orphans' Home, early on Easter morning. The Rev. Mr. Reed, their chaplain, was present, as well as Messrs. Burchard, Owen, McLean, Hayne, Bascome, Evans, and Mrs. Moore, Douglass, O'Dell, Burchard, Hayne, and others. The children showed their usual proficiency in the catechism, and the Bishop distributed the prizes. The singing was very sweet.

Mount Calvary had its usual Sunday-school celebration at night, and the building was densely filled. The school is coming to be one of the largest in the city. The average attendance for the year has been 250.

St. John's had its choir of boys again in surplices on Easter Day.

St. Peter's had its Sunday-school anniversary at night. The reports showed a deep interest. The building was beautifully adorned, and very greatly crowded.

At the Advent the Rev. Mr. Chesnutt surprised his people by the announcement that he had been able to secure during Lent $1,250 of the $1,430 required to complete the payment of the debt upon the building. Many of the people were moved to tears for joy at the intelligence. The Easter offerings of the congregation for this purpose amounted to $68. About half of the whole sum subscribed comes from the parish, and half from its many friends outside. When the whole sum is raised, and there must not be any doubt about securing the balance, the church will be consecrated, and the mission erected into a parish. Then the people must do much more justly and generously for their faithful and laborious pastor.

Accounts of Easter service in more distant places cannot be given in this number, because of the time when we must go to press.

EASTER MONDAY PARISH MEETINGS.

The annual meeting of the Parish of Christ Church was held Monday evening in the chapel, Rev. Dr. Schuyler presiding. The following officers were re-elected for the ensuing year: Messrs. John R. Shepley, Theodore Foster, J. B. Gazzam, Chas. S. Freeborn, Chas. Parsons, B. W. Lewis, W. S. Pope, B. B. Graham, Newton Grane, M. S. Show, D. F. Leavitt, W. R. Allen, J. S. Fullerton, vestrymen and trustees. The new Board of Vestrymen went into executive session immediately and elected C. S. Freeborn, Senior Warden; Newton Grane, Junior Warden; J. B. Gazzam, Treasurer, and D. F. Leavitt, Secretary. The Treasurer's report exhibited a very satisfactory financial condition in the church, the debt being entirely paid.

Rev. John Fulton, D. D., presided at the meeting at St. George's Episcopal Church. The vestrymen and warden elected were as follows: John W. Luke, Senior Warden; Joseph W. Branch, Junior Warden; D. E. Garrison, Secretary; M. W. Alexander, Treasurer; Edwin Harrison, H. T. Simon, Judge John D. Pope, Hon. John C. Orrick, H. H. Curtis, Hugh Rogers, John G. Wells, Western Bascome and Capt. I. M. Mason. Two of these, Messrs. Pope and Orrick, are new names.

The report of Mr. M. W. Alexander, treasurer, showed that the total receipts since last Easter were $14,338 21. The sum realized from pew rents was $9,296 64; plate collections, $781 28; communion offertory, $285 30; subscriptions for diocesan missions, $398; proceeds steamboat excursion, $263 35; from Provident Savings institution, $1,729 15. The liabilities of the parish were in all $3,184 65, and the account showed on last year's transactions a deficit of $2,026 25, which was due to a large increase in the expenses, some of the items not having been provided for, and there were besides a few losses of revenue on account of death or removal. Among the items of expenditure were rector's salary, $6,000; choir, $2,112 26. The Easter offering of $1,700 would reduce the deficit to a very small amount.

At the Church of the Holy Communion the following were elected Vestrymen: Robert M. Wilson, John H. Tennent, Dr. Charles E. Briggs, Chas. Miller, E. C. Simmons, L. H. Garnett, Wm. C. Day, Frank Carter, G. Paddock, Richard H. Allen, Ralph Talbot and F. W. Risque.

Immediately after the election, the new vestry organized. The rector appointed Mr. R. M. Wilson, senior warden, and Mr. J. H. Tennent was elected junior warden. Mr. Chas. Miller was re-elected treasurer, and Mr. Ralph Talbot was elected assistant treasurer. The treasurer reported that the receipts for the year were large enough to meet all expenses and leave a small balance in the treasury.

At Trinity Church the meeting was called to order by the rector, Rev. George C. Betts. The secretary read his report, the substance of which was that the debt of the church had been reduced one-half in the last four years from $13,000 to $6,500. The treasurer's report was read. The receipts covered all expenses and there was no deficiency. Rev Mr Betts then made his address, reviewing the history of the church since his connection with it, and dwelt on its growth and progress. The election of the vestrymen was then had, and the following gentlemen elected to form that body: Messrs John Wickham, L Levering, Wm R Pye, D Robert Barclay, Wm H Thomson, Wm B Potter, George W Riggs, Th E White, H Livermore, Andrew Leslie, E M Taylor, B M Crow and Arthur T Metcalf.

At St John's parish matters were reported in a flourishing condition and the parish out of debt. It was shown that during the past ten years the sum of $124,728 had passed through the hands of the treasurer.

The following gentlemen were elected vestrymen for the ensuing year: Messrs F O Wellman, F N Judson, Henry Pitcher S D Barlow, C H Alexander, Chas Hofman, W F Ferguson, C E Pearce, Geo D Reynolds, Dr H H Bickford, R F Phillips, A R Donaldson and W R Donaldson.

Mount Calvary Church elected as vestrymen the following gentlemen: Messrs Joseph Frankip, S H Hewitt, D. M Edgerton C. H Albors, Louis Lipman, Geo M Wright, D H MacAdam, Alex G Cochran and R L Downton.

The treasurer reported that he paid out during the last year $5,798 86. The receipts in the Sunday school were $460, whilst the Sewing society reported $800 on hand.

St Peter's Church has a very flattering outlook for the ensuing year. The rector, Rev E F Berkeley, stated that the church debt, which last year was $5,000, had been reduced by one fifth, and that he every reason to believe that the entire amount would be paid off during the coming year. The vestrymen elected were Geo H Goddard, Chas R Blake, Geo D Barnard H Daughaday E H Linley, Martin Collins, W H Webster, J Percival Smith.

ORPHANS' HOME.

The annual meeting of the Orphans' Home Association was held in St. George's church on Tuesday morning, 11th inst., with the Bishop in the chair, and the Rev. Dr. Fulton acting as Secretary. The report of the Secretary of the Board of Managers showed that forty-six children had been received during the year, two had been adopted, two died, three left on being of age, six had been restored to parents or friends, four had been bound out, and there are 60 now at the Home.

The Treasurer's report showed that the receipts for the year had been $6,448, of which there had been received from Christ church, $892 60; St. George's, $390 70; Mount Calvary, $377 50; Holy Communion, $136 80; St. John's, $121; St. Peter's, $106; Trinity, $101; Grace, $20; St. Paul's, $12 50; Emmanuel, Webster, $40; Grace, Kirkwood, $25. Only $143 35 had come from entertainments. There had been received from rents and interest, $2,943 17. The cash on hand was $386 74.

Mrs. Western Bascome was elected First Directress, Mrs. H. J. Moore Second Directress, Mrs. T. McLean Secretary, and Mrs. H. R. O'Dell Treasurer.

The following managers were elected: CHRIST CHURCH—Mrs. Hugh Campbell, Mrs. John R. Shepley, Mrs. T. T. Gantt, and Mrs. Henry Ame lung. ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH—Mrs. S. Trowbridge, Mrs. Edwin Harrison, Mrs. W. J. Lewis, Mrs. Jaminet. ST. JOHN'S CHURCH—Mrs. S. D. Barlow, Mrs. S. Wainwright, Mrs. F. O. Wellman, Mrs. John T. Douglass. GRACE CHURCH—Mrs. W. H. Woodward, Mrs. A. Heacock, Mrs. J. H. Wilson, and Mrs. T. Jacobs. TRINITY—Mrs. L. Levering, Mrs. John Wickham, Mrs. Isaac Cook, Mrs. Charles McLaren. HOLY COMMUNION—Mrs. W. C. Day, Mrs. C. C. Buck, Mrs. J. F. Aglar, Mrs. R. M. Wilson. MOUNT CALVARY—Mrs. C. Beers, Mrs. R. Hayne, Mrs. P. Bartholow, Miss Annie Sands. ST PETER'S—Mrs. C. Blake, Mrs. H. Daughaday, Miss C. Benson, Mrs. W. H. Webster. ST. PAUL'S—Mrs. J. De Forest, Mrs. A. N. Blaisdell, Mrs. J. C. Terry, and Miss Louise B. Allen.

The Bishop appointed as the Advisory Committee, Hon. John Wickham, Capt. Silas Bent, and J. M. Franciscus, Esq.

The Home was never in a more flourishing condition.

LENTEN CONFERENCES.

One feature of the second series of Lenten conferences in Christ Church chapel was maintained to the end, the persistent interest of lay persons, and noticeably men. There never was a time when the number of men present was less than thirty, and sometimes it went up to twice that number. Another feature was the indication of interest on the part of those who were there. The sessions were not allowed to go late, but not a single person ever left before the close. Evidently those who were there came with a purpose.

The attempt to enlist the laity in speaking resulted almost in an entire failure. The committee of gentlemen into whose hands the business of securing speakers was given seems to have done almost nothing, or else to have met with no response. We did not have, in consequence, the good papers which we had last year.

The clergymen of the city, doubtless busied about Lenten work, were conspicuous by their absence. One or two were there on almost all occasions, the most of the others were wholly absent.

MAGNIFICAT AND NUNC DIMITTIS.

Editor of CHURCH NEWS.

I see in your January number that the Rector of St. Thomas' Church, New York, uses the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in evening prayer according to the season of the Church year.

I write to ask if you will be kind enough to inform me in your next number at what time of the Church year and in which part of evening service, they are used, and which canticle is omitted that they or it may be sung, and oblige an old subscriber.

[The authorization of the last General Convention was that the Evangelical hymns, the Magnificat, that is the Virgin's hymn, "My soul doth magnify the Lord," and the song of Simeon, Nunc Dimittis, "Now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace," should be added at the end of the Hymnal, nothing more. In the English Prayer Book the first of these canticles is used after the first lesson, the Cantate being the alternative; the other comes after the second lesson, with Deus as the alternative. These alternative psalms of David were not used in these places until 1552, the others having been used much earlier. It would appear that the Rector of St. Thomas' has introduced these New Testament hymns in the places which they occupy in the English book, using them in the first half of the Christian year, when the services have particularly to do with our Lord; and having the psalms from Trinity until Advent. SPRINGFIELD.

Editor of CHURCH NEWS:

Under the head of "General News," in the February number, is given what purports to be an epitome of the lectures delivered by Bishop Harris, before the students of the General Theological Seminary, on "The Prophetic Office in the Christian Church."

Therein the Bishop is made to say: "Patristic and mediæval learning would put the student out of sympathy with the age in which he lives." It is plain enough, of course, that such an assertion as the above, by whomsoever made, would be the veriest nonsense. The fact is, however, that Bishop Harris made no such assertion; it is not likely that he would. Among the manliest of men, who are in true sympathy with all that is best in "the age in which we live," are not a few masters of "patristic and mediæval learning." What the Bishop did say, is stated in his letter to The Churchman of the 4th of February: "I would not even seem to undervalue the patristic and mediæval learning which must engage much of your thought, but I warn you not to allow such studies to put you out of sympathy with our age."

A glance will suffice to indicate the wide difference between what the Bishop is reported to have said, and what he did say. Several thoughts arise in this connection—one is: that against the "destructiveness of this age, patristic and mediæval learning" is a good weapon, "a tried and trusty blade," indeed. Why the possession of a good stock of it should put any man "out of sympathy" with anything that is deserving of "sympathy" in "the age in which he lives" is beyond my comprehension. I have written this, because "a lie travels fast and far," and it is the duty of somebody to note a statement that may do harm, but in any case must be denied because it is not correct. WM. PAGE CASE.

[The News gave the statement as originally reported. When, in time for the issue of the next month, the correction had been made the difference seemed hardly enough to justify the calling attention to it. Anyone can judge how great the practical change of meaning is.—ED. NEWS.]

MACON CITY.

Editor Church News:

The Bishop's visit in Macon was one of unusual interest. It took place on the 31st ult. The Rev. Dr. Wainwright of Palmyra was present to join with the Bishop and the Rector, the Rev. E. Talbot, in the examinations of a Deacon for Priest's Orders. This took nearly the whole day. Then the larger boys of St. James Academy invited the clergymen to come up and see them play a match game of football in which they are great proficient, under the leadership of Mr. Angel Smith, one of the masters, and formerly of one of the English public schools.

Among those to be confirmed were Mr. W. H. Goodisson, until recently a Presbyterian minister, and his wife. Mr. G. was early trained in the Church, but after a full course at the Chicago Seminary had entered and for twelve years had labored in the Presbyterian ministry, and had never had a pastorate in a place where our services were. He had taken the Churchman for ten years, and taught his children in the Church catechism, and had read Mahan's History and other books. Three or four years ago, when in Ohio, he saw the notice of Bishop Robertson's lecture on the Church before the Unitarian congregation in this city, and sent to St. Louis for it. He is now living in Macon with his family.

At night the church was packed, although many chairs had been brought in. After the sermon by the Bishop, when the class was called up, seventeen persons appeared, and among them eleven young men, students from the Academy. It was a stirring sight. They knelt first, and entirely filled the rail; a line of bright-faced, strong, manly fellows. It was a very impressive service, and all showed that they felt deeply the reality and meaning of it. This indicates the solid work that is doing by Mr. Talbot, of which there is a full recognition in the community.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

THE editor of this department will gladly give publication to brief accounts of the Easter services of the Sunday schools of the diocese, and superintendents are invited to send him abstracts of their annual reports.

THE annual meeting of the members of The Missionary Host for the election of officers, and such other business as may come before them will be held at St. George's Chapel, 4 o'clock P.M., Sunday the 30th inst. A full attendance is earnestly desired.

PARENTS are influential to assist or hinder their Sunday school teachers or superintendent as they speak of him at home. The thoughtless remark or single slighting word may destroy the teacher's influence over the children who hear it. Words are little things, but they make or destroy. Parents, if you cannot speak a kindly word of the teacher's labors, see to it for your children's sake, you do not speak an unkind one.

THE anniversary services of the Missionary Host will be held at Christ Church, Sunday afternoon, the 9th prox. It is hoped that superintendents will prepare their schools for the occasion, and that all the schools of the Church in St. Louis will attend in full force. "Slips of the order of services can be procured of the secretary, 517½ Chestnut street, or of the vice-president, at 217 N. Fifth street.

SUNDAY SCHOOL teaching should be personal and the younger the scholar the greater need of individual address to him. An audience of grown persons can possibly follow a train of connected thought; not so with little children, and yet in Sunday-school work this truth is almost entirely ignored, and those who have the most need of direct personal teaching are massed by the score or hundred. Perhaps more to be taught as though they had no separate identity.

How many Sunday-school teachers could say to their scholars, as Paul said to those that he was teaching, "Those things which ye have both learned and received and heard and seen in me, do"? The first part of the exhortation can easily be given, but how about the last? Our teaching is probably orthodox and earnest; but what of our practice? How many of us would strongly advise our scholars to follow our example in all respects? Perhaps our inability to give such advice is one good reason why our teaching has sometimes so little power.

If there is one scholar more than another who ought to be taken by the hand, spoken to by name, questioned and taught according to his own peculiar capacity, it is the average scholar of the primary or infant class. But he is the scholar who is most likely to be looked over and passed in the exercises of the Sunday-school hour. True the sight of the little ones, row upon row, is "so pretty", and the full chorus of infant voices is "so sweet". But after all these are no compensation for the failure to give them that supply of God's truth which their young souls need. Let us have done with the showing off which pleases teachers and visitors so amazingly, and replace it with the individual teaching of each particular scholar.

Few teachers realize that contradiction or assertion without proof or reasoning will never convince. A child forms opinions so soon as he begins to think and to exercise the right of private judgment, which all ought to respect who remember the time they "thought and spoke as a child". Contradiction is almost sure to confirm the conviction by rousing the combativeness of the nature and tenacity of opinion possessed by all in greater or less degree. The correct way is to lead the thoughts of the child to such conclusions as are proper, and cultivate the reasoning powers until a well-balanced mind is formed. Such culture should begin so soon as the child begins to put words together to express opinion with any persistency no matter how trivial the cause. And this principle might be applied in dealing with grown up people. Such a process would make impossible much of that unjust and self-assertive criticism which needlessly wounds.

MEXICO, MO.

Editor Sunday-school Department Church News:

DEAR SIR:—Loving hearts and willing hands in Montgomery City, prepared for the Sunday School of the Holy Comforter the most delightful service they ever enjoyed of Easter morning. At the opening three Easter hymns were sung. After a few minutes' instruction from the rector about the proper way to rejoice in this festival, and show our love for the Saviour, two beautiful silver medals were given to the two who were the most punctual in attendance, and two beautiful books, rewards for learning the collects, to two others. Then Easter cards were given to all. It is the custom of the Sunday school to make an offering every Sunday; a special one to-day, of $2 50, which was, for the poor children composing it, a good one. It was resolved that half of it be given to the Missionary Host, and the Sunday school become a member of it. After the closing service the usual "eggs" were not forgotten. The church was beautiful, and the services in the morning were a feast of good things. A very large congregation was present.

At Mexico, Mo., St. Paul's Sunday school were honored by the presence of the President of the Missionary Host. The children sang three Easter hymns, and were addressed by the President. There was an offering made by the scholars, which this year is for paying a debt for papers. The rector had services at night. The church was very handsomely decorated. A very fine selection of appropriate music was rendered by the choir, composed of those who kindly volunteered for the occasion. The church was never so crowded.

P. WAGER, Rector,

It is useless to talk of any one Sunday-school music-book for all Sunday-schools. The very reasons for which one school adopts a book would prompt another school to reject it. Yet we are glad to call attention from time to time to particular books of one kind or another, for the benefit of those who want that kind. A Connecticut Methodist superintendent of experience and good judgment gives testimony as follows:

Having been a sufferer for years from the music generally furnished for Sunday-school use, I want to tell my experience for the benefit of your readers. We use Gospel Songs Combined in both Sunday-school and prayer meetings, and for the particular place it fills I consider it unsurpassed. For the Sunday-school alone, especially during the season of the church festivals, we use the Sunday-school Hymns and Tunes, by Judge Hollister, published by E. P. Dutton & Co., of New York at twenty-five cents. This is a collection of the richest and best music; and with the lead of a cornet well played, our music is refreshing. This latter fact has induced me to send to you this communication, in order that others may share the results of our experience.

The cornet is an excellent help to good singing in the Sunday school. It gives no uncertain sound, and it, keeps the scholars up to tune.

NEVADA AND BUTLER.

The missionaries through the Diocese in making the quarterly reports as to the condition of their work, generally confine themselves to the mere tabulated statements. They would help their general work and themselves often if they would occasionally write out for the News or for the Missionary Board, or for one of the general Church papers a free account of what they are about, their encouragements and discouragements. People get to thinking that but little is being done because they hear so little of the work in Missouri.

The missionary at Nevada writes to the Diocesan missionary secretary as follows:

"It is with feelings of great pleasure that I again report my work as very encouraging. On Christmas Day I commenced regular monthly (Sunday) services at Butler. I give them the 5th Sundays also. At my last visit I was most joyfully surprised to find awaiting me a box containing Chalice, Paten, and two Altar Prayer Books, from unknown donors. They were obtained, however, through the kindness of Miss Emery, that indefatigable friend of missions and missionaries. I have also obtained three dozen Prayer Books and Hymnals from Philadelphia.

Here in Nevada we still have cause to thank God and take courage. In compliance with the Bishop's suggestion, the ladies are concentrating their energies towards building a rectory. I have held services on one Sunday in Harrisonville.

MT. CALVARY CHURCH.

Editor Church News:

The reports of the parish showed in every department marked increase. The congregations have, both night and morning, filled the church. The Lenten congregations were excellent. The church has been recently painted, and over the walls appropriate inscriptions placed. A very handsome stained window has also been put in the chancel—all done by Mr. D. M. Edgerton. The Sunday school numbers about 300. Mr. Joseph Franklin is Superintendent. The finances are in an eminently satisfactory condition, the total amount raised this year by the parish being near $8,000. The Sewing Society has on hand $800, and is about to send off their annual missionary box. The Young Ladies' Association has done a good work, and is now engaged in an effort to raise money for the room in St. Luke's Hospital. The congregation on Easter day so crowded the church that chairs were placed in the aisle, and at the celebration of the Sunday School, many were unable to get in.

ANNUAL CONVENTION.

The Forty-third Annual Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in the Diocese of Missouri, will be held in Christ church, St. Louis, on the first Wednesday in May, 1882, at 10 o'clock, A. M.

The clergy will meet in the chapel of the church, at half past nine o'clock, promptly.

All the clergy attending the Convention are requested to bring their surplices with them.

Blank parochial reports and certificates of election of delegates have been mailed to all the clergy canonically resident in the diocese. Should any additional ones be needed, the Secretary will be glad to furnish them.

The Bishop desires that all parochial reports be handed to him at the opening of the Convention.

The usual provision will be made for the entertainment of clergy and delegates.

The following Committees have to report to this Convention, viz:

Committee On the Expenses of the Bishop, and Clerical and Lay Deputies to the General Convention; Rev. James R. Gray, Chairman. Committee On Fund for Aged and Infirm and Disabled Clergy; Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, D. D., Chairman. Committee On Portion of the Bishop's Address referring to Temperance Movement; Rev. P. G. Robert, Chairman.

JNO. R. TRIPLETT,
Secretary of Convention.

THE Merchants' Exchange of this city unanimously voted to adjourn this year on Good Friday. This is the first year in which such action has been taken here, although it has been the custom for years in many other cities. We hail the advance, and the respect paid for the Christian feelings of very many persons.

THE recent studies as to the laws and statistics and causes of suicide show that while there are hardly any among savage nations, which use no reflection, the average goes up in proportion to the decline of a definite religious faith. As a trust in the being and love of God, and the compensations of another life are lost, so men hasten to despair. The instant influence of a book or play, or a vicious line of literature, is also traceable as increasing the tendency to self destruction.

MADAME GERSTER sang at the residence of Mrs. Marshall Field, Chicago, recently, for the benefit of St. Luke's Hospital. Only 300 tickets were issued, and nearly $3,000 was realized. Does this suggest any thing to the managers of our St. Luke's? There is a deficiency in the building fund which ought to be brought up; and there is a strange delay in getting into the building, which delay is costing $150 a month rent, and the loss of the additional accommodations which will be had in the new building. Are we not to have notice of the opening soon?

AN article in one of our contemporaries seems to have been written to tell us that the altar which had just been put into a church was over six feet long and five and a half feet high. The town was small, and therefore, probably, the church was not large. Of course, the altar, like the lectern, should be proportioned to the size of the building. But what advantage, doctrinally or for the sake of bringing men to a Saviour's love, can be had from building an altar over five feet high, seems incomprehensible. The fervency of the prayer, or the wisdom of the sermon, or the efficacy of the communion, do not depend upon the height of the desk, or pulpit, or holy table.

NOTABLE CHARITIES LATELY.

There has been within the last few weeks in New York a very large distribution of money for religious uses and mainly for the uses of the Church. Miss Margaret Burr died twenty years ago, and left her money to two unmarried sisters, designating legacies amounting to $200,000, to be paid on the death of the later survivor. Three years after one of the other sisters died, appropriating $180,000, were to be paid only however on the death of the remaining sister. Now the last sister has died at the age of 88, and the whole property, amounting to $3,000,000, is to be divided up.

Our general Missions, St. Luke's Hospital, New York, the American Bible Society, get very large amounts. Several of the western dioceses and jurisdictions are largely enriched, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas and Nevada especially. The will has been made for twenty years; codicils were added as more was to be disposed of; and strange to say, the persons did not die one day the sooner for having thus intelligently disposed of their property.

In this diocese and others a number of persons have defeated their own expressed purpose of leaving bequest for parochial and general objects, because of a strange carelessness or superstition causing them to put off the making of their wills.

BISHOP RYAN AND THE SYLLABUS.

In a recent number of the Spectator of this city, Bishop Ryan states that the concluding argument which enabled Archbishop Kenrick and other objectors to the decree of the Pope's infallibility at the Vatican Council to yield assent at length to it was, that their reason caused them to accept the decision of the majority of the Council as giving them thus an unerring interpretation of God's word to man, as touching infallibility. In him and for them, when it comes to the last analysis, it appears that it is the operation of the reason which are called in to give assurance. This is, on Roman Catholic principles, a large venture to make on reason in its intricate processes. If one can by it come to a conclusion in favor of infallibility, another by this is seen to be warranted in his belief who by it reaches a wholly different conclusion. The result will be as legitimate in the one case as the other, and the conclusion quite as much entitled to be of faith. Both ground themselves on reason and nothing more.

Besides, if infallibility thus sinks or swims with the fortunes of individual reason, how does this square with the proposition put forth in his Syllabus by Pius IX., on Dec. 8, 1864, as among the things which are to be condemned: "That every man is free to embrace and profess the religion he shall believe true, guided by the light of reason"? If this is, according to the Pope, a false and pernicious principle, how can it then be made the stay by which a belief in his own infallibility is maintained? It is not our quarrel; but certainly the Syllabus is wrong, or else the Co-adjutor Bishop's argument is not tenable. The Roman Church stands on slippery places when it goes beyond the word of God, and seeks the help of reason to establish what it declares shall belong to the faith.

OUR PAPER.

We have not often troubled our readers with importunities about our paper and its support. It has done its work quietly and taken care of itself. But if it could be known how little personal interest and work and advocacy has been taken in its circulation by those who might be supposed to be deeply concerned in such an important Diocesan agency, there would be great surprise. It does all the public work of the Diocese for nothing, and saves it hundreds of dollars that would otherwise have to be spent in advertising and notices and postage.

It goes generally upon a cash basis, but in a long list many persons fail to pay, and are kept on inadvertently or with the idea that they will pay. Last year, however, the names of those had to be marked off who owed nearly $200, and some of these most respectable people. Now and then a person writes in wonder that his paper has stopped, when he owes for two or three years. One parish on which the Diocese has spent thousands of dollars, takes no copy but that which is sent to the missionary. Other places in which a little effort has been used take a score of copies.

Subscribing for the News is not a charity. Nobody makes anything out of it, and it gives back its full return. The subscription list lies before us. It tells its own story as to where any effort has been used for the extension of the paper. The St. Louis list includes almost all of those in all the churches who do the planning and working for the parishes and the charities. It is something to be a medium of communication for such a constituency. But everywhere through the city and in the towns, a very little of personal effort, by mere mention and the taking of name and amount by Rector or church person, would quadruple the circulation and the usefulness of the News. We have a right to look for this. The paper on its financial side should no longer be a source of anxiety to those who are doing the work for the Diocese. Interest in the Diocese and its work can now be tested by what it is seen to do.

DIOCESAN ASSESSMENTS.

Many inquiries come to us betraying misapprehension as to the nature and object of Convention assessments. The Treasurer of the Diocese gets letters asking him to reduce or remit charges. Vestries do nothing during the year because they say that they are going to get their minister to have the assessment remitted when he goes to the next convention. Parishes plead that they are not liable to tax, because they have had no minister for the whole or a part of the year. The personnel of the Diocese changes so rapidly that more frequent explanations seem to be required.

It is the convention which lays the assessment each year; and it is therefore only the convention which can remit or reduce it, unless it entrusts the matter, as it occasionally does, to the Finance Committee. The Treasurer of the Diocese has no power in the matter, except to collect the amounts which the Convention reports to him as being assessed. At the Convention the Finance Committee reports the total amount which has to be raised during the year. The largest item in this is the Bishop's salary and traveling expenses, which last amounts to about $200 a year. The whole of this is to be derived from the assessments, because, while there is a Permanent Episcopal Fund, it is as yet but very small, and the income of it is added to itself. Besides this there have to be raised for the Diocese each year the expenses of printing the journal and other notices, the salary of the Secretary of the Convention, the assessment for the expenses of General Convention, which last amounts to from three to five dollars for each clergyman in the Diocese.

When this total sum, which amounts to about $5,500 a year, is reported to the Convention, the matter is then given to the Committee on Assessments, made up of seven laymen from all parts of the Diocese. Those are chosen for the committee who know from experience what the strength of the different parishes is; many of its members have served on it for many years; the chairman has been on it since 1867. The duty is given them of dividing the amount reported by the Finance committee as necessary to be raised equitably among the parishes. It is a delicate and difficult business. They ascertain from all the sources at their command about what the strength of the parishes is, as judged largely from the salary paid or last paid the minister; and they assess the proportionate amount thus on the parish. They would often gladly make it less, if this would be fair to the other parishes.

They report their work to the Convention. They assess just the amount which they were told to do, presuming that it will be all paid. They lay on no extra amount for the contingency of non payment on the part of any. The parishes have all a representation in Convention. They have a right to be there, and are presumed to be there. Discussion ensues on the report when it is made. Some parishes state their reasons for thinking their tax is too large. If these seem just, and the amounts can be added to the assessments of other parishes, the reduction is made. But then is the time to make such statements, and there can only be reductions by making corresponding additions elsewhere. When at length the Convention adopts the report, it is the action of all and each, whether actually there or not. The report then goes to the Treasurer of the Diocese for collection.

One-fourth of the amount due from each parish is due on the 1st of July, the second quarter on October 1st, the third, January 1st, and the whole is due April 1st. The Treasurer has to make his payments accordingly. If he does not receive the requisite amounts in time, the Finance Committee has to borrow the money, and discount their personal notes, and this, which adds sometimes $100 to the expense, has to be divided up in the next year's assessment. Those who have paid promptly have thus to pay for the faults of the delinquents.

When applications are made in Convention for remissions of past assessments, these are generally received with some hesitation, because the amounts thus taken off have to be added on the next year's amount to be raised, and so to those who have already paid their full charge. The whole business is plain, and conducted on the fairest and most intelligible principles. How unfair, and unkind, and un-Christian to every interest, neglect or even delay is, in paying equitable dues, can be readily seen.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

BOOK NOTICES.

JOURNAL OF THE FIRST, SECOND AND THIRD MEETINGS OF THE FEDERATE COUNCIL OF ILLINOIS.—With the proceedings of the Council of the federated dioceses in Illinois is given also an interesting historical sketch of the inception of the movement, and the documents. It will hereafter be a valuable contribution to our Church history. Living Church Press. Chicago.

QUESTIONS THAT TROUBLE BEGINNERS IN RELIGION. Rev. Geo. W. Shinn. The Christian religion will in the days to come have as great a hold on the affections and thoughts of the world as now. In the reaction from the hopelessness and dreary despair which a blank agnosticism leaves, many who disport themselves now in free thoughts will come back to that Service which is perfect freedom. But the generation coming on the stage will have to be ready to meet many fundamental questions which we had supposed were settled. There is a pause of doubt and puzzled inquiry which the pulpit must take note of. A book like this, whose name we give above, so clear in its statements, will do very much. It is just the thing to put into the hands of men, and older confirmation classes. Boards, 25 cts.; cloth, 50 cts. T. Whittaker, 2 Bible House, New York.

JOB'S COMFORTERS, or Scientific Sympathy, by Joseph Parker, D.D. This last number of the Standard Series, which puts forth valuable works on heavy paper, with clear type, at a very small price, shows by a parable how vague and cheerless the religion of the Scientific is for the wants of the human soul, when it sets out to give an explanation of all things, and destroy the faith in a personal God. 10 cts. I. K. Funk & Co., 10 Day street, New York.

Beauty Regained.

The beauty and color of the hair may be safely regained by using Parker's Hair Balsam, which is much admired for its perfume, cleanliness and dandruff eradicating properties.

HEALTH FOODS.—These superior food preparations have proven exceedingly satisfactory to all consumers. In addition to our table foods,—which are extremely palatable and delicious,—we have many very fine food preparations for the building up of enfeebled persons. Our BRAIN FOOD, PURE EXTRACT OF GLUTEN and BARLEY, and UNIVERSAL FOOD for INFANTS are unsurpassed.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Acting Treasurer

The amounts in the first column were due at the late Convention, in September, and are due now, and represent in some cases, the accumulated delinquencies of several years. The amounts in the second column are the assessments laid at the last Convention, one-quarter of which is due Oct. 1st; another on Jan. 1st; three-fourths are due April 1st and the whole is due July 1st. The amounts in the third column show what has been paid on the above at and since Convention.

PERSONAL.

—The following is a sketch of the Rector of Trinity, New York from a New York paper. He wears a high hat, a regulation "dominie" coat, spectacles and a kind of hairy growth near his Adam's apple, known to the boys as "Galway sluggers." The Doctor was fortunate in his father, who was Comptroller of Trinity Corporation, and secured the charming office for his son years ago, when friends of distinguished gentlemen sought that eminence for them. Dr. Dix looks like an administrator rather than a preacher, a pastor rather than a talker. He walks rapidly and has a habit of talking to himself. Were it not for his professional uniform he would be taken for a merchant from the country, or on account of his spectacles and smooth face, for a tutor in a seminary of learning. His bearing is quiet and well bred, as becomes his father's son, for Governor Dix was a courtly man and as fond of the amenities of social life as he was of shooting snipe.

—Bishop Thirlwall the learned historian of Greece, grew deaf in later years and expressed his thoughts aloud, unconscious that others heard him. One day a person desiring to be agreeable, at length after many vain attempts made himself heard in a remark about the weather. Those around were amused at the Bishop's response intended only for himself. Strange how little persons lose by being deaf!

—The Rev. Dr. Courtney of Chicago has been called to St. Paul's Church, Boston, and Dr. Worthington of Detroit has declined St. Paul's, Buffalo.

—The second course of lectures in New York on the Bishop Paddock foundation, the first of which was delivered last year by Bishop Williams of Connecticut, will be omitted this year because of the death of Dr. John Cotton Smith, who was to have delivered them. Dr. Wm. D. Wilson, Professor in Cornell University, has been chosen as the Lecturer for next year.

—It is said of the manner of the Rev. Dr. Huntington of Worcester, Mass., in the pulpit, that for quietness and self-possession he is unsurpassed. On a recent occasion, with the exception of a slight turning of the head and an occasional gesture, he stands well nigh motionless, probably too much so to be most effective.

—The Rev. Dr. Courtney has decided to go to St. Paul's Church, Boston, to succeed Rev. W. W. Newton. It is a rich old fashioned Church, quite down town on the Commons, with high backed pews. Dr. C. never felt fully at home in Chicago. You never can predict from a man's success elsewhere how he will get on in Chicago.

—St. George's, New York, has called the Rev. Dr. Eccleston of Newark, N. J., who was elected Bishop of Iowa a few years ago, and of West Virginia. He was born in Baltimore. He however declines, and stays in Newark.

—Another Reformed Episcopal minister, Mr. Cherbuliez, of Jersey City, has withdrawn from them and come into the old Church.

—At the late Junior Exhibition in Yale College one of the orations pronounced was on Louis Schuyler. It was delivered by a young man from New Jersey.

—The clerical obituary this month is very long, and includes the names of the Rev. Dr. A. P. Smith, Messrs. Joseph Hunter, H. A. Lardley, Jas. W. Bradin, L. A. Barrows, C. Ritter and Geo. H. Anderson.

—Bishop Stevens of Pennsylvania, is to sail for Europe, on the 3d of June.

—The Rev. John W. Brown, D. D., of Cleveland, goes to St. Paul's, Buffalo, N. Y.

—The Rev. Octavius Parker, recently of Springfield, in this Diocese, and who has been spending the winter for his health in Colorado, goes about the close of this month to Oregon. A wife goes with him.

—The next session of the Church Congress is to be held in Richmonds, Va., and is to begin on Tuesday Oct. 24th.

—Intoxicants cost this country 660 times as much as all the ministers in this land receive.

—In Grace Church parish, New York, there are services every Sunday in Italian, Bohemian and Danish, in addition to the regular services.

—In St. Thomas' Church, New York, the offerings and contributions within the parish for general and local objects, were $62,120.68; the revenue from pews was $48,000; total, $110,620.68; more than the contributions of a majority of the Dioceses.

How to Save.

All hard workers are subject to bilious attacks which may end in dangerous illness. Parker's Ginger Tonic will keep the kidneys and liver active, and by preventing the attack save much sickness, loss of time and expense.—[Detroit Press,

AN ONLY DAUGHTER
CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1032 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

SOCIETY FOR THE INCREASE OF THE MINISTRY.

Some years ago under circumstances which, in the interest of the diocese, seemed to call for it, and which were stated in these columns, the Bishop withdrew from his official connexion with the above named society. He did not do so because of any diminution in his interest in the subject of the increase of the ministry. Conspicuously, the proportion between increase of ministers in the Church, and the increase in our communicants and parishes has not been maintained. There are many fewer ministers now in the Church in proportion to the number of parishes than there were twenty years ago.

Nor did his action come from any doubt as to the duty of the Church as towards those who, leaving other sources of support, had given themselves to a training and preparation for the ministry. In some cases the cost of this can be borne by the family of the candidate, but not often. The State maintains its cadets while training for the army, and the like need is on the Church. The alternatives are, the reduction of the force of the ministry, the exclusion of those of moderate means, or a hasty and ill conditioned entrance into Orders.

Now happily, the old arrangements between the Diocese and the Increase of the Ministry Society have been resumed. The Diocese receives back whatever it contributes to the general fund of the society, with twenty five per cent. added. The Bishop again becomes a patron of the society. While the old understanding was had, more was raised for this vitally important matter than has been raised since in the Diocese. There was need for the money, and there was a direct motive and object for raising it in this way. It all counted to our advantage. The day assigned by canon for the annual offertory for this object, Thanksgiving day or the Sunday nearest to it, does disparagement to it. The congregation, and consequently the offertory, is small. It might and ought to be supplemented by another offering if the regular one is too small, or by private gifts, which could be either made to the Increase Society directly, or to our Diocesan Treasurer of the Theological Education Fund, Mr. Franklin. The amount given for a few years past for this object has been miserably small.

Sometimes we help those who pass out of the Diocese soon after, but we in turn receive those who have been helped elsewhere. If then, every diocese had done as little for this last year, $170 from all the parishes, as we did, who have nearly one fiftieth of all the clergy of the Church within our borders, the number of ministers in the Church would very soon come to a stand still and recede.

THE NEW ST. LUKE'S.

The formal opening of St. Luke's Hospital will take place on the afternoon of Whit Sunday, 28th inst. Membership in the Association is secured by a contribution of $10 a year. The support of the Hospital, beyond what is received from the paying patients, has in the past depended upon a few fitful subscriptions, but mainly on theatrical and other entertainments. That resource, unsatisfactory for many reasons, has failed this year. The friends of the hospital, now that it is in a building of its own, propose that a more vigorous and systematic effort be made to procure a steady support for its work. This will, moreover, ensure a deeper personal interest in it.

It is not proposed that any effort shall be made at the opening to raise money to reduce the debt. It has, however, been suggested that all who are interested in the hospital, and in the steady maintenance of its work, and in the best methods of securing its support, shall make the occasion of its opening the time when they will hand in their names and amounts as annual subscribers and members, and thus put the hospital from the start in a healthy condition. It needs at this moment and for the summer, when its receipts otherwise are less, and especially with the certain increase of expenses incident upon a large building, a liberal demonstration on the part of its friends at this time.

DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

The forty-third Convention met in Christ church, St. Louis, on Wednesday morning, 3d inst. The services were said by the Rev. Drs. Schuyler, Berkley, Gierlow and Ingraham, and the Rev. Messrs. Robert, Gay, Curtis and Scheetz. The sermon was preached by the Rev. B. E. Reed, of Mount Calvary church, St. Louis. It was an earnest exposition of the call of God to the Christian minister, and of the motives constraining him to faithfulness in his work. It had great appropriateness in the ordination to the priesthood which immediately followed of the Rev. Robert Talbot, of Brookfield, who was presented by his brother, the Rev. E. Talbot, of Macon City.

The communion service was begun by the Bishop of Quincy, and the consecration by the Bishop of the diocese.

The clergymen to the number of 28, vested and came in procession down the south aisle from the chapel, up the centre aisle to their places, during the singing of the 202d hymn.

On assembling after service in the chapel, 36 clergymen and delegates from 21 parishes, answered to their names, a larger number than had ever before appeared at the opening of Convention. After the appointment of the Rev. Messrs. Curtis, Woodruff and Richardson as a committee on lay credentials, the Convention took a recess for lunch provided by Christ church at the Windsor hotel, near by, which was greatly enjoyed. The members each day seemed reluctant to break up their post-prandial symposium, and return to the business of Convention.

After recess the Committee on Credentials reported, and the Secretary of the last Convention reported that a number of each order more than sufficient to constitute a quorum was present. The former and most efficient Secretary, Mr. John R. Triplett, was re-elected, who re-appointed his assistant, Mr. F. J. McMaster. The hours were fixed for 9 o'clock for morning prayer, 10 o'clock to 12 30 for business; recess to 2 P. M., and business from 2 to 4 30 P. M.

The Bishop introduced Bishop Burgess, of Quincy, to the Convention, and while the Convention received him standing, Dr. Schuyler offered resolutions of welcome, and invitation to a seat by the side of the President. The Bishop laid before the Convention a record of his official acts during the past conventional year, showing that 303 persons had been confirmed; there had been one ordination to the diaconate, and three had removed and one had died; and that there were now 64 clergymen canonically resident, and 5 others actually but not canonically resident.

The Rev. Dr. Schuyler offered the following resolution of eulogy on the late Dr. Hodgen, chief of the medical staff of St. Luke's Hospital:

Resolved, That in the death of Dr. John T. Hodgen, St. Luke's Hospital has met with an irreparable loss; that to his early and unremitting devotion to its interests, it has been greatly indebted for its success. He became identified with it from the second year of its organization, by bringing his patients to it, and performed there important surgical operations; and for the last ten years he has occupied the responsible position of surgeon in charge of the hospital; ready at every call, prepared for any emergency, eminently wise in his decisions and skilful in his operations, most unselfish in his estimate of himself and generous and impartial in his opinion of others, with a noble enthusiasm for his profession and with a heart warm for suffering humanity.

The Convention then took a recess to 8 o'clock to St. George's church, to hear the Bishop's Address. Among other things, the Bishop, after alluding to the death of Rev. C. D. L. Allen during the year, said: The extent and interest of our diocesan work is all the while increasing. The number of clergymen in the diocese and the number of places occupied by service were never so great as now. Along with this there are a number of places vacant, and some for months past, which ought to be immediately filled with efficient clergymen. The Rev. Mr. Silvester has come to us from Iowa to assist the overburdened rector of Christ parish, and the work already shows the impetus received from his devotion to the cause. I hope that such a measure of rest as Dr. Schuyler may now be able to take will serve to continue to us long his valuable life and example. The Rev. Mr. Phelps from New Jersey is assisting Dr. Ingraham at Grace church in that populous district in the northern portion of the city. The Rev. Mr. Case and the Rev. Mr. Wells have come to us from the diocese of Springfield, the former to take the parish at Springfield, Mo., which Mr. Parker left last fall to go to Colorado, and now to Oregon. Mr. Wells has gone to Kansas City to be the assistant of Mr. Holeman in St. Mary's, First Ward, who has ever since our last Convention been incapacitated for duty. The Rev. Mr. De Forest came to us from Wisconsin, and is vigorously and successfully at work in St. Paul's, South St. Louis.

After speaking of other

in the city and state, the bishop goes on to say: The handsome stone church at Palmyra has been finished, paid for and consecrated. The smaller but neat church, built with much self sacrifice at Rolla, is finished and paid for. The church at Liberty awaits consecration, as does also Trinity church, De Soto. St. Mark's church, Butler, is also completed and without debt. The church at Independence is nearly ready for use. St. Augustine's mission for the colored people at Kansas City has bought and paid for a lot and has built the foundation for its church. In this city St. John's church has, with a great effort, paid itself from debt, as also to my great joy, has the Advent, which will now organize as a parish. Trinity and St. Peter's have materially reduced their obligations.

Speaking of the parochial trust fund the bishop said: There may be entire assurance that the parochial trust fund of the diocese being created under an act of the legislature of the state, which bases itself upon the constitution and not declared invalid by any court, is a body to which with all confidence real estate for church, parsonage and cemetery may be conveyed in trust for congregations. Such conveyances will be binding on the grantors and the congregation and on the trustees for the uses specified in the deed. The benefit of such a permanent body for the security of church property in communities so changing, and with dispositions at times so fickle, and with perceptions as to the church's order so limited, is clear to all who will give consecutive thought to the matter and growing interests involved.

THE NEW ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL

building is within a week of completion, and will be admirably adapted for the purposes of its erection. I have not been able to understand the extraordinary delays in finishing it and am compelled to report to my great regret that it will only be opened with a considerable debt upon it. The present contracted space of the hospital has for a great part of the year been steadily filled, and many have had to be refused admission for want of room. I am strongly persuaded that St. Luke's would come more closely to the sympathies of our people if a well devised plan were steadily pushed to secure regular subscriptions for the current needs of the institution.

EDUCATIONAL.

Our educational work has been advanced during the year. At Macon local financial disturbances have compelled the postponement of the effort to complete the subscriptions required before collections could begin, in order to prosecute work on the college building. The numbers at the academy are as large as the present accommodations will allow; they are increasing, and they are widely representative. I am afraid that the pecuniary anxieties prevailing in the county will render difficult, if not impossible, the collection of subscriptions made there, and that this will compel a modification of the plans. With the energy of the rector and the steady growth of the school we may be assured that the wisest steps will be taken for the establishment on the best permanent basis.

The St. Paul's college, Palmyra, property was sold to the Rev. Dr. Wainwright several years ago. The situation of the school this year did not, in his judgment, justify his maintaining it beyond the first term. I greatly regret the loss of his singularly qualified services as an instructor.

THE SISTERS' SCHOOL.

I cannot report any progress in the creation of a fund for the erection of a school building for the sisters of this city. The building now leased is filled to repetition, and one twice its size could very soon be occupied. The sense of need throughout the diocese of a school just like this is widening and deepening.

In speaking of the extent of the Diocese the Bishop said: The growth and prospective importance of the Diocese is greater than that of the dioceses about us which receive large help from the East; but we are precluded from the expectation of such aid by the fact of our having the large city of St. Louis, which, it is thought, should take care of the needy parts. This is now the largest and most populous diocese in the country. In the natural course of things we must, after a time, consider the question of its division. Even now I never go to Kansas City or St. Joseph on our western frontier, with their large and rapidly increasing population and the enormous industries growing up about them, without wishing that they might have a closer and more effective episcopal supervision. That whole section needs a bishop's entire care just now, and would yield large increased results for it. But I confess that I should feel that the day for such a consummation was likely to be nearer if I could see there a clever recognition of and larger liberality toward needs and interest in that section other than parochial and a caring for the work naturally dependent upon the centres in that portion of the state.

DIVORCE AND REMARRIAGE

On this subject the Bishop said, "I wish to speak of a matter which is of wide social concern and which not infrequently in our day becomes a practical question to parochial ministers, and which ought to receive a wider attention. It is that of the Church to the subject of divorce and remarriage. The law of Christ is explicit in declaring that the marriage bond is indissoluble except by death, or as towards the innocent party in the case of adultery, and that remarriage, except for such innocent person, on the part of those separated, is not by it permitted. The law of this Church, however, as interpreting and enforcing the divorce law in this matter was put forth too late, and until recently was so vague, that there has been a not unnatural dimness of perception among otherwise devout Christian persons as touching the requirements of God's word on this subject. In the meantime the law of the state has practically become the test of conscience in the matter for minister and people. How loose and variant from God's word civil law in various parts of the country has become on this subject, and by consequence from this, what a riot of self-will and passion is on us, breaking up homes and scattering sorrow and desolation, we all of us know. The permanence of the state is dependent on the security of the home and the family tie; and the Church's office is to maintain this and enforce God's law. This is made more difficult by the confused standards set forth by the civil law in different places, and the large degree of ignorance as to the requisitions of the divine law and as based upon this of the Church's law. We imply that because the canon on the subject is set forth in the digest that therefore there has been such proclamation of the law as will enforce and bind the consciences and actions of Christian persons. The fact, however, is that very few of our people have ever seen the law or knew of its existence or provisions. They are held to the performance under penalties or obligations of which previously they were hardly averse. The wandering eye, the growing alienation, the vagrant thought, and the permitted wish which contemplates and drifts on towards separation and another alliance, would not so often find place if there was a clear notion of the duty and sin as decided by the law of Christ. And the perception of the fact that for Christian persons this law is the supreme text of duty. And often the minister has to make known the requisitions of God's Word, after there had been advances and commitments which had been more difficult to be receded from. These principles then ought to be made clear. The law of the Church on the subject is merely the law of Christ. It invents nothing. It but declares God's will in Christ as touching the inviolability of marriage and the sin of promiscuous separations, and then of the impossibility of persons to be joined except as God's words allow. It declares that it can sanction no marriages of those who had been previously married when the other party is still living, except in the case of the innocent person in the case of a divorce by reason of adultery. If such adultery was not proved in the action for divorce, then it must otherwise be sufficiently proved before a marriage sought for can be solemnized. The Church cannot be expected to take risks when those seeking its office have failed to establish the ground on which they make their plea. If this law which is the law of God is wilfully broken, then the offenders must be restrained from the sacraments and other means of grace in the church, for just the same reason that those are repelled who break any other of the laws of God. They are not fitted to receive them with profit. In case of doubtfulness as to the facts in the case reference is to be had to the bishop, since the execution of the law is binding on the conscience of the clergyman, and the emergency may at any moment arise. However difficult and delicate the matter is, charity would require that means should be taken to make the requisitions of God's law and the Church's order on the subject known to the people.

SECOND DAY.

After morning prayer the Convention was called to order, and the Rev. Dr. John Fulton suggested that clergymen who had canvassed in parishes other than their own for money should report to the clergymen from whose parishes any collections may have been made, in order to place the credit where it belonged.

The following on motion of Rev. Dr. Fulton was adopted:

Resolved, That the portion of the Bishop's Address which refers to the subject of marriage be referred to a committee of which the Bishop shall be chairman, to consider and report upon it to the Convention whether this diocese ought not to memorialize the General Convention to legislate further on the subject, and to suggest such further action for the Diocesan Convention as the committee may deem desirable.

The Rev. Dr. Ingraham read a full report of the committee on the Board of Trustees of the General Society for the Relief of Disabled Clergymen. A number of other reports were also received. The final ratification of the Constitution of the Diocese in gross, which received its preliminary approval last year, was had by a unanimous vote by Orders.

Mr. D. Robert Barclay moved that a committee to consist of three clergymen and two laymen be appointed to consider the question of the division of the diocese, and to suggest a basis upon which it may be consummated; said committee to report to the Convention of 1883. The Rev. Cameron Mann, of Kansas City, moved to lay the motion on the table, which was unanimously carried.

The afternoon session was given to missionary business. Mr. Leavitt, the treasurer, reported that there was on hand last September $1,684 84. During the year of seven months amounts had been received from the following churches: Christ, St. Louis, $279; St. George's, St. Louis, $198; St. Paul's, Carondelet, $5 13; Holy Communion, St. Louis, $100; Trinity, St. Louis, $39 20; St. John's, St. Louis, $35; Advent, St. Louis, $8 15; St. Luke's, St. Louis, $5; Grace church, Kirkwood, $120 70; and small amounts from various churches, and $250 from the Missionary Host, making the total receipts $1,344 49. The amounts disbursed were read, showing that about $1,800 had been expended. The balance remaining in the treasury was reported at $1,256, of which, however, $300 was in the form of a note not immediately available, and the quarter day, less than a month off, would take a greater part of the balance. Mr. McMaster in reading the Secretary's report, complained of indifference on the part of the diocese to the subject.

The report of Miss Triplett, Secretary of the Missouri branch of the Woman's Auxilliary Society, showed that the total number of boxes and other articles of clothing sent out from St. Louis to the missionaries of the diocese had been 13. Church of the Holy Communion, four boxes valued at $321 18; Christ church, two boxes and three packages, $280 50; St. George's, two boxes, $204 45; Mount Calvary, one box, valued at $50; the secretary, one box, $10; total, $866 13.

The Bishop then called on the Rev. Messrs. Chesnutt, Richardson, Woodruff, Mason and E. Talbot to make statements as to the condition and nature of their work. The addresses were brief and to the point, and intensely interested the Convention. A debate ensued on the general methods of our missionary work, and was engaged in by Drs. Runcie and Fulton, and Messrs. Scheetz, Robert and Wright. Mr. Betts made a thrilling appeal for greater co operation, and pledged for work for the next year were made from the following parishes: Mr. Henry Hough said he was authorized to pledge $400 for Grace church, Kirkwood; Mr. A. Leslie pledged $200 for Trinity church; Christ church, Springfield, subscribed $50; St. Paul's church, South St. Louis, $75; St. John's, St. Louis, $100; Holy Communion, St. Louis, the rector said he would raise, he thought, the $200; Good Samaritan, St. Louis, pledged $10; Grace church, Carthage, $10; St. Paul's, Brunswick, $10; Rev. Mr. Richardson promised for Saline county $50; the Rev. Mr. Mann, from Grace church, Kansas City, said he thought he could safely say that his point would give $300, but he could not pledge it; St. James', Macon, pledged $25, and St. Jude's, Monroe, $20.

THIRD DAY.

The Rev. Dr. Foster was elected a member of the Ecclesiastical Court, and the Rev. E. Talbot an alternate. The Bishop appointed as Committee on Marriage and Divorce, the Rev. Dr. Fulton, F. B. Scheetz, and W. W. Silvester, Judge Wickham and Thos. K. Skinker.

The Rev. M. Scheetz, from the Standing Committee on Missions, reported resolutions that a committee of two clergymen and two laymen be appointed to consider the best means for raising money, submit it to the Bishop at least six months before the next Convention, and publish it in the CHURCH NEWS; and, finally, that the Laymen's Co-operative Missionary Society, clergymen and people, be urged to use all diligence in prosecuting the work. The resolutions were all adopted. The Bishop appointed the Rev. Dr. Schuyler and Cameron Mann, and Messrs. M. W. Alexander and H. W. Hough.

The old Standing Committee and Missionary Board were re-elected, as well as the Registrar and Treasurer of the diocese.

The Rev. Dr. Runcie presented the report of the Committee on Temperance:

"Whereas, The drinking usages of society and the excessive use of intoxicating drinks have, to a large extent, obscured the fact that temperance is the law of the gospel, and imperatively demanded by the baptismal vow; and

"Whereas, It is the duty of the Church in her normal capacity to promote the principle of temperance by all means in her power, and in view of the widespread destruction wrought through the abuse of intoxicating drinks, an abuse that experience and observation show inevitably follow in the vast majority of cases upon the moderate use of intoxicating liquors, and in view of the censure of the Word of God on every practice or tendency the outgrowth of which is evil, and in view of such solemn utterances as those that class the drunkard with the murderer and the adulterer, and in view of the loving solicitude of the Church for the welfare of her children, and the earnest, tender efforts to protect them from the evil that is in the world; therefore be it

"Resolved, That this Convention heartily indorse, and fully sympathizes with the society known as the "Church Temperance Society," and that it recommends in this diocese the formation of a diocesan society and parochial societies as branches of the Church Temperance Society. And further, be it

"Resolved, That in the sense of this Convention, the prevention of drunkenness and the destroying in the germ whatever leads thereto is a solemn duty of this body, and that it hereby declares itself cordially in favor of the principle known as total abstinence, and will throw its influence for the maintaining and establishing such a principle.

Rev. Mr. Robert presented a substitute for the above resolutions in the shape of the following:

Resolved, That the Church of God is the only divinely appointed temperance society.

Resolved, That the homily on gluttony and drunkenness has been the platform of this Church as a temperance society since the sixteenth century, and is still considered satisfactory.

Ultimately the committee was increased and continued and ordered to report at the next Convention. It now consists of the following: the Rev. Dr. Runcie, Messrs. Robert, Silvester and De Forest and Mr. H. W. Hough.

Of the resolutions proposed by the Committee on Aged and Infirm Clergymen, the following were adopted:

That this Convention regards with grateful feelings the initiatory steps taken by the House of Bishops, and the immediate response by the House of Deputies, that action be taken by the whole Church for the relief of disabled clergymen, and the widows and orphans of clergymen deceased.

That this Convention approves, commends and indorses the project of founding a general sustentation fund, for supplementing the salaries of clergymen who have not an adequate support. The proposition to send one third of the monthly communion alms to the General Society in New York, was lost.

Dr. C. E. Briggs introduced the following resolution on civil service reform:

Resolved, That the Diocesan Convention, from a Christian regard for patriotism and public morality, while it espouses no party in politics, hereby expresses its sympathy and interest in the efforts for the reform of the civil service, believing that if they are successful the Executive will be relieved of burdens which seriously and unnecessarily impair its efficiency, and that the polls and the legislative bodies will be freed from the chief source of dishonesty and corruption.

There ensued a lively debate, in which general concurrence in the principle of the resolution was expressed, but a number thought that its introduction was inexpedient. Ultimately the motion was withdrawn.

The report of the Committee on Assessments was adopted without amendment, and a delinquency of $45 was remitted from St. Peter's church, St. Louis.

The Rev. Mr. Jardine moved that the motion to appoint a committee on the division of the diocese be taken from the table. The motion was immediately lost.

The invitation of St. George's church, St. Louis, for the Convention next year was accepted.

Just before the adjournment a very severe hail storm burst forth. It was for a time impossible to continue the business. The members gathered up close to the chair. The Bishop and the members were compelled to scream like Indians in order to make themselves heard, and as the roof is rather leaky, considerable dodging had to be indulged in to escape a ducking. The equanimity of the Bishop and the secretaries was rather disturbed by huge drops striking them exactly in the centre of the caput, and bespattering their papers. The Convention adjourned at about 5 P. M., on Friday, 5th inst.

THE GOSPEL OF CHRIST.—At thirty, in the strength which little feels the need of help, he looked abroad over the philosophies and systems of the world, and said, "I find nothing better than the Gospel of Christ." At forty when burdens began to press a little, and the years seemed to hasten a trifle out of sympathy, with a little, O, ever so little! of line and shadow in his face, he looked again, and said, "There is nothing so good as the Gospel of Christ." At fifty, when empty chairs sat by his fireside, and the mound-builders had done him service; when disappointment and betrayal had blighted hope, and line and shadow both were deeper, he looked again and said; "There is nothing to be compared with the Gospel of Christ." At sixty, when silence reigned in the house, and strangers greeted him abroad, in the clear "second sight" which reads "vanity" on all earthly things, he looked again, and cried: "There is nothing but the Gospel of Christ." At seventy; when the wilderness journey of life was done, I saw him as as he stood by the gateway of eternity; but he looked not again, for the light of an eternal morning was kissing his brow, banishing the earth-born shadow, and his eye had caught sight of the deathless throng, which

With singing and laughter, and longing as fond
As e'er prompted to noble endeavor,
From the gateway of death, immortality donned,
Zenith a ways o'erhead and horizon beyond,
Marches onward and Godward forever.

A LAUGHABLE incident occurred in a church on Easter Sunday. The clergyman announced that the offertory would be applied to reducing the debt on the church. During the singing, while the collection was being taken up, the tenor, who is a German, had a solo, in which occurred the words, "and the dead shall be raised." He succeeded in electrifying the congregation by giving out at the top of his voice, "Ud ze debt shall be raised in ze twinkling ov an eye."

MISSIONARY HOST NOTES.

The anniversary service was a great success.

The report of the Treasurer exhibited an increase in the contributions for the year of 12 1-2 per cent.

The secretary reported that fourteen schools in the interior of the diocese had been visited during the year, with good results.

As usual, the Sunday school of the Church of the Holy Communion led the schools in the amount contributed.

The increase in the contributions of Mount Calvary, St. George's, and Christ church Sunday schools is most gratifying.

Mount Calvary had, by actual count, the largest number in attendance. Holy Communion next, St. George's and Christ church next.

The processions were, with one exception, ringing, soul stirring hymns of praise, or songs of exhortation, and for the most part admirably rendered.

Hereafter the funds of the Host will be divided between Rev. J. N. Chesnutt, of the Advent mission, and Rev. Mr. Woodruff, of Marshall, Saline Co.

As a whole, the celebration was the most successful since 1877.

The officers for the ensuing year are:

Wallace Delafield, President.

J. J. Wilkins, Vice President.

E. C. Simmons, Treasurer.

Ralph Talbot, Secretary.

W. P. Nelson, Asst. Secretary.

All the friends of the Host, and of Sunday school work in the diocese, will rejoice with us in the election of Mr. Wallace Delafield, long time the faithful, energetic and efficient superintendent of St. George's school, to the presidency. For many years his wise administration inspired the members of the Host with confidence and enthusiasm, and brought large measure of success to their efforts. Two years ago, in response to his request, he was permitted to lay down the duties of the office, and the writer of these lines called to his place. During that period this interest abated not, and now the Host honor themselves by again honoring him with leadership. All the Host rejoice, but none extend him a heartier or sincerer congratulation than the one who succeeded him, and whom he now succeeds.

How happy we would be, could we select and arrange all the memories we shall leave behind us when we die! If in place of our anger, or falsehood, or hypocrisy, or ignorance, or unkindness, our acts of benevolence, our kindest words, our love and charity only should be remembered, how fortunate would we be! As it is, when we have gone away, one will remember us for one thing, and another for another, and few of us will leave as the measure of our lives and influence, the recollections we would have chosen. But for the remainder of our sojourn here we have an opportunity to make our record and memory to suit ourselves. If we sincerely endeavor to make all our actions what they ought to be, and so far as possible do right by all we meet, whether we have to do with them once or a hundred thousand times, we shall leave recollections of which we will not be ashamed, and which we would not materially alter. And since we do not, nor ever, can know, what word, or act, or moment, is to be our measure for some one who will survive us, how necessary we should ever be watchful, and persevere in doing just what we ought at all times, in all places, and in our relations with all we meet.

SUNDAY SCHOOL teaching should be personal, and the younger the scholar the greater need of individual address to him. An audience of grown persons possibly can follow a train of connected thought; not so with little children, and yet in Sunday school work this truth is almost entirely ignored, and those who have most need of personal teaching are massed by the score, perhaps hundred, and taught as though they had no personal identity. If there is one scholar more than another who ought to be taken by the hand, addressed by name, questioned and spoken to according to his own peculiar capacity, it is the average scholar of the infant and primary classes. But he is the scholar who is most likely to be looked over passed in the exercises of the Sunday school hour. True, the sight of the little ones, row upon row, is "so pretty," and the full chorus of infant voices is "so sweet," but after all these are no compensation for the failure to give them that supply of God's truth which their young souls need. Let us have done with the showing off which pleases teachers and visitors so amazingly, and replace it with the individual teaching of each particular scholar.

ONE of the commonest objections to each new Sunday-school music-books is, that it does not contain all the old hymns and tunes which are in established favor, while not all its new pieces are of real merit. And this is an objection which will never be overcome. No one book of reasonable size can comprise all the good Sunday-school music; nor is the new music of each season to be pronounced all good or all bad. Good hymns and good tunes are continually being added to the old stock; but they are coming along with other hymns and tunes that are not generally wanted and he who expects to root up all the tares with out the loss of any wheat in the field of Sunday school hymnology, must wait until the final harvest. Meanwhile, there are a great many questions and a great many suggestions on this subject. A pastor writes:

Is there any way out of the Sunday-school music question? As it is, I do not think there is a Sunday-school in the country that uses one half of the hymns in the collection it has. Most schools certainly do not. I speak of the large books—the thirty-cent books. Revell, of Chicago, comes the nearest to my ideal of Sunday-school music, by publishing his five-cent collection. Now, I propose that somebody should publish Sunday-school music in sheets of, say, four pages each.—one good hymn on each page, and sell them for fifty cents, or less, per hundred. A few good hymns generally sell twenty five cents' worth of useless productions in the present book form. If music were published in sheet form, a school could make its own collection, and have its books bound to suit itself. I waited anxiously for Dr. Robinson's Spiritual Songs for the Sunday school, and after all, it seems to fail to satisfy the demand for a good book of songs. What is the trouble? If any two men are able to do it, certainly Robinson and Sherwin are the men! The trouble is in the copyright restrictions. There are enough good hymns written, but they are scattered through a dozen or more books, a few in each, suited to themselves. It is simply impossible to produce a Sunday-school hymn book that will meet the popular demand until there is either a free exchange of copyright privileges among publishers or the publication of hymns in sheet form.

If the publishers of Sunday-school music can see a way by which they can pay for first-class hymns and tunes, and then can advertise them separately, so as to secure a remunerative sale, we have not a doubt that they will be glad to do it. But it is one thing to print a good piece of music, and another thing to get that music sufficiently advertised before the country to give it a paying sale. The buyer has got to bear his share of this expense, and, unless he does, he will not get his music. Publishers will have an eye to getting their money back, when they print music, as well as to giving the schools the most they can afford for their money. Of course the "copyright restrictions" stand in the way of getting music without paying full price for it. The same trouble is found with all property right everywhere. Such sheets as are here proposed are issued annually by Biglow and Main, Ward any Drummond, and other publishers, at Christmas time and at the May anniversary season; but they do not seem to meet every want of everybody,

THE SACREDNESS OF CHILDHOOD.

In more ways than those suggested in their connection are the words of Wordsworth true when he says that.—

"Heaven lies about us in our infancy"

It is then that weakness reveals a perfect trust, and the sweet humility of innocence that makes the child life, not in its wisdom or doing, but simply in what it is, a type of that spirit that Jesus says is the greatest in the Kingdom of heaven.

In the disclosure that Christ makes of his love and relation to "these little ones" there is brought to view truths that are of tender and full of comfort as touching the sacredness of childhood. Since the day when the wise men were guided to the place where the babe lay in the manger at Bethlehem, an undimmed star of hope has shone above every cradle. The Christian world is a unit in the faith that the little ones are safely enfolded by the love of the Redeemer.

There is a beauty hovering about the face of a child, touched by the chill hand of death, that is the symbol of unfading joy and blessedness,— "For of such is the Kingdom of heaven." In that presence those who sorrow have the infinite consolation that the spirit that has taken to itself wings, and forsaken its tiny earthly casket of clay, is safe in the rest and love of the heavenly life.

This revealed truth of a blessed immortality makes the spared life of children, as well as that which is taken, sacred and of worth. As the sculptor sees, in imagination and thought, the figure that he desires to fashion imprisoned in the block of marble that has not yet been touched by the chisel, so the truest teacher, and most successful in their service, are those who look into the faces of their pupils and remember that they are the men and women of a future generation.

It is a shallow mind that underrates the hidden possibilities that lie within the soul of a child, and passes it by as of little importance. Of all seasons childhood is the period of hope. The soil in which the seed is sown is fresh and susceptible, and while the good and bad strive for mastery, faithful and loving service may anticipate more abundant harvests as the reward of toil than any other time in life. Habits formed in these early years, and the truths implanted, are often the forces that mold and fix the entire after character. As the tendency increases to secularize the teachings of the public schools, how important it becomes that those who are in charge of the Sunday-school should be impressed with the sacredness of childhood in its soul want and religious nurture. Mothers, teachers, do you feel that the hand of the child is in yours to be led to God? How solemn, but blessed, does this thought make your trust!

"Oh, may those enshrouded years,
Whose fair dawn alone appears,—
May that brightly budding life,
Knowing yet nor sin nor strife,—
Bring its store of hope-for joy,
Mother, to thy laughing boy!
And the good thou dost impart
Lies deep treasured in his heart,
That, when he at length shall strive
In the bad world where we live,
Thy sweet name may still be blest,
As one who taught his soul true rest."

REPORT OF CHRIST CHURCH SEWING SOCIETY FOR 1881-82.

Christ Church Sewing and Missionary Society began the winter's work November 1st, 1881, and closed April 4th, 1882, having held twenty-six meetings, with an average attendance of eleven.

Sixty nine garments, valued, at $62.89, have been given to the poor, also, coal, groceries and cash, amounting in value to $11.25; 60 yards of new materials for clothing were distributed in charity.

The society, has prepared the contents of two boxes and two package, valued at $280.50, which have been sent to missionaries in the Diocese. The report of the "Industrial school for colored children" always accompanies the record of missionary work connected with this society. The unavoidable suspension of the school for the past year will, it is hoped, be remedied in future by the possession of a suitable place in which to hold its meetings. A branch of the Christ Church Sewing Society, called "Christ Church Guild" was formed this winter from the young members of the church. This has somewhat decreased the membership of the parent society, but it is doing its own good work, and will be reported by its own officer. Through the courtesy of the Sisters of St. Luke's Hospital, the reception room in that building, has been at the service of the society for its meetings. The unvarying kindness and attention of all those in charge, commend them to grateful consideration.

The Society close its meetings with one object in view: furnishing a room in the new hospital, to be dedicated forever to the sick, and, in honor of our revered and beloved Rector, unanimately named the "Schuyler Room." This bond of union will keep each member actively engaged in chaitable work until permitted to meet later for the regular duties of the society.

Respectfully submitted,

CECILIA L. AMELUNG, Secretary.

Easter Tuesday, 1882.

ECONOMY IN LITTLE THINGS.

Often we fail to take note of how much can be accomplished through the accumulation of pecuniary trifles saved. Wealth comes from careful savings, more than from large earnings. A little laid by every year and put at interest soon counts up. A single deposit even grows to handsome proportions. A gentleman at Taunton, Massachusetts, has shown us a savings-bank book which teaches a lesson to those who despise the day of small things. A deposit of twenty dollars, placed for him by his grandfather in a savings-bank at Newport, Rhode Island, in 1827, and afterward increased to thirty dollars, by the addition of ten dollars, in 1832, amounted in 1874 to over four hundred dollars.

Our rising generation should be reminded that there is no virtue so easy of practice, and yet so recklessly disregarded, as economy in little things.

Steady, small savings grow into independence so easily that it is more than wonderful to hear persons who have power to make them complain of how hard the world goes with them. A young fellow with a ten-cent cigar in his mouth, some three of which he will smoke in a day, will unblushingly say he cannot make both ends meet, any way he can manage, the while he is puffing off in smoke the very means through which he could be rich in this world's goods.

Samuel Lee, Professor of Hebrew at the University of Cambridge, England, was seventeen years of age before he conceived the idea of learning a foreign language; out of the scanty pittance of his weekly earnings as a carpenter he bought a book, read it, and then he exchanged it for another, and thus he advanced in knowledge. He had not even the privilege of balancing between reading and relaxation, but was obliged to pass directly from bodily fatigue to mental exertion. During the six years previous to his twenty-fifth year he omitted none of the hours usually appropriated to manual labor, and he retired to rest regularly at ten o'clock in the evening; and yet, at the age of thirty-one years, he had actually learned seventeen languages!

This illustrates the value of spare minutes. Many careless people waste more time every day than is needed to make them masters of a science, if well used. Some great works have been written in intervals of ten or fifteen minutes from regular employments.

Any young person who will find an hour a day for reading can easily acquire large learning. Try what you can do. Begin now. In after years you will look back upon the task as the most pleasant and profitable you ever performed.

Sir Astley Cooper had, perhaps, the largest income ever received by a surgeon in England. It amounted in some years to about $190,000. But only through great hardships did he reach this wonderful success. When a student in the Edinburgh University, he lived in a very modest way in a third-story room, at an expense of about a dollar and a half a week. The first year after he settled in London his whole income amounted to only twenty five dollars!

We are told that a well-known American professor once entertained Prof. Agassiz on a dinner consisting of potatoes and salt. Three times a week, for many years, this custom had been kept up, whoever chanced to be present; and the saving thus made had been judiciously invested in books, till the Professor owned a magnificent library.

The late Empress of Germany was one of the most simply dressed of women, except on occasions of ceremony. Her dry goods bills are said to have been less than those of the wives of many merchants. She often drove out in a calico dress. And yet she was very liberal in her gifts. The Princess Bismarck, fresh and comely, though nearly seventy, superintends her farm-work, goes about the house with a great bunch of keys at her girdle, watchful of the family expenditures, and her house filled with knitted quilts and such like, the evidence of her skill and industry.

A Ghent, in Belgium, an experiment has been made, which has been attended, it is said, with very good results. A gentleman who felt deeply concerned at the large amount of money wasted by children, and the careless, improvident habits thus early acquired by them went round to all the public schools, and, after talking to the scholars on the subject, made arrangements with the teachers to receive all the money which the children might be willing to intrust to them.

When this reached a certain amount it was deposited in one of the city banks. When a pupil's savings had thus reached one franc (twenty cents), he was to receive a bank-book, and be allowed three per cent. interest by the Bank of Belgium. The plan has met with entire success. The children now save their money instead of spending it foolishly, and by the time they leave school have often a large sum wherewith to enter into business, or procure an outfit. It is well known that it is not those who have the most money who spend the most on candy, cakes, peanuts, etc., things which do no good, and often cause positive injury to the health. Besides the money saved, which may be very useful in time of need, the habits of self-denial and economy thus formed are of the greatest value.

Young people, also, by judicious suggestions and instruction, may be induced to earn money enough to purchase their own books, papers, playthings, etc., and the pleasure of earning an object is almost equal to the enjoyment of it, when it is purchased. Self-reliance adds both to the happiness and moral strength of youth, and little efforts often produce large results.

Each scholar in a Sunday-school at Frankindale, Pa., was given ten grains of corn to be planted and cultivated during the summer, the proceeds of the harvest to be used for the benefit of the school. The girls were each to raise a chicken. In the fall the grain and poultry were sold at auction. The proceeds of the sale amounted to $10.24, which was laid out in subscriptions for papers for the children's winter reading. These children enjoyed the reading of their paper much more than if it had been provided for them by their teachers or parents, without any efforts of their own, and the example of this school is suggestive to all.

Every family have little and loose expenses, entirely useless, and sometimes worse than that. Their accumulation would soon amount, if saved, to a virtual pecuniary independence. It will pay in many ways to hoard away the gleanings in the fields of evil customs and bad appetite, and the habit would soon become most laudable pleasure. —[Golden Days.

SUCCESS.

The ambition to succeed may be and always ought to be a laudable one. It is the ambition of every young man for himself, and of every parent for his child. It is emphatically an American ambition; at once the natural vice and natural virtue. It is the mainspring of activity; the driving-wheel of industry; the spur to intellectual and moral progress. It gives the individual energy, the Nation push. It makes the difference between a people that are a stream and a people that are a pool—between America and China. It makes us at once active and restless; industrious and overworked; generous and greedy. When it is great, it is a virtue; when it is petty, it is a vice.

By a petty ambition we mean the ambition to achieve not success, but the emblems and tokens of success; by a great ambition to do and to be. True success is achievement. To be a successful lawyer is to succeed in making justice surer and law more stable; to be a successful physician is to succeed in defeating the designs of death, and ameliorating the suffering of the sick; to be a successful politician is to succeed in guiding and governing the Nation in a way to conserve its peace, promote its prosperity, encourage its industries, stimulate its intelligence and virtue, insure its future; to be a successful minister is to promote a higher moral life on earth and to afford preparation for all the ills of life, for the hour of death, and for the day of judgment; to be a successful farmer is to succeed in compelling the reluctant earth to feed thousand of hungry; to be a successful manufacturer is to succeed in turning the cotton from the field and the wool from the sheep's back into clothing for the naked. Success is not fees, nor office, nor salary, nor land, nor machinery; it is results obtained, harvests reaped, garnered, distributed; humanity bettered; the Nation improved; the world enriched. Every man who leaves his home, his village, his Nation, better off for his thoughts and deeds has succeeded; every man who has not has failed.—[Ex.

ATTENTION, CHURCHMEN! Churchmen belong to a branch of the one Holy and Apostolic Church of Christ.

Churchmen hold to the Creeds of the Primitive Church.

Churchmen have an actual historical succession in their ministry, from the first Apostles.

Churchmen worship after the primitive mode.

Churchmen say, in public, the prayers and supplications that have been hallowed by the Christian for centuries.

Churchmen sing the Psalms and other songs of the ages all along.

Churchmen belong to the largest religious body among the English-speaking people—numbering over seventeen millions of souls.

Churchmen will have to give an account of this splendid stewardship.

Whosoever would be sustained by the hand of God should constantly lean upon it; whosoever would be defended by it should patiently repose himself under it. God may cast down, but He will never cast off His own whom he dib fore-know.

—What the Church of England Temperance Society is doing, may be gathered from the fact that at its annual conference in London, one hundred and sixty-seven of the clergy preached sermons on the subject of temperance on the same day. The collections amounted to $60,000.

A DELIGHTFUL fragrance of freshly gathered flowers and spices is a distinguished charm of Floriston Cologne.

DISPENSATION AND PROHIBITED DEGREES.

A lengthened and minute list of forbidden degrees, within which marriage cannot be contracted, requires a power which can at time dispense with their binding force. The Roman church has such a list, intricate and vexatious; but it relieves itself by investing the Pope, and through him sometimes the Bishops, with the power of dispensation from these prohibitions, an infraction of which it counts not as a moral wrong but as only inexpedient. To marry a cousin or other near relative is not, in its view, in itself wrong, only such an impediment as, while voiding the marriage, may be removed by dispensation. The increase of the papal power came largely from an arbitrary enlargement of the list of mala prohibita, as contrasted with mala in se. Their Episcopate is kept subservient by the threatened withdrawal of the power from them of granting dispensations.

Recently in Europe Lady Mary Hamilton was dispensed from her marriage with the Prince of Monaco by the Pope, because of an alleged absence of the secret assent of her will to the marriage, and she was soon married to some one else. The child, however, who was born of the marriage, was declared to be legitimate. Such a tricky sprite is this fond invention of dispensations.

We have not in the Church recognized any special seat of dispensing power, nor have we drawn a careful line between these venial and mortal sins. Our legislators therefore, should always be careful in lengthening arbitrarily the list of prohibited degrees in marriage, or in making a conscience of anything else, except as it may be clearly proved on the authority of God's Word, and as based on divine laws of perpetual moral obligation.

CONVENTION INCIDENTS.

The Rev. Jos. R. Gray, of the Diocese, who has been for several months in Colorado, was present in Convention on the first day. He has not grown much stronger for his western life. He was on his way to Tennessee.

There were four of the Messrs. Talbot in Convention; Rev. Ethelbert, rector of Macon City; Rev. Robert, missionary in Brookfield; Ralph, lay delegate from the church of the Holy Communion in this city, and John, delegate from St. Mary's, Fayette.

Much merriment was occasioned by the theological asseveration from a lay delegate from St. George's church that "marriage was a sacrament."

The Rev. J. I. Corbyn, of the diocese of Iowa, and the Rev. John Hewitt, of Central Pennsylvania, were present as visitors.

Thirty-nine clergymen were present during the Convention, and delegates from twenty-two parishes and missions.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. Mr. Gordon has accepted duty for the summer in Chester, in the diocese of Springfield.

—The parish debt on Trinity church, Hannibal, which has been for a good while paralyzing all hope and effort, has, we believe, been all paid. It consisted of $900, the old balance on the organ debt, about $150 due the diocese, and a little over $200, amount due their last rector. All this has been paid, the ladies of the parish contributing one-third of the organ debt, and raising almost all the rest. The parish has decided to wait until next fall before calling a rector. The Sunday school is kept up vigorously, but the congregation is sadly needing the church to be opened.

—It is now thought that Grace church, in this city, will be opened on the 21st inst.

—The Rev. Robert Talbot has declined a call to the rectorship of Christ church, Boonville.

—Messrs. L. T. Minturn, W. H. Goodisson (recently Presbyterian minister), and N. L. Angel Smith, of Macon, have been admitted candidates for Orders in this diocese recently.

—The trustees of St. Luke's Hospital are not going to finish the building without debt, as it was hoped that they would. The subscriptions when the building was begun were just sufficient to put up the shell of the building. Nothing has been solicited since on the building. In such a structure there were many extra charges to be met. There is no doubt an equivalent in the building for all that has been spent. But the fact remains that there will be a debt of $15,000 on the property, and this takes from the enthusiasm of those who will have to carry anxiety until the debt is paid. It is an airy thing to borrow money; lenders are so amiable that you almost forget that the money has at some time all to be repaid with interest. It is easier to raise the money when the project is yet fresh, and the sense of the benefit is yet new. Afterwards it is a dead pull to raise for what you seem to have any way.

—The mission of the Holy Trinity, in South St. Joseph, after paying incidental expenses, and $88 for macadamizing, and reducing the debt for building the church from $500 to $400, turned over to the new vestry $70 in cash.

—The Woman's Christian Home is an excellent institution of this city, not under the control of our Church, but with good religious influence. It affords a home under good safeguards, for young women who are teachers or otherwise engaged. They pay board, but the amount thus received does not cover all the expense. The balance is made up by a series of dinners down town held for a week or two. The Episcopal church takes one of the days, and a friendly rivalry is gotten up for the benefit of the Home treasury, as to which denomination shall turn in the most. This year, as for several years, the Episcopal church did more than any other. The work came mainly on ladies from St. George's and Christ churches, but the parish aid society of the Church of the Holy Communion gave $50. The Rev. Mr. Robert gives an evening service in the parlor there once a week. A kind charity is done here, as at St. Luke's Hospital, in affording a Christian home, even though some persons are able to pay for their board.

—The Rev. Sydney Smith recently visited and held services in Jamesport, Davies county, where they had not been held before. He baptised besides four children, and there has application been made for monthly services.

—The confirmation in Christ church, St. Joseph, besides being the largest in point of numbers in the diocese this year, was one of peculiar interest in the fact that so many families of the congregation were represented in it by young persons. There were 26 confirmed, most of whom were from the Sunday school, and the children of the parish. The children of the late Bishop Hawks were among the number. There were also two confirmed at the Holy Trinity mission in South St. Joseph, making with two confirmed there in February by Bishop Vail, four from this interesting outgrowth of the work of the northern church.

—The Rev. Th. F. C. James, M. D., recently of Plattsburg, has taken charge of the missions at Cape Girardeau and Jackson.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed in St. George's, St. Louis, 14; in Grace church, St. Louis, 23; St. Peter's, St. Louis, 4; in Montgomery City, 1; Moberly, 6; Brunswick, 2; Christ church, St. Joseph, 26; Holy Trinity, St. Joseph, 4; Plattsburg, 1; Cameron, 1; Breckinridge, 1; Chillicothe, 11; Grace church, Kansas City, 9; St. Augustine mission, 10; Advent, St. Louis, 6.

—The Rev. Albert E. Wells, for a number of years in Southern Illinois, became associated with the Rev. Mr. Holeman, in charge of St. Mary's, First Ward, Kansas City.

—The Rev. H. A. Grantham, lately in charge of the Good Shepherd Mission in this city, has taken letters dismissory to his former diocese of Tennessee.

—The opening of Grace church in this city, after the cutting away the mound, and its lowering and renovation, which it had been hoped would have taken place by Easter, has by unexpected delays been put off until the 14th inst., when it was hoped that it would without doubt be ready.

—The Rev. Edward M. Pecke has recently been called to the rectorship of Christ church, Lexington. He has been for several years in the diocese of Springfield, but his ministry has been mainly passed in New York. He is a graduate of the General Seminary, and one eminently qualified in many ways for great usefulness in his parish, and a prominent position in the diocese. He also takes charge of Carrollton and Norborne.

—But lately thieves entered during the night and removed the bronze frame work of one of the two large chandeliers (but lately purchased) pendant from the ceiling of Emanuel church, Webster Groves. Fright probably deterred the invaders from making off with the remaining one, lamps, and other movables. A damaged lock in the tower door shows the mode of entrance.

—The Rev. Mr. Reed of this city, whose father was one of the early missionaries in Howard county, has promised to make a visit there this summer and give some services.

—The ladies of Christ church Guild Springfield, Mo., have lately held a bazaar, which netted the handsome sum of $300. They acknowledge with many thanks a donation of $10 from Mr. Franklin, Treasurer of the diocese; also fancy articles from the ladies of the garrison fort, McKavett, Texas; Mrs. I. J. Beattie, Holman; Mrs. A. B. Kountz, Kansas City, and others.

—The Rev. Dr. Fulton has announced his purpose to have a celebration of the Holy Communion on the third Sunday of each month at an earlier hour.

—The confirmation for St. Augustine mission, Kansas City, on the 30th ult., was held in the stone chapel in the First Ward, belonging to St. Mary's church. There was a large and deeply interested congregation of colored persons, although there was also many others from all the other congregations of the city. The service was said by the Rev. Mr. Cummings, five other clergymen being in the congregation. The chapel was beautifully adorned with flowers.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Johns tells the story that whereas there were 91 clergymen in Virginia at the beginning of the Revolutionary war, at the General Convention of 1811, the entry about Virginia, which sent no representative and made no report, was made, "they fear that the Church in Virginia is so depressed that there is danger of her total ruin." In 1813, at the Convention which elected Bishop Moore, only seven clergymen were present. When Bishop Johns asked Chief Justice Marshall for a contribution to the Alexandria Seminary, he accompanied the gift with the remark, "that it seemed almost cruel to tempt young men to enter the ministry of a church which was too far gone ever to be recovered."

—The Rev. S. D. Hinman, who had been displaced from his position in Niobrara by Bishop Hare, and between whom and the Bishop a number of letters and pamphlets passed, brought suit in N. Y. against the Bishop for $25,000 damages, for libel. The case was tried before a jury from whom Churchmen were excluded. The Judge ruled that the question of the truth of the charges brought against Mr. Hinman must be excluded, and the case be decided on the question of malice. The jury brought in a verdict of $10,000 damages. The suit was appealed.

—The Rev. Dr. Israel Foote, rector of St. Paul's church, Rochester, N. Y., after a painstaking rectorship of 23 years, has become the Rector Emeritus for life, with an annuity of $1,000 a year and the use of a house. The Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Ypsilanti, Michigan, has just resigned, after a rectorship of 35 years. Such prolonged associations are alike honorable to minister and people.

—The death of Dr. John T. Hodgen, of this city, was a shock, on account of its suddenness, and a great loss to the medical profession of the country. As belonging to the medical staff of our St. Luke's hospital, he was to it an ornament and a strength. He was enthusiastically interested in its prosperity, and contributed much to its growth. Every St. Louisan will mourn his untimely death.

—Rev. F. W. Adams, formerly a Congregationalist, was ordained in this diocese seven or eight years ago, and served a most useful ministry at Chillicothe, Brunswick, and other places. He then went to Northern Texas and then to Illinois, where he joined the Cummins movement, and became minister of a congregation in Chicago, where he has been several years. He has recently desired to return to the Church, but the canonical requisition of, among other things, living three years in lay-communion, deterred him, and he has again joined the Congregationalists. He has sent his two surplices to his old parish in Chillicothe.

—Trinity parish, Boston, has given the Rev. Phillips Brooks a year's vacation, which he will pass in travel.

—It is not at all unlikely that the Missionary Bishop of Shanghai, China, who is partially paralyzed in his speech, may have to give up his Episcopate. He might still continue his work of translating the Bible into Mandarin, for which he has extraordinary qualifications.

—Bishop Wingfield, of Northern California, has been elected Assistant Bishop of Mississippi. Bishop Green is more than 80 years of age. He was voted a retiring pension of $1,500. Bishop Wingfield was elected to Louisiana a few years ago, and declined.

—Bishop Dunlop recently confirmed a Mexican person, using the form in the Spanish language.

—The Rev. Dr. Bodine, of Kenyon College, Ohio, has been called to the rectorship of St. George's church, New York. There are about fifty names mentioned in connexion with St. James, Chicago.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

The Annual meeting of St. Luke's Hospital Association was held in the chapel on Friday evening, 5th inst. The Bishop read prayers and took the chair. Major Pope, in the absence of Mr. Harrison, read the annual report. He read the eulogistic resolutions in honor of Dr. Hodgen, which had been passed by the Board, expressed regret at the delay in getting into the building and the debt involved, acknowledged obligations to the Sisters in charge, Mr. Henry Shaw, Dr. Schuyler, Wm. Boyle the clerk, Mr. Hutchins the secretary, and also to the persons who had helped toward furnishing the rooms, naming especially Mrs. Robertson, Mrs. Edwin Harrison, Mrs. Dimmock, Mrs. W. J. Lewis, Mrs. Larkin, Mrs. Wm. Wright, Mrs. Thornburgh, Mrs. Kennet, Mrs. Douglass, Mrs. Lockwood, Mrs. Stanley, Mrs. Plant, Mrs. D. R. Garrison, Mrs. Theo. Forster and Mrs. Wm. F. Ferguson. Christ, Mount Calvary and Trinity churches had also contributed liberally.

The new home would give nine double and six single rooms, and there were three wards which would comfortably accommodate 42 patients, and in all 66 patients could be cared for at once in the new hospital. The principal surgical ward is to be named the John T. Hodgen Ward.

Mr. C. S. Freborn, the Treasurer, read his report, which showed that with the balance on hand, September 1, 1881, of $2 73, there has been received since $5,811.50 and that on April 1, 1882, there was $643 on hand. For the building fund, with a balance on hand, September 1, 1881, of $305.51, there had since been received $11,- 150.51, and expended $11,788 19, leaving a balance of $217.34. The total cost of the new building was $41,000, with a balance now due on it of $15 625 49, with a good uncollected balance of $1,000, and a pledge of $1,500, to be paid when the hospital should be within that amount of being out of debt. He has also on hand $1,238 for a furnishing fund from the ladies lawn party.

Dr. John Green reported that the number of patient from May 1, 1881, to May 1, 1882, were 256, of whom 158 were males and 98 females.

It was decided that the formal opening of the new building should be on the afternoon of Whit-Sunday, 28th inst.

The election was then held for twelve directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the following were chosen: Messrs. Edwin Harrison, E. C. Simmons, Wm. H. Thompson, Chas. S. Freeborn, Dr. J. S. B. Alleyne, Newton Crane, Jesse L. January, D. Robert Barclay, Wm. S. Pope, R. B. Wade, J. J. Wilkins and Prof. W. B. Potter.

The Bishop suggested that an extra effort be made to secure members from the parishes.

Mr. Simmons said that it would be done in an earnest manner when they moved into the new building.

The meeting then adjourned.

EASTER MONDAY ELECTIONS.

The following were elected in Grace Church, Kansas City: Messrs. Chace, Atkinson, Horton, Ferry, Cook, Brockett, Grimes, St. Clair, Wilkes, Pratt, Hunter, Coatsworth and Haff.

For St. Mary's, Kansas City: Messrs B. F. Wilkinson, J. A. McDonald, Walter Harwood, Hadlond, Keating, G. Lathrop and Capt. Haslep. Grace, Carthage: H. H. Harding, Thos. N. Davey, W. K. Caffee, A. H. Caffee, J. C. Canaday, S. S. Wells, Francis Matthews, D. A. Smith, W. C. Campbell.

For Emmanuel Church, St. Louis County, the following were elected: George R. Robinson-Senior Warden; John Percival, Junior Warden; Archie Robinson, Secretary; Mrs. John Percival, Treasurer; Professor Ed. H. Twining, Wm. Harper.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland had the satisfaction of placing on the altar of his church in Chicago on Easter day the cancelled mortgage of $39,000. One gentleman gave $10,000. They are to observe Trinity Sunday as their day of jubilee. It is likely that Mr. Holland caught the habit of not resting until church debts are paid from St. Louis. Grace church there, which is wealthier, has been wrestling with its debt longer, but has not yet got free.

—In New Orleans it was only on the evening of the second day after the one appointed, and after meeting three times without a quorum, that the Louisiana Council organized for business. Doubtless the floods accounted partly for this.

—On eastern morning in one of the churches in Washington City the rector apologized for making what might seem a strange request. It was that those ladies who wore wide brimmed hats should kneel erect and not bow their head while receiving the elements of the Holy Communion, as he could not otherwise tell where he was putting anything under the large hats.

Sixty five ministers of various denominations have, during the past two years, been admitted to Holy Orders: thirteen Congregationalists, eleven Presbyterians, one Lutheran, two Second Adventists, seventeen Methodists, three Universalists, one Unitarian, one Reformed Episcopalian, one Moravian, and one Hebrew rabbi.

Beauty Regained.

The beauty and color of the hair may be safely regained by using Parker's Hair Balsam, which is much admired for its perfume, cleanliness and dandruff eradicating properties.

BOOK NOTICES.

In the North American Review for May, Carl Schurz, treating of "Party Schemes and Future Problems," presents many well-considered observations which cannot fail to interest in the highest degree that large and growing class of citizens who refuse to be influenced by obsolete party cries. "Days with Longfellow," by Samuel Ward, contains personal reminiscences of the beloved poet just deceased, extending over a period of forty-five years. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, in an article entitled "What does Revelation Reveal?" seeks to prove that the objections brought against the Bible by modern unbelievers are based upon a misconception of the true intent and scope of the sacred volume. Lieutenant-Commander Gorring writes of "The Navy," with abundant knowledge of its needs, and with a degree of frankness almost if not quite, unpretended in the naval service. W. H. Mallock, the well-known English essayist in the first of a series of "Conversations with a Solitary," very ingeniously contrives to put the advocates of democracy and modern progress on the defensive. Finally, Gail Hamilton contributes a paper, "The Spent Bullet," in which science the pulpit and the law are with exquisite wit taken to task for the part they respectively played in the Guiteau-Garfield tragedy.

THE PETTIBONE NAME. By Margaret Sidney. The V I F Series. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price $1.25. If the publisher had offered a price for the brightest, freshest and most brilliant bit of home fiction wherewith to start off this new series, they have more perfectly succeeded than they have in securing this, The Pettibone Name, a story that ought to create an immediate and wide sensation, and give the author a still higher place than she now occupies in popular esteem. The heroine of the story is not a young, romantic girl, but a noble, warm-hearted woman, who sacrifices wealth, ease and comfort for the sake of others who are dear to her. There has been no recent figure in American fiction more clearly or skillfully drawn than Judith Pettibone, and the impression made upon the reader will not be easily effaced. Most of the characters of the book are such as to be met with in any New England village. Taken altogether, it is a delightful story of New England life manners; sparkling in style, bright in incident, and intense in interest. It deserves to be widely read, as it will be.

Mrs. Mayburn's Twins, by John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies," is a book that goes straight to the heart of every mother in the land, and that mamma does not exist who will not vote it delightful. Natural as life, it sparkles on every page with delicious humor, and its occasional pathos is touching in the extreme, while the style of composition betrays a master hand. The action covers a single day, but what a busy day it is, and how crowded with important and realistic household events. The story is in brief the biurnal of experience of Mrs. Mayburn, whose husband is loving, but thoughtless, and whose children are flesh and blood youngsters, at once the joy and the torment of their mother's life. Mamma has her hands more than full with the children, whose pranks at times almost drive her wild. It is published in a large square duodecimo volume, paper cover, over, uniform with "Helen's Babies," price fifty cents, and will be found for sale by all Booksellers, at all News Stands, and on all Railroad Trains, or copies will be sent to any one, to any place, at once, post-paid on remitting the price in a letter to the Publisher, T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia Pa.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR MAY is a phenomenal issue in regard to both the quality and the number of its illustrations. There are, in all, sixty-eight, eleven of them full-page engravings.

The most fully illustrated article is that by Mr. C. L. Brace, Secretary of the Children's Aid Society, New York, on "Wolfraised Children," the waifs and strays of humanity, drifting about without friends or home in a great metropolis, and how this excellent Society takes them from the evil influences in which they are growing up, and sends them to good homes on Western farms. The electric light forms the subject of a timely descriptive paper, with many pictures, showing the appearance of the lamps by day and night, and under various circumstances of weather.

Sophie Swett opens the number with a very amusing story, "Why the Clock Struck One." "Donald and Dorothy" and "The Northern Myths" are continued in installments of unusual interest.

"Play-day at Mentor" is a pleasant reminiscence of a day's visit at the Ohio home, with the younger sons of President Garfield during the latter's fatal illness last summer.

THE MAY CENTURY presents the third of the five covers designed by Mr. Vedder: the chief items of which are the figure of a young girl (Spring) with sunlight, flying bird, and a frame of blossoms, the three appropriate signs of the zodiac being combined as before in a medallion at the left, and the blossoms are carried up into the borders of the title. The general effect is animated and the composition of the page is well arranged.

The opening paper is entitled "The Canadian Mecca," the subject being the Catholic pilgrims to the village of St. Anne de Beaupre, on the St. Lawrence, and it tells of a miracle-working spring. This is fully and interestingly illustrated by Henry Sandham.

"Carlyle in Ireland," from the recently discovered MS., is interesting and valuable for the light it sheds upon Carlyle in 1840, as well as upon the Ireland of that year. The first part records the passage from London to Dublin, and thence via Kildare to Kilkenny. The original text is given, and it abounds with Carlyleisms of characterization, opinion, and style.

Miss Emma Lazarus's reply to Mme. Ragozin's attacks upon the Jews in the last number has special significance as coming from a Jewess, and throws another kind of light on the anti-Semitic movement in Russia.

It is rare that any number of a magazine has four writers of fiction of the total strength and interest of Mr. Burnett, Miss Woolson, Mr. Howells, and Mr. Stockton. "The Transferred Ghost," by the last named is strikingly original in idea, and noticeable for the coolness with which the author takes the ghost into the story as one of the characters. Mr. Howells' story does not flag in interest. Mrs. Brun-tt's story, Arbuthnot makes a discovery, and Janey failing ill in the country, Mrs. Amory telegraphs to the Professor, and he being unable to go, after much parrying between Arbuthnot and Tredennis it is decided that the latter shall go, which he does. Already much curiosity is manifested to know how this is to end. Miss Woolson's two-part story is entitled "The Street of the Hyacinth" and deals with "the most interesting feature of Rome the catacombs and ancient art—the American girl." This particular American girl, Miss Ettie F. Maeks, has come from Tuscolo, with her mother, to study act.

THE STUDY OF WORDS. By Richard Chenevix Trench. Complete in two parts, with full index of words, price 80 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., Publishers, 143 4th Avenue New York.

This well known and standard work needs no commendation. It is a book that everybody needs—indeed it is about as indispensable as a good dictionary for every one who would use his mother tongue understandingly. For the benefit of those who may be unacquainted with Trench's valuable treatise, we may add that it is in no sense a "school-book," but rather a series of charming discourses upon the Poetry in Words, the Morality in Words the Rise of New Words, the Distinction of Words—in short upon every phase of this most attractive study.

WIEE AWAKE for May is a treasury of entertaining and educational reading. One may begin at the back with the Chautauqua Young Folk's Readings for the month, or at the beginning with the poems and stories; for it is Susan Coolidge who opens the Chautauqua department, and Cose Terry Cooke, who has a poem on the first page. Following Mrs. Cooke's poem, "What A Shame!" is a capital story of a young midshipman's adventure, entitled "Lost In Pompeii." The boys have several other good things in the number, among them; "The Carib Captain's Story," and "The Kinkipaws." They also, as well as the girls, will enjoy the two serials, "Their Olub and Ours," and "From The Hudson to the Neva." $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

THE PENITENTIAL. A book of authorized forms for the self-discipline of penitents, as set forth in the penitential system of the American Church, by Bishop Cox. A pamphlet of 128 pages, of great use on the part of pastors as towards those who are willing to put a rule of discipline upon themselves. The resources of the Church for the purpose will be found to be more ample than most persons will have supposed. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York, 25 cts.

It is not what you have in your chest, but what you have in your heart, that makes you rich.

Complications.

If the thousands that now have their rest and comfort destroyed by complication of liver and kidney complaints would give nature's remedy, Kidney-wort, a trial they would be speedily cured. It acts on both organs at the same time and therefore completely fill the bill for a perfect remedy. If you have a lame back and disordered kidney use it at once. Don't neglect them.—Mirror and Farmer.

AN ONLY DAUGHTER
CURED OF CONSUMPTION.

When death was hourly expected all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. JAMES was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of CONSUMPTION. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that CONSUMPTION can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Recipe free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address CRADDOCK & CO., 1632 Race street, Philadelphia, naming this paper.

Common sense makes no parade.

Fear is constant attendant on guilt.

Heaven to be obtained must be sought.

Some, like evening primroses, open most beautifully in the shadow of life.

He who puts bad construction upon a good act, reveals his own wickedness at heart.

In memory's mellowed light we behold not the thorns; we see only the beautiful flowers.

Calumny would soon starve and die of itself, if nobody took it and gave it lodging.

If misfortune hits you hard, you hit something else hard; go into something with a will.

We see what a man has, and envy him; but if we saw how little he enjoyed it, we should pity him.

Strenght for Mind and Body.

There is more strength restoring power in a bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic than a bushels of malt or a gallon of milk. This explains why invalids find it such a wonderful invigorant for mind and body. See other column.

"When my horses had what was called lung fever, last spring, I gave Simmons Liver Regulator (liquid) in one ounce doses, twice a day. They all recovered speedily. E. T. MICHENER, "Prop'r Michener's Express Jenkintown, Pa,"

SUMMER INSTITUTE OF EIGHT WEEKS

Commencing June 13, '82. Normal University, Lebanon, O. Through PREPARATION FOR FALL SCHOOLS. Common Branches, Natural Sciences, Higher Mathematics, Professional Training, Book-keeping County Surveying, and various other lines of instruction. The MOST THOROUGH AND PROSPEROUS of all schools or colleges, as evidenced by over thirty thousand successful men and women in all the profession and every kind of business, educated in this institution. Teachers from the Normal University get higher wages than from any other Institution. No students employed in managing recitations, as in other cheap schools. Last annual enrollment, 2,000 pupils; teachers now employed 23. A CHEAPER VACATION FOR TEACHERS than to remain at home and pay board; thus all the advantages of the Summer term, which in most cases will insure better salaries, will cost little or nothing. ENTIRE EXPENSE for the term $25.00. Catalogues sent free. A HOLBROOK,

ITALY 1881. ESPOSIZIONE MUSICALE IN MILANO

Sotto il Patrocinio di S. M. la Regina,
Palazzo Del R. Conservatorio
AT THE GREAT ITALIAN MUSICAL EXPOSITION

Recently closed at Milan, was probably the MOST EXTRAORDINARY COLLECTION OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS, old and new, ever brought together; fully illustrating the great progress which has been made and present high excellence in this department of manufactures. After exhaustive examinations, tests and comparisons, extending through a period of several months, more than 250 Awards were made of medals and diplomas, in recognition of degrees of super-excellence attained in the various departments of musical art and manufacture. For REED INSTRUMENTS, including Organs and Harmoniums of all descriptions, European and American.

THE GRAND SILVER MEDAL, being the only highest award in this department, was conferred upon the

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

Their manufacturers value this extraordinary distinction the more highly because of the importance of the occasion, especially as an INTERNATIONAL MUSICAL COMPETITION in a COUNTRY SO PRE-EMINENTLY MUSICAL. The Mason & Hamlin Organs were honored by special exhibition before the Royal Court by CARLO DUCI of Rome, and warm commendation from their Majesties the King and Queen. At all the great WORLD'S INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITIONS, for fourteen years these Organs have received the HIGHEST HONORS, being the only American Organs which have received such an award.

IMPROVEMENTS. During the year just closed this Company have introduced improvements of greater value than in any similar period since the introduction of the American Organ by them, twenty years since.

ELEGANT STYLES are now received from their factories daily, surpassing in capacity and even in anything which has before been produced, and a certain superiority to all ranked with the very finest musical instruments in the world. They are in cases of "old style" $240, $330, $430, $530, $630, $730, $830, $930, $1,030, $1,130, $1,230, $1,330, $1,430, $1,530, $1,630, $1,730, $1,830, $1,930, $2,030, $2,130, THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

PARISHES which have received grants of prayer books should take a collection for the Society and send it to the agent. This is only fair. The agent for the New York Society is Mr. James Pott, 12 Astor Place. The Bishop White Prayer Book Society, of Philadelphia, has also sent to a number of our clergymen generous grants. But a return according to ability should be made.

WHILE we rejoice over the greater strength of the Hospital now, there are very many persons who constantly recall with pride and gratitude that earlier Board of Managers also, who carried the work on for so many years, when the very need of any Church Hospital was questioned, when it was not established in the habits and affections of our people as it is now, when the managers had each to assume the responsibility for the raising of a certain amount, and themselves go out on the street and make it up. The Bishop remembers that on the very first day that he came into the diocese he was met with the question, by those young men who were then laboriously carrying on its work, whether he thought the maintenance of the Hospital was expedient, and whether he would give it his countenance. He gave to them then an assurance which he has since endeavored to make good. In our stronger days let all recognition be rendered to those staunch earlier friends of the institution. It was an unintentional oversight that they did not have place in the procession on Whitsunday.

THE REV. MR. BARR.

For several years past Mr. Barr, who had been living quietly in this city, had been seen to be evidently losing ground in health. The sunstroke received years ago was inducing a nervous disorder, vertigo, and an increasing paralysis of the limbs. He officiated occasionally, but had done no regular duty since relinquishing the care of Grace church, Kansas City.

He was at Convention a little more than a month ago, and his agitation when his claim for a seat was disallowed showed that he had broken in body and mind. This had no reflection on him personally, but only came from his misapprehension of the meaning of the canon. He had acted as minister in charge of Grace church, Kansas City, but this had never been certified as a rectorship to the Bishop, and therefore did not give him a seat in Convention. This relation had ceased some years before. The Constitution which had been adopted during this Convention had declared that no clergyman should lose his seat by reason of age and infirmity. But while this precluded a clergyman from losing his seat for this reason, it did not create a right to a seat when none had before been had. The case was clear, although evidently Mr. Barr did not see it.

There was distress felt when the announcement was made that on the 27th ult., Mr. Barr who had been confined to his bed for some weeks under the care of physicians, and had been compelled to use anodynes, had died from an overdose of morphine, administered by himself. It became plain, however, at the inquest, that this was done by mistake, and that for days he had hardly been responsible for his actions. The Rev. Dr. Schuyler visited him shortly before his death.

Both of the next morning's papers contained articles referring to Mr. Barr of a most unfair kind. About a gentleman who had at least been inoffensive, and was not yet buried, they seemed to think that the most utter scurrility might be safely uttered. The Bishop immediately wrote notes of remonstrance and rebuke. The physician who had for two years attended him, Dr. Bauduy, wrote also to say that he "had learned to love and esteem him for his many virtues, his urbanity, his culture," and declared his conviction that intemperance had never been one of his faults; that he was a victim of an implacable nervous affection, known as locomotor ataxia, which induced a staggering gait, and caused a person to walk with uncertainty.

The funeral service was conducted by the Bishop, the Rev. Drs. Schuyler, Berkley and Ingraham, and Messrs. Reed, Silvester and Phelps acting as pall bears. Mr. Barr by will left $5,000 to the diocese for Theological Education, and $1,000 each to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's, $500 to the Newsboys' Home, $2,000 to the lady with whom for two years and more he had boarded, besides other personal bequests. In this way he showed his kindly spirit and generosity. He was 58 years of age.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

— The Bishop has recently confirmed in Monroe 1; Shelby, 4; Mt. Calvary, St. Louis, 8; Amazonia, 1; Maryville, 3; Kirkwood, 7; Mexico, 3; Louisiana, 1.

— The Academy which the Rev. D'Estaing Jennings has started in Carthage is called the Rugby School. The prospect for a good number of scholars at the opening of the year in September is excellent. Mr. Jennings has been holding Services in Pierce City, with large congregations.

— Mr. John A. Harrison, who has held the position of Warden of the Mission of the Good Shepherd almost from its organization, has resigned his office, and Mr. Daniel S. Brown has been appointed Warden.

— The Bishop announced at the anniversary of the Sunday school Missionary Host, in answer to inquiries often made to him, as to who the missionaries were for whom they were giving, that he would appoint as the missionaries of the Host specially, the Rev. M. S. Woodruff, of Saline county, and the Rev. John N. Chesnut, of this city. He would ask them, from time to time, to write an account of their work, to be read to the Sunday-schools. The appointment of special clergymen, who are representatives of the Host, and helped by the gifts of the children, will, no doubt, have a good effect in making the children realize more the direct work which they are doing with their money and self-sacrifice for Christ.

— Mr. Norman L. Angel-Smith, of Macon City, has recently been admitted a Candidate for Orders in this Diocese. He has lately been teaching in St. James Academy, under the Rev. Mr. Talbot. He will pursue his theological studies next year at Seabury Hall, Faribault.

— The damage sustained by Mt. Calvary church, St. Louis, by the recent hail storm, was very great. Happily, the stained windows over the chancel were not broken. On Sunday, 7th, at evening service, a class of eight adults were confirmed, making twenty five thus admitted into the church since the first of this year. The Sunday-school holds its sessions now at 9:30 a. m. The sewing society has recently sent its annual missionary box.

— The Rev. Charles E. Cummings, of St. Augustine, colored, mission in Kansas City, has felt compelled to go East and strive to get from friends of his and the Church the means to go on with the building of his church. He yet needs $1000 to complete it. His need is extreme, and his work most promising.

— In the May number of the Parish Record of the Church of the Holy Communion in this city the Rector announces that with that issue the little paper will cease. We are sorry to lose its monthly appearance.

— The Rev. Dr. Schuyler has resigned his position as Examining Chaplain, and the Bishop has appointed the Rev. Dr. Wainwright as an Examiner.

— The Directors of St. Luke's Hospital have asked the Bishop to name a clergyman as Chaplain of St. Luke's Hospital, and the Bishop has appointed the Rev. Dr. Schuyler to the position. He has for years been performing, without appointment, faithfully the duties of the position.

— The Rev. Mr. Chesnut, by an indomitable will, and by the kind help of his many friends in the city, succeeded a few weeks ago in securing the whole amount of nearly $1800 needed for the entire payment of the debt upon the Church of the Advent. In this he anticipated one year's payment, and relieved himself and the congregation of the anxiety of the debt and the burden of the interest. They had a very happy time when they learned that this long prayed for consummation had been reached. A deed has not been received for the property, which will be conveyed to the Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese. This adds one more to the number of our churches in this city free of debt. It will now organize as a parish, and the church will be consecrated.

— There has just been purchased for Christ church, Cape Girardeau, a pair of beautiful chandeliers, of twelve globes each, made after the style of those in the Supreme Court Room in Jefferson City, but larger. They have been paid for, and the people are much delighted with them. The interest and attendance there at church is very good.

— The Rev. Robert Talbot has been called to the Rectorship of St. Jude's church, Monroe, and entered upon duty on Trinity Sunday.

— Recently, in one of our parishes, an old gentleman, who was evidently near his end, and who had never been baptized, had a conversation with the clergyman, such as left the assurance that when the clergymen should next visit him he would be ready and be baptized. Other urgent duty called the minister away, and within two hours in church word came to the clergymen that the person had died. The minister was then sorry that he had not at the moment brought the matter to an issue, and baptized him. He, however, learned that a pious lady, who was present with others nursing him, had baptized him herself in the emergency, with his full consent.

— A Mr. Houston, who was confirmed at St. George's, in this city, on the Sunday after Easter, was ordained as a Campbellite minister a month ago. The form of his ordination certificate was peculiar, and was as follows: "We, the undersigned elders of the congregation of the Central Christian Church of St. Louis, knowing Mr. F. R. Houston to be a person of moral ability and worthiness, with approval of the congregation, and at his desire, we have consecrated and confirmed him by fasting, prayer, the imposition of hands, and with earnest charge to the Christian ministry: and we bespeak for our brother the kindly continuance, encouragement and good will of all Christian people."

— The Rev. Jos. R. Gray, recently of Columbia, and who has been engaged in temporary duty in Colorado for four months past, has concluded to remove to Tennessee and take charge of Holy Trinity church, Nashville, in which city an older brother is Rector of another parish. We are all sorry to have him leave this Diocese. His health is by no means wholly re-established.

— The Rev. Cameron Mann, of Grace chu r

Kansas City, was to have been married in St. Paul's church, Cincinnati, on Wednesday evening, 14th instant, to Miss Mary E. Le Cain. A long and happy wedding life to them in the Lord, we wish them.

— In Christ church, Lexington, the Rector has secured almost enough of old silver and gold for the making of a chalice and paten to replace the plated set, from which the plating is wearing off. The Ladies' Guild have also decided to erect at once a guild room, in the form of a transept to the church, which can be used for Sunday-school purposes, week day services, guild meetings, Rector's study and office, and also on Sunday nights (the second Service is in the afternoon, as so many come from the country), for a Rector's Bible class.

— At the general wish of the congregation, the canules and certain other appurtenances in the chancel of the Mission of the Good Shepherd in this city have been removed. The congregations, even at the inconvenient hours, when alone, of course, the Rev. Mr. Wright, of St. John's, is able to give them Service, are a great gain upon the past for a long time.

— The Rev. Mr. Sharpe is about to resign the rectorship of Calvary church, Sedalia.

— The hail storm which came during the closing hours of the Convention, and broke so many lights in residences and churches in this city, did great damage all through the country. In Montgomery it broke 124 panes of glass in the church.

— Rev. A. J. Yeater, of Texas, was recently in this city, and wanted very much to become the minister of the Good Shepherd church. He went up the river.

— It seems that some persons in this city have employed lawyers to contest the will of the late Mr. Barr, in the interest of a daughter of his whom they do not know. The Chancellor of the diocese is the executor of the will, and of course, will defend it.

— It will be noticed that the closing exercises at the school of the Good Shepherd, in this city, will take place on the evening of the 19th, at the school, 2029 Park avenue. Several of the scholars will graduate, and there is an animated interest as to which of them will secure the Bishop's gold medal. Two of the graduates are almost of equal merit.

— We hear a rumor that another bed at the Hospital is to be endowed shortly by Col. Meier, in memory of his wife.

— The Rev. Mr. Gay has been giving services to the vacant parish at Boonville, as often as he has been able to go.

— The Rev. B. F. Newton, of Texarkana, Northern Texas, has been called to the mission of the Good Shepherd, in this city. He is thirty-five years of age, unmarried, was ordained by Bishop Potter, in New York, having graduated at the Cambridge Divinity School, Mass., and spent some time in Europe studying. He has been in his present work four years, and the Bishop and people speak very highly of him.

— The Rev. Mr. Abbott takes charge of the parish at Rochester, Minn., during the summer vacation at Faribault. The Rev. Mr. Henry will be at Jefferson City.

THE OPENING OF ST. LUKE'S.

The opening of the hospital was an occasion worthy of being celebrated, and in a religious way, and the service on the afternoon of Whit Sunday was a grand and impressive one. All were glad that at length the building was completed and out of the workmen's hands, and about to justify the purposes of its construction. Such an event too should be marked by thanksgivings to God, and prayer to Him that He would bless what had been done for His honor and love for His suffering children, and prosper it in its appointed work.

Such devotions would commend themselves to every Christian heart. We had asked His blessing at the starting out of the building, in the placing of the corner stone. No magical change was wrought when that was done. A Heavenly Father's blessing was asked on the work. He did bless it so that it came to its end without disaster. Now that it was completed, it was right to thank Him for His mercy and protection, and in His name to bless and set apart for its sacred uses the building which had been erected. This was good, even though, on account of the debts on the structure, the more formal service of dedication could not be used.

The workmen had only gotten through in time for the arranging of the furniture in the private rooms. This is simply beautiful. All of them had been taken by individuals and congregations, and been provided with new and most tasteful furniture. Many of them are memorial rooms, and bear special names. The surgical ward, called the Dr. John T. Hodgen ward, was furnished by Mr. E. C. Simmons, and the other called Dr. Hodgen Memorial Room, furnished by Mrs. Tyler. On the first floor the reception room was furnished by Mrs. Kennet; the office and waiting room by Mrs. Sides; a private room by Mrs. Forster; a beautiful apartment by Christ Church, called the Schuyler Room; and one by the Church of Holy Communion, called the Holy Communion Room. The following named ladies have furnished rooms on the second or ladies' floor: Mrs. Wainwright, Mrs. Thornburg, Mrs. Whitelaw, Mrs. Peckham, and one of the most exquisite of all is called the Susan R. Larkin Room. On this floor is one called Trinity Room, furnished by Trinity Church, and there is St. Barnabas' Room, furnished by one who prefers to remain unknown, and other rooms to be determined upon. On the 3d floor besides the Dr. Hodgen Memorial Room is one furnished by Mount Calvary Church, and those furnished by Mrs. George P. Plant, Mrs. Dimmock, and Mrs. W. J. Lewis, and the Buchanan Memorial Room.

The hospital, on the arrangement of which Dr. John Green devoted very much time, giving it the advantage of his wide observation in this country and abroad, is probably the most perfect structure of its kind so far as it goes. In ventilation, and drainage, and arrangement of rooms it is admirable. No paint is used in the building; the plumbing is all exposed; there is no place where vermin or filth can gather. The wood is hard; there is a fire place in each room; the elevator is wholly safe. There are accommodations for nearly sixty patients.

The day was a propitious one. The large ward had to be fitted up for an extemporized chapel and it, as well as the corridors on every story and many rooms were crowded, and many had to go away. The interest in the charity is very deep and wide. The clergy present, beside the Bishop, were the Rev. Drs. Schuyler, Fulton, Berkley and Ingraham, Messrs. Betts, Reed, Silvester and Corby. Preceding these in the procession were the choristers of Trinity church, the directors of the Hospital, the medical staff, and the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. The directors present were Messrs. Henry Shaw, President; Wm. H. Thomson, Vice President; C. S. Freeborn, Treasurer; S. S. Hutchins, Secretary; Messrs. E. C. Simmons, Wm. S. Pope, Jesse L. January, and D. Robert Barclay. Of the medical staff present were noticed Drs. Green, Mudd, Alleyne, Fischell, Barrett, Lemoine and Porter.

The procession moved into the chapel during the singing of the hymn, "Come, Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove." After some sentences of invocation by the Bishop, the first lesson was read by Dr. Fulton, the second by Mr. Reed, and the prayers were said by Mr. Silvester. The arrangement of the service had been committed by the Bishop in his absence from the city and the diocese to the Chaplain, the Rev. Dr. Schuyler, who remitted it to the Rev. Mr. Betts. It was admirably constructed, and much of the success of the whole service was due to the minute care given by Mr. Betts to its preparation.

The address was delivered by Dr. Schuyler. It was in excellent spirit, and delivered with great animation. We wish that we could publish it all. It began with a historical retrospect. Only two of the four clergymen present at the organization are in the city, and of the eleven laymen who took part, four are dead, and none of the others are in the management. He spoke of the successive removals of the Hospital, and the fine location in which it is now placed, among the splendid public buildings erected by individual munificence. He alluded to the generosity of Mr. Shaw, of the inclusiveness of the Hospital administration; said that the entire cost of the building, including the lot, was $50,000, of which $15,000 remains as a debt; referred touchingly to Dr. Hodgen, and spoke of the need of a chapel.

The Bishop, after giving a statement as to the further plans for building on the lot, when there is the ability, and calling for the immediate erection of the chapel, declared formally that the Hospital was now open.

Thereupon the procession took up its line again, and went through the building, the choir singing as they went. In the dormitories, in the large ward, in the kitchen, dispensary, and halls, appropriate prayers were said, and then all returned to the chapel, where the service was completed. With the recessional hymn, "There is a land of pure delight," the clergy retired to the robing room. It was past six o'clock when the service was over. The display of flowers everywhere was profuse and beautiful.

The old hospital was vacated, and the new one taken possession of by the patients on Wednesday, 31st ult. Membership of the association, with privilege of voting for officers, &c., is had by the payment of at least $10 a year. This is the regular source of income. The larger building will involve larger expense. The managers propose to begin forthwith a vigorous canvass for yearly subscriptions for the support of the institution.

GRACE CHURCH, ST. LOUIS.

Reference has already been made in these columns to the work being done on Grace Church, to cut down the mound on which the building was elevated twenty or thirty feet above the grade of the street, and to lower the church, and renovate it for use. The building in its main part was erected in 1846, and the transepts and chancel in 1860; so that to move, and turn, and let down such an old frame building twenty feet was no small business. The earth on the north part of the lot was removed ten years ago; it has now been taken from the south west quarter, and the remainder will soon be removed.

Work has been going on for three or four months, but has been delayed by the persistent rain. It was, however, completed so that the first service could be held in it on Whitsunday, 28th ult. The church has been turned so as to face the south, and the interior has been changed so as to have a broad centre aisle, and has been made much more attractive.

Dr. Ingraham in his sermon said that the payment of the old debt and taxes, the cost of removing the earth, and the repairs, would come to $10,500. Of this sum $5,000 had been given and pledged by Mr. Joseph W. Branch, of St. George's Church, $5,000 more had been given in the parish, leaving an amount of debt, along with previously existing obligations on the parish, reaching now the sum of $1,330, which he was sure they must and could soon wipe off. He said that the present income of the parish was only $1,200, doubtless caused by the cramped and irregular quarters and services which they had been compelled to have in the Medical College during the repairs. He said they needed at least $3,500, and that they could and should now, with their larger renewed, handsome and permanent building, easily reached, and he appealed to them to do it.

He said that with his faithful assistant, the Rev. Mr. Phelps, over 1,200 pastoral calls had been made in the year, and that this was one of the widest fields for usefulness and work in the city.

Certainly Dr. Ingraham is to be congratulated upon the energy with which he has carried through this work. For years it has been apparent that there could be no assurance of permanence for the parish until the church could be gotten down to the level of the street and made over. But the doubt as to the title of the property, and then the uncertainty as to how to go about the work, whether to move the old church, or build a new one; the difficulty of poverty in the parish; these causes well nigh caused despair as to the possibility of doing anything. Minister after minister had come and gone, and tried to grapple with the problem, and had retired discouraged. A rift in the cloud appeared when the generosity of a Churchman from another parish assured to them the title to the property, and help toward the removal. This, with the present Rector's energy, and the good work done in and by the congregation, has brought about the gratifying result. Now we have another church, put in a place where it can do great good, where good is greatly needed to be done.

MEXICO CONVOCATION.

Mexico Convocation met in St. Paul's church, Mexico, Wednesday, May 31. Present, the Bishop, Revs. J. M. Curtis, the Dean, of Louisiana, E. R. Richardson of Moberly, and P. Wager, Rector of St. Paul's. Opening services at 8 p. m. The sermon by the Bishop, who confirmed 3 persons, none of whom were raised in the Church.

Thursday, 6 a. m., met in the vestry room and discussed matters of interest to and the condition of the Church work in the Convocation, which was very encouraging, showing increased success in the work of the brethren. At Moberly a vestry room has been added, the chancel being much improved, and church rejuvenated by increase in number of communicants. At Mexico the mortgage upon the church paid off, mainly through the liberality of the Senior and Junior Wardens, since last Convocation; an increase in list of communicants and in Sunday-school, which, with the one in Montgomery City, are members of the Missionary Host. The Rector of St. Paul's has commenced a monthly service on week-day nights at Perry, Ralls county, where a faithful son of the "Mother Church" has settled, and to whose efforts the same is due. Three were to come over in a hack twenty-five miles for confirmation. A storm prevented them. At the last service, one who was baptized in infancy, now seventy-one years old, walked in and out three miles, bringing his prayer book,—the first service for twenty years. The congregations very large, coming from as far as eight miles.

At 10½ a. m. service the Bishop baptized the child, grandson of a deceased clergyman of S. C. Sermon by the Dean. Holy Communion by the Bishop, assisted by the Rector. Rev. J. R. Gray, late of Columbia, now of Colorado, was gladly welcomed by the Bishop and brethren as a visitor. At 8 p. m., service and discussion by the Bishop and clergy of the subject selected at last Convocation, "What form of service is best adapted to the spiritual wants of the people." The main points brought forward why it was so, were, the fact that in the Jewish Church, God sanctioned the use of a form, in which Christ took part; that He gave His disciples a form; the Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church has ever used a Liturgy in the worship of God; that those who do not have a Prayer Book, do have an order or method in theirs; that the learned and unlearned, who in spirit and truth use the Prayer Book in public worship, receive greater spiritual benefit than they do who listen to one which they can only make theirs at its close by saying Amen, from not knowing what he is to say who makes it. Among the Christian bodies there is a spirit now working which will in time cause a change in the "one man worship" to what is only public worship in deed and truth.

Friday, 10 a. m., service and sermon by Rev. E. R. Richardson. Met in vestry room. Adjoined to meet in Fayette, Wednesday, Sept. 27, 1882. Subject for discussion to be selected by the Rector.

P. WAGER, Sec.

FAYETTE.

A few evenings since, shortly after the Rev. Dr. Hendrix's return from the General Conference at Nashville, he gave an account of it, and the general outlook of the M. E. Church, South, before the Faculty and students of the two Methodist colleges in Fayette. The Rev. Mr. Gay had heard of what was going on, and was present with many of the citizens of that goodly little city. After the address was over, and President Hendrix had come down from the platform, Mr. Gay thanked him for his share of the interesting address to which he had listened, and complimented him on the fairness of his account of the rise of Methodism within the Church of England, and how its great Founder remained in it as long as he lived. "But," said Mr. G., "you omitted many facts that I would you had more fully stated; in weaving your narrative you dropped a great many of your stitches; you will have to go back and take up those stitches yet." "Ah! Mr. Gay," said Dr. Hendrix, "You ought to thank me for what I did not say as well as for what I did." And so this little bout ended as pleasantly as it began.

Dr. Hendrix was widely spoken of for one of their Bishops, and received a very respectable vote, but like one of them who was elected—the Rev. Dr. Haygood of Georgia—who declined, it is believed Dr. Hendrix would have declined also, both of them, perhaps, feeling that they are doing more good in their educational work. Dr. H. is certainly doing a good work for his people in Missouri.

At a meeting of the Vestry of St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, Missouri, June 3, 1882, the following action was taken:

WHEREAS, The time for which the Rev. John Evans was elected minister in charge of this parish is now expired, and he having signified his intention to be transferred to another Diocese, it is resolved, in view of the high appreciation entertained by this parish for Mr. Evans, to place on record that esteem and affection for him as a zealous and acceptable minister of the Church, as well as a self-sacrificing Christian gentleman.

That it was our pleasure during the time he was in this charge, to know that he grew daily more and more in favor, not only in the congregation but also in the entire community, and all feel a personal loss in separating from him.

That long will his memory be cherished by the St. Jude's parish, for his many eminent qualities as pastor and friend. And we take this occasion to bespeak for him a kindly consideration from those with whom he may hereafter be placed.

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the records of the parish, and that a copy be furnished the Rev. Mr. Evans.

MR. EDITOR:—Having occasion recently to persuade a young friend of mine of means to make his will, and not to forget the charities of the Church, he kindly granted my request as to the Orphans' Home, and turning to the files of your paper for "forms of bequests" I could not find it. There are many of our Church people who would remember the several Charities and Funds. I suggest that the same be kept continually before the eyes of your readers as a reminder to those who would give, and hoping to see it once more, and in your next issue,

I am yours with respect,
W. H. C.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

WE may have a creed of unquestioned soundness, and know how to defend it with argument no man can impeach; but if we lack the "sweetness and light," the fidelity and truth that are born of pure trust in God and humble intimacy with him, our influence as Christians will be poor and small.

WE but give voice to the sentiment of the Church S. S. workers of St. Louis, when we express our sympathy with Mr. Ralph Talbot, supt. S. S. Church of Holy Communion, in the loss of his only child. God call him in the morning of life to that home where the sweet lips never shall quiver with pain, or the features grow grim and old; where life shall all be bliss to the eternal guileless child, who shall wait about the courts of Paradise for those who shall go to him.

WHOLLY aside from the duty of being accurate in our Bible quotations for the reason that it is an inspired book, we ought also to remember that a loose habit of quotation is one of the surest ways of deteriorating the whole mental fabric. The Bible is a book written with marvelous compactness and force, and is very largely composed of proverbial or aphoristic expressions, of course presented in the simplest form possible. In its current English version it is such a priceless classic, merely considered as a representative of our language at its best, that its literary position would stand unshaken were its divine nature lost. If such a book is not worth quoting accurately, what is? A person who habitually fails to produce Bible words as they stand, is either mentally incapable, so far as the faculty of memory goes, or else he is of so shiftless an intellectual habit that he may as well take heed lest he lose the power of thinking closely and accurately on any subject. And there is but one step between loose thinking and loose acting.

EDITOR CHURCH NEWS:—Please allow me through the columns of your paper to offer my thanks most heartfelt for the following touching remembrances for love of our dear Master and in aid of His cause: From Mr. Charles Knight, of Fairview, one of 47 Buck's Brilliant Stove. From Mrs. A. P. Lockwood and her son, James Y., handsome black mare. From Bible class, Fairview, (composed of several denominations) cash gift of $11.00 to my children; besides gifts almost innumerable from those of Laclede Parish. In spite of the protest of the above named I deem it my duty to make this public, that others may "let their light so shine" on other of my perhaps more needy missionary brothers, and thus glorify our Father which is in heaven.

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

MR. EDITOR: As secretary of the Missouri Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions, permit me through your columns to thank the following parishes for the faithful work done by them during the past year, in sending out missionary boxes:

Church of the Holy Communion, 4 boxes.
St. Church, 2 boxes, 3 packages.
St. George's, 2 boxes.
Mt. Calvary, 1 box.
Total value of boxes, $866.14.

In response to each box a letter has been received from the missionary, expressing his gratitude for the much needed help.

It is earnestly hoped that a larger number of parishes will aid in the work for the ensuing year and that those who have begun will continue in it.

Respectfully,

MARY W. TRIPLETT,
Secretary for Missouri.

GENERAL NEWS.

--The Convention of North Carolina refused to postpone the consideration of the question of the division of the diocese, and then by a decisive vote decided in favor of division. The new diocese will be the eastern third of the old diocese, by a line running north and south, with about an equal division of diocesan strength. The Bishop favored the project in principle, but thought that it was premature, and the diocese was not ready for it.

--In the Virginia Convention the matter of the division of the diocese was introduced by a layman, when the bishop stepped forward within the chancel rail and firmly and emphatically said:

"I wish to say one thing now that I have never before said at any Council. I have never before stood upon my rights, but I intend to stand upon them now. I claim that to me alone belongs the prerogative of inaugurating the matter of a division of the diocese—no one else has a right to do so. I cannot consent to a division, and, God being my helper, I never will consent to it unless I am convinced that the movement is favored by the majority, which I do not think is now the case."

He afterwards said that if he could during the coming year be persuaded that the laity really desired the measure, he would not oppose it.

--In the diocese of Tennessee the matter of the division of the diocese was postponed until the Convention next year.

--Among the changes in the canons in the diocese of Springfield are these: "in case that the vacancy of a rectorship continues for six months, the right to present vests in the bishop; a vacant parish is required to place in the hands of the bishop such a stipend as will furnish the parish during the vacancy with a curate.

--In the diocese of Virginia the average salary of ninety clergymen was $760; but leaving out the more fortunate ones, the average was far less, a little less than $400.

--At the recent Presbyterian General Assembly in Springfield, Ill., there were gratifying indications that the separation between the two branches of the Presbyterian church, North and South, will soon be brought to an end.

--Monday in Whitsun week was marked in New York and Liverpool by the closing of the Exchanges.

--The Standard of the Cross, one of our most thoughtful and readable exchanges, comes to us in a handsome dress of new type. We rejoice in this evidence of its prosperity.

--In a single paper lately we saw accounts of the following ministers from various religious denominations who were applying for Orders in our Church: R. G. Moses, Baptist; H. R. Harris, Congregational; Chas. E. Rider, Hebrew; E. W. Mundy, Baptist; H. C. Johnson, Lutheran; R. J. Walker and Mr. Metcalf, Methodists; Mr. Cherbulier, Reformed Episcopal.

--There has been a proposition started for a National Dollar Subscription in honor of Longfellow, to erect a monument at Cambridge. The treasurer is John Bartlett, P. O. Box 1590, Boston. The committee is highly respectable.

--In the Kentucky Convention the matter of the division of the diocese was considered, and a committee was appointed on the subject. It looks as though the next General Convention was going to have much of its time occupied by the consideration of the various propositions of this kind brought before it, and the interpretation in each case of the provision of the Constitution on the subject, that the General Convention shall not give consent to the forming of any new diocese "until it has satisfactory assurance of a suitable provision for the support of the episcopate in the contemplated new diocese."

--Bishop Perry, of Iowa, received an Easter gift in the shape of a check for $5000, for the endowment of a scholarship in Griswold College, and to perpetuate the name of the sister of the donor; the fund to be called the "Mary Buttle's Fund."

--We learn from the Jamestown Journal that the English people at that place celebrated the Whitsuntide holidays after the plan so famous in "Merrie England." They assembled in a large park on Whitsun-Monday, listened to addresses, sang the songs of Old England and indulged in sports and games, and spent the entire day in a most pleasurable manner. At six o'clock tea and buns were served to the children, and the festival came to a close.

--In the annual session of the (Dutch) Reformed Church of America, just held in New York, it was conceded that the slight growth of that body would be remedied by a return to a recognition of fast days and holy days, and to the use of a liturgy, all of which were in the early usage of that Church.

--To show how the country is growing, the following appears in good faith in the New York World: "Families who are about giving receptions, dinner parties, or other entertainments will be gratified to know that persons who will assist in making these events pleasant and enjoyable can be obtained through the medium of The World employment bureau. These persons will not be professionals, but parties of culture and refinement, who will appear well, dress elegantly, and mingle with the guests, while able and willing to play, sing, converse fluently, tell a good story, give a recitation, or anything that will help to make an evening pass quickly and pleasantly. The World employment bureau does not claim any originality in this plan, but simply complies with the increasing demands of a large class of its patrons in thus introducing a feature of the business that has long been practiced in the large cities of Europe. The attendance of such persons, young or old, male or female, can be had for the sum of $10 per evening each. We will guarantee them to be strictly honest and desirable persons."

--The matter of the approval of the proposed amendment in the Ratification of the Prayer Book which is to come up before the next General Convention, has been extensively before the Diocesan Conventions this year. In a number the matter was postponed; in most of the others the opinion was adverse, mainly because of the small amount of practical relief secured, and the doubtful manner in which the change would be made.

--The adjourned Convention in Mississippi to elect an assistant Bishop, will probably not take place until November.

--The Bishop of Long Island stated to his Convention recently that three out of every four dollars raised for religious purposes goes out of the Diocese, and that it is hard to keep that other one. One person said that if a mission at Sag Harbor lay beyond the Rocky Mountains, it would be easier to raise money for it.

--Our old friend Dr. Cross has published a volume of sermons, entitled, "Knight Banneret."

AN English lady, widow, wishes to find a situation as housekeeper, companion or governess; good linguist; highest testimonials.

Address Mrs. FEATHERSTONE, Peirce City, Mo.

My Good Woman:

Why are you so out of sorts, never able to tell folks that you are well? Ten to one it's all caused in the first place by habitual constipation, which no doubt finally caused deranged kidneys and liver. The sure cure for constipation is the celebrated Kidney-Wort. It is also a specific remedy for all kidney and liver diseases. Thousands are cured by it every month. Try it at once.—[Toledo Blade.]

There is but very small proportion of the woman of this nation that do not suffer from some of the diseases for which Kidney-wort is a specific. When the bowels have become costive, headache torments, kidneys out of fix, or piles distress, take a package and its wonderful tonic and renovating power will cure you and give new life.—[Watchman.]

SEEN OF GOD.

[BY CONSTANCE F. RUNCIE, Author of "Divinely Led."]

See! yonder stately, lordly spire
 Searching through the sky;
 Which crowns—as flame reveals the fire—
 Cathedral, towering high.
 Majestic in its grand outlines,
 Symmetrical in form,
 Rich in its rare and chaste design,
 Proof 'gainst time or storm.
 It sanctifies the air around,
 And sets apart a place,
 Like heart of man, where GOD is found
 To meet him face to face.
 The morn is fair; the Archbishop
 Sits in his cap and stole;
 He looks with joy upon the walls
 Which ravish all his soul.

Here, as he sits, a woman comes Bearing within her arms
 A stone of wondrous beauty wrought,
 A stone of many charms.
 It is the work of her own hands,
 And in it lies her heart—
 "My lord! accept this for thy Church,"
 She says, and would depart.

"Stay, woman! this is rarely fine!"
 He cries in eager haste,
 "No other stone in all that church
 So beautiful, so chaste.
 But how shall workmen place it there,
 Where best one may admire?
 Already finish they their work
 Upon the topmost spire;
 Yet, this must surely have a place
 Where men its beauty see;
 To hide it from the eyes of all,
 I never can agree!
 "Nay, but, my lord," the woman says,
 In voice both soft and low,
 If, as you say, no place is found
 To use it here below,
 Then, let the workmen bear it up
 And place it in the spire,
 If men know nothing of this stone,
 And none be to admire;
 "I know that God above will see,
 His angels will behold,
 The work I've put my heart into,
 With all my love untold.
 And I shall be well satisfied
 To feel, that I have given
 The best I had, not seen of men,
 But seen of God in heaven.

According as the woman wished,
 They carried up the stone,
 It's beauty hidden from the world,
 Far up in tower lone.
 She heeded not the fame thereof
 Might never go abroad,
 But satisfied her work to give
 To angels and to God.
 And there—as flame reveals the fire,
 Burning in the sky,
 Unto this day, Cathedral spire
 Lifteth her work on high.

BOOK NOTICES.

HEREDITARY TRAITS AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Richard A. Proctor. Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., Publishers, 30 Lafayette Place, New York. There is no author who excels Proctor in charm of style, in breadth of scholarship or in the faculty of making even the more arduous problems of science easy for the intelligence of the general reader. He is seen at his best in the admirable collection of essays named above, forming No. 32 of the series of cheap reprints of popular scientific works, known as the Humboldt Library.

In the North American Review for June, Senator W. B. Allison has a paper on "The Currency of the Future," in which he indicates the measures that will have to be taken by Congress for insuring a stable currency after the national debt has been extinguished. "Andover and Creed Subscription," by Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, is a philosophical review of the present state of dogmatic belief in the churches. Hon. George F.

Seward, late minister to China, in an article entitled "Mongolian Immigration" makes an argument against the proposed anti-Chinese legislation. Dr. John W. Dowling, Dean of the New York Homeopathic Medical College, comes to the defence of the Hahnemannian School of medicine, against a recent attack upon its principals and methods. Not the least important paper is one entitled "Has Land a Value?" by Isaac L. Rice, it being a criticism of one of the fundamental postulates of Henry George's political economy.

The June Wide Awake is a very beautiful issue, crowning its series of fine frontispieces with the $600 00 First Prize drawing, "A-Maying," a picture which embodies all the joyousness of childhood, and the bloom of full spring-time. In company with it is a charming poem by Miss Wilkins, who has also another dainty conceit in the number, which she names "Once upon a Time." There are two other full-page drawings in the number, beautiful enough to have served as frontispieces; one of them bears the legend, "The Summer Border goes to Church," the other, "Hunting the Four-leaved Clover." Some excellent picture-making in this issue also comes from the pen of Francis Miller in the comedy, "No Questions Asked," and Miss McDermott in the double-page poem "Maud's Problem," and the airy little frieze, "Summer's Come!" will be sure to get its full share of attention. Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co. Publishers. Boston.

CHARACTER BUILDING.—A volume of short addresses to young men, delivered by the Rev. R. S. Barrett to his congregation in Henderson, Ky., on such subjects as the Value of Time, Reading, Bad Habits, Companions, Religion. They were delivered with force and almost colloquial freedom. They impress one with a sense of the great earnestness of the speaker. Cloth, 50 cts. J. Whittaker, Bible House, New York.

The reputation of The Century Magazine as an art educator is emphasized in the June number by a brilliant frontispiece portrait of Cardinal Newman, engraved by Cole, by the inimitably racy and breezy sea sketches of the opening illustrated paper entitled "Around Cape Horn," and by Mrs. Schuyler van Rensselaer's article on "Wood Engraving and the Century Prizes." The prize engravings accompanying this paper sustain the opinion of the committee that the results of the second year's competition show marked improvement over the competition of 1880, and the Magazine renews the competition for the coming year with an additional prize, in earnest of its purpose to encourage beginners.

A prominent Civil-Service reformer, E. L. Godkin, editor of the "Nation," has a strong paper combating the argument advanced by the advocates of the spoils system that tenure on the Civil Service basis would bring with it "The Danger of an Office-holding Aristocracy." J. Augustus Johnson, argues, from facts that came under his own observation, against the practicability of almost any scheme for "The Colonization of Palestine" by either Hebrews or Gentiles.

Mr. Howells, introduces the hero and heroine of "A Modern Instance" to housekeeping and to an amusing phase of Boston society, Mrs. Burnett sends Bertha, the heroine of "Through One Administration," to the mountains of Virginia, while her husband is absent in the west, looking after his railway interests. The concluding part of Miss Woolson's Roman story, "The Street of the Hyacinth," shows a new type of the American girl abroad.

Eastern Proverbs and Emblems. By Rev. A. Long, member of the Royal Asiatic Society. This is a book crowded with proverbial and emblematic sayings, gathered from the Orient, the accumulated wisdom of centuries. Every page is crammed with seedthoughts, so new, interesting, and instructive that one who begins reading it can scarcely stop until he reaches the end. The material comprising the book was gathered from more than one thousand volumes, some of them very rare works, to be found only in India, St Petersburg, and the great Libraries of Europe. Cloth, pp. 280. $1. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 Dey street, New York.

St. Nicholas for June opens with a charming frontispiece illustration by W. T. Smedley, entitled "Mr. Longfellow and his Boy Visitors," accompanying an account of a visit paid the poet, shortly before his death, by some boys from a Boston school. Lucy Larcom also contributes an article full of reminiscence and pleasant anecdote of Longfellow and his relation with children, interesting to old and young alike.

Jessie McDermott has engrossed and illustrated a quaint five page poem by Eva L. Ogden, entitled "The Maid of Honor," being the subsequent history of the maid whose nose was nipped off by the black-bird in the nursery legend.

A capital story for boys is "The Whirrig Club," a bicycle story, in which the hero rides his machine across a railroad bridge at night to save an express train.

There are nine full-page pictures in the June St. Nicholas, and, in all, seventy-three illustrations.

The Treasury of David.—Vol. II. Psalm 27 to 52, by C. H. Spurgeon. We noticed the first volume of this American reprint of the great work of the famous English preacher. It combines exposition, illustrative extracts from the whole range of literature, homiletical hints and a list of writers upon each psalm. It is a library in itself. pp. 477. Cloth, $2. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 Dey Street, New York.

The Sanitarian for June opens with a paper on The Social Evil and the necessity of legislative measures for its prevention, by A. L. Gihon, M. D., Medical Director U. S. Navy. No one can read this paper without a sigh of sorrow at the extent and terrible ravages of this, the most loathsome of all diseases, and the little which has been done in this country for its suppression. The measures here suggested are worthy the consideration of all thoughtful persons. "The Proceedings of the Sanitary Council of the Mississippi Valley." The Mortality Statistics of the chief cities of the world, comprehending those in the United States of 20,000 inhabitants and upwards, affords a ready means of estimating the relative healthfulness of different States and communities, and the attention given to the preservation of health. A Plain Talk About the Theatre, by the Rev. Herrick Johnson, D.D. F. H. Revell, 148 and 150 Madison street, Chicago. This little book gives in a very strong, incisive style the argument against the theatre, and it is well worthy of being pondered by those who would seek to improve the drama, as well as by those who would make no compromise in the matter.

The Burial of the Dead.—This is a hand book for funeral Services, which, while not so necessary for our clergy as for those who have no order for Christian burial, will be found to have for clergyman and people much that is valuable in the way of suggestion of comfort and consolation for the afflicted, and for reading in the sick room. By Rev. George Duffield, D.D. Cloth. Pp. 150. 75cts. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 Dey street, New York.

Practical Life, by Mrs. Julia M. Wright. The indefiniteness of the title of this work does not imply any indefiniteness in its aim. On the slight thread of a story it introduces and gives wise thoughts on hundreds of matters of personal, family and social importance. It reminds one somewhat of Dr. Holland's Letters to the Titcombs, and Dr. Matthews' Getting on in Life. On physical culture, amusements choice of object in life, courtship, marriage, etiquette, it has some good things to offer. In the appendix are suggestions as to home amusements, and business forms. Pp. 612. Handsomely bound. J. C. McCurdy & Co., St. Louis.

The July Wide Awake will be a brilliant number, containing no less than eleven full-page illustrations. "The Fairy Flag of Skye," a folk-lore story, is said to be the most beautifully illustrated ballad ever prepared for young readers.

The early sale of the first edition of The Pettibone Name, by Margaret Sidney, augurs well for the V. I. F. series, of which it is the introductory volume.

The following are among the contents of the June number of the Homiletic Monthly:—Sermonic: The Resurrection of Christ, the Corner Stone of Christian Faith, by George Lansing Taylor, D. D.; "Christ's Solution of David's Assertion," by Arthur Brooks, D.D.; "The First Beatitude," by Dean Stanley; "The Light in the Clouds," by T. L. Cuyler, D.D.; "The Originality of Christ's Character," by T. A. Hoyt, D.D.; "Building with Hewn Stone," by Joseph Parker, D.D.; "Christ's Desire for his People's Company," by Rev. Archibald G. Brown; "Soul-Saving the Christian's Business," by Charles H. Spurgeon; "Sunday-School Service—The Pyramid of Gizeh," by Joseph Banvard, D.D. Among the more interesting papers are: "Is the Revised Testament Gaining Ground?" by Rev. W. F. Crafts; "Light on Important Texts," by Howard Crosby, D.D. This number is full of suggestive hints to Clergymen. Price, $2.50 per year; single number, 25 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York.

QUERY, are not Saturday and Saturday night picnics virtually held on Sunday when they continue so late and leave such fatigue that the churches are conspicuously empty on the next day, and even the Holy Communion is neglected?

MRS. NORTON has kindly given the Bishop twenty volumes of the sermons of her husband, the late Rev. Dr. John N. Norton, of Kentucky, which has been so much used by lay readers, for the benefit of the diocese.

DIVISION OF THE DIOCESE.

The proposition which came up before the late Convention for the division of the diocese, while it did not long arrest the attention of the body, and was quickly disposed of, will no doubt, and rightly, cause the subject to become more familiar to the people, and induce discussions as clergymen meet, in the parishes and Convocations. In the way that it was brought up, no other result could have been expected than was reached. The division of a diocese in all that it involves, the sundering of old ties, the undertaking of new responsibilities by portions of the Church which had before been comparatively free, the choice of a new bishop; all this is no holiday work. It has long results; it can only be set about when the case is made plain, and the way opens out very clearly.

This year, however, the matter was moved by a delegate from St. Louis, who only made the motion on general principles; who, at least in what he said, did not show on what he based the expectations that the proposal, however desirable, was now feasible. It did not appear that he represented the wishes of those proposed to be set off, or that they had any care for it. Of course the proposition was only for the appointment of a committee to report next year; but even to go thus far, in a body of thoughtful men, required that there should be some assurance of success and result before taking even a preliminary step. It was in the knowledge of the Convention that the assessments from all the larger parishes in the western portion of the diocese were generally and at that moment largely in arrears. This was not good augury for the assumption of heavier burdens. Then when this motion for a committee was immediately moved to be laid on the table by the rector of the largest parish in the city which would be the centre of the new diocese, there was nothing else for the Convention to do but to infer that the motion was inopportune.

The Bishop had already in his address declared his sense of the need of more of Episcopal oversight and presence and organization than he could render in the rapidly growing sections about Kansas City and St. Joseph. In what he said before the vote was taken he declared that he would not interpose any objection so soon as there was any evidence that the division was feasible; that he wished that there were more indications of readiness and disposition to assume the tasks incident to the formation of a new diocese; but that in his judgment the proposition was not at all feasible now. He did not say what might have been said, that the offerings for diocesan missions and other extra parochial work in the main parishes on whom the burdens of a new diocese would necessarily fall, gave no indication now that they could care for any new burdens. With St. Louis still sustaining missions in Kansas City and St. Joseph, it must be evident that the day for division is not yet.

The committee appointed on this subject in 1877, and which reported the next year, affirmed that no division of the diocese was possible or needed then, while it was certain that it must come before many years. They suggested as a line of division to be thought about, the Missouri river from its mouth to that of the Osage, and this to the western boundary of the State. Another line proposed was in a north and south line, near to the line between ranges 18 and 19. This line passes through Putnam, Sullivan, Linn, Chariton, Saline, Cooper, Morgan, Camden, Dallas, Webster, Christian and Taney, dividing the State nearly in half.

Any proposition for division likely to be entertained must start from the western part of the State, and be seen to have the cordial support of laity as well as clergy in the portion proposed to be set off. It would be ungracious for St. Louis to seem to want to throw the weaker portions off. Such proposition, for its good faith, would need to be sustained by the record that the burdens as at present laid, are able to be and are met by the portions desiring to set up for themselves, and that they are able and disposed to care for the missionary interests in the adjacent counties. It would require too, a clear showing as to how a new bishop, if elected, was going to be supported.

This division will not come any too soon for the good of the work and interests involved. It will be time well spent for the West to develop its strength, to heal divisions and go to work. When there can be seen any kind of presumption, it is hardly likely that the Convention or the Bishop will interpose any obstacles. But there have been mistakes in this matter in the past in other dioceses, and it is no use to repeat them here.

CHAPEL IN ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

It need not be wondered at, if even before the debt upon the Hospital can be paid, there should be an earnest effort made to secure at the earliest moment a chapel for the institution. The whole idea of the charity is that it is a religious work. The motive in maintaining it is that it is an indispensable part of the duty of the Church, and the followers of Christ, not only to see that His gospel is preached, but also that, so far as they may, His example of love for the brethren and kindness to the sick and needy, should be followed.

Those who have started the idea of the building, and those who have pressed its urgency all along, have been those who were not filled by a vague humanitarian idea, but those who have had a definite faith in a personal Lord, and a desire that His love should be shown to his suffering ones, so that the opportunities afforded by sickness might be made use of to bring the thoughts of religious duty and the privileges of the Christian means of grace to those who have been careless.

At first it was expected that the subscriptions made would enable a building to be constructed which would include a chapel. Indeed, not to have this, seemed to many to leave out the centre and heart of it all. Many persons directed their gifts solely to this object. There was great regret when it was declared that to make a building with out debt must involve the omission for the present of a chapel. It was acquiesced in with reluctance and impatience. Then it was seen that we were to have a building both with a debt and without a chapel.

To wait for the chapel till the debt is paid, will be to put it off for some time; and the deprivation comes peculiarly hard on those whose whole idea was that hospital care was to be had with religious solaces and ministrations. In this they gave and worked. They are not responsible for the debt. As it is, the chapel furniture of the old building, which was used at the opening service, is, for lack of room, packed away in the garret. There is no place to put it up and to hold services in.

One generous gift could relieve the whole situation now, and give us the chapel. There cannot with some be any rest until it is had. If it does not come, with a gift of $6,000 from some liberal person, it will be thought about, and prayed for, and worked towards by those whose whole notion of the work is that its religious purpose must be expressed by the providing of a place where prayer may be said, and the ordinances of Christian worship enjoyed by the sick. As it is, they cannot but think that God is disparaged by the scant provision made in the otherwise beautiful and seemly building for His honor.

CHILDRENS' COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000, from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

An incident which is referred to in the acknowledgements above for the cot, calls for further mention, as showing the interest which the progress of our work for the establishing of this cot is exciting, and the work and the prayers which are enlisted in its behalf. Early in the spring five little girls in this city, Virginia Scudder, Carrie Tiffany, Annelee Warren, Grace Card and Janie Maffitt proposed that they should organize a sewing society, and then, when they had made enough articles, give a fair. They met at the different houses every Saturday. When other children were out carelessly playing, they were working steadily away at their object. They did not accomplish perhaps any great amount of sewing, but they did keep up a lively interest in the fair. Finally they decided to hold their fair in the yard of Mrs. J. P. Card's residence, but this was changed to the parlors of Mrs. Chouteau Maffitt. Fortunately, for the weather on that day was very inclement. On Saturday, 20th ult., it came off. The attendance was large, and every one present seemed willing to spend money liberally. The articles were sold off so rapidly that by afternoon the visitors could only buy ice cream and strawberries. All the articles but one were given, and nearly everything was sold. It would be impossible to mention the names of all who contributed or were present to buy, but able assistance on the day of the fair was rendered by Mrs. Peters, Miss Berthoud, Miss Pollard and Miss Skinker. But after all, the thought of that which realized such a large sum for the Cot started with the five little girls mentioned above. As in so much of the good will shown to the Hospital always and lately, and in so many ways, the numbers of those not of our Church who work and give is very noteworthy.

MRS. GILLUM

Entered into rest on the 22d of May at the residence of her sister, Mrs. Judge Jackson, Parkersburg, Va., Mrs. Emma Glime Gillum, wife of Capt. H. H. Gillum, St. Louis.

This sorely afflicted child of God was for years the victim of bodily suffering which seemed to baffle the efforts of human skill. Those who loved her most could but stand helplessly by and witness the ravages of insidious, overmastering disease. Blessed was the release which crowned the long, patient endurance. Mrs. Gillum was possessed of a brilliant intellect and of rare virtue. She was a devoted member of the Church, and was one of the earliest "Outside Associates" of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of this city. The interment took place in Parkersburg under the ministrations of the Rev. Robt. A. Gibson.

(In some cases of Christian departure we think less about the life taken away than of the life that is given. This was such a case. It seemed incredible that a minute disorder of the nervous functions which usually minister to happiness, could be the occasion of such intense pain, or that after such long continued and exquisite suffering, a person could so long survive. Gradually and reluctantly for this cause the love of her friends caused them to pray for a merciful release, rather than a prolongation of life accompanied with such pain. She did her duty well in life so long as she had the strength; and we may not doubt the lessons taught by her patience in suffering were as valuable a legacy and result as anything which had been done before.—C. F. R.)

THE services at the Orphans' Home are always very enjoyable, but on June 1st it was unusually so, the occasion being the baptism of fifteen children, by Rev. Mr. Reed. They entered the chapel in procession, singing a lovely hymn, and each child was the perfect picture of neatness. The chaplain complimented the managers very highly on the excellent management of the Home, and said, "the Home was really what its name implied; it was a home, not an asylum, and that he had never visited any where the liberties of a Home with the restraints of an institution were more happily combined." Several of the managers stood as sponsors for the children; 69 members of the Home were in the chapel, and among the managers were Mrs. W. Bascome, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. T. McLean, Mrs. O'Dell, Mrs. H. Campbell, Mrs. Lewis, Mrs. Wainwright, Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Barlow, Mrs. Woodward, Mrs. DeForest, Mrs. Trowbridge, Mrs. Gantt, Mrs. Blaisdell.

THE LATE CONVENTION.

Editor Church News:

To-day is a rainy day. I have just finished reading the service at the house of one of my parishioners, the Rev. Mr. Bulkley, to whom the Church in this county owes much, for his work done in times before the war and subsequently. Though advanced in years, he often takes part in the services with me, as well as preaching occasionally.

I sat down to write a word about our Convention, just over. It was a pleasant thing. I do not think, for the thirteen years I have been in the diocese I was ever in a session—and I have attended all—where there was more brotherly love, more cordial feeling. It was like the soldiers of a scattered army chatting together in camp; like the council of men all true and loyal to the great cause engaging them in common; willing to allow some differences, when love for the One set over them, and towards one another, was the main sentiment. How a few words with the true ring in them, from the lips of one who holds to a certain way which to his criticising brother may seem a little off, overcomes the feeling of difference. Whether the speaker wears the clerical coat or the dress of the business man, if God's charity is in his voice, and God's love is in his eye, and he shows that he is willing to deny himself for the spread of the kingdom, and to work for its upbuilding, priest or layman, the love and charity and love appearing, that is about all we care to be assured of.

The laity see a great many changes among the clergy. But clergymen who abide in the land see, from year to year, certain gray heads, and men whose hair is not yet gray, always at the council. They shake hands with them cordially. Personal friendship begins. The brotherhood of the Church gets to be real—so real that these men, met once in the year, if a sorrow or misfortune touches them, it touches the heart of the one who is in the interior; if prosperity comes, the glad feeling gets them too. When the Convention breaks up, and the hands touch again, there is a pledge of friendship in the touch. "We love the Church as we love Him who planted it;" this sentiment is what brings us together, our hands and our hearts. Mr. Reed's good sermon, his cheering, strengthening words; the solemn ordination of one whose name is honored in our diocese; the words of good men (saving your correspondent) at work in the diocese, beginning with the devoted Chesnut and ending with the true Talbot.

Mr. Bett's eloquent painting of the life that is given to God when Orders are taken in the Church; Mr. Franklin's admirable words at the Sunday school meeting, and the large-hearted rector of the Holy Communion, whose loving-kindness is God's gift to him—all was very good, and must have so seemed to the Bishop, before whom we were gathered, and who has the care of the Church in Missouri.

It is a great help to go down to St. Louis, sojourn there for two or three days, and get home and think of it all, and try for another twelve months—God in His might and goodness helping—to carry out, as frail men with God's grace may do, the spirit of it all.

May God bless us all, join us in love, and build us up.

MISSIONARY.

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 20, 1882.

MR. EDITOR:—The ladies of Trinity Church, Hannibal, raised over $600 by their own efforts and sacrifices during Lent in work. They got about $600 in valid pledges from the people, and the vestry, (six of them) paid $205, balance due their Rector last Easter—the whole debt due being $1,561, till very lately, has been paid off, and the parish is free of debt, which never before has been the case. MISCELLANY,

One evening last Christmas tide a gentleman was strolling along a street in Toronto with apparently no object in view but to pass the time. His attention was attracted by the remark of a little girl to a companion in front of a fruit stand: "I wish I had an orange for ma." The gentleman saw that the children, though poorly dressed, were clean and neat, and calling them into a store he loaded them with fruit and candies. "What's your name?" asked one of the girls. "Why do you want to know?" queried the gentleman. "I want to pray for you," was the reply. The gentleman turned to leave, scarce daring to speak, when the little one added: "Well, it don't matter, I suppose. God will know you, anyhow."

Pew-holders in fashionable churches will do well to consider this little anecdote: "Some thirty years ago Mr. Green, an amiable Englishman, seeing a rather shabby old man looking for a seat in church, opened his pew door, beckoned to him and placed him in a comfortable corner, with prayer and hymn books. The old gentleman, who carefully noted the name in these latter, expressed his thanks warmly at the close of the services. Time had effaced the incident from Mr. Green's recollection, when he one day received an intimation that by the death of a gentleman named Wilkinson he had become entitled to $35,000 a year. Mr. Wilkinson was a solitary old man without relatives. Green's act prepossessed him in his favor; he inquired about him, and found that he bore the highest character.

A gentleman asked Mr. Spurgeon how he found time to prepare so many sermons, "O," said he, "I get them of everybody I meet. I will squeeze one out of you if you are not careful."

Said his prudent friend: "Why, $3 for a carriage is extravagance. Go in a horse-car or take a herdic." And the extravagant man replied: "I can't. You see the lady I'm going to take isn't my wife."

"I remember," said Miss Munro, "a visit I paid to a graveyard in the south of England, and I was much struck with an epitaph on a tombstone: 'She never banged the door.'"

Rev. Dr. Broadus, an old Baptist parson, famous in Virginia, once visited a plantation where the darkey who met him at the gate asked him which barn he would have his horse put in.

"Have you two barns?" asked the doctor. "Yes, sah," replied the darkey; "dar's de ole barn, and Mass's Whales has jes build a new one."

"Where do you usually put the horses of the clergymen who comes to see your master?"

"Well sah, if dey's Methodis's or Baptist's we gen'ally put 'em in de old barn, but if dey's Piscopals we puts em in the new one."

"Well Bob, you can put my horse in the new barn, I'm a Baptist, but my horse is an Episcopalian."

It was a man in Maine who said, 'It's working so little between meals that is killing me.' It is working so little between church suppers, and vacations, and side shows that is killing many of the churches. The fashionable church of to-day practically takes a nine months' vacation from April 1 to January 1, when for three months religious activity is supposed to be in order. Thoroughly vigorous church work for the salvation of men usually closes with the end of Lent, and Easter inaugurates the period of renewed festivities, followed by house-cleaning, moving, spring fashions, and preparations for the summer vacation. Fashion has also prolonged the summer vacation of churches from one month to three. July, August, and September are practically zeros in church life. In October, November, and December, if efforts are proposed, it is often objected: 'We can't do anything until after the fair and the holidays, and then we must have some entertainments to raise money, and the young people are having so many parties just now. Let us wait until Lent.' So the three months to the end of the year are consecrated to moral bric-a-brac. After the nine months vacation a little work is put in, often, even then, on half-time with entertainments, and sociables, and parties."

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT.

The Unusual Experience of a Prominent Man Made Public.

The following article, from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature, and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle: SIX:—My motives for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that 10-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication.

On the first day of June 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a dull, and at times neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from Malaria and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger usually brings a person to his senses even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the Kidneys in its last stages.

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation, by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and a graduate of the schools, I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitude, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the first day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for one in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music of this city stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I had been saved. My improvement was constant from that time and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I had re-investigated the subject of Kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. This sounds like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's Disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the Kidneys or their vicinity,) but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, and quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of Kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me known as I am throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted but I make the foregoing statements based upon facts which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

ALEXANDER HAMILTON'S CONVERSION.

The recent interesting reminiscence given in the New York Observer of the funeral of Hamilton by the venerable Dr. Wickham revives the remarkable conversion of Hamilton at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., when a young man practicing law there. The account, in Hamilton's own words, is. He says: "I had been spending the evening with several noted infidels. I had indulged in remarks much to the disadvantage of Christians and disparagement of their religion. I had gone further than ever before in this way. Coming home I stood late at night on my door step waiting for my servant. In this moment of stillness my thoughts returned to what I had said, and then something seemed to say, 'And what if the Christian religion be true after all?' The thought filled me with alarm. I was conscious I had examined Christianity even with less attention than a small retaining fee requires in civil cases. In my profession I hold myself bound to make up my mind according to the laws of evidence; and shall nothing of this sort be done in that that involves the fate of a man's immortal being? Then everything is at stake. Shall I bargain all without inquiry? Will fully blinding my eyes, shall I laugh at that, which, if true, will laugh me to scorn in the day of Judgment? These questions did not allow me to sleep quietly. In the morning I sent for such books as treated on the evidences of Christianity. I read them, and the result is, I believe the religion of Christians to be the truth, that Jesus is the Son of God, that he made atonement for our sins by his death and that he rose for our justification."

This is similar to the experience of Sir Isaac Newton, the great astronomer. He set out in life a clamorous infidel, but on a nice examination of Christianity he was convinced and hopefully converted. Late in life he said to a companion, who avowed infidel sentiments, "My friend, I am always glad to hear you when you speak about astronomy or other parts of mathematics, because that it a subject you have studied and well understand; but you should not talk of Christianity, for you have not studied it. I have, and am certain that you know nothing of the matter."

"I know men," said Napoleon at St. Helena, "and I tell you that Christ is not a man. The religion of Christ is a mystery which subsists by its own force and proceeds from a mind that is not a human mind."

Five weeks before his death, Daniel Webster wrote, 'My heart has always assured me and reassured me that the gospel of Christ must be a divine reality. The Sermon on the Mount cannot be a mere human production. This belief enters into the very depths of my consciousness; the whole history of man proves it.'

The confessions of confessedly great minds at once dissipate that popular delusion, that learning is opposed to the Bible. Here we have the greatest intellects of three great nations—France, England and America, declaring that Christianity must be true. It enters into the very depths of their consciences.

THERE'S A VIRTUE IN WHISTLING.—An old farmer once said he would not have a hired man on his farm who did not habitually whistle. He always hired whistlers. Said he never knew a whistling laborer to find fault with his food, or complain of any little extra work he was asked to perform. Such a man was generally kind to children and animals in his care. He would whistle a chilled land into warmth and life, and would bring his hat full of eggs from the barn without breaking one of them. He found such a man more careful about closing gates, putting up bars, and seeing that the nuts on his plow were all properly tightened before he took it into the field. He never knew a whistling hired man to beat or kick a cow or to drive her on a run into a stable. He had noticed that the sheep he fed in the yard or shed he gathered around him as he whistled, without fear. He had never employed a whistler who was not thoughtful and economical.—[Why not add this as a test in the choice of a Rector?]

BEATTY'S PIPE TOP BEETHOVEN ORGAN

Suitable for the Parlor, Chapel, Lodge, Church or Sabbath School.

This beautiful Pipe Top Organ is made from seasoned Black Walnut. It will stand the test of any climate. It is elegantly proportioned, the pipes are illuminated with brilliant colors lined with gold, ornately carved. The case has a rubbed varnish finish, will not take the dirt or dust. It is called 'BEETHOVEN' as its musical effects are the most wonderful yet produced at any price, hence it is named after the World's greatest composer.

For the purpose of placing this Pipe Top Organ upon the market without delay, so that all may see and acquaint themselves with its merits, I have fixed the price for the present at ONLY which includes a solid walnut Organ Bench, Music and Book.

27 STOPS.

(1) Cello, 8 feet tone, (2) Melodia, (3) Clarabella, (4) Manual Sub-Bass, 16 feet tone, (5) Bourdon, 16 feet tone, (6) Saxophone, 8 ft. tone, (7) Viola di Gamba, 8 ft. tone, (8) Diapason, 8 ft. tone, (9) Viola Dolce, 4 ft. tone, (10) Grand Expression, 8 ft. tone, (11) French Horn, 8 ft. tone, (12) Harp Zöllan, (13) Vox Humana, Tremulant, (14) Echo, 8 ft. tone, (15) Dulciana, 8 ft. tone, (16) Clarinet, 4 ft. tone, (17) Voix Celeste, 8 ft. tone, (18) Violina, 4 ft. tone, (19) Vox Jubilante, 8 and 4 feet tone, (20) Flauto, 2 ft. tone, (21) Coupler Harmonique, (22) Orchestral Forte, (23) Grand Organ Knee Stop, (24) Right Knee Stop, (25) Automatic Valve Stop, (26) Right B. Flex Damper, (27) Left Duplex Damper. With grand and thrilling accessory and combination effects.

10 Sets Reeds.

This Organ contains 10 full sets GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, arranged on a new and patented plan surpassing all previous attempts at organ building. It has Upright Bellows, with 3 sections, giving an increase of power over the usual style of bellows made by other manufacturers. Fitted with Steel Springs, Music Pocket, Sliding Fall with Lock (nickel plated), Elegant Lamp Stands, Nickel-Plated Foot-plates on pedals which never rust or wear, besides 2 Knee Swells, Handles and Rollers for moving. With each Organ hereafter an elegant solid Organ Bench will be sent, free of charge. This is far superior to the ordinary stool for Organ use and is more ornamental, useful, Order direct from this advertisement. It has been improved and perfected since first invented, and those who want music and not furniture, (although this case is very handsome), should order this Organ.

Visitors Are Always Welcome.—A Free Coach with polite attendants, meets all trains. Five dollars ($5) allowed to pay your traveling expenses if you buy.

THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

NO ONE TO BLAME.

One of the most depressing things which a clergyman has to meet with is the financial carelessness of his congregation. He begins his work with a definite assurance as to what he is to receive, and when he is to have it. This he takes, it is based upon the sufficient guarantees of the congregation. He knows that while there will be no margin with such a salary, he can yet live on it, if it is fully and promptly paid. He makes his own engagements accordingly.

It all goes well for some months. Then the treasurer is behind some days, has to be called on, and does not pay in full. He does not catch up, but the shortage increases. Then it perhaps appears that the subscriptions or rents did not from the first quite cover the amount which had been pledged, but it was hoped that new ones coming in would make this good. Instead of this persons have removed, and their amounts are lost. The treasurer says that he is busy, and cannot give the time and get pledges from the new people. Persons should come to him with the money. He says he has asked certain persons until he is tired, and has been put off. Some have lost their first zeal; they did not intend to give always, only to give the thing a start. Some take offence at certain in the congregation, or at the minister. Others do not like the music.

At any rate, from all this the minister suffers. The names of a number of clergymen at this moment in this diocese could be put to all this. He does not want to think that there is any bad faith in the matter. He does not desire to believe that all this was only allowed to appear when he was committed to the work, and when he was at a disadvantage, and could not leave without cost. But he suffers none the less. He cannot parade his want. He must appear decently. He wants to be honest and pay his debts.

But he passes every day, and must continue his relations with those who, having the ability, are deliberately refusing to do anything for him, and who, so far as they know, are condemning him to shame and want. He can hardly restrain his indignation and loathing at such conduct. He knows that they induced him to come, made certain definite engagements, as binding as any at the bank, and that they yet are indifferently subjecting him to shame and distress. Can one wonder that health and the quality of a man's work suffer from this?

All this is not imagination. It is all true. It comes from individual shortcoming and neglect. Each one is back, and each one thus is responsible for the sin and anguish. Ought this to continue for a day? Will not each one declare, and act on it, that it shall stop now? That he will pay now what he owes.

CHURCH WORK IN MINNESOTA.

A visit of ten days recently in Minnesota was made more interesting by the comparison of the condition of Church life and work there and here. The climate is more bracing than ours, the winters much longer, the summers not so exhausting. If there is any pause in Church work, it is in the winter rather than in the summer. The people are from the Northern States, many from New England; and there is a very large Scandinavian element in all the towns. A number of clergymen and many people have come there to live for the benefit of their health.

Bishop Whipple has been peculiarly successful in developing Eastern generosity on behalf of the Indians, and his institutions at Faribault, where he lives. It is a pretty New England town of 6,000 people, and Congregationalism is dominant. Some friends erected for the Bishop his own tasteful residence. Opposite is the stone cathedral, which cost $70,000. On the next block, and occupying the entire square, is the present site of St. Mary's school for girls, in which the Bishop used to live. It is rambling, and crowded with over 100 girls from long distances, and is doing a noble work.

On a bluff overlooking the town, to the north is Shattuck school for boys. It has five buildings of brick and stone, finely equipped, and on a domain of 100 acres. There are over 100 boys, who dress in uniform, and have a daily military drill. In a fine gymnasium, on the second floor, is a handsome large armory, where in wet weather the boys can drill. The Shumway chapel, built by a lady of Chicago, as a memorial to her husband, is perfectly adapted for the school. It is of the finest work, and cost over $50,000. The glass and many carvings and brasses were made abroad. Here the boys assemble daily, and the Bishop frequently addresses them.

Next south on the bluff is a large State institution for the blind; still further south, and nearly a mile from Shattuck, is the new St. Mary's school, now building, 240 feet long and 100 feet deep, and to cost $80,000. It is castellated and presents a fine appearance from the town. It will accommodate 150 boarders. Both this school and Shattuck have a yearly profit now, the latter four or five thousand dollars.

Still further south, with another State institution for the blind intervening, is Seabury Hall for divinity students, where on a plateau of 20 acres, is a large, new, tasteful stone building, and an additional professor's house. There are four professors and 25 or more students, four from this diocese. There has been accumulated also an endowment fund of nearly $80,000, the income of which pays the professors' salaries, and the receipts by the daily mail suffice for the living expenses of the warden and students.

Mr. Walter, editor of the London Times, was recently in this country, and travelled throughout the West and to California. On his return to Philadelphia, he was asked what it was in the West which struck him the most, he said, "Bishop Whipple's schools at Faribault."

Here is an accumulation of property, gotten in less than 20 years, worth at least $400,000, out of debt, five sixths of which came from without the diocese. It is a monument of patient, enthusiastic industry. Money was entrusted, because it was seen to be wisely used, and the Bishop's burning zeal could not be withstood.

The value of the divinity school is seen in many ways, but largely in this, that it has supplied the diocese with a succession of young clergymen, many of them born on the soil and identified with the State, who gave their work at small salaries for building up the Church in even the lesser towns. In consequence of this and gifts from abroad, churches abound more frequently than with us, and, from persistent and longer continued clerical incumbences, there are many more parsonages. Interested in the State, and knowing no other diocese, clergymen stay longer, and often on very small salaries.

These salaries are often helped out by the schools at Faribault, at which missionaries are able to place their children, sometimes on free scholarships, sometimes at reduced rates. This kindly care the more attaches them to the diocese.

The Misses Edwards, of the well-known Church school for girls in New Haven, long ago gave to Dr. James Lloyd Breck the means with which he bought the nucleus of the Church property in Fairbault, and also a number of acres on the edge of the then small town of St. Paul. This last belongs to their Episcopal Fund. It has been leased and wisely administered; a part has been recently sold. It is now worth $75,000, which goes far to relieve the assessment, and meet the expenses of the diocese. It is interesting to note how this assessment is laid. It is reckoned at fifty cents for each communicant, and ten per cent on the annual income of the parishes, after first deducting $1,000. This puts, in the first place, the care of the Bishop specially upon the communicants, and it furnishes a measure of relief to the poorer parishes, by exempting from tax the salary of their clergyman.

They raise there a much larger amount for diocesan missions, all things considered, than we do; $4,500 on an average, to our scant $5,000, and they do it by assessment for the purpose laid at Convention. This assessment in amount is larger than that laid for the Bishop salary. It is a matter of honor promptly and fully paid. This enables the diocese to have a larger force of missionaries than we have. The usual stipend is $150.

There is no wastage of power in the diocese over ritualism or any other petty matters. The Church is presented lovingly with honest directness, as the divinely constituted home for all God's faithful children. The Bishop in his broken health needs relief, and the Convention will no doubt this year consider it. Opinions differ as to whether this should come in the way of an assistant or by a division of the diocese. The Bishop prefers the former course; but action in the one direction or the other will no doubt soon be had.

DIRECTLY the Bishop returns to the city from his visitations the stream of persons sets in who come to him for relief, oftentimes sent to him by persons down town. Probably the like applications are made when he is out of town. For many of them he has deep sympathy, and does as a Christian man what he can for their help. But will those to whom this notice comes kindly remember that the Bishop from one end of the year to the other does not receive one penny from any source as money to be distributed in alms. The minister of the poorest congregation in the diocese is in this respect more able than he is. He does not complain of this situation. But he asks that persons instead of sending to others will themselves give such help as they can, and not send to the Bishop, who has at his disposal no parochial agency to enquire into the merits of the case, nor any means with which to give help. A sufficient number from all quarters of the country come to his door without being sent.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The consecration of the Church of the Advent in this city, has, (at the request of its minister) been postponed until after the summer. In the meantime it is hoped that means may be in hand for putting a new roof on it, which it greatly needs, as well as other internal improvements, which were postponed while the consideration of the debt was so urgent.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows:

Blackburn, 3; Marshall, 2, St. Mary's, First Ward, Kansas City, 1; Springfield, 8; Emanuel Church, St. Louis County, 8. He also visited the following places where there were no persons presented for confirmation: Clarksville, Prairieville, Miami, Norborne, Weston, Liberty, Kirksville, Glenwood, Canton.

—Rev. J. N. Chestnutt preached to a large congregation at the Episcopal Chapel last (Whitsunday) Sunday morning and evening. Mr. Chestnutt was at one time rector of the Chapel and such was the regard of his congregation then that the mere announcement of a sermon from him at the Chapel has always been sufficient to bring them together.—[St. Charles Cosmos.]

—Christ Church, St. Louis, is hereafter to have the Holy Communion every Sunday.

—The Rev. Mr. Hahn of Kansas City, has taken duty in the Diocese of Quincy.

—The Rev. Mr. Mann, of Kansas City, will be absent from his parish on his wedding trip until the first Sunday in August. His duties have been taken during his absence by the Rev. Mr. Talbot for two Sundays, and Messrs. Leonard of Atchison, Bennett of Wyandotte, and Wells of Kansas City, each one Sunday. Mr. Mann's salary has been increased to $2,500 a year, a sign of the marked prosperity of his parish.

—The Rev. Mr. Grantham has gone to Florida instead of Tennessee, and has found work, he writes, of the only kind he ought ever to have taken, where he will get his living from the soil, and not be dependent on the Church.

—The Lawn Party at the Fair Grounds for the benefit of St. Luke's Hospital which, last year, succeeded so notably, suffered in its repetition this year on account of the threatening condition of the weather. The ladies, under the direction of Mrs. Robertson, labored for weeks at the preparations; the grounds, under the direction of Mr. J. W. Branch, were beautifully illuminated; the amusement committee, with W. C. McCreery and Jas. F. Aglar at the head, with infantry and artillery display, and bicycle riding, did its duty efficiently; the gates, under the charge of Messrs. Triplett, Burchard, and others of the old Board of Directors, let in over 1,000 persons. Those in charge of the refreshments, Mrs. Branch, Mrs. Kretschmar, Mrs. Edwin Harrison, Mrs. Steadman, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Hudson, Mrs. Peters, Mrs. John W. Harrison, Mrs. Amelung, Mrs. Linley, and many others who could not be told, did their toilsome work most faithfully. The net receipts, it is hoped, will reach $600. It was proposed to repeat it on the Tuesday evening following, but the heavy rains on that day effectually stopped all such purpose.

—A meeting of the Bishops who are Trustees of Racine College, was held at the Grand Pacific Hotel in Chicago on the 27th ult., to take steps looking to filling the vacancy caused by the resignation by the Rev. Dr. Parker of the Wardenship of the College. The Bishops are entitled to nominate to the Trustees a person for the position. There were present Bishops Clarke, Robertson, Welles, Gillespie and Burgess. They took steps, and appointed committees of correspondence, and separated to meet Sept. 6, in the same place, with the view of agreeing upon a name to be presented to the Trustees at a meeting to be held later in the month.

—The renewed rumor comes to us that one of the Rectors of Kansas City is being thought about for the Rectorship of St. James' Church, Chicago, in succession of Dr. Courtney; and has also been mentioned for the Wardenship of Racine and a professorship at Fairbault.

—In the July number of The Spirit of Missions we notice with regret that in not one of the departments of missionary work reported is there an acknowledgment of not a single offering during the previous month from the Diocese of Missouri. This ought not to be so.

—The defalcation at the Third National Bank comes home to many persons who have an interest in the institution. It is felt by the Children's Cot of St. Luke's Hospital, as it fails to get its usual first of July dividend on its ten shares of stock there.

—The Governor has appointed Bishop Robertson and Dr. Elliott of Washington University, as delegates to represent the State of Missouri at the ninth annual session of the National Conference of Charities and Corrections, to be held at Madison, Wis., from the 7th to the 12th prox. Many publicists will be present from all parts of the country.

—We find the following notice in The Southern Churchman, with reference to our Sisterhood and its work. It is not too strong a tribute to worthy work:

The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd have, in their work in St. Luke's Hospital and in the school, endeared themselves to the Church of Missouri, particularly of St. Louis. They are a noble band of women, and are a blessing to the Diocese. At first, a person unaccustomed to their dress, would be prejudiced against them; but when they are known, the most extreme Low Churchman would heartily endorse them. Dignified without affectation, combining high culture with real simplicity, thinking more of their work than of themselves, they are models for young ladies in their lives, as well as excellent teachers in the schoolroom. This true value in educational life is appreciated by all the denominations of our community. The school is largely, in its day scholars, made up of children whose parents are not Church people.

—The ladies of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Montgomery City, Mo., solicit orders for altar cloths, frontlets, stoles, and other Church work, to pay for repairing the church windows broken by a hail storm. Reference, the Bishop. Address Mrs. Francis H. Sharp, Montgomery City, Mo. I can also refer to the church at Carrollton, Ill., as I made a cloth for that church at Easter.

—At DeVeaux College, Suspension Bridge, the first prize recently for prize declamations was awarded to Jas. F. Runcie, the Rector of St. Joseph, who recited the address of "Spartacus to the Gladiators," with much manly earnestness, and with marked clearness and distinctness of enunciation.

—The proposition for conciliation in the Kansas City parishes, referred to in another column, has been accepted in parish meeting by St. Mary's, First Ward. It has not yet come before St. Mary's parish. The amount of money to be paid was that which was named by the representatives of St. Mary's Church, who were gentlemen who had been responsibly connected with that parish for many years.

—In the Church of the Holy Communion, in this city, on Friday, 7th inst., the Bishop advanced to the priesthood the Rev. Gardiner C. Tucker, minister of Christ Church, Collinsville. He was presented by the Rev. Mr. Robert, the Rector, who, with the Rev. Drs. Schuyler, Gierlow and Theo. DeForest joined with the Bishop in the laying on of hands. The Rev. Mr. Reed was also present. The Bishop preached the sermon and celebrated the Holy Communion.

—The inside shutters to the Hospital came to $400, and this and the general furnishing have been paid for by the lawn party a year ago. The net results of this year's fete come to $600 clear, which the ladies hold for the Chapel Fund. There is a gratifying increase in the number of annual subscribers.

—The Rev. Thos. H. Gordon has taken out letters of transfer to the Diocese of Springfield.

—The Rev. Cameron Mann, of Kansas City, has been elected to the chaplaincy of Hobart College, Geneva, New York, of which he is an alumnus. We hope that he may not go.

—The Rev. Mr. Curtis, who has been spending three or four weeks in Cheboygan, Michigan, has declined the call to the parish there, and remains in Louisiana. For which we are glad.

--The Ladies of St. George's Church, who gave a boat excursion on the Chas. P. Choteau, June 3, were quite successful, having realized $560.

THE SCHOOL OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD.

The closing exercises of the year took place on Monday evening, 19th ult. The evening was delightfully cool, and the numbers in attendance, as usual, crowded all the rooms to suffocation. The Bishop had a seat on the platform; the Rev. Mr. Wright said the collects. The Rev. Messrs. Betts, Reed and Silvester also were present. The address was delivered by Mr. Reed. It was a bright and humorous exposition of the past and present condition of woman, of her power and capacity as an educator, and a strong eulogy of the work results of the Sisters' School, which was founded upon an observation of years. He addressed some very thoughtful words to the class going forth. We hope that we may be able to present some extracts from the address.

The music throughout was excellent, especially the duet by Misses Mason and Scheel, the solo by Miss Edgerton, and the duet by little Linda and Flora Hofman. The salutatory on Faces, was read by Miss Wickham, and the valedictory, by Miss Edgerton, was on Music and Song. The award of certificates to the Primary Class of Honor were to Virginia M. Conn, Alice Fichtenkam, Felicia A. Judson, Virginia Ritchie Reed, and Felicia G. Steger. The medal in the Primary Class of Honor was given to Ella Cochran. Of Rachel Rothschild, Susie Van Duzer, Easton Gibson and Roy Silvester, it was stated that they only failed of being admitted into the Primary Class of Honor because they had not been present for the

Among the older scholars honorable mention for diligence was made of Eva Becker, Beulah Boogher, Effie Lansden, Annie Harrison, Flora Hofman, Bessie Ryder, Gertrude Van Duzer, Linda Hofman, Daisy Rollins, Ruth McCune, Alice Percival, Annie Kenrick, Addie Parker, Louise Taylor, Mamie Winn, Helene Abend, Julia Case and Annie Scott. For scholarship honorable mention was made of Lizzie Simpson, Louise Whittemore, Hattie Ovenshine, Lillie Schabel and Clara Steinwender. For deportment honorable mention was made of Eva Becker, Beulah Boogher, Effie Lansden, Flora Hofman, Jennie Mead, Gertrude Van Duzer, Linda Hofman, Emma Hoppe, Ruth McCune, Alice Percival, Daisy Rollins, Lizzie Simpson, Delia Case, Addie Parker, Louise Taylor, Mamie Winn, Helene Abend, Julia Case, Annie Scott, Hattie Ovenshine, and Lillie Schabel. Emily Bryan retained her standing in the Class of Honor. Certificates of admission to the Class of Honor proper were given to Lillian Edgerton, Minnie P. Mason and Lucy C. Wickham. Class of Honor silver medals were given to Goula Scheel and Mary H. Sharpe.

Diplomas of graduation were given with an address by the Bishop, to Lillian Edgerton, Minnie P. Mason, Lucy C. Wickham and Clara E. Steinwender. The Bishop's gold medal was awarded to Lucy C. Wickham, the Bishop stating that the marks attained by Minnie P. Mason were nearly equal to those secured by the successful contestant.

The flowers were distributed after the blessing. The Bishop stated that the matter of building the school, which had been necessarily postponed this year, was still to be pressed.

The year that closed thus has been the most successful in the history of the School. The catalogue shows over one hundred scholars present during the year, representing eleven states and territories. The next school year begins September 13th. All inquiries should be made to Sister Catharine, No. 2029 Park avenue.

"When my horses had what was called lung fever, last spring, I gave Simmons Liver Regulator (liquid) in one ounce doses, twice a day. They all recovered speedily. E. T. MICHENER,

ST. LOUIS CHURCHES AND CLERGYMEN IN SUMMER.

The Bishop's family have just left for Madison, where they will remain until the first of September. The Bishop is not yet through with the visitation of the northern half of the diocese, which he began on the first of April, and has been constantly at ever since. He goes to Madison at the last of this month, returning to the diocese for a time in August.

The night service in Christ church is discontinued. The Rev. Mr. Silvester remains in town, and the Rev. Dr. Schuyler hopes to get away after the fourth Sunday in this month.

St. George's was closed after the first Sunday in this month. Dr. and Mrs. Fulton are at Lakeview, near Milwaukee.

The Holy Communion remains open, with services morning and night, and the Rev. Mr. Robert will not leave town.

The Rev. Mr. Betts has been away for a fortnight in Tennessee, holding a mission, but will not leave the city for any length of time during the summer.

The Rev. Dr. Ingraham is still in Florida, where he has been for some weeks. Mrs. Ingraham has been very ill. The services at Grace church are kept up by the Rev. Mr. Phelps.

The Rev. Mr. Reed and family have just left for Green Bay, Wis., to return the first of September. Mount Calvary will open for service part of the time.

Mrs. Wright has been very ill, and left for Pennsylvania about a month ago. The Rev. Mr. Wright was to leave for the East at about this time.

The Rev. Mr. Newton, who has been called to the Good Shepherd, will officiate there on Sunday, 16th inst., and for some weeks after. He has not yet decided as to whether he can accept the call.

The Rev. Dr. Berkley makes a visit during the summer to Kentucky.

The Rev. Mr. Mason is in Baltimore, endeavoring to secure help for the building of his church.

The Rev. Mr. Corbyn has spent two weeks in Boonville, and is now in Anamosa, Iowa.

The other clergymen, so far as we are informed, will not be away from the city.

CANTON.

The first move towards securing a church at Canton, the largest town in Lewis county, in the northeast part of the diocese, was had in 1868, when the Rev. Dr. Corbyn and Messrs. Scheetz and Hopkins visited it and held services several times. The Rev. Mr. Martin, formerly a Methodist minister, and who while such fifteen years before had started the hymn at the service for the laying of the corner stone of Trinity church, Hannibal, had been ordained, and for a short time lived there, and had charge of the mission. Two lots were bought and partly paid for. Then for years ensued a lull; services were only held occasionally, and there was no ability to build.

Two years ago, however, Mr. J. W. Branch, of this city, at the suggestion of the Rev. Mr. Scheetz, who had taken great interest in the work, offered to give $300 to meet a corresponding amount given in the place for a church. The lots, which in the course of years had proved not to be in the best place, was sold, and with the proceeds another was bought, and enough left over to pay the debt, and leave somewhat toward the building. The church, 42 by 22 feet, was erected after plans drawn by Mr. Scheetz, and finished with stained glass windows and pews, for $801. It is very strongly built, and looks churchly.

The service for consecration was fixed for Sunday, 25th ult. Mr. Scheetz, much to every one's pleasure, was able to be present, and rejoice with his old friends in the consummation of their desires. Hon. S. B. Gibson, in the name of the congregation, read the request for consecration, and also a certificate from the Secretary of the Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese, that a warrant deed had been made to the Trustees of that Fund for the land on which the church stands, in trust for St. Peter's church. The Rev. Mr.

Scheetz read the sentence of consecration, and the Bishop preached.

It is hoped that an effectual effort will now be made by the people to secure the means by which services may be had in their now completed and consecrated building. The town is a flourishing one of about 2500 inhabitants.

The following is another account of the service from the local paper:

The Bishop had been detained twenty-four hours twenty miles away by the washing away of the railroad track.

Last Sunday was a proud day for the little band of Episcopalians of Canton and vicinity. They were at home. Their neat little house of worship on Sixth street between Bland and White was occupied for the first time, and divine service was held in the first church of that faith ever erected in Lewis county. There has been an organization here for a number of years, but they have been compelled to use the houses of other denominations just as they could get them, and have felt inconvenience of such a position. Therefore, we can say they were proud last Sunday when they entered a house of their own to offer up thanks to the throne of Grace for the mercies bestowed. At 11 o'clock Rev. B. F. Scheetz began the regular morning service before a large though not crowded congregation, which was attentively responded and listened to by the audience. Bishop Robertson arrived shortly after on the Gem City, and drove immediately to the church. He soon took his position at the sacred desk, and preached a most eloquent discourse from St. Luke, 8th chapter and 45th verse. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon the sacred rite of consecration of the building to the worship of Almighty God took place, according to the ritual, and was a most impressive ceremony. Bishop Robertson again preached an elegant sermon, in the course of which he gave a brief review of the tenets of their faith, congratulating the little band of believers here on their earnestness and activity in securing so complete and comfortable a house of worship, and exhorting them to hold fast to the faith within them and push forward to the final reward of the saints.

The church will be known as the St. Peter's Episcopal church, and efforts are being made to have regular services once or twice a month. The building is a frame, of Gothic architecture, has stained glass windows, and although not expensive or gaudy, it is unique and attractive. Its cost, without the ground, was about $600, every cent of which is paid, this being necessary before the dedication could take place.

JOPLIN.

EDITOR CHURCH NEWS:—One year ago last Christmas, the Joplin people, (with a few of the old parishioners of Carthage) made the Rev. Mr. Wall a present of seventy five dollars to buy a cow. This spring the cow was shot by some tramps while at pasture on the prairie. Again the Joplin Church ladies were about to replace the excellent cow to their faithful clergyman; but the small pox broke out in the city, and defeated for the time their intention. But that noble, generous, and devout Christian lady, Mrs. L. C. Lane, of Smithfield, Jasper Co., Mo., came to town, and having learned the above facts from one of the Church ladies, immediately invited the Rev. Mr. Wall to come and pick from her choice herd of cattle the best cow and calf he desired. Mrs. Lane was more happy by the privilege she enjoyed in giving for Christ's sake and the Church than it is possible for any one to conceive. She represents not only the noblest confession of the Anglican faith, but the purest blood of that nation.

"My Back Aches so, and I feel miserable," said a hard-working man. The doctor questioned him and found that he had been habitually costive for years, that now his kidneys were disordered and his whole system deranged. Kidney-Wort was recommended and faithfully taken, and in a short time every trouble was removed. The cleansing and tonic power of this medicine on the bowels and kidneys is wonderful.—Congregationalist.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis. Mo.

It is easier to blame than to do good ourselves. Every one knows good counsel except the man who hath most need of it.

A GOOD teacher can work anywhere; inspire children, wake up parents, create a soul under the ribs of the deadest superintendent, and make the dreariest wilderness of ignorance blossom like the rose.

THREE-FOURTHS the failures in teaching may be attributed to the want of faith, courage, patience and perseverance.

COURAGE is essential to success in any branch of Church work, but more particularly in the Sunday-school. The most unsuccessful persons we know are a lot of faint-hearted S. S. teachers.

HAVE patience, labor faithfully, and leave results to God. "Let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." Impatience never accomplished any good thing, nor ever made anything better in this world.

No man can escape his record. Every teacher, cleric and lay, will be judged individually by his ability, culture, heart, character and work. The value of the man depends upon the man, not upon his calling or profession. The man sanctifies the calling, not the calling the man.

TEACHER or superintendent can hardly show greater stupidity than in imposing on any pupil an extra lesson as punishment. To be of any value the learning of a lesson must be full of interest and enjoyment, and anything that tends to make it wearisome is a mistake.

THE mummy of Jacob is probably now in the cave of Machpelah at Hebron. That of Joseph may be there, or it may be where it was laid away at Shechem. What if both of these mummies were brought out, and the ark of the covenant, and the pot of manna, and the tables of stone were all unearthed, and the wreck fragments of Pharaoh's chariots were dug from the sea-bottom and put with the other relics? A sight of these, a touch of them, would not be likely to make a single convert to the truth of the Bible story. Better evidence than all this is supplied in Christianity itself and in the daily experience of every believer who follows on to know the Lord as his God and Saviour.

WHILE simultaneous answers to catechising from all the scholars may be occasionally useful to enliven the exercises, it is by far the poorest test of the amount of knowledge possessed by the school. It will soon be noticed that on this plan, a few of the brightest and best informed invariably lead, and that all the others wait for them and really follow them, so that the true purpose of the catechising—instruction of all, is almost wholly defeated.

REVIEWING the lesson in the Sunday-school each week is by no means as common a practice as it should be. The benefit resulting from such a weekly review is not yet generally appreciated, though the plan is gaining in popularity with all earnest superintendents. The method pursued is varied in accordance with the wants and circumstances of the school, the skill and preparation of the superintendent or pastor, and the character of the lessons. One plan is to review the lesson of the day near the close of the school exercises; another is to review the lesson of the previous Sunday, before the lesson of the day begins, thus bridging the chasm between the two, and showing how they are connected with each other. In noticing the advantages of this latter plan, James Hughes, of Toronto, says, "it calls from its nook in the memory the lesson of last Sunday, shakes from it the accumulated dust of the week, and leaves it red hot, so that the lesson of the day may be welded firmly to it at once."

ORDER.

How to have an orderly school is a problem solved by few superintendents.

1. Be prompt. Allow no time to be unoccupied. Scholars will soon observe there is nothing to do, and do as they please. Let the exercises always begin at the click of the clock.

2. Don't talk about the business in hand, or apologize, or explain. Begin the work.

3. Know just what variation or change of routine you will adopt for the day, and do it instantly.

4. Do not protract the opening exercises so that they do any more than open. They should be only the beginning of the work. We have known a lecture on behavior interjected into the Apostles Creed.

5. Don't ring bells, or use your tongue too much, better none at all. Order can be better secured by silence, or simple raising of the hand than by bells. We know of schools when the ting-a-ling of the bell exceeds the noise of the school, and is not nearly so pleasant.

6. Your school should not be a place for idlers or loungers. Make all visitors sit in Bible classes.

7. As a rule, have no speeches or remarks. The exceptions to this should be few.

8. Have every knee bent in prayer. "God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of His saints, and to be held in reverence by those about him."

9. If there be an infant department to go out of the main room, let it move with music.

10. Allow but one official on the floor at a time and have as few as possible. A secretary, missionary host collector, librarian and two superintendents on the floor at once will confuse any school.

11. Command in love; do not scold.

12. In your official intercourse with your pupils, make all feel that you consider them young ladies and gentlemen. And remember that you are a Christian gentleman.

13. Never close with anything uninteresting. Let the best wine come last.

We have a school in mind where the superintendent governs by signal, rarely speaking. The children follow their leader. Instantly at the opening every eye is bent on the superintendent, and the least sound can be heard. The order has become a sort of tune—it is rhythmical in its movements and therefore pleasing to scholars. There is little talking—none except a brief summing up of the salient points of the lessons. The closing exercises are brief, and, being from the Book of Common Prayer, dignified. The teachers obey as implicitly as the scholars. The rule is, one thing at a time, and that the best thing.

The foregoing rules are always in force.

MACON.

It having been found impracticable to proceed with the finishing of the Johnson College building in Macon, frequently referred to in these columns, it was deemed best in every way to enlarge the present building, and add to the grounds there, in order to secure the increased accommodation which was required, and also the privacy required for the successful prosecution of school work in the Academy. To this end, a north wing, nearly as large as the present building of three stories, of brick, is being constructed on plans drawn by an architect in Kansas City. This will secure ventilation, quiet, and a proper separation of the departments of the school.

It is expected that this work will be completed, and the whole building be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the school year in September. The Rev. Mr. Talbot will live in the school building, and give personal attention to the scholars, which in their enlarging numbers they require. He will be soon joined, we hear, by the Rev. W. W. Corby of Texas, who was a few years ago in the teaching force of the school.

The Rev. Mr. Talbot has been recently in Kansas City, and has secured a considerable number of new boys for the school. There was a strong impression in Kansas City, when the boys came home in vacation, that a very marked improvement had been made in them by the school, both intellectually, morally and socially. This conviction induced other parents to entrust their boys to the same excellent care. Mr. Talbot is spending his vacation in pressing forward the interests of the school.

LIBERTY.

Grace church, Liberty, has been finished for use for nearly two years; but the mere completion of the building so exhausted the ability of the little congregation that many things required for the finishing of the interior had to be waited for. The service of consecration was postponed until this necessary work should be done. Recently the Morton family presented a beautiful black walnut altar in memoriam. Permanent benches took the place of movable chairs. The whole interior, which is finished in unpainted pine, was treated with oil, which brought out the grain of the wood. The ladies had a handsome carpet placed on the recess chancel. All was at length in readiness for the solemn service of dedication.

This was fixed for the 16th ult. The minister, the Rev. A. E. Wells, had arranged all the details. The church, which is of frame, 50 feet long by 28 wide, with an ample chancel, vestry room, porch and tower, presented a very handsome appearance. At the preliminary service on the evening of the 15th, at which the Rev. Messrs. Wells and E. Talbot, of Macon, were present, the Bishop preached.

On the next morning the church was filled by a very intelligent congregation. Besides the above, the Rev. Messrs. Bennett of Wyandotte, Smith of Cameron, and West of St. Joseph, were present. Other clergymen had hoped to be present, but for various reasons were detained away. The request for consecration was read by the warden, Col. L. W. Burris, and the sentence of consecration by the Rev. Mr. Wells. The property had already been conveyed to the Bishop in trust. The clergy present all took part in the service, and the Bishop preached. An interesting letter of regret and good wishes was read by Mr. Wells, from the Rev. Mr. Batte, a former minister.

After the service the clergy and many of the congregation all dined together at the Archer House, pleasantly.

At the closing service at night the Rev. Mr. Talbot preached, and the Bishop in an address expressed his appreciation and that of the mission, for the kind liberality which had been so freely showed by the towns-people for the building of the church. Thus closed a very interesting series of services, which were greatly enjoyed by all.

The town was visited at night by a wild tornado which prostrated many trees, and blew in the walls and roof of two of the larger places of worship in town, but little Grace church stood the strain without any injury.

CARTHAGE.

One evening a few weeks since the rector of Grace church, Carthage, the Rev. J. S. Colton, and his family, were much surprised by the appearance at their residence of a stream of parishioners, each bearing a gift for household use. There were several sacks of flour, table-glass, forks, linen, a rocking-chair, canned fruit, potatoes, &c. Everything was well selected with a view to household needs, including several dollars in money. Although unexpected, this invasion of the gentlemen of the parish was none the less an eminently agreeable one to the rector, and the good feeling thereby manifested cannot but cheer him in his work, and add largely to the value of the stores so liberally provided by a kind people.

Troublesome Children, that are always wetting their beds ought not to be scolded and punished for what they cannot help. They need a medicine having a tonic effect on the kidneys and the urinary organs. Such a medicine is Kidney-Wort. It has specific action. Do not fail to get it for them.—Exchange.

NEVADA.

Rev. Mr. Brittain desires us to express his most sincere thanks to the ladies of the Episcopal congregation for the very generous donation of four month's house rent, and for other articles that were presented to him on Wednesday evening last.

EDITOR CHURCH NEWS:—I send you the above from The Nevada Ledger, in which reference is made to a matter that transpired in my house last Wednesday evening. I was completely taken by surprise. Joy and gratitude fill my heart. A very heavy load has been lifted from me, and no effort shall be spared on my part to promote the spiritual interests of such a devoted flock. May God bless them and pour His choicest blessings upon them.

WILLIAM BRITAIN.

CHARITABLE DONATIONS.

Mr. Editor:

Persons desiring to convey property by will or deed to the church, or to any charity connected with the Episcopal church in the diocese, would do well to bear in mind the necessity of using the proper corporate name of such charities as they may think proper to aid. It may not be out of place to mention below the corporate names of a few of our leading charities, and when the intention is to leave real estate for the site of churches, parsonages or cemeteries, it can be left or deeded to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri," which is a corporation authorized to hold real estate only for such purposes. When the intention is to give or devise property, real or personal, for the benefit of any unincorporated church fund or charity, it might be left to trustees named in the will or deed and their successors in trust for the benefit of, say, "The Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate," "the Theological Education Fund," "the Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen," "the Fund for the benefit of Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," or "the Laymen's Co-operative Society." Money and personal property can only with safety be left to trustees for the benefit of the church or charities connected with it. As a general proposition we do not pay that attention to such matters which they deserve; and it may be that at times the Church loses valuable aid to its charities from not having such matters brought to the attention of those charitably disposed. If there is any doubt as to the name of a charity, or as to the manner in which a conveyance should be made, reference should be had to some respectable attorney.

BOOK NOTICES.

In the North American Review for July, the leading article is a profound and sympathetic study of "Emerson as a Poet," by Edwin P. Whipple. The author has scarcely a word to say about forms and modes of expression, and cheerfully concedes that Emerson had command only of two or three metres; but he brings all the resources of his extraordinary critical acumen to prove that as a seer, as one who has intuition of the deeper truths of nature and the moral universe, in short, as a poet in the highest sense of the word, Emerson must take rank with the greatest geniuses of all time. In "Hydraulic Pressure in Wall Street," a writer who withholds his name but who manifestly is no novice, exposes many of the tricks and devices by means of which fictitious values are created, and the unwary lured daily to ruin. Desire Charney contributes the eleventh article in the series on "The Ruins of Central America," and records the crowning triumph of his exploring expedition, namely, the discovery of a great ruined city in the hitherto unexplored country of the Lacandonnes, Guatemala. There are two papers on the civil service question: one, "The Things Which Remain," by Gail Hamilton, who labors to relieve the civil service from the aspersions cast upon it on account of Guiteau's crime; the other, "The Business of Office-Seeking," by Richard Grant White, who forcibly portrays the moral ills that come from the perennial struggle for place. Finally, Francis Marion Crawford, son of the eminent American sculptor, writes of "False Taste in Art," and indicates certain directions in which art culture might be developed under the conditions of life existing in the United States. The Review is for sale by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

VIGNETTES FROM NATURE, by Grant Allen. No 33 of Humboldt Library of Science. Monthly, 15 cts. each, $1.50 a year.

THE JULY CENTURY opens with a frontispiece of Emerson from the bust by Daniel C. French, which is a most satisfactory representation of the philosopher in his later vigor. The engraver, in retaining the texture of the marble, has lost nothing of the likeness.

The illustrated papers include two of decided interest at this season, a carefully prepared and illustrated account of "The Evolution of the American Yacht," by S. G. W. Benjamin, and "The Horse in Motion," by Col. George E. Waring, Jr., the latter with forty-four cuts after Muybridge's photographs of running horses, Dr. Stillman's quarto volume on the subject.

The fiction is especially readable this month. In Mr. Howells's modern "Instance," the hero has "a seizure," persuades his wife that he is the only temperate man in Boston, and discusses with a theatre-manager his true principle of supply and demand underlying journalism and the drama. Mr. Burnett's characters meet again on New-Year's day in Washington, and Agnes Sylvester reappears.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR JULY is an ideal Fourth of July number. In the first place, there is the amusing story of "The Boy who Lost his Fourth of July;" then an interesting account of "An Early American Rebellion," which was led by Nathaniel Bacon against the Governor of Virginia in 1676; and Noah Brooks contributes a spirited narrative of the famous sea-fight between the "Essex" and the "Phoebe" in the war of 1812.

Perhaps the article which will be read with the most widespread interest is that on "Amateur Newspapers," by Harlan H. Ballard. This contribution treats of the rise of amateur printing and its development into an industry, with an organized Association. There is a history of the National Amateur Press Association, with specimens of, and extracts from many amateur journals, portraits of distinguished amateur journalists, and hints in regard to starting and carrying on an amateur newspaper.

THE JULY WIDE AWAKE opens with an exquisite picture of child-life and summer-time, called "The Pipers," accompanying a melodious little poem. Following this, comes "The Assistant," a brilliant story, a history of some grown boys and girls, but placing before the growing ones some good ideals of determination in business, sisterly devotion, womanly energy and broad generosity. It has excellent illustrations. Eliot McCormick of the Christian Union has a good short story. "Did Ethel see the Queen?" and Mrs. Kate Upson Clarke tells merrily "How Jared saw the Elephant." A practical feature of the number is a plan for "A Summer Evening's Entertainment," by G. B. Bartlett, with working diagrams for the constructions of a portable stage. The entertainment comprises tableaux, pictures, statuary and pantomimes.

Only $2.50 a year D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

WHAT OUR GIRLS OUGHT TO KNOW, by Mary J. Studley, M. D. A most practical and valuable book; which is full of the most practical information—just what every girl ought to know, the author, Dr. Mary J. Studley, was a physician of a large practice and great success. She was resident physician and teacher of the natural sciences, in the State Normal Schools, Framingham, Mass. Price, $1.00. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 & 12 Dey street, New York.

THE DEEMS BIRTHDAY BOOK, Sara Keables Hunt. This book is gotten up in beautiful style, making it a very acceptable present for birthdays or other occasions. It contains some hundreds of the extracts of the writings and addresses of Dr. Charles F. Deems, the pastor of the Church of the Strangers, New York. These extracts are printed on the left-hand pages throughout the book. On the right-hand pages are printed the days of the year—two dates to each page, one at the top and one in the middle of the page; for example, on the first date page, January 1st is printed on the top and January 2d at the middle of the page. Under each date there is space for a number of friends to write their names, each name to be written under the date of the birth of the writer, so that at glance at the book the owner can tell the birthday of each of his friends. Each volume contains a number of autographs of leading clergymen, as John Hall, Canon Farrar, Phillips Brooks, etc., etc. At the close there are a number of blank pages on which are to be written, in alphabetical order, the names of all your friends contained in the book. Price, cloth $1.00.

The following are among the contents of the July number of THE HOMILETIC MONTHLY:—Sermonic: "The Crude Cake," by R. S. MacArthur, D.D.; "The Criminality of Neutrality" by J. H. Rylance, D.D.; "Resurrection of Christ," by Rev. J. W. Goodin, "Total Abstinence," by Rev. Joseph Cook; "Cloaks for Sin; or, Excuses Removed," by Rev. W. F. Crafts; "The Joy of Easter," by Canon Liddon; "The Singing Pilgrim" by Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon; "Character" by Rev. R. S. Storrs, D. D. Among other papers are: "Misquoted Scriptures," by Talbot W. Chambers, D.D.; "Eminent Preachers," by Rev. Jos. Elliot; "True Arguments against Modern Spiritualism." Price $2.50 per year, single number, 25 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street New York.

Thomas Whittaker has endeavored to supply in the Sunday School Teachers Biblical Dictionary, a work reasonably full and of practical service to the teacher. Its 1220 double-column pages contain nearly twice as much matter as any single volume Bible Dictionary now extant.

THE SANITARIAN for July is promptly at hand, and contains the following valuable papers: The City Needs a Change of Air, by Prof. Richard McSherry, M. D., Protection Against Disease, by J. J. Speed, M. D., Protective Power of Vaccination, Evidences of Insanity Discoverable in the Brains of Criminals and Others whose Mental State has been Questioned, with Some Remarks on Expert Testimony and the Grappotte Case, by Edward C. Spitzka, M. D., Lead Pipe Dangers to Portable Water, The Perils of Immigrants—The Middle Passage Revived.—Report of Investigations by Commissioners of Emigration. New York: A. N. Bell.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Convention of Maryland re-elected its former Standing Committee and declined to instruct it, in case of the refusal of candidates, to give the reason, or to give reports to Convention of all official acts negative as well as positive.

—The Convention of Virginia pledged itself to try to raise during the coming year $7,000, for its Diocesan Missionary work. The Convention of Michigan not only pledged itself to raise $7,000 for its home missionary work, but it divided the amount about among the parishes, giving each an idea of what it was expected to do. One parish voluntarily took $1,600 of the amount, another took $1,500, another $1,300, and so on. The parishes that pledged these amounts had no more wealth in them than three that we could name in this city.

—At the election of Churchwardens for the parish of St. Mary's, Bridgewater, an objection was made to one of the former Churchwardens that he had pulled out his watch during a service in the Church and thus had shown impatience. The objection appears to have been sustained for another Churchwarden was elected.

—At the Indiana Convention Bishop Talbot expressed his disapproval of "ecclesiastical bigamy," and could not therefore consent to an Assistant Bishop, if he should find himself unable to perform his duties, he should resign. He said he would approve of a division of the Diocese whenever any portion could present an Endowment such as the General Convention would deem sufficient, say $50,000; but he thinks it practicable now.

—In Georgia they assess 87½ per cent of the amount laid for the assessment for the Bishop's salary for the amount to be raised by assessment upon the parishes for Diocesan Missions.

—The project for a new Diocese in Northern Indiana does not materialize very much, and now two clergymen in Fort Wayne are charging each other with being the authors of the project, and having personal motives in pressing it.

—In the Central Pennsylvania Convention five ballots were held for the election of an Assistant Bishop, but there was no choice, and the Convention adjourned to some time in October. The Rev. Messrs. Vibbert, Kulison, Braithwaite and Eccleston received the highest votes.

—The Memphis Avalanche expresses the opinion that the Tennessee debt payers would stop their grog for five years and kill off the dogs they could pay the State debt, principal and interest, and have some money left to buy sheep.

—A clergyman in England has persuaded himself that baptism gives a "character," and therefore no other sacramental ordinance such as marriage, etc., can be administered to such as are not baptized; and he proposes to stand any pains or penalties on this point of conscience. It only shows what feeble powers of reasoning can accompany stiffness of conscience.

—A painting of Meissonier's, 12 inches by 9, recently sold for $30,000, that is over $250 a square inch. Some one once asked Reynolds how he produced such colors. He replied that he mixed his paints with brains. There were evidently brains mixed with this painting.

—In Iowa a constitutional amendment prohibiting all manufacture and sale of intoxicants including wine and beer, was adopted recently by popular vote.

—The public debt of the United States was reduced $157,000,000 during the year ending the first of this month. At this rate the whole bonded indebtedness of the country would be wiped out in eight years.

—There was a meeting of the alumni of Nashotah this year on St. Peter's Day, and a good many attended. The prospects for the school for the next year are said to be very good.

—It is interesting to see how new uses get lodgment in the Church. At an ordination of Deacons lately in San Francisco, the candidates appeared in their cassocks, and were vested in surplice in the midst of the service. Lately in New York at a confirmation performed by a visiting Bishop he was seated before the chancel rail in the choir, with the rector and assistant standing on each side of him, the candidates were led up and knelt down singly before him for the laying on of hands.

—Fairbault proposes to elect two new professor for duty next year, one of Church History, and the other of Ethics and Apologetics. Twelve students have entered for the next junior class.

The corner stone of a new Baptist Church in New York city was recently laid, and the name of the Church was the Church of the Epiphany. Wonder whether some of our Baptist friends in the interior of Missouri could tell what that meant.

THE CHURCH NEWS

JULY 15, 1882.

No communications can be inserted, in any current number, which reach the office after the 10th of the month.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

RESOLVED, That the CHURCH NEWS be made the official medium of communication between the Treasurers of the different Diocesan Funds and the Parishes, and that the Treasurers be instructed to accept for all payments to the several funds through the NEWS.

RESOLVED, That it be made the duty of the several rectors and missionaries of the Diocese to extend to the utmost of their power the circulation of the Diocesan paper, the CHURCH NEWS.

It may not be generally known that on account of the impossibility of receiving patients during the period of suspense when it was not known when the Hospital would remove to its new quarters, and the expense of removal, a deficiency of nearly $1,000 was caused, which will have to be made up by extra efforts at securing annual subscriptions promptly.

COULD not something more be done in the way of extending the very best reading in current theology by enlarging the circulation of the popular edition of The American Church Review? Four volumes of 300 pages each in the year for $1.00, from the same plates from which is printed the library edition for $4.00 a year. Our clergymen and intelligent laymen should all of them take it. It gives the best thought of the Church on the grave, critical questions of the day. Address American Church Review, P. O. Box 1839, New York City.

GOVERNOR CRITTENDEN committed an enormous blunder, or worse, in pardoning the gamblers who had with such difficulty been at last convicted. The indecency of it was increased by the fact that he had not been asked to do it, had not yet received official notice of the sentence, consulted none of the law officers on the subject, and hastened it while the trials of other criminals of the same sort were in progress. The Police Commissioners, with a proper sense of self respect, resigned immediately. The action is defended by nobody.

LET those of our congregations who go away for the summer take their prayer books with them, and, wherever they chance to be, let them exhibit the zeal and devotion of true servants of Jesus. Many a feeble country congregation may be encouraged and strengthened by our brief sojourn within its borders, and many of the visitors at the watering-places may be the better for the religious services, whether conducted by clergymen or lay readers, which you may be instrumental in providing for. Do not sink the clergyman, the Churchman, or the Christian, as is sometimes done, in places where you are not well-known.

PAY up your pew rent and subscriptions to the Church before you go off on the summer vacations. Leave your amount for the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, and your clergyman, if he stays in town, for charities during the hot weather. All this work has to be kept up by those who cannot get away, and sickness, and death, and poverty will not stop. The Sisters will be here and at work. Send your money to pay up your subscription for the NEWS. Find room in your trunk for your Prayer Books and Bibles. Get away, and get strong and brown; eat, sleep, be lazy; and then come back for a good fall's work.

THOSE who are acting in the name of Mr. Barr's daughter have, it seems, begun a suit in the Circuit Court for the breaking of his will. The complaint presents many allegations and theories boldly stated, but nothing new or alarming. Of course, if Mr. Barr was not of disposing mind at the time he made his will, let it go. But there are very many who will declare that he then and long afterwards was fully competent. Perhaps the peculiar motives and methods of the contest, the non-appearance of the contestant, and the element of speculation and contingent fees, as well as the names of the superservicable friends, may be made to appear in the course of the investigation.

In most cases this method of raising money results in less than could have been accomplished better in a more direct way. It often effects a demoralization of better methods, and is attended with practices which are not good. But beyond this, in cases in which it is set abut, it is no holiday business. Besides the show people who talk lavish, there have to be some who do the hard drudgery with little appreciation. There has to be care and thought and economy. The large outlays seldom return any money. They gratify those who want the most for the least, and who desire personal mention. All honor to those who will throw themselves into the breach, yield personal preference and convenience, work more than talk, seek the good and the profit of the object by a thoughtfulness for economies, which, if they would not themselves use, are demanded, if any result is to be expected in the object worked for.

MR. SLATER, of Providence, R. I., put into his deed of gift of $1,000,000 recently, for the instruction of colored people of the South, the provision that instruction should be associated with training in just notions of duty toward God and man in the light of the Holy Scriptures. On this wise direction our great religious contemporary in this city gives out its opinion that if Mr. Slater had deferred his gift for ten years, or been twenty years younger, he probably would have left the clause out, because of controversies about what the light of the Holy Scriptures is. The future is a good bank to draw on. It does not dishonor drafts. We have heard of the countryman standing on the brink waiting for the river to run past until he should cross. Voltaire thought that he would outlive the Bible. Its light burns on as clearly and strongly as ever; and one must be keen-sighted indeed who can see any indication of its loss of power.

IN this day when so many are complaining of the small use to which our costly churches are put, often for only two hours' service on Sunday morning, would it be far out of the way to use the grand organs in them, and the popular passion for music, to give often simple song services at night, adapted to a simpler taste than often is ministered to, with full, grand effects. If, say, on the Fourth of July we could have the service set forth in the Proposed Book, and at night the people could have been allowed to come, to hear and sing the melodies which would revive the earlier memories of the nation, "Hail Columbia," "Our Country 'tis of Thee," "The Star Spangled Banner," "The Ship of State," perhaps the use would not have been the highest, and yet it would have been better than to have the churches so much closed. And it would minister directly to good and high end in our social and national life. The Observer, the veteran Presbyterian paper even asks why the churches should be so much closed, and suggests that prayer should be daily held in them. It is not far out of the way.

KANSAS CITY.

Many persons in the Diocese have been aware of the differences which have for years existed between the two parishes by the name of St. Mary in Kansas City. They arose about the lot of ground which years ago Mrs. Troost left to a parish to be called St. Mary's Church. The old parish, named originally St. Luke's, changed its name to St. Mary's, and has now the title to the property. This is a corner lot, 70x142, on Fourth street, twenty feet now above the grade, on which is the old Troost homestead of brick, large and substantially built. Across the rear of this, on grade, has been erected a stone chapel of good design, and seating 150 persons. Another parish by the name of St. Mary's, usually designated as in the First Ward, was also incorporated, and has sued for ejectment against the other parish. They have a small frame chapel two blocks away from the other, and have regular services.

The dispute has occasioned harm in many ways, and has done the Church in Kansas City no good. Efforts have been made by the Bishop for years to reach a conciliation, but no satisfactory terms could be agreed on. In the meantime the case hung in the courts, with a certainty that, whatever the decision was, appeal would be taken, and more costs and delays involved. Of late, however, in many quarters a more moderate spirit has shown itself on both sides, and a disposition to reach a solution.

On Saturday, 17th ult., by previous arrangement, a meeting was held, presided over by the Bishop, in which the situation was discussed by those who represented both sides. It was conducted in excellent temper. Each side conceded that the other had proceeded in good faith; and no question of the past came up. The main difference was as to the value of the chapel which had been put up on the property, the cost of cutting down the lot and letting down the building, and the amount of obligation which the parish in the First Ward could safely assume. Any agreement reached would have to go before the parishes on each side, in parish meeting for ratification.

At length the following paper was drawn up and signed by all of those present:

At a Conference which was called by the Bishop with a view to the settlement of the legal differences between St. Mary's Church, and St. Mary's Church, First Ward, Kansas City, at which were present representatives of both of the parishes, it was proposed that

(1) The Troost property of St. Mary's Church be conveyed to St. Mary's Church, First Ward.

(2) St. Mary's Church, First Ward, shall withdraw its suit against St. Mary's Church.

(3) St. Mary's Church, First Ward, shall pay to St. Mary's Church, the sum of twenty five hundred dollars, the amount of outlay on the property; it being understood that Five Hundred Dollars of this amount is provided for privately by the conferees, and that a loan shall be made on the property for the amount.

(4) St. Mary's Church shall resume its name of St. Luke's.

(5) In the spirit of compromise, two of the vestrymen of St. Mary's Church, First Ward, may resign, and two of the members of St. Mary's Church are recommended to be elected in their place.

After a full consideration of these propositions the persons present agree unanimously to the same, and recommend that they be referred to the parishes involved, and that they be adopted by them, and made effectual, and the litigation closed.

If in this manner, on terms just and honorable for all, the long dispute can be closed it will be an auspicious day for the Church in Kansas City. Both parishes can pursue their separate work in a city large enough for many more enterprises besides. We are not willing to contemplate the results of a failure to agree on such fair terms on both sides as these.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF FESTIVALS.

The Historical Encampment at the Armory in this city was so gorgeous in its elaboration, and involved such enormous labor, and which at the time and since was thought to be certain to yield at least ten thousand dollars to its object, is found now not to have enriched the treasury to any extent that is worthy of mention. It afforded no end of fun to the young people; it occasioned much social gossip, and many questions as to propriety in dress and deportment; it compelled large outlays in personal equipment; but for the purpose for which it was supposed to be undertaken,—the helping out of the soldiers,—it seems that it amounted to very little.

Sometimes enterprises of our own are taken in hand with much the same result. A good deal is subscribed by those who would have given, whether there was to be a festival or not. Things are bought, bills made, and accounts opened here and there. Articles are made and costly materials, and much time put out on what no one wants to buy. Carriages and flowers and gloves are given out of the common fund. The occasion is an opportunity for social ambition; names get into the papers; the supposed end is lost in the glorification of some individual. On the first day after the entertainment it looks as though a good round sum has been made. The bills have not come in yet; in a day or two they begin to appear. The treasurer looks unhappy. From all sides they turn up; each person seemed to have used the privilege of ordering what he pleased and having it charged. The net result is often that even the original guarantee fund is consumed. The Church or the charity has only been used as a convenience for a good time, and to raise some persons into notoriety.

CHILDRENS' COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000, from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

PERSONAL.

—In the death of the Rev. Dr. Craik, of Louisville, the Church loses one of its most honored presbyters. He was an author of marked power, and even in the last number of the Church Review there is a vigorous article from his pen. He was for just half of his long life of 76 years rector of Christ church Louisville, and was for five successive General Conventions elected president of the House of Deputies.

—Once when Bishop Coxe had administered confirmation to a large class, he said, with a smile, to the presbyter who presented it: "Only one thing let me suggest—St. Paul says: It is good for a man not to touch a woman." In placing the candidates before the altar the Bishop had observed that their pastor had, thoughtlessly grasped some of the women confirmants by the arm and so marshalled them into ranks. The pleasantry was accepted as a gentle hint of obvious propriety, and so it passed into an anecdote. But was it worth while to interject such a remark into the service, and mortify needless the clergyman, when the suggestion, if necessary, might have been made afterward in private?

—The Rev. Dr. Parker has resigned the wardenship of Racine College. His resignation has been accepted, to take effect when his successor shall enter upon duty. A special meeting of the Board of Trustees has been called for Sept. 27th, for an election.

—On a recent Sunday, the Bishop of Liverpool went to preach at the evening service in a large church in the diocese. The second lesson appointed for the day happened to be the chapter in Timothy in which the duties of a bishop are defined, and in which he is directed to be "the husband of one wife." As Dr. Ryle happens to be the husband of a third wife, the obsequious incumbent thought that he might feel disconcerted, so, in the plentitude of his servility, he ordered the curate not to read the proper lesson, but to choose another chapter.

—The Rev. T. M. Thorpe is delivering his course of lectures against scientific infidelity in St. Luke's church, New York, on Sunday evenings, and is willing to deliver them elsewhere, or engage again in parochial work.

—The Rev. Mr. Leonard, recently of Hannibal, now of Atchison, Kansas, is having most delightful success in his new parish. Recently the parish purchased a handsome parsonage, and a fortnight ago the rector announced a house-warming. The numbers who came to greet him in his new home showed how popular he had become. We on this side envy them their acquisition, and wish that he were back in his old diocese again.

—In Connecticut the committee appointed last year to devise a way to mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the bishop's consecration, reported that they had presented him with $5,000. In responding, he remarked that he had been asked to regard the gift as personal; he would so invest it that after he was gone it would still be useful to the diocese.

—A paragraph in Mr. Bancroft's recent history of the Constitution of the United States (vol. 1, p. 460) implies that Washington was not reconciled to the torism of Bishop Seabury, even in 1785. In his diary he says he "has not any desire to open a correspondence with the new-ordained Bishop."

—The leader of the graduating class at West Point this year was Mr. Edward Burr, of the church of the Holy Communion, in this city.

—The Rev. Dr. Hill, for sixty years our missionary in Greece, died on the 1st inst., being nearly ninety years of age.

—The Rev. Dr. Kedney, of Faribault, delivers four lectures at the Concord School of Philosophy this year, and Rev. Mr. Holland delivers one of the lectures.

—Bishop Schereschewsky is now in Switzerland, striving to recover his health. He will probably have to give up the duties of the Episcopate.

—It is a singular fact that the most prominent clergymen in the diocese of Long Island were originally clergymen in other ecclesiastical bodies. Bishop Littlejohn, Dr. Schenck, of St. Ann's; Mr. Morgan of St. Luke's, and Mr. Darlington, of Christ, were Presbyterians. Dr. Hall, of Holy Trinity; Mr. Partridge of Christ (E. D.); Bishop Faulkner; Mr. Beers, of Grace, and Mr. Harris, of Calvary, were Congregationalists. Mr. Washburn of St. Mary's, and Mr. Morgan of St. Ann's, were Reformed Episcopalians; and Mr. Roche, of St. Mark's, and Mr. Tibbals, of St. Peter's, were Methodists.

We draw attention to the advertisement in another column of St. James Academy, Macon, Mo., our Diocesan School for boys. Mr. Talbot, the Rector, informs us that he is now pushing the completion of the new building with all possible despatch, and hopes soon to have accommodations for 100 boys.

JEWISH MISSIONS.—APPOINTMENT OF NEW MISSIONARIES.—The Board of Managers of the Church Society for promoting Christianity among the Jews, met in special session at the society's office, 32 Bible House, New York, on Tuesday, June 13. Provision was made for the appointment of four additional missionaries, and the establishment of two new missionary schools for Jewish children, in the South and West. Other steps were taken which will still further enlarge and strengthen the work. The society's appeal for offerings on last Good Friday, supported as it was by almost all the bishops, received a very substantial response from every Diocese. The means are, however, still inadequate to supply the immediate demands of the work.

—Seven saloon keepers of Elgin, Ill., have been fined to the amount of $2,804 damages, in behalf of Mrs. Sarah Naughton, for the death of her husband at Fox River depot, while attempting to board a train when intoxicated. The law which makes the liquor-sellers responsible for damages is wholly just.

—"I remember, said Miss Munro, "a visit I paid to a graveyard in the south of England, and I was much struck with an epitaph on a tombstone: "She never banged the door."

RIGHT PRAYING.—Pray as those who always expect to be answered, and yet will not faint if no answer seems to come. The sky is not brass, the earth is not iron. Pray sometimes from the sudden sense of need overtaking and overwhelming you, with swift and short ejaculations, as you run, or teach, or toil, sending up the arrows that catch fire as they fly. Pray often after secret and ordered meditation, the preparation of self scrutiny, and the study of the promises. Pray out of deep waters where your feet will often feel feebly after the Rock. Pray with a great deal of thanksgiving. Abound in intercessions—the especial and highest fulfilling of the "royal law." Intercede particularly, one by one, for those men or those women who seem to hinder you, to tempt or thwart you, to block your way with mysterious oppositions, and so at once, purge your souls of every hateful feeling, and conquer at least the one adversary who, if he reign within, reigns with absolute and fatal dominion.—F. D. Huntington

Hold integrity sacred.
Observe good manners.
Endure trials patiently.
Be prompt in all things.
Make few acquaintances.
Pay your debts promptly.
Yield not to discouragements.
Lie not for any consideration.
Join hands only with the virtuous.
Dare to do right; fear to do wrong.
Question not the veracity of friends.
Keep your mind from evil thoughts.
Never try to appear what you are not.
Watch carefully over your passions.
Respect the counsel of your parents.
Consider well, then decide positively.
Sacrifice money rather than principle.
Go not into the society of the vicious.
Use your leisure time for improvement.
Injure not another's reputation in business.—

—In Colorado they are moving for the erection of their jurisdiction into a diocese. A committee has been appointed to raise $20,000 for an Episcopal fund. Bishop Spalding pledges himself that for every $1,000 raised for this he will secure another $1,000. Bishop Clarkson also announces that at the next General Convention he will ask to be relieved of the care of Dakota, so that he will become then a Diocesan Bishop, and the Convention can elect a Missionary Bishop for Dakota. There seems to be an impression that the next General Convention will reduce the salaries of those older Missionary Bishops who have large and more able jurisdiction, so as to put a portion of their support on the districts which they serve.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

MISCELLANY.

The Presbyterian Banner says: "From the comprehensiveness of the Episcopal Church and its facility of adaptation, it has been able to include within its pale great varieties of religious opinion and character. In its churches and ministers have been and are found the highest Calvinism and the lowest Arminianism the widest Broad-Churchism and the intensest exclusivism, - the High Church and the Low Church formalism and the most devout piety, extreme fashion and evangelical humility, worldliness and spiritual life, the very rich and the very poor, the gay and those who are unceasing in labors for the poor and the sick. While the Protestant Episcopal Church is the most exclusive of all Protestant denominations in this land, it is at the same time the most comprehensive—including a greater variety of belief and character than any other."

"Under whose preaching were you converted?" "Under nobody's preaching," was the quiet reply, "it was under Aunt Mary's practicing."

--A Boston clergyman, writing a note of congratulation to the sexton of his church, on the celebration of his silver-wedding, showed his appreciation of a sexton's difficult task in trying to please everybody, by advising him in conclusion thus: "And finally, you should spend your leisure time in inventing a patent church that shall be just warm enough and not too warm; not too light, but just light enough; not too draughty, but just draught enough; where all the people, whatever their mental, moral or physical condition, will be perfectly comfortable, and--crowning achievement of all--that shall have all the seats in the middle."

--During a conference of clergymen, not far from Boston, the following dialogue was overheard between two newsboys: "I say, Jim, what's the meaning of so many ministers being together?" "Why," answered Jim, scornfully, "they always meet once a year, to exchange sermons with each other."

--What Paul Said.--Rev. Mr. Carrington, of Charlotte county, Va., was careless about the management of his estate, while his brother Paul was noted for his thrift and industry. The preacher usually bought his supplies of butter from Paul. One Sunday morning after breakfast, and just as he was starting to church, he dispatched his servant to his brother's house for a fresh supply of butter that would be needed at the Sunday dinner. The negro was told to hurry back and report the success of his mission. He arrived at the church and had meekly stepped in to take a seat, just as Rev. Carrington, already considerably warmed up, said in thundering tones: "And what does Paul say?" The negro, thinking the question addressed to him, replied in the hearing of the whole congregation: "Marse Paul says as how you can't get any more butter till you've paid for dat you got last week."

--"How did you like my discourse last Sunday?" asked the parson. "To tell you the truth," replied Fogg, "I was not altogether pleased with your premises; but I was delighted beyond measure at your conclusion." The parson would give something just now to know what Fogg meant.

--It may be useful to give you my experience in the "servant gal" matter. Like the English lady's, our gal stipulated that she must eat at the "first table." "Oh, certainly," said I. When we sat down I devoted myself to "servant gal"--did nothing else, paid no attention to wife, ate nothing myself--too busy waiting upon servant gal, who, however didn't eat much, and soon left the table without being excused. Next time she said to wife, "I'd rather come to second table, your old man (I was about thirty) is so perlit, I can't enjoy myself." Had no further trouble.

--The Women of the South.--George I. Seney's explanation is as honorable as his deed. Said he: "If any one asks you why I gave so much money to Wesleyan Female College, of Georgia tell them it was to honor my mother, to whom, under God, I owe more than to all the world beside. I admire the Southern women. There are possibilities in the Southern women not equaled anywhere else on earth."

Have you ever thought of what advantage the Model Press would be to you? The ease with which it prints is simply marvelous. Almost any boy can do the finest printing with the speed of a power press. How such a perfect machine can be sold for the price is the manufacturer's secret.

EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER.

The Commotion Caused by the Statement of a Physician.

An unusual article from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, was republished in this paper recently, and has been a subject of much conversation both in professional circles and on the street. Apparently it caused even more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well-known not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion, at his residence on St. Paul street, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. Few people ever get so near the grave as I did and then return, and I am not surprised that the public think it marvelous. It was marvelous."

"How in the world did you, a physician, come to be brought so low?"

"By neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull indefinite pains and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious."

"But have these common ailments anything to do with the fearful Bright's disease which took so firm a hold on you?"

"Anything? Why, they are the sure indications of the first stages of that dreadful malady. The fact is, few people know or realize what ails them, and I am sorry to say that too few physicians do either."

"That is a strange statement, Doctor."

"But it is a true one. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. We doctors have been clipping off the twigs when we should strike at the root. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation off the water channels indicate the approach of Bright's disease even more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We don't treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, stomach, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of so-called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in reality it is Bright's disease in some one of its many forms. It is a Hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy--Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also. Why, there are no end of truths bearing on this subject. If you want to know more about it go and see Mr. Warner himself. He was sick the same as I, and is the healthiest man in Rochester to-day. He has made a study of this subject and can give you more facts than I can. Go, too, and see Dr. Lattimore, the chemist, at the University. If you want facts there are any quantity of them showing the alarming increase of Bright's disease, its simple and deceptive symptoms, and that there is but one way by which it can be escaped."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Warner at his establishment on Exchange street. At first Mr. Warner was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about the alarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years its growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven and others. This is terrible and shows a greater growth than that of any other known complaint. It must be plain to every one that something must be done to check this increase or there is no knowing where it may end."

"Do you think many people are afflicted with it today who do not realize it, Mr. Warner?"

"Hundreds of thousands. I have a striking example of this truth which has just come to my notice. A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. In order to draw the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids he had provided a vial the contents of which were drawn from his own person. 'And now, gentlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed--his color and command both left him and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys, and in less than a year he was dead.'

"You believe then that it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is afflicted with it?"

"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people have the same symptom. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one. I know what I am talking about for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful is it not?"

"A very prominent case but no more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured."

"I know it can, I know it from the experience of hundreds of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day saying: 'there goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortunately secured and used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure."

"And this caused you to manufacture it?"

"No, it caused me to investigate. I went to the principal cities with Dr. Craig the discoverer, and saw the physicians prescribing and using it and saw that Dr. Craig was unable with his facilities, to supply the medicine to thousands who wanted it. I therefore determined, as a duty I owed humanity and the suffering to bring it within their reach and now it is known in every part of America, is sold in every drug store and has become a household necessity."

The reporter left Mr. Warner, much impressed with the earnestness and sincerity of his statement and next paid a visit to Dr. S. A. Lattimore at his residence on Prince Street. Dr. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the State Board of Health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded him:

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance."

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir. I did not think it possible. It was seldom, indeed, that so pronounced a case had, up to that time, ever been cured."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it and upon critical examination, find it entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused and to meet the protestations which have been made. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question and the statements they make, cannot for a moment be doubted. They conclusively show that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly increasing and that it can be cured.

If the music selected amounts to just $1, send only the 15 pictures, your name and address. If in excess of $1, postage stamps may be enclosed for such excess. We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbins' Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be glad. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper. A box of this Soap contains sixty cuts. Any lady buying a box, and sending us sixty cuts of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

ONLY $94 FOR 10 DAYS.

SPECIAL TEN DAY OFFER TO THE READERS OF THE CHURCH NEWS.

I desire the following described Pipe-top Beethoven Organ introduced among the readers of The Church News without a moments delay, so that all can see and appreciate its wonderful merits and stop combination effects. Now, if you will REMIT ME Nine-Four ($94) Dollars, I will ship you this organ immediately, and send you a receipted bill in full for $109.75, which is the regular and only price at which this organ is sold. The price will soon be advanced to $144.75, on account of the increase in the price of labor and materials used in its construction.

I desire this instrument introduced without delay, and make this special offer so you may order one now. I look to future sales for my profit, as the Beethoven makes me thousands of friends. I regard this manner of introducing it better than spending hundreds of dollars in newspaper advertising. The Organ speaks for itself. Often 20 sales have been traced from the first sold in a new neighborhood.

The following offer is positively good for only ten days from date of this number of the Church News.

This newspaper must be returned to secure this special price. If mailed from your post-office within ten days from this date, it will be received, not otherwise, or you may accept by telegraph on the last day, and remit by mail on that day. I shall POSITIVELY refuse all orders under $109.75, unless accompanied with this paper, and payment must be mailed within ten days as specified.

As this special offer is limited and will not be repeated, if you have not all the money in hand, it will pay you to borrow a part from your friends, and thus secure the best organ that can be offered, at a less price than an ordinary organ by other makers is usually sold at. Very truly yours,

DANIEL F. BEATTY.

Dated Washington, New Jersey, July 15, '82.

BEATTY'S PIPE TOP BEETHOVEN ORGAN

Suitable for the Parlor, Chapel, Lodge, Church or Sabbath School.

This beautiful Pipe Top Organ is made from seasoned Black Walnut. It will stand the test of any climate. It is elegantly proportioned; the pipes are illuminated with brilliant colors lined with gold, ornately carved. The case has a rubbed varnish finish, will not take the dirt or dust. It is called "BEETHOVEN," as its musical effects are the most wonderful yet produced at any price, hence it is named after the World's greatest composer.

For the purpose of placing this Pipe Top Organ upon the market without delay, so that all may see and acquaint themselves with its merits, I have fixed the price for the present at ONLY which includes a solid walnut Organ Bench, Music and Book.

27 STOPS.

(1) Cello, 3 feet tone, (2) Melodia, (3) Clarabella, (4) Manual Sub-Bass, 16 feet tone, (5) Bourdon, 16 feet tone, (6) Saxophone, 8 ft. tone, (7) Viola di Gamba, 3 ft. tone, (8) Diapason, 8 ft. tone, (9) Viola 2 feet 4 ft. tone, (10) Grand Expression, 8 ft. tone, (11) French Horn, 8 ft. tone, (12) Harp Solian, (13) Vox Humana, 2 feet tone, (14) Echo, 3 ft. tone, (15) Dulciana, 8 ft. tone, (16) Clarinet, 8 ft. tone, (17) Vox Celeste, 8 ft. tone, (18) Violina, 4 ft. tone, (19) Vox Ju-liante, 3 and 4 feet tone, (20) Flauto, 2 ft. tone, (21) Coupler Harmonique, (22) Orchestral Forte, (23) Grand Organ Knee Stop, (24) Right Knee Stop, (25) Automatic Valve Stop, (26) Right Duplex Damper, (27) Left Duplex Damper. With grand and thrilling accessory and combination effects.

10 Sets Reeds.

This Organ contains 10 full sets GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, arranged on a new and patented plan surpassing all previous attempts at organ building. It has Upright Bellows, with 3 sections, giving an increase of power over the usual style of bellows made by other manufacturers. Fitted with Steel Springs, Music Pocket, Sliding Fall with Lock (nickel plated), Elegant Lamp Stands, Nickel-Plated Foot Plates on pedals, which never rust or wear, besides 2 Knee Swells, Handles and Rollers for moving. With each Organ hereafter an elegant solid Walnut Bench will be sent, free of charge. This is far superior to the ordinary stool for Organ use and is more ornamental, useful. Order direct from this advertisement. It has been improved and perfected since first invented, and those who want music and not furniture, (although this case is very handsome), should order this Organ.

ST. LOUIS, AUGUST 15, 1882.

ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

THE CHURCH NEWS

Is published on the fifteenth of each month. It is a Journal of General and Diocesan Church Intelligence, and is the organ of the Bishop of Missouri.

All subscriptions for the paper, business letters, and also advertisements, should be sent to the Publisher, GEORGE W. MATTHEWS, Room 38, Singer Building, 5th and Locust.

Subscriptions, $1 a year. In clubs of five or more, to different addresses, money sent at one time, 75cts. Other names may be added at the same rate.

A certain number of select advertisements will be received at rates to be arranged by the Publishers.

Contributions, and all other matters for insertion in this paper should be addressed to the Editor of the CHURCH NEWS, St. Louis, Mo.

The Bishop's Column.

Letters intended for the Bishop will reach him most quickly and surely, if addressed to him at the Residence, or with the name of the city simply.

Letters for the Bishop, while on a Visitation, and directed to the interior, should be sent to the care of some clergyman to ensure their safe delivery.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

THE Bishop is just now in St. Louis. He has been for three weeks at Madison, Wis., where, his mail being forwarded to him every day, he prosecutes that part of his business with all the promptitude possible in St. Louis, and under climatic conditions more favorable to work. He has also access to valuable public libraries, and occasionally throws a line. He returns to Madison, and will return to St. Louis, with his family, on the 8th proximo.

MISS JONES.

The death of Miss Jones, who had been for so many years connected as a Resident Associate with the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd, has for a number of months not been unexpected. Her gradually declining health compelled her to withdraw from her work of teaching more than a year ago. Since then she has spent a part of her time in Boonville, and a part in Maryland, where her family resided. There, on Friday, 21st ult.

she passed away, at Govanstown. According to her natural wish that her remains should rest in the Sister's lot at Bellefontaine Cemetery, she was brought to St. Louis.

The burial service was held in St. John's church on Monday, 24th, and was taken part in by Dr. Schuyler and Messrs. Wright and Silvester. Then all that was mortal was laid away in the consecrated ground, in sure hope of a blessed resurrection. She was steadfast, and unmovable, and always abounding in the work of the Lord.

THE VESTRY ROOM.

There ought always to be a Bible in the vestry room, in order that the lessons may be looked out and over, that there may be a familiarity with what is to be read, especially the pronunciation of the proper names.

There should be a number of hooks in the vestry room, on which coats may be hung up; also shelves on which all the various matters which gather in a vestry room may be conveniently and tidily disposed.

In all cases, and especially if the minister has to attend to his horse, there ought to be water and a towel in the vestry room. It is with clean hands as well as with a pure heart; with bodies undefiled, as well as minds sanctified, that in the consecration service, we pray that we may come into God's presence.

There ought, for the Bishop's use, to be a table, or if the room is too small, a leaf which can be raised up, on which he can take out and fold up his robes. In default of this he has sometimes to get down on the floor to arrange them there.

If there can be any other possible arrangement, the vestry room should not be used as a place in which to trim and fill the coal oil lamps. In a place where the Elements, the vessels and the linen of the Holy Communion are arranged, there should not be vile odors, which come from kerosene. A little care in having a board and clothes with which this work is done, and a caution against leaving cans about to saturate seats and carpets, would greatly obviate the inconveniences often found with this. Cotton put under the lamps in their hangings would prevent the dripping, and the injury of the carpets.

The vestry room should be made larger and more commodious than it often is. Many of the earlier churches in the Diocese, for economy, made the vestry rooms so small that they have had since to enlarge them at greater cost. The space between the side of a recess chancel and the side wall of the church is not a sufficient width, with doors both opening inward. It must project beyond the side wall of the church. It should be ten feet square at the least.

In cases of extreme necessity, an interior screen in the corner of the nave may be allowed, and it may have to be of cotton cloth tacked up: but this is really very rarely a necessity. The vesting can hardly ever be done in a seemly manner in such narrow quarters. The vestry room should have more generous treatment.

THE MISSIONARY YEAR.

The first of next month is the time when the missionary appointments and appropriations for the year by both the Domestic Committee and the Diocesan Board are to be made. No information has yet come as to the amount which the Board of Missions has appropriated to the Diocese for the coming year. Applications for aid from places in the Diocese must be accompanied with a pledge of salary in the place which shall satisfy the Bishop and the Board of Missions that it fairly represents their ability.

If the Board receives no pledge it may imply that the amount of the past year is again pledged. It may not in all cases be satisfied that this is all that the place now can do. The pledge should in many cases be increased, so that the stipend may be diminished, or be wholly renounced in favor of places which have not yet received any or much aid. Notices of such renunciation will be gladly received by the Board.

The season has been a propitious one; farmers have been abundantly rewarded for their labor. This will show itself in an extension and ease of all business. It should show itself, too, in an increased in the pledges for clergymen's support, and to the Missionary Board; in a paying up of all arrearages and debts due clergymen, and in larger contributions all through the Diocese to our home missions.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—Dr. Runcie has been presented by his parishioners with another horse. This is the third or fourth horse which he has had. Horseflesh, a large parish, 225 pounds, and the St. Joseph hills, do not agree with each other.

—The visit of the Bishop to Columbia was hastened by a telegram announcing the death of Mrs. Fyfer, the wife of the Senior Warden, who with her husband was among the earliest and most efficient persons in the establishment of the parish and the building of the church in that town. She had been for years in declining health, but a favorable result had still been hoped for. The church was thronged with those who honored and loved the memory of the one departed. Flowers had been tastefully arranged, and the psalm and hymn sung with tender expression. The parish is yet vacant.

—The ladies of the parish at St. Charles have with the proceeds of a festival recently held, made many improvements in the internal appearance of the church. New seats have been made, filling the former vacant spaces. Twelve fine double lamps of a new pattern brightly illumine the building. The chancel has been newly carpetted. The Bishop recently confirmed two, presented from the Sunday-school, and was also able to extend his visit to three days, and pass a Sunday in the parish.

—The Rev. W. W. Corbyn, of Western Texas, has been transferred to this Diocese.

—The proposition of conciliation, referred to in our last number, between two of the parishes in Kansas City, was adopted by St. Mary's church, First Ward. The Vestry of St. Mary's church, however, by a vote of four to three declined to call a parish meeting at which the matter should be proposed. This is the condition in which the business stands at present, we believe. If both the parishes in parish meeting do not agree, nothing is accomplished, and the process of law goes on, with at least a moral advantage on the side of the parish which in good faith agreed to the terms of compromise presented by the other side at the conference.

—The Rev. Mr. Sharpe has tendered his resignation of the Rectorship of Calvary church, Sedalia, to take effect on the 1st proximo. He has not yet determined on his future work.

—The Rev. Mr. Mann, our missionary to the Deaf Mutes, will hold a Service for them in Christ church in this city on the 24th inst. He will be accompanied by the Rev. Dr. Gallandet, of New York. They will be on their way to the National Convention of Deaf Mute Teachers to be held in Jacksonville, Ill., two days after. Mr. Mann proposes very soon to hold a Service for Deaf Mutes in Kansas City, stopping at Fulton.

—The Rev. Mr. Evans, recently of Palmyra, is now engaged in Church work in Alpena, Michigan, under the Rev. Mr. Nock.

—We are glad to see that the Rev. Cameron Mann has declined the call to the Chaplaincy of Hobart College, to which he was recently elected.

—A new and more spacious vestry room has been built for the church in Moberly, which will afford relief to the clergymen. The interior also has been beautifully decorated.

—The record of the Diocese in the Spirit of Missions for August is not much better than it was the month before. In all the departments it only appears in one with a contribution from Fayette, and a mite box from St. Louis. It is a wrong and discreditable showing.

—On the 22d of June Dr. G. B. Winston, of Jefferson City, died in St. Louis. He had for several years been in feeble health. He was born in Kentucky, but came to this State in his youth, was educated at the State University, and graduated in medicine at McDowell's College in 1846. He was brother-in-law of Judge Hough of the Supreme Court of the State, and his son is physician of the penitentiary. In early life a member of the Christian denomination, he was confirmed at the age of 42 by Bishop Hawks in Grace church, Jefferson, of which parish he was Senior Warden at the time of his death. The Church Service was read at the funeral by the Baptist minister; the Rev. Mr. Henry, in charge of the parish, being confined to his room by sickness.

—The Rev. R. C. Wall, who was compelled by ill health to resign his work in Joplin last spring has gone to Colorado, and is engaged in missionary work in Longmont. He was so ill that he could hardly get to the cars in starting, but he reports himself already as much better.

—The Rev. Dr. Schuyler and Mr. Silvester, on behalf of Christ church, as well as a great many other petitioners, have on the score of health and discomfort, and depreciation in the value of property, petitioned the Board of Health of this city to declare the large and newly-erected tobacco factory, on the corner of Thirteenth and St. Charles streets to be a nuisance.

FOR SOME TO THINK ABOUT.

A Bishop visiting one of his parishes recently in a town where the Church was very weak, and the income very small, was surprised to see the comfortable way in which the clergyman lived, the number of new books that he had gotten, and the tasteful way in which the children were dressed. He expressed his interest and wonder in the matter. The clergyman said: "Come out here, Bishop, and see my workers that help me to do this." He took the Bishop out into his garden, and showed him a number of hives of bees. These, he said, were all the time at work for him. He explained how he had exchanged his black, German queens for Italian ones; what hard working bees they made, how early they went to work, how he could regulate the swarming and remove the comb before the cells were headed up, and put back the comb uninjured, how he could strengthen the weak hives from those that were strong. He then described how he had exchanged the Italian for Cyprian queens, when he learned that they were more vigorous still; how these bees had tongues one-third longer than those of the common kind, and could, therefore, get honey where others could not work. He showed from each hive, with such work, that an average of two hundred pounds of honey could be gotten from each hive, which he easily sold at fifteen cents a pound, and that each hive thus yielded thirty dollars net.

This, he said, was what gave him a large part of his living and afforded him also pleasant occupation, with ever varying interest. Could not others in this get a suggestion?

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH IN MISSOURI.

I

The Bishop was requested by Mr. Scharff, who is having prepared, with many assistants, a comprehensive History of St. Louis, to write a history of the Church in Missouri, and especially in St. Louis. He thinks that it may be of interest that the readers of the News have what he has written. There are to be also sketches of some of the principal parishes—separately. These are not included here.

The first public service of the Church was held in St. Louis on the 24th of October, 1819, in a one-story frame building on the southwest corner of Second and Walnut streets, which was also occasionally used for holding court and as a dancing room. It was held by the Rev. John Ward, from Lexington, Ky., and was attended by only six persons. St. Louis then had a population of but 4,000 persons. During the following week preliminary steps were taken for the organization of the parish of Christ church, the papers of which bear date, November 1st, 1819. The Rev. Mr. Ward continued in charge for a little over a year, and after that for several years there were only irregular services held. In June, 1826, steps were taken towards the erection of the first church building. A lot on the northwest corner of Third and Chesnut, where the Chamber of Commerce now stands, was bought for $400, and the building which cost nearly $7,000 was finished in 1829. It was consecrated May 25th, 1834, and the first confirmation held by Bishop Smith, of Kentucky. This property was in May, 1837, sold to the Second Baptist congregation for $13,000.

The Rev. Thos. Horrell in 1824-5 visited and held services in Madison, Washington, Jefferson and Cape Girardeau counties, at which he reports that "respectable congregations attended, and many came to partake of the sacrament." In 1831, the Rev. L. H. Corson, then serving temporarily in Christ church, held services in Manchester and other places in St. Louis county, and reports that he found a number of Church people, and baptized many children.

At the General Convention of 1835 the Rev. Jackson Kemper, D. D., was consecrated Missionary Bishop of Missouri and the Northwest, having been also chosen rector of Christ church, St. Louis. He was then the only clergyman in the State. Soon after the Bishop's coming services were begun at St. Charles, Boonville, Jefferson City, Fayette, Lexington, Palmyra and Hannibal, in several of which places parishes were organized and clergymen settled.

In November, 1840, the Diocese of Missouri was organized. There had been then the second parish, St. Paul's, established in St. Louis, and here were, besides the Bishop, eight clergymen residing in the State. On the 30th Sept., 1843, the Convention elected the Rev. Cicero S. Hawks, of Buffalo, and on October 20, 1844, he was consecrated the first Bishop of Missouri in New York. There were at this time only seven clergymen residing in the diocese. Bishop Hawks retained his position as rector of Christ church, St. Louis, until February 1st, 1854. When he assumed charge of the diocese the only church buildings in it were Christ church and St. Paul's in St. Louis, and the church in Jefferson City.

Kemper College, which was organized in 1836, and for which, with $20,000 secured in the Eastern States, one hundred and twenty five acres of land were secured, and buildings put up on a site five miles southwest of the city of St. Louis, was sold in 1845 by reason of debt. The Insane Asylum now stands on a portion of this property.

Bishop Hawks died in St. Louis, April 19th, 1868, in the 57th year of his age. At the time of his death there were 24 clergymen canonically resident in the diocese. There were 19 church buildings and 6 parsonage houses in the diocese; and there had been during his episcopate 3,061 persons confirmed.

On the 29th of May, 1868, the Convention elected as Bishop of the Diocese the Right Rev. D. S. Tuttle, D. D., Missionary Bishop of Montana. He, however, declined the election. At a special Convention called on the 4th of September, of the same year, the Rev. Charles F. Robertson, of New York, was elected, and on the 25th of October was consecrated second Bishop of the Diocese of Missouri. He was at that time in his thirty-fourth year. He officiated for the first time in the diocese in Christ church, St. Louis, Nov. 8, 1868. There were at that time reported 1,800 communicants in the diocese.

The years since have been marked by great vigor and growth. In 1882 there are 65 clergymen and nearly 6,000 communicants in the diocese, 71 church buildings, and 11 rectories. There have been 5,906 confirmations. There are 15 parishes and mission stations in St. Louis, and 14 church buildings. The Church property in the diocese is worth somewhat more than a million of dollars. During the last few years between two and three hundred thousand dollars of church debts have been paid off. About $100,000 is raised for Church purposes in the diocese each year.

The general charitable institutions under the care of the Church are both in St. Louis, the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital.

The Orphans' Home was organized in 1848 by the Rev. Whiting Griswold, rector of St. John's church. Its first building was on the corner of Eleventh and North Market streets. In 1873 the present building on Grand avenue at the head of Lafayette was erected at a cost of $40,000, on land given by Mr. Henry Shaw. There are endowments amounting in value to about $40,000. On an average about sixty children are taken care of at a time.

St. Luke's Hospital was organized in 1866. It occupied leased buildings until the erection this year of the permanent structure on the corner of Washington avenue and Twentieth street. This cost $41,000, and was built on land given by Mr. Henry Shaw. It was opened on Whitsunday, May 28th, 1882.

The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd, formed in Baltimore, 1856, and fully organized in 1863, transferred its residence and work to St. Louis in 1872. The Sisters immediately took charge of the internal management of St. Luke's Hospital, the control of which they still have. For three years also they had charge of the Orphans' Home, which however they relinquished in 1874, in order to start the School of the Good Shepherd for girls. This was carried on for three years on the corner of Washington avenue and Sixteenth street, and was then transferred to No. 2029 Park avenue, where it now is. There are now eight full Sisters, one probationer and three Associate Sisters.

St. Paul's College, Palmyra, was begun in 1848 as a mission school. It was sold during the civil war in 1862, was repurchased by the diocese in 1869, and carried on in its preparatory department, and was finally sold in 1879 to be carried on as a private enterprise. St. James' Academy, Macon, was begun in 1876, by the Rev. E. Talbot. There are several parochial schools in the diocese.

CHAPEL OF S. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

"These ought ye to have done and not to leave the other undone."

The Church people of the city have done a noble work in the erection of the new S. Luke's Hospital. It stands in the neighborhood of other prominent public buildings erected by the munificence of our public spirited citizens, and will not suffer in the comparison as an offering to the cause of humanity. But while it is there, with open doors for the relief of the sick, in body and soul, without respect to creed or nationality, it is an offering in great part of the Churchmen of St. Louis, and like the Orphans' Home, is the representative of their Christian liberality. But it is yet an imperfect representative, so long as we are confronted with the one great lack of a proper chapel, where its inmates may gather for worship; where the Memorial Sacrifice may be offered, the Word of God preached, the Bread of Life dispensed, and where the sick as well as the whole may come and find comfort and consolation in the ministrations of the sanctuary.

One good Christian woman who is active in all good works, and who is as generous as she is active, has already given her pledge for five hundred dollars.

A devoted daughter of the Church who is, we trust, in Paradise, left five hundred dollars, the earnings of years, to be expended upon the furniture and interior finish of the chapel.

The estimated cost of the chapel is $6000; but admitting that $10,000 would be needed to make it, as it ought to be, a little gem of architectural beauty, why should there be any difficulty in securing pledges for the requisite sum at once?

A sketch of what the chapel is to be, can be seen at the reception room of the Hospital; and all who feel an interest in this good work are invited to call and see it, and leave their money and the amount they are willing to subscribe.

Let this be borne in mind by our Church people as they return from their summer vacation.

M. S.

FIRST DAYS OF ST. LUKE'S.

MY DEAR BISHOP:—I desire to call your attention to some points in the history of St. Luke's Hospital which might be called its prenatal history, and which are of much interest to myself, though little known to others.

On the next Sunday but one preceding the first meeting of organization in old St. George's Sunday school room, at my father's house, there came up a conversation in regard to the great need of a Church Hospital in St. Louis; it made such an impression upon me that I determined to start out the next day and see what could be done.

On Monday, having engaged the directors' room of the Mercantile Library for a subsequent evening (Wednesday I believe), I called upon a number of young laymen and invited them to meet at the above place, to take some action on establishing a hospital. They did so, the meeting was quite informal, and resulted in an adjournment to the Sunday school room of St. George's church the following week, to which were invited the Bishop, the clergy, prominent laymen, and some leading physicians of the city. The remainder of its history is a matter of record. I remained some years in the directory, but circumstances compelled me quite unwillingly to resign.

I have always felt deeply interested in the welfare of this institution, that it was in an humble way I was in some degree instrumental of bringing into life, and which I now sincerely trust has arrived at that point where its continuance (so many times in doubt) is an established fact.

Your humble servant,

E. H. M.

CAMERON.

Editor Church News:

You do not seem to be favored with much new from this part of the diocese. Perhaps the dearth of the article may have a great deal to do with it, or it may be that silence reigns on the principle that what we may have to say had better be left unsaid. Any way, all seem to be waiting on one another in this matter, as we are so apt to do in other things of more importance. The brethren in the other part of the field have a right to know that we in this section are not dead. God knows, and some of the brethren are well aware, that there are earnest and faithful workers in every little mission in this section. The beautiful church edifices in most of them testify to this fact. And when we are informed that these same tokens of love and self denial are being consecrated as soon as finished, there is an added satisfaction. That we are not doing all we might do, no one can tell us more plainly than the monitor within each breast, and yet no small space in the News might be occupied in recounting from time to time of what we are doing. The difficulty would seem to be that the workers and the reporters, if the public are to know, must be one and the same. And yet should we allow excessive modesty to work harm all around? We can work on, when we have arrived at a certain stage of experience, without particular notice being taken of what we are doing, but there are others to be considered. There are those who need this information, to incite them to go and do likewise, or to encourage them to continue in whatever good work they may have entered upon.

Now, I imagine you saying to me after what I have written, "Brother, why do you not give us what you know?" But I shall have to say at this time that I simply took up my pen to suggest what might be done, and to break the ice as it were, and as you see it has taken considerable space to do this, I ask to be excused for the present.

[We have heard of a boy who took such a long start to jump over a fence that he got tired before he got there, and had not strength enough left to make the leap. Tristram Shandy tells of a mathematician who spent so much time on the demonstration that he had no time left to draw the corollary to do good with. So with our friend. His moralizings are good, but how about the news? —Ed. NEWS.]

A STORY WITH ITS OWN MORAL.

In a certain town we need not name, and in a certain Diocese we need not name, stands a pretty church edifice. Its doors are very rarely opened for worship. Its chancel has been silent for many months, and the people seem to love to have it so. The up-lifted spire points to things above, but its constant monitions are unheeded. Not long since a good Churchman from an adjoining Diocese made preparations to go into business in the thriving village where this silent structure stands. He visited the town and had made some progress toward obtaining a store, when in strolling about he came upon the silent structure. On inquiry he learned that it was the church of his love. He heard how long it had been closed, and that it was not probable it would be open soon, if ever. He looked at its broken windows and neglected grounds, and then he made up his mind that he would not settle in a place where the church was in such a condition. He at once cancelled all preliminary arrangements he had made toward removal to the place and retains his former residence. The village lost an enterprising business man and the decadent parish a hearty supporter.

It is not necessary to point a moral to this actual and recent occurrence.

ISABELLE MANNY.

After six years of sickness, borne with gentle patience, Isabelle Manny went into Paradise at midday of Monday, July the seventeenth. As a child at Sunday school her bright and beautiful face always grew radiant at the suggestion of some new thought from the Holy Book, and she often taught her teacher by the questions she asked and the answers she gave.

When life seemed about to open before her, and her young friends were preparing to take their places in the social circle, the child fell a victim to that disease that especially loves the fair and the young. All that human knowledge proposed, or human skill could accomplish, were tried without avail, except to prolong the life that grew more cherished and dear as every hope of saving it had slowly faded out.

Little by little, and year by year, her illness conquered more and more, advancing with every step nearer the citadel of life. How desperately it was fought—by prayer, by every means that both despair and faith suggested!

All through those weary years not a murmur of complaint escaped, as she lay and waited for the call that invited her to enter into rest, and peace, and joy. Only a holy curiosity seemed to absorb her as she wondered why she should be required to stay so long when others were hurrying home.

Once she did rather reproachfully ask her whose love and being had been devoted to the promotion of her happiness and comfort—"Why did you call me back!" For on Easter night, by all signs that determine human judgments to decisions, she had "fallen on sleep." It was the outcry of anguish, to which her love replied, even though she felt that to "depart to be with Christ was far better." And she lived until her whispered question "Can you now say, 'Thy will be done?'" received the whispered "Yes;" that was the culmen of a contest with unsubmission—and then, smiling very sweetly, she turned her wearied head aside, and gradually descended to the Valley that had for her no shadows nor dangerous deeps.

Her life had been so completely turned away from earthliness that literally, she was "in the world, but not of it." And whosoever was admitted to the privilege of that sick room, met there a bright and cheerful child of God, who had never a word to volunteer about herself, and only seemed to think for others. One bore away no thought of sickness or death—it was only this: "I have met with one of whom all take knowledge that she hath been with Jesus."

One need not turn to primitive times to look for saintliness as proof of the power of Christ—for this fair young girl had been so refined in the crucible of suffering, that she had grown up to a spiritual womanhood, from which worldliness had been almost entirely eliminated. "Her conversation was in heaven;" the sting of death removed; and she prepared in heart and mind to enter into the Paradise of God. No bitterness surrounds such a going away as this—for "the maiden is not dead, but sleepeth."

P. G. ROBERT.

St. Louis, July, 1882.

—A writer in the Philadelphia Record relates the following incident: "On a visit to that section (Staten Island) in boyhood I remember to have seen Rev. Dr. Moore march up the aisle of an Episcopal Church where the minister was reading prayers, step over the chancel rail, deposit his hat and umbrella on the altar, and sit in the Bishop's chair without the formality of a prayer or putting on robes. The Doctor was rector of St. Andrew's Church at Richmond, the wealthiest congregation in the denomination, except Trinity, New York. He ran his own parish in much the same fashion, and had it not been richly endowed he would have run it into the ground."

A MALICIOUS man is no man's foe so much as his own, for while he is out of charity with others, God is so with him

EVERY day of my life makes me feel more and more how seldom a fact is accurately stated; how almost invariably where a story has passed through the mind of a third person it becomes, so far as regards the impression that it makes in further repetition little better than a falsehood, and this, too, though the narrator be the most truth-seeking person in existence.—[Hawthorne.]

HINTS TO TEACHERS.

The Superintendent is responsible for his entire school. He ought to have a good school, good teachers and good scholars. If his teachers are not what they ought to be, it is for him to point out the better way, and to see that they walk continually in it. One way of training teachers is by telling them what to do and how to do it. A successful Superintendent makes the following suggestions:

Study the lesson. Begin study early in the week, with the text, title, and topic in your mind, and you can readily turn your thoughts to it any time during the week. Some of the best teachers are busy men and women, who take odd minutes to study their lesson.

The introductory exercises of the school are over, and now begins the important Sunday school work—that of the teacher with the class. What is and must be the first step? The earnest and continuous attention of the class; how to win, fix, and retain that.

They who would gain attention must give attention. There is a fascination in the very tone of voice of one who is deeply absorbed in the thoughts he is uttering. "Was not our teacher in earnest to-day?" was the comment of a scholar whose heart had been more than usually touched by the truth.

Never begin the lesson till all the class is stilled; and instantly pause if the quiet is broken. The teacher's pause and silence tell the wanderer he is wanted and waited for.

Those who would command the child's thoughts must control the child's senses, and an object lesson of picture or word to draw attention at the outset will call in the wandering thought, and start fresh trains of ideas.

Ask questions in a way that will not carry the answers with them. Question the pupils by name, and not in routine. If a question is a hard one, ask it to the entire class, and then designate who shall answer it. If the first scholar does not answer, ask the second or third, and so on until all are questioned or an answer secured.

It has been truthfully said that trifles make perfection; therefore, some minor matters need our thought and action:

(a.) Punctuality and regularity in the class are indispensable, and to be in the school to greet most, if not all, the members of your class as they come in, is a good form of punctuality.

(b.) Class rolls well kept are a good adjunct to teaching, and make all your scholars feel that you know them, and, if absent will be missed in the chair, in lesson, and on the register.

(c.) Very few schools have a good library, and you should therefore, acquaint yourself with books that you could recommend your scholars to read.

(d.) In taking the missionary offertory for the day, make the scholars realize that it is not the amount given, but the spirit in which it is given, that God looks at; and that for each one to give something each Sabbath, no matter how small the amount, following the gift with prayer, shows the true missionary spirit.

(e.) Visiting is needed. A gifted teacher has a powerful influence for good, but additional power can be gained by visiting. In making visits, be sure to have a special object in each case.

(f.) Writing letters may be used with efficiency in place of visiting. If a scholar is absent from the class, drop that one a note, ascertain the cause, and be ready, if occasion requires, to follow the answer with a visit.

SEVERAL physicians of Boston have united with quite a number of its citizens in a circular address to the teachers of that city, urging them to put forth all their influence and authority in the suppression of the use of tobacco among the children under their care. The prevalence of this habit among the boys is really alarming. The effect of tobacco upon grown men is bad enough, but upon the unformed and susceptible constitutions of the young it is simply terrible. It acts with special power upon the nerves, and brings the boys to manhood nerve-shattered, and unfit for anything that calls for steady application and endurance. The street boys, unfortunately, are not the only ones who take up the habit. There are many homes so carelessly guarded that their boys have defiled themselves with the noxious weed. The movement in Boston is only a sign of awakened attention to a subject that cannot safely be ignored or neglected.

SUNDAY A LOVING DAY.—"Mother, I suppose one reason why they call Sunday a holy day is because it is such a loving day," said a little boy as he stood by his father's side, and looked up into his mother's face.

"Why, is not every day a loving day?" asked his mother. "I love father and father loves me, and we both love you and baby every day as well as Sunday."

"Well, but you've no time to tell us so on week days," said the little boy. "You have to work, and father has to go off early to his work, and he is so tired when he comes home. But Sunday he takes me on his knee and tells me Bible stories, and we go to church together; and oh, 'tis such a loving day!"

WHETHER a church or a Sunday-school is to be congratulated upon its growth—depends. If it is recruiting its ranks from the unenlisted, that is worthy of applause—if it is drawing from some other church or school, that, presumptively, is deserving only of condemnation. On this point, the Golden Rule says:

It is no gain to build up a church or Sunday-school out of material drawn from some other church or Sunday school. It may be easier to secure recruits from some other regiment of the Lord than from the Devil's ranks, but it is not gain to the Lord's army. Yet sometimes it seems as if churches were more intent upon rivaling other churches in efforts to draw paying members, and members from other churches, than in saving the lost. And this foraging upon other churches is not all across the denominational lines, but is carried on largely within those lines. "The world" is fair game for any church, but do not hunt in one another's flocks.

THE Rev. Dr. William M. Taylor has well said that "the best" Sunday school help is "a loving heart." It is necessary to know something of the laws of teaching or to have that instinct that answers the same end; it is necessary to have accurate information and sound exegesis; it is necessary to be able to impart what one knows in a way that will interest; but, above all, it is necessary to have a loving heart. That is the most potent aid that a teacher can have. By means of what it can do, illiterate teachers have had a most extraordinary success; and, for want of it, some men, very learned, and even eloquent, have been complete failures. Only a loving heart effectually can present a loving gospel; only one who himself loves sinners, and is willing to deny himself for their sakes, can faithfully and persuasively represent Him who loved and gave himself for sinners.

AN IMPORTANT OFFICE.

BY THE BISHOP OF CENTRAL NEW YORK.

Inasmuch as all right living depends on right believing, and since the virtues and graces of Christian character can be found only where the truth is taught and received, and since the truth can be taught only in definite doctrinal statements, where the relation of its parts to one another are understood and discriminated, and where every principle or precept is referred to its proper authority, I put my brethren in mind that they ought to use great care in the selection of those who instruct children in Sunday-schools and Bible classes. At this time and in these communities the entire fabric of Christianity is in danger, not so much of any assault from without as of dissolution by ignorance of what it is as the church has received and handed it down, on the one hand, and all sorts of weak sentimentalisms on the other. Representations which are appalling and almost incredible are constantly made to me as I travel about, of a prevailing shallowness of religious information as respects Holy Scripture, history, the Prayer Book and even the commonplace verities of the Catechism. It seems as if the present generation had half forgotten even what the last one learned. Of this vagueness of understanding and confusion of ideas, and consequent weakness of faith, one easy explanation is found in the fact that those who are set to educate Sunday school classes are not themselves trained or taught how to do it. They are well disposed persons, who want to be useful and can think of no other way of helping the clergymen. Many an unhappy group of children is left from year to year in dismal darkness as to any consistent body of Christian knowledge, however rudimentary. Often a disorderly government, the absence of any consecutive plan or course of study, a miserably assorted collection of juvenile story books miscalled a library, and irregular attendance, complete the compound wrong done to the youthful mind. There is room to fear that, by an infection of bad customs creeping in from the loose religious fashions about us, the "Sunday-school" may come to be little better than a misnomer and a snare. The remedy is with the rector. He must either give his own personal and thorough attention to every detail of the instruction and discipline of the school, or he must substitute for it a careful and well-studied weekly catechising, or else he must incur the retribution of answering for a bewildered, misguided half infidel flock, blown about by every blast of vain doctrine because he did not heed the Lord's charge, "feed my lambs."—From Bishop Huntington's Convention Address.

It is not the dress occasion, but it is the everyday life which shows a person's real measure of character and conduct and taste. His highest attainment proves what he is capable of being and doing. His average performance proves what he consented to be and to do. Not the winsome smile and the gracious manners put on before visitors or while visiting, but the common expressions of face and speech, as known at home and in private, indicate one's true temper and spirit. Not the showily arranged parlor, but the adornment of bed room or kitchen, marks the standard of refinement in every home. Not the table and the table manners when no one from outside the family is present, disclose the measure of good-breeding deemed essential in any household. Not the street or the evening dress, but the dress when about daily housework, not the best suit, but the common one, evidences the real neatness and taste of the wearer. Occasional displays impress others, but the ordinary course of one's life expresses one's self.

An Old Lady's Testimony.

THE STRENGTHENING.

Sweeter than ten thousand singers,
Singing songs of heavenly love,
By the beautiful light bringers,
Rapt in unison above,
Came to me God's voice, while sighing,
With this sweet rapportal kiss—
Up in heaven to me down crying,
Filling all my soul with bliss:
"Come up hither! Come up hither!"

Then I ceased my ceaseless sighing,
Ceased my weeping, ceased to pray;
When my soul to heaven went flying,
Lighted out of night to day.
There I heard no wailing--weeping
Never saw, as we do here;
But the heavenly reapers reaping
Harvests through the livelong year.
And I heard the angels singing
Sweetest songs of heavenly love--
Saw the great light-bringers bringing Blessings down from heaven above--
Heard the holy, heavenly thunders
Of the mighty voice of God
Opening up the joyful wonders
Of that beautiful abode.

Then I saw the broken-hearted
Healed, as they had never bled—
Meetings of the long-departed,
Living now that once were dead;
Saw the faithful reunited
To the faithful, full of love,
Whose high hopes on earth were blighted,
Bloom anew in heaven above.
And I saw the night of sorrow
Changed into eternal day,
Which can never bring to morrow,
For it cannot pass away;
Heard the rapture of earth's sighing—
As the morning melts to even—
Die into eternal dying
In the voice that fell from heaven.
Then I heard the joyful chorus
Of ten thousand angels roll
Down the flowery vales before us,
Spreading bliss from soul to soul.
And I heard the peaceful silence
Of the raptures of sweet peace,
Blossom through the golden islands
Of the calm pacific seas—
Of the blissful paradises
Of the heaven of God's dear love,
In this odor of sweet spices,
Filling all the courts above—

COME UP HITHER! COME UP HITHER!

Easter, 1882.

GIERLOW.

FIRST THINGS FIRST.

The settlement of New England by the Pilgrims dates from December, 1620. Their religious services began, without doubt with the landing, though the first sermon of which we have any record was not preached until 1621, and was printed for the author, Robert Cushman, in London, in 1622. When the Pilgrims landed, in 1620, there had been settled in Virginia a colony of English Churchmen for thirteen years. They landed May 14th, 1607, and with religious ceremonies took possession of the country, the Rev. Robert Hunt, a clergyman of the English Church, officiating and administering the Holy Sacrament. The leading motive for this settlement was declared to be the honor of God and compassion for the poor infidels, Indians captivated by the devil. One of the first buildings erected by the colonists was a church. In the earlier attempts at settlement in Virginia attention had been directed to the Indians, and Manteo was baptized into the Church on the island of Roanoke. The story of Pocahontas, the Indian princess, who was sent to England, instructed in the Christian religion, and baptized, is familiar to all. The first white child baptized in this country was baptized after the form of the Church of England, and received the name of "Virginia Dare." We can thus say that the first baptism both Christian and Indian, the first Holy Eucharist, the first church erected, the first marriage and the first funeral solemnized, were after the Episcopal form, and by an Episcopal minister, and years before the coming of the Pilgrims. There was daily service in the church, there were sermons Wednesday and Sunday mornings, and the children were catechised regularly Sunday afternoons. In 1619 the first representative body that met on American soil assembled in the Episcopal church at Jamestown, and was opened with prayer by an Episcopal minister. In the same years steps were taken to found William and Mary's College, still before the arrival of the Mayflower and seventeen years before the foundation of Harvard College. Whatever of honor priority gives, in planting Christianity in this country, in laboring among the Indians, in sowing the seeds of civil liberty, belongs not to the Pilgrims of New England, but to the Churchmen of Virginia.

CHILDRENS' COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000, from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

BOOK NOTICES.

In the North American Review for August, the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher writes of "Progress in Religious Thought", pointing out the many influences, social, educational and scientific, which are by degrees transforming the whole structure of dogmatic belief and teaching. T. V. Powderly, the official head of the Knights of Labor, the strongest union of workmen in the United States, contributes a temperate article on "The Organization of Labor." The well-known British military correspondent, Archibald Forbes, writes of "The United States Army," dwelling more particularly on those features of our army management which appeared to him to be most worthy of imitation by the military governments of Europe. "Woman's Work and Woman's Wages", by Charles W. Elliott, is a forcible statement of one of the most urgent problems of our time. The author sees no advantage to be derived from the employment of woman in man's work, whether of brain or of hand: such employment, he insists, only reduces man's wages, and does not really add to the total resources of the class of workers. In a highly interesting essay on "The Ethics of Gambling," O. B. Frothingham analyzes the passion for play with rare ingenuity. "The Remuneration of Public Servants," by Frank D. Y. Carpenter, gives matter for serious consideration, both to the civil service reformers and their opponents. Finally, there is a paper on "Artesian Wells upon the Great Plains," by Dr. O. A. White, of the Smithsonian Institution. The Review is sold by booksellers generally.

ST NICHOLAS FOR AUGUST.—August is the great traveling month. In August every body wants to go to somewhere else. But there are a great many people who can only go to four or five places, or perhaps only a very short distance, and some people can not get away till next year.

So, St. Nicholas has made the August issue a great travel number. Its stories and articles deal of persons and things all over the world. And the stay-at-home folk can pick out a cool corner, when they find one, and go from Norway to Turkey, from Egypt to Lake George, without any of the worry and convenience of boats and trains, of stages, sledges, or camels.

Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen tells "How Burt went Whale-hunting in Norway; Miss Lucretia P. Hale, of "Mrs. Peterkin in Egypt."

Then with "A Visit to the Home of Sir Walter Scott," are a number of new interior views of Abbotsford, engraved from photographs. Paul Fort's story, "The Mysterious Barrel," contains some capital yarns by an old sea captain. "How a Hoosier Boy Saw the Tower of Pisa," is not only interesting and exciting, but true. "The Cloister of the Seven Gates," in old-time story of the Servian kings, and "Summer days at Lake George" brings us with a jump to America and to-day. Besides these, is a sailor-boy story of an American lad who went to Portugal and took part in a bull-fight.

The first midsummer holiday number of The Century Magazine—the first under the new name—makes a strong appeal to popular favor, both with the excellence of its illustrations and the interest and timeliness of its text. The frontispiece is a portrait of Richard Wagner, engraved in a most charming and delicate style, by Mr. Cole. An interesting paper, Mr. John R. G. Hassard, tells "How Wagner makes Operas," "The Personal History of Garibaldi" is succinctly told by Mr. Bianciardi and there is a portrait of him in his vigor, which tallies with the boldness of his exploits. The sporting article is "Steam-yachting in America," by G. W. Benjamin. A large portion of both text and cuts is devoted to a detailed description of Mr. J. G. Benne's new yacht Namouna, of which there are some excellent drawings. Another timely feature, in view of the expected rush to Montana next year, on the completion of the Northern Pacific, is Mr. E. V. Smalley's entertaining paper on "The New Northwest." An amusing brochure is "The Lambs," a metrical satire on Wall street swindles (on the model of a Greek tragedy), written by Robert Grant, by "bulls," and "shorn lambs."

There are, in addition, four fully illustrated papers: "The Borderlands of Surrey," with striking picturesque drawings including Tennyson's house, "Freshwater," "Brookbank," where George Eliot wrote Middlemarch, Gilbert White's House at Selborne, etc.; "The American Museum of Natural History (Central Park)," "Some English Artists and their studios," with faithful drawings at the workrooms of Leighton, Millais, Pettie, Boughton, Alma Tedema, and lastly, "An Aboriginal Pilgrimage," an account of the Eastern trip of the Zunis.

Light reading is further supplied by the two serials, by a short sea-coast story with the piquant title "The Phantom Sailor; sketch of "A Snowstorm," by John Burroughs. In Mr. Howells's story, Kinney the logger reappears, and Bartly discusses delicate question of newspaper ethics with a brother journalist, and the plot thickens. In Mr. Burnett's "Through One Administration," Bertha tells her story to Agnes Sylvestre.

THE REVISER'S ENGLISH, of G. Washington Moon. This little work, written by the Philologist who some years ago wrote up Dean's Alfred English list, shows the inexactness and inelegance of the English of the new Version. He makes a strong case of it. The revisers as they went on, exceeded their original powers and then in their anxiety to get an exact equivalent for the Greek, violated the rules for securing a correct, elegant, readable and rhythmical English. This brochure may be read with great profit and interest. Cloth, Pp. 84. 75 cts. Paper 20 cts. Funk and Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street New York.

The August WIDE AWAKE is notable for some very beautiful drawings of girls with flowers; the exquisite frontispiece, accompanying the exquisite poem of "How the Laurel went to Church," "Pasture Lilies—a sumptuous Sheaf" and "Canada Lilies on Stately Stems."—Among the good short stories is a true one of old frontier life in which figures Simon Kenton, the famous Kentucky backwoodsman; another, likewise a true one, is "The Floral Procession," a story of Old Boston, with Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis as one of its characters. Both the stories have full-page engravings. A long installment is also given of "The Trojan War," full of fun worthy of school-boys deep in the classics. Edward Everett Hale describes his late visit to the English Parliament; and the comedy, "No Questions Asked," moves on amusingly. The charm of the number will be the sparkling operetta, "The Rebellion of the Daisies," with its effective situations and costuming and its brilliant music. Only $2.50 per year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers.

Funk & Wagnalls will very shortly published the Schaff-Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge. It will be sold by subscription. It will be completed in 3 volumes Royal octavo; the first will appear in Nov. of this year; the other two at intervals of six months. The price will be $5 a volume in cloth. The object of the work will be to give a summary of information in all the most important branches of religious knowledge, historical, biographical and exegetical. Dr. Schaff will be assisted by more than twenty other competent Editors.

THE SANITARIAN FOR AUGUST CONTAINS: Aid to Common Schools—The States of Education in the United States—What is the Duty of the President in the Case of Guiteau? As presented before Medico-Legal Society. Statistics of Suicide—Expert Testimony—Rights of the Insane.

HARPER'S MONTHLY. August. This magazine, which in the thirty years of its life and growth almost illustrates the rise and progress of literary work, in a varied periodical, and of the illustrative art, still maintains its place in the van. The articles, literary and artistic, of this number are of the best.

THE CONVENTION JOURNAL.

The Journal appeared about the middle of last month. It was delayed, as is generally the case, by the tardy and imperfect reports made by the parish clergymen. Many letters have to be written to extort reports, and these are often meagre and proximate. The footings up this year as compared with last year are as follows: Clergy 65, last year 60; confirmations (7 months) 303, last year 337; Candidates for Orders 4, last year 2; baptisms, adult 86, last year 97, infants 385, last year 397; communicants 5,413, last year 5,318; marriages 160, last year 199; burials 214, last year 309; Sunday school teachers, 342, last year 463; scholars 4,099, last year 4,061. Total of offerings $90,627.02, last year $105,104.04. Clergymen received from other dioceses 8; transferred to other dioceses 4; deceased 1. One church was consecrated. Parishes 45; missions 33. There are 5 clergymen engaged in teaching, and 23 receive missionary stipends.

The value of many of the figures above is diminished by the incompleteness of the reports, and for purposes of comparison, by the fact that the last Convention year had in it only seven months. Of the communicants more are reported as lost by removal than gained by removal, which in a State growing like this looks like incomplete looking up of scattered Church people. The considerable number of 124 communicants are marked as withdrawn. It is to be hoped that this arises from the revision of the lists after an interval.

In the Theological Education Fund $2,800 is invested; but only $269.61 was given by the parishes for this important object. In the Aged and Infirm Clergy Fund $5,808.60 was invested, with over $1,000 on hand awaiting investment. Only $1,344.29 was given during the Conventional year for Diocesan Missions. The Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate received from the parishes and individuals $243.39. The charges which came on the Fund, and which have to be paid every year, arising from the taxes and repairs on the episcopal residence, and the taxes on the lands belonging to the Fund, amounted to $271.12. In this way every year the capital of the Fund is being gradually consumed, because of the large charges which have to be met by the Fund, and the small attention which is paid by the parishes enjoining an annual collection on each for it. The claim on the estate of Mr. Loker, the ex-Treasurer, of $1,768.46 has not been paid, nor the debt due by the diocese to it of $1,723.40.

Five parcels of property are reported as having been conveyed to the Parochial Trust Fund.

NEWSPAPER PERSONALITIES.

A few weeks ago in this city a Roman Catholic priest was charged in a fierce article in one of the daily papers with a moral offense. His case was under examination by his superiors; he had not been condemned; he was himself urging inquiry. But the interviewers would not let him alone with their vituperative headlines. A lay co-religionist publicly protested his belief, after a thorough examination of the evidence, that his friend was innocent, "but whether innocent or guilty, he has a right to a suspension of judgment and protection from ribald comment and beastly inundo." Another paper, a respectable weekly, and speaking of this case, says that it "is passing strange that gentlemen should show the cowardly unfairness, and the desperate meanness, that will catch a flying rumor, affecting anyone's good name, and dress it up and deal it out as a sweet morsel, for a hungry class that is never satisfied unless it wallows in dirt and nastiness."

A few weeks ago there died in the far West in the faithful exercise of his duties a clergyman who up to two years ago had occupied for twenty years prominent positions in the Church. It then appeared that many years ago, when he was a minor, he had betrayed a girl whom he immediately married. His father, who was a physician, told him that his child died at its birth. Twenty years after a young man whom he had never seen began a suit for money for his maintenance during all these years, alleging that he was his son. The clergyman, relying on his father's word, declined to submit to what he considered blackmailing. It eventually appeared that he was correct in his estimate of the operation. But the matter got into the newspapers, and the clergyman left the work where he had been highly esteemed, and took hard duty in Dacotah, and there died. But even then his memory was not left alone. A prurient newspaper opens again the story. A Newark paper thus speaks its mind on the subject:

"The virtuous New York press forgot St. Paul and the stoning of Stephen. They forgot St. Peter and his denial of his Lord. They forgot the Magdalen and her seven devils. They forgot Who it was that said 'He that is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone!' Nay, they forget it still, and over his open grave repeat the history which has shocked their virtuous sensibilities, when its only effect can be to drive deeper the arrow which sticks and rankles in the hearts of a fond wife and two innocent children, for whom no one, in any event, can feel anything but pity. Let some one write, sometime, upon the cruelty of the sensationalism of the modern press."

We have had the same thing here lately. Supposing that Mr. Barr had done wrong in earlier life, about which he was not here to answer back,—certainly for years back he had lived in the face of this community a life modest, pure, blameless, inoffensive, a person of ability and culture; and yet over his open grave and again and again since, with a persistence of malevolence which is marvellous, some anonymous person has sought to poison the public mind with the details of faults which, if true, were old, and evidently repented of. The origin and motive of these attacks are discernible; but the exhibition only adds one more illustration to the evidence of the morbidness of the taste which demands and supplies such sensational and hypocritical abuse.

WOMEN IN PARISH MEETINGS.

There is indicated either a pleasant absence of theological rancor, unless it means an indisposition to recognize and take up living issues and duties, when we see this year religious conventions occupying their time in discussing whether or not they shall have instrumental music to help in public worship, and whether or not women shall be allowed to vote in parish meetings. It is interesting to see what deep principles of fundamental policy can be discovered in these questions. We are startled to discover with what far reaching results we have been carelessly trifling, in thinking that after all these were but insignificant matters.

This last question of females taking part in parish matters has been strenuously discussed in several dioceses this year. It has been decided in both ways. It has been declared that the gravest dangers will result from allowing the right. But all this has to us, we confess, a ludicrous bearing. Voting in parish meeting is but one form of activity in Church work for woman. Women are allowed by men to do every other work. Those who insist most strongly on the man's ability will, instantly after voting in a lordly way for masculine action in the parish meeting, leave the convention and allow the woman to go out and get up subscriptions for the clergyman's support, and work at festivals to help out the parish treasury, and clean out the church and keep it fit for service. While in vestry they vote away the money, they want the women to keep the treasury filled. They expect women to keep up the social tone and work of the parish, and have the church made beautiful.

Those men, it has been observed, are most strenuous for their own rights, who are least disposed to work themselves. They will, as vestrymen, solemnly borrow money from the ladies' society and give their notes, and never think of paying them. Let the men keep their exclusive authority in parish meetings, but pray let them also do the work which will justify them in insisting upon their sole rights. Women will no doubt then gladly cede the privilege.

It has been noticed often that missions imperfectly organized, and which had been under the virtual control of devout Christian women, did their work more promptly, paid their bills and maintained their financial credit better, than when afterwards they were organized as parishes and had a male vestry. They have sometimes said that for efficiency they had better go back to their former intricate condition. Generally it is not so much that women seek any rights in parish meeting or otherwise; they would gladly have less anxiety; but work drops out of incompetent and careless hands, and in order that the Church may not suffer, the woman takes it up, not as a right, but as a task to be done in God's fear.

This question, we are glad to think, is not a practical one in this diocese. We want God's work done; the presumption is in favor of men's taking the lead in it. But rather than let the trust fail, we have declared that it should fall into woman's willing hands. We care less for the how, and are not specially concerned about the a priori argument.

Let the men keep their exclusive authority in parish meetings; but pray let them always remember that, in the survival of the fittest, those will, in spite of laws, have the authority who show themselves most competent to use it. Let men remember that their chance of keeping control depends on their doing better the Church's work, which alone will justify them in insisting on their sole rights. The trouble is not in woman's assumption, but in men's carelessness.

PERSONAL.

—It is stated that Bishop Wilberforce, the new Bishop of Newcastle, is the seventh English Bishop who is a total abstainer.

—Bishop Harris is to deliver the Bohlen Lectures in Philadelphia this year.

—During Rev. Mr. Spurgeon's recent illness, the Bishop of Rochester paid him a friendly and pastoral visit. The Bishop, kneeling in prayer by the pastor's side, was in admirable accord with the Catholicity of the Church of England.

—The Rev. Mr. O'Connell, who has been quite prominent in Nebraska for several years past, has, we are sorry to learn, yielded to a habit of indulging in intoxicating drinks, which has brought sad disgrace on his work.

—The Rev. Dr. Hugh Miller Thompson has resigned his parish in New Orleans to accept a parish in Rochester, N. Y.

—The usual summer scattering among clergy and people has set in. Bishops Stevens and Garrett are in Europe, Bishops Potter and Clarkson are at Rye Beach, N. H.; Bishop Williams at Lake George; Bishop Howe is at Bristol, R. I.; Bishop Huntington on his farm at Hadley, Mass.; Bishop Doane at Mount Desert; Bishops Paddock in New Hampshire, and Jaggard at the Rangely Lakes in Maine, McLaren on the New Jersey coast, Harris on Long Island, Green at White Sulphur Springs, Drs. Potter, Brooks, McVickar, Harwood, Rylance, Reese, Austice, Fair, and scores of other clergymen have gone abroad.

—Mrs. Talbot, the wife of Bishop Talbot, died on the 6th inst. The Bishop will feel it the more in his enfeebled condition.

—Dr. Hugh Miller Thompson has declined the call to Rochester, the remonstrances from his parish in New Orleans and from other people and organizations in the city being so numerous and urgent as to compel him to reconsider his purpose of removing.

—The Bishop of Rochester, England, who declares that he secures his best rest by coming over to this country for a visit every year, is to be here in September, and go as far west as Denver. It has been proposed to secure some sermons from him in Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Louisville, and St. Louis, in the interest of the Church Temperance Society. He is an abstainer, and an admirable preacher.

GENERAL NEWS.

—Bishop Brown, of Fond du Lac, proposes to utilize the meeting of the Bishops who are the Trustees of Racine College on the 6th prox., to secure their attendance at the consecration of his Cathedral on that day. The meeting has in consequence been transferred to Fond du Lac.

—The Kansas Convention was held this year at the last of June. Next year they meet early in May. After that they propose to try the last of November or the first of December.

—The Sunday-school Committee in the Kentucky Convention reports that some of the best Sunday school superintendents in that diocese are ladies.

—With all earnestness the lack of religious training and appetite soon tells. Gen. Abe Buford, of Kentucky, whose glowing conversion and abandonment of the race track was a short time ago recorded, has gone back to racing; the habit was too strong for him, and he proposes to try the difficult task of making a Christian life and horse-racing harmonize.

—The New York Times has an elaborate statement concerning the religious condition of that city since 1845; that while the growth of our Church in that time has been 215 per cent., that of the Baptists has been but 45, of the Presbyterians 34, and of the Methodists but 32 per cent. The number of our communicants has steadily increased, but the number of our parishes is less now than ten years ago, showing that some movements are unwise.

—A Churchman writing from Luzerne, N. Y., says what is true in summer time of worship in all places: "The thing that strikes a stranger at watering places and summer resorts was very apparent here—the feeble, semi-invalid deportment of most of the guests who seem to have left their religion at home, and are not quite sure whether God can be worshipped anywhere, except in their own parish church."

—The sale of the right of making the next presentation to parish livings in England is becoming so unpopular that on several occasions lately when they were offered at auction they had to be withdrawn, as no one would bid.

—It was Col. Ingersoll who headed the petition to repeal the law forbidding the use of the mails for carrying profane and obscene matter. The Mayor of Toronto, Canada, in refusing him permission to lecture there, said: "No, sir! You may have no God in the United States, but we have one up here in Canada, and you shall not stand here and blaspheme Him."

—The Roman Catholics in New York city have in the past three years received of the public appropriations $1,396,380, while all the other religious bodies have only received $135,278; or the Romanists have had 91 per cent. of the whole amount given for public institutions.

—The tax upon spirits, which in 1875 represented 51 per cent. of the revenues of England, has since fallen to 47 per cent., though there has been an increase of the population of 2,000,000. It is an illustration of the progress of temperance in that country, and is largely due to the zeal and wisdom with which the English Church has taken up that work.

—The Roman Catholic Tablet says: "Few insurance companies would take the risk on the national life of a creed which puts five hundred daily into the grave for one it wins over to its communion, and yet this is what the (Roman) Catholic Church is doing in these States while we write."

—Bishop Harris in his Convention address says: In a diocese like this, we need the best men. Mere functionaries will not answer. Men who are lacking in enthusiasm, or who have lost their enthusiasm, are worse than useless. Men who are chiefly intent upon being cared for, or who are more anxious to be ministered unto than to minister, cannot do the great work which God has given to us to do. We must have men not only of ability and sound discretion, but men entirely in earnest, thoroughly consecrated; men of the day; men of this age, yet men of God; true prophets of the most high, prepared and enabled to speak for Him, and to interpret His truth to this generation.

—By the appeal put out by Nashotah, it is stated that the debt of the institution is $40,290.25. There is at interest the sum of $52,671.70 in trust funds, and the buildings and land are valued at $95,000. The number of students is eleven.

—It will surprise some persons to know that there are more Episcopal Churches in Philadelphia than in New York city, and that one church of the Holy Trinity in Philadelphia gave more in contributions last year than all the seven churches in Trinity parish.

—Archbishop Kenrick has held the north half of the block on Locust street between Twenty-third and Jefferson avenue for years for the site of the future Cathedral; but he announces that as the project of building has been indefinitely postponed, the present Roman church at the west end of the plot can go on and enlarge itself.

—Dr. and Mrs. Newland have recently built and presented to the parish in New Albany, Ind., a brick parsonage. There ought to be a parsonage in every parish. It would go far to make long-continued and permanent, and more useful, the services of a clergyman.

—St. James' church, Philadelphia, in eighty-two years has had but two rectors, and the second one is yet active after an incumbency of fifty-two years.

—The congregation of the church at Litchfield, Conn., in consequence of the high price of provisions, have presented to their rector, the Rev. S. O. Seymour, $300. It was a piece of wise thoughtfulness, and it is to be hoped it may become epidemic. It is often difficult to harmonize a varying market with a fixed salary.

UNION AND UNITY.

The following anecdote related by Bishop Wilmer, of Alabama, is so good on the subject of Christian Unity, that I thought it might be well to re-publish it for the benefit of some who, with the spirit of true love and charity, but mistaken zeal, advocate the interchange of pulpits, union prayer meetings, etc.

"I was sitting one day in my study when the servant ushered in a committee of ministers of several Christian communions. After an interchange of the usual courtesies, one of the committee, who acted as spokesman, said, 'We have called to see if you would join us in a union prayer meeting.' I replied that 'it would give me great pleasure to do so.' He said it gratified him very much to hear me speak in that way, for he had feared from what he heard of my general views, that I would not feel free to engage in a meeting of that description. I replied that 'the great desire of my life was to unite with all Christian people in the worship of God. But,' I went on to say, 'I am not contented to meet with you for an hour, a day or a week, I have too great a regard for you to rest satisfied with this brief suspension of hostilities; I would fain dwell together with you in a lasting unity. Suppose we take the "Worship, faith and order of the Church for the first three centuries," and base our union upon the unquestionable facts of that era. I pledge myself to unite with you on that basis.'

"After some hesitation and some confusion, he replied, 'No, sir, we do not feel, ourselves prepared for such a programme,' and rose to take his leave, the others rising with him. 'Now,' said I, as they were departing, 'don't say that I declined to join you in worship, but that I proposed an intimacy and duration of worship with you for which you did not feel yourselves prepared.' Now these men were earnest and good men; do you suppose it would not have gladdened my heart to had compassed with them the altar of God? But to what end? The closer together you bring heterogeneous and discordant elements, the greater the ultimate repulsion. One of these men believed I never received Christian baptism, and consequently that I was not a member of the Church of Christ; and he believed this sincerely, and I had respect for his sincerity. After laboring and praying together, we could not 'break bread' together. What sort of a union could we make together when we could not unite in the highest act of worship? Are our people prepared to be satisfied with such a sham union as this? If so, oh! how far off is the day, the promised and blessed day, when there shall be one fold and one shepherd,' when charity, which has swallowed up faith and is the fruition of hope, shall rejoice in the triumph of all truth! God speed the day! Amen."

"A lady once writing to a young man in the navy, who was almost a stranger, thought, 'Shall I close this as anybody would, or shall I say a word for my Master?' and, lifting up her heart for a moment, she wrote, telling him that his constant change of scene and place was an apt illustration of the words, 'Here we have no continuing city,' and asked if he could say, 'I seek One to come?' Tremblingly she folded it, and sent it off. Back came the answer: 'Thank you so much for those kind words. I am an orphan, and no one has spoken to me like that since my mother died, long years ago.' The arrow, shot at a venture, hit home, and the young man shortly after rejoined in the fulness of the gospel of peace. How often do we, as Christians, close a letter to those we know have no hope, 'as anybody would,' when we might say a word for Jesus! Shall we not embrace each opportunity in the future?"

A PASTOR'S SALARY.

If a man is fit to preach, he is worth wages. If he is worth wages, he should receive them with all the business regularity that is demanded and enforced in business life. There is no man in the community who works harder for what he receives than the faithful minister. There is no man—in whose work the community is interested?—to whom regular wages, that shall not cost him a thought, are so important.

Of what proportionate use can any man be in the pulpit, whose weeks are frittered away in mean cares and petty economies. Every month, or every quarter day, every pastor should be sure that there will be placed in his hands, as his just wages, money enough to pay all his expenses. Then, without a sense of special obligation, he can preach the truth with freedom, and prepare for his public ministrations without distraction.

Nothing more cruel to a pastor, or disastrous to his work, can be done than to force upon him a feeling of dependence upon the charities of his flock. He is the creature of a popular whim, and a preacher without influence to those who do not respect him or his office sufficiently to pay him the wages due to a man who devotes his life to them. Manliness cannot live in such a man, except it be in torture—a torture endured simply because there are others who depend upon the charities doled out to him. Good manly pastors do not want gifts; they want wages. They need them, and the people owe them; but they take to themselves the credit of benefactors, and place their pastors in an awkward and false position. If Christians do not sufficiently recognize the legitimacy of the pastor's calling to render him fully his wages, and to assist him to maintain his manly independence before the world, they must not blame the world for looking upon him with a contempt that forbids and precludes influence. The world will be quite ready to take the pastors at the valuation of his friends, and the religion he teaches at the price its professors are willing to pay in a business way for its ministry.—Scribner's Monthly.

—The Church will never gain upon a community, never impress upon it the beauty of holiness in its almost inspired liturgy while the laity sit idly by to be preached to, sung to and prayed for, instead of praying themselves with the clergy and choir. There is no stronger obligation laid upon the clergy than upon them, by the rubrical law, to take their appointed part in the public worship. It is common prayer and common praise, appointed, that is to be said and sung by priest and people, "common" to both. What idea would a stranger to the Church obtain concerning the advantages of common worship in some of our congregations where a response is scarcely heard—an audible and loud amen never.

National Normal University, Lebanon, O.

The University has completed its additional buildings, including six new dormitories, and the new hall, 104 by 60, four story, including chapel, seating 1200; library, 60 by 30; two large recitation rooms, laboratory, dining halls, to accommodate four hundred boarders.

The institution now occupies, exclusively, twenty capacious buildings, while many of the students lodge in private dwellings. Students have come almost daily, during the year, from other institutions, and on sufficient trial without exception declare that expenses are really less here than at any other school or college, while the advantages are decidedly superior in every direction. A diploma or recommendation from many of these schools is a certificate of failure, while those who do the thorough, honest work required in the Old Normal, never fail. More applications are received for teachers than can be supplied.

Direct Railroad communication with Cincinnati and Dayton is adding much to the prosperity of the Institution. Lebanon may well boast of the most popular and most prosperous educational Institution in the West.—[Lebanon (O.) Gazette.

There is no life so humble that, if it be true and genuinely human and obedient to God, it may not hope to shed some of His light. There is no life so meager that the greatest and wisest of us can afford to despise it. We can not know at what moment it may flash forth with the life of God.—[Phillips Brooks.

When we speak of obedience we should always speak of faith first. Faith is the first and fundamental act of obedience. Faith is the mainspring of obedience.

A Sure Cure for Piles

Do you know what it is to suffer with Piles? If you do you know what is one of the worst torments of the human frame. The most perfect cure ever known is Kidney-Wort. MISCELLANY.

—The man who complained of paying $10 a year for pew rent went to Barnum's show, and took his wife and five children, paying $1 each for reserved seats. He is going to take a cheaper pew, and is in favor of reducing the salary of the minister.

—An infidel on his death-bed felt himself adrift in the terrible surges of doubt and uncertainty. Some of his friends urged him to hold on to the end.

"I have no objection to holding on," was the poor man's answer; "but will you tell me what I am to hold on by?"

There is the fatal want. Infidelity furnishes neither anchor nor rope to the sinking soul. It gives nothing to hold on by.

—A skeptical hearer once said to a minister: "How do you reconcile the teachings of the Bible with the latest conclusions of science?" "I haven't seen this morning's papers," naively replied the minister; "what are the latest conclusions of modern science?"

—Of an Eccentric clergyman in Virginia who recently died, it was said that he checked the practice so common still in many parishes, of gentlemen remaining on the porch until the service has begun and then crowding in to the disturbance of others. Having spoken of the evil of this habit on one Sunday and on the next many from forgetfulness or old custom, continuing outside, when he had found the lessons for the day, he said in clear, but quiet tones, "I will begin the service when the congregation has assembled." The peculiar smile upon the face of the Chairman of the Vestry, as he led the delinquents into the Church, will not readily be forgotten by those who caught it.

—A clergyman was once forced to say to a congregation that persisted in depositing buttons in the contribution box: "Brethren who wish to contribute buttons will please not hammer down the eyes, for while that process does not increase their value as coin it does impair their usefulness as buttons."

—"Do you believe in predestination?" inquired a Mississippi steamboat captain of a clergyman who happened to be travelling with him. "Of course I do," was the reply. "Then you believe that whatever is to be will be?" "Certainly." "Well, I'm glad of it." "Why?" "Because I'm going to pass that boat ahead in just fifteen consecutive minutes, if there is any virtue in pine knots and safety valves. So don't be alarmed; if the boilers are not going to burst they won't, that's all." Upon this the divine began to put on his hat and looked as if he was going to back out, which the captain observing remarked. "I thought that you believed in predestination." "So I do, but I prefer being a little nearer the stern when it takes place."

—"Mother," said a four year old child, "father won't be in heaven with us, will he?" "Why not, my child?" "Because he can't leave the store."

—This is what Phillips Brooks says in his last volume of sermons about the cry for practical preaching to the disparagement of right belief:—"To decry dogma in the interest of character is like despising food as if it interfered with health. Food is not health. The human body is built just so as to turn food into health and strength. And truth is not holiness. The human soul is made to turn, by the subtle chemistry of its digestive experience, truth into goodness. And this, I think, is just what the Christian, as he goes on, finds himself doing under God's grace. Before the young Christian lie the doctrines of his Faith—God's being, God's care, Christ's incarnation, Christ's atonement, 'immortality.' What has the old Christian, with his long experience, done with them? He holds them no longer crudely, as things to be believed merely. He has taken them home into his nature. He has transmuted them into forms of life."

—Rowland Hill says that one day while in his study the devil said to him: "Ah, Rowland, your zeal for souls is noble." Just then he heard a boy under his window crying "Matches!" and it occurred to him that if he could be as earnest for souls as that boy was to sell his matches he would indeed be a great preacher. The next Sunday the people were surprised at the vigor and eloquence of his sermon. If most preachers believed what they preach the world could not stand against them. It is half belief that makes a dull pulpit.

—A correspondent of New York Observer says: "I have found that those who have a pride in making their religion very broad generally get it correspondingly thin."

AN UNUSUAL FUREOR.

A Recent Excitement Investigated by the Herald and the Results Made Public.

[Cleveland, O., Herald.]

A few weeks ago we copied into our columns from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle "A Remarkable Statement," made by J. B. Henion, M. D., a gentleman who is well known in this city. In that article Dr. Henion recounted a wonderful experience which befell him, and a few days thereafter we published from the same paper a second article, giving an account of the "Excitement in Rochester," caused by Dr. Henion's statement. In the first article Dr. Henion stated that for a number of years, up to last June, he had been afflicted with what seemed at first a most mysterious trouble. He felt unaccountably tired at frequent intervals; he had dull and indefinite pains in various parts of his body and head, and was very hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. However, as a physician he thought, and so did his fellow physicians, that he was suffering from malaria.

But yet he grew worse, and was finally obliged to give up a large and good practice. Still he was not conscious of his danger, nor that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon him, although all his organs had become gradually weakened. The symptoms above described continued, accompanied by others of an aggravated nature, and he noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids he was passing; that they were abundant one day and very scanty the next, and were covered with froth, or filled with brick dust sediment. But even then he did not realize his real and alarming condition. At last, however, he was brought face to face with the fact that he was a victim of a most terrible disease, and he made heroic efforts for recovery. He traveled extensively and consulted the best physicians, but they could give him only temporary relief, and that principally in the form of morphia. And so he grew steadily and constantly worse until his life became a torture. His pulse was uncontrollable. He lived wholly by injections, and for six days and nights he had the hiccoughs constantly, which are considered the sure indications of coming death.

When hope and life were nearly exhausted his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's church strongly urged him to try a means which the reverend gentleman had seen used with remarkable results. He objected at first, but finally consented, and was conscious of an improved condition the first week. His pains gradually disappeared; his stomach resumed digestion; his heart became regular; his headaches disappeared; he had no more chills and fever, or acidity of the stomach; he gained twenty-six pounds in three months, and is a well man to-day, being entirely cured of a most pronounced case of Bright's disease.

Although conscious of the consequences from his professional brethren, still as a duty to his fellow men, and according to a vow he made on what he thought was his dying bed, he published a card detailing his illness and remarkable cure. "Since my recovery," he says, "I have thoroughly reinvestigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and I believe MORE THAN ONE HALF THE DEATHS WHICH OCCUR IN AMERICA ARE CAUSED BY BRIGHT'S DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS. It has no distinctive symptoms of its own (indeed, it often develops without any whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of 'Heart Disease,' 'Apoplexy,' 'Paralysis,' 'Spinal Complaint,' 'Rheumatism,' 'Pneumonia,' and other common complaints when in reality it was Bright's disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the life before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease."

The second article entitled "Excitement in Rochester," was made up of interviews with Dr. Henion himself, who confirmed all said in his card, and also with Mr. H. H. Warner. The latter gentleman did not regard Dr. Henion's case as particularly exceptional, because he had known of very many such cures by the same means in all parts of the land. Kidney diseases, he said, are carrying off tens of thousands every year, while Bright's disease is increasing 250 per cent. a decade, and yet the people do not realize it or seek to check it until too late. He related how a New Orleans medical professor, lecturing on this disease, thinking to show his class what healthy fluids were, subjected some of his own to a chemical test, and although he had no suspicion of it before, discovered that he, too, had the dreaded disease, which proved fatal in less than a year. There was also an interview with the celebrated chemist of the New York State Board of Health, Dr. S. A. Lattimore, who said he had analyzed the remedy which cured Dr. Henion, and found that it was "entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances."

We have made these condensations in order that all the material facts may be set before our readers. Since the publication of these two articles, having been besieged with letters of inquiry, we sent a communication to Dr. Henion and also one to H. H. Warner & Co., asking if any additional proof could be given us as to the validity of the statements published. In answer thereto we have received the following letters, which add interest to the entire subject and wholly verify every statement hitherto made:

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb 2, 1882.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor is received. The published statement, over my signature, to which you refer is true in every respect, and I owe my life and present health wholly to the power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. It is not surprising that people should question the statement I made, for my recovery was as great a marvel to myself, as to my physicians, and friends. * * *

J. B. HENION, M. D.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan., 31, 1882.

SIRS: Acknowledging your favor duly received, we would say: The best proof we can give you that the statements made by Dr. Henion are entirely true, and would not have been published unless strictly so, is the following testimonial from the best citizens of Rochester, and a card published by Rev. Dr. Foote, which you are at liberty to use if you wish.

H. H. WARNER & Co.

To Whom it may Concern:

In the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle of December 31, 1881, there appeared a statement in the form of a card from Dr. J. B. Henion, of this city, recounting his remarkable recovery from Bright's disease of the kidneys, after several doctors of prominence had given him up, by the use of a preparation manufactured in this city and known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

We are personally or by reputation acquainted with Dr. Henion, and we believe he would publish no statement not literally true. We are also personally or by reputation well acquainted with H. H. Warner & Co., proprietors of this remedy, whose commercial and personal standing in this community is of the highest order, and we believe that they would not publish any statements which were not literally and strictly true in every particular.

Hiram Sibley, (Capitalist and Seedsman.)

W. C. Rowley, (County Judge, Monroe County.)

John Van Voorhis, (Member of Congress.)

Charles E. Fitch, (Editor Democrat and Chronicle and Regent of the University.) To the Editor of the Living Church, Chicago, Ill.:

Will you allow the following card, personal to myself, to appear in your widely circulated paper?

There was published in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of the 31st of Dec. last, a statement made by J. B. Henion, M. D., narrating how he had been cured of Bright's disease of the kidneys, almost in its last stages, by the use of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I was referred to in that statement, as having recommended and urged

Dr. Henion to try the remedy, which he did, and was cured.

Now the republishing of his statement in many of the leading journals of the day has been the cause of an incessant flow of letters to me making many inquiries, but chiefly whether the statement is true, or a mere advertising dodge, etc., etc.

I beg, therefore to anticipate any further inquiries and save time and labor, and some postage, by saying that the statement of Dr. Henion is true, so far as it concerns myself, and I believe it to be true in all other respects. He is a parishioner of mine and I visited him in his sickness. I urged him to take the medicine and would do the same again to any one who was troubled with a disease of the kidneys and liver. ISRAEL FOOTE, (D. D.), Rector of St. Paul's church.

A RARE OFFER

$1 Worth of SHEET MUSIC FREE

Buy fifteen bars of Dobbin's Electric Soap of any grocer; cut from each wrapper the picture of Mrs. Foggy and Mrs. Enterprise, and mail to us, with full name and address, and we will send you, free of all expense, your own selection from the following list of Sheet Music, to the value of One Dollar. We absolutely GUARANTEE that the music is unbridged, and sold by first-class music houses at the following prices:

INSTRUMENTAL		Price
Artist's Life Waltzes, (Kunster Leben), op. 316, Strauss		75
Ever or Never Waltzes, (Toujours on Jamais), Waldteufel		75
Chase's Infernal, Grand Galop, Brilliant, op. 23, Kallings		75
Turkish Patrol Reveille, op. 23, Krug		50
Pirates of Penzance, (Lancers), D'Albert		50
Siren Waltzes, Waldteufel		75
Madrigal, Potpourri, Suppe		1 00
Macotte, Potpourri, Audran		1 00
Trovatore, Potpourri, Verdi		75
Night on the Water, Lullaby, op. 33, Wilson		60
Rustling Leaves, op. 63, Lange		60
VOCAL		Price
Patience, (The Magnet and the Churn), Sullivan		35
Olivette, (Torpedo and the Whale), Audran		40
When I am Near Thee, (English and German Words), Osburne		35
Lost Chord, Sullivan		40
My Dearest Heart, Sullivan		35
His Best Hope, Metinger		40
Healed Love, (4 part Song), Archer		35
Sleep while the Soft Evening Breezes, (4 part Song), Bishop		35
In the Gloom, Harrison		30
Only be True, Victoria		35
Under the Pavement, Winner		35
Free Lunch Canteen, Souza		35

If the music selected amounts to just $1, send only the 15 pictures, your name and address. If in excess of $1, postage stamps may be enclosed for such excess. We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbin's Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper.

A box of this Soap contains sixty bars. Any lady buying a box, and sending six of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

DEATTY'S PIPE TOP BEETHOVEN ORGAN

Suitable for the Parlor, Chapel, Lodge, Church or Sabbath School.

This beautiful Pipe Top Organ is made from seasoned Black Walnut. It will stand the test of any climate. It is elegantly proportioned, the pipes are illuminated with brilliant colors lined with gold, ornately carved. The case has a rubbed varnish finish, will not take the dirt or dust. It is called 'BEETHOVEN,' as its musical effects are the most wonderful yet produced at any price, hence it is named after the World's greatest composer.

For the purpose of placing this Pipe Top Organ in the market without delay, so that all may see and acquaint themselves with its merits, I have fixed the price for the present at ONLY $109.75 which includes a solid walnut Organ Bench, Music and Book.

27 STOPS.

(1) Cello, 8 feet tone, (2) Melodia, (3) Clarabella, (4) Manual Sub-Bass, 16 feet tone, (5) Bourdon, 16 feet tone, (6) Saxophone, 8 ft. tone, (7) Viola di Gamba, 8 ft. tone, (8) Diapason, 8 ft. tone, (9) Viola Dolce, 4 ft. tone, (10) Grand Expression, 8 ft. tone, (11) French Horn, 8 ft. tone, (12) Harp Solan, (13) Vox Humana, 8 ft. tone, (14) Echo, 8 ft. tone, (15) Dulciana, 8 ft. tone, (16) Clarinet, 8 ft. tone, (17) Voix Celeste, 8 ft. tone, (18) Violins, 4 ft. tone, (19) Vox Juviante, 8 and 4 feet tone, (20) Flauto, 2 ft. tone, (21) Coupler Harmonique, (22) Orchestral Forte, (23) Grand Organ Knee Stop, (24) Right Knee Stop, (25) Automatic Valve Stop, (26) Right Duplex Damper, (27) Left Duplex Damper. With grand and thrilling accessory and combination effects.

10 Sets Reeds.

This Organ contains 10 full sets GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, arranged on a new and patented plan surpassing all previous attempts at organ building. It has Upright Bellows, with 3 sections, giving an increase of power over the usual style of bellows made by other manufacturers. Fitted with Steel Springs, Music Pocket, Sliding Fall with Lock (nickel plated), Elegant Lamp Stands, Nickel Plated Foot plates on pedestal which never rust or wear, besides 2 Knee Swells, Handles and Rollers for moving. With each Organ hereafter an elegant solid Organ Bench will be sent, free of charge. This is far superior to the ordinary stool for Organ use and is more ornamental, useful. Order direct from this advertisement. It has been improved and perfected since first invented, and those who want music and not furniture, (although this case is very handsome), should order this Organ.

Visitors Are Always Welcome. — Free Coach with polite attendants, meets all trains. Five dollars ($5) allowed to pay your traveling expenses if you buy.

How to Order by Mail—Remit by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter, or by Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

THE Bishop is endeavoring to secure for the Diocesan Library as full a set of Church Almanacs as possible. They are useful now, and will be increasing valuable as the years go on. He has his own series, reaching back for many years, and he desires to make one equally complete for the Diocese. He would be obliged if any person, having copies, which they do not particularly value, of the following years, will send them to him; 1846, '47, '48, '49, '52, '53, '54, '58, '77, '79, '80, '81, '82. If any persons have sets which they would like to complete, the Bishop has duplicates of those of the following years, which he will be glad to give or exchange, so far as they will go: 1855, '58, '62, '63, '69, '70, '71. The Bishop begs that Convention Journals be never destroyed. If those having them, do not longer need them, will they kindly send them to him or the Registrar. He has frequent applications for those of former years.

WE notice this paragraph in the Churchman:

"A church in Iowa advertises for a rector, and sets forth at large the many advantages which the place offers, but is entirely silent as to the salary, neither mentioning the amount nor the promptness with which it has been or will be paid."

The Bishop often gets requests for his help in securing clergymen for places, and they often omit the above very important information. He can only proceed with any assurance and intelligence when he is precisely informed as to what salary can be assured to the clergyman. No minister is likely to be willing to go to a strange place on any uncertainty, and the Bishop can only give information as the parish or mission definitely inform what they can be relied on to do in the way of salary.

FALL WORK.

If only each one would do his duty and promptly, each one pay his money and at the time when it was due, there would then be less trouble in the world. Persons do not pay their dues fairly each to the other. They buy what they do not or cannot pay for. Then persons do not pay what they owe to the Church. Then there is distress. One rector who had his salary of thousands of dollars, once said in this city, that at times he did not have money enough to pay his car fare down town. Another, with millions in his congregation, that he actually at that moment did not have money enough to buy necessities for his family without getting credit. Another, an old clergyman, writing that he had received his check for $50, for the semi-annual appropriation from the Fund for Aged and Infirm clergymen, confides, "I have been much in need. Some times taking bread and water for supper, and thankful for that. My poor invalid wife needs things that I am not able to buy for her. Then my month's rent is due, and this money will enable me to pay it. My table is very scantily supplied, for unless I can pay cash for what we eat we go with it, and that is very often." Think of a clergyman, with wife and three children, living on $665 a year, and not all paid, besides the rent, and his sending $100 of this to his father every year. Think of another, with wife and five children living on $604, and not all paid, beyond his rent. Think of another, with wife and three children, having $675, and paying $12 a month for rent, and over $2 a month for railroad fares to reach his appointments.

This is but a little of what the Bishop has each week to meet, and knows. Is there not pathos and real need back of the call for missionary money? And besides this there are personal, instant needs of which he is cognizant, that are confidential. He knows where at this moment there should be a suit of clothes, costing $30 each, in two places; in two others there is need of half of a bolt of domestics; in another where there has to be much meeting of railway appointments, there ought to be a good silver watch that costs $15; in another there is need of a black cashmere dress.

Of course such things could be kept quiet; but there are times when a much burdened heart will cry out. The Bishop would be grateful for special gifts to meet the cases of which he is personally aware. He asks that, besides this, there should be a revision of what persons are doing for our own home missionary work. It needs much more money, and it needs it now. Those who are giving $5 a year should, many of them, give $25. Those parishes which have let other schemes come in between them and this should give it again its rightful place of importance. Pray more to God that He may give you a disposition, and make it easier for you to give; follow your gifts with the prayer that they may be blest in enabling much good to be done by them; and then do not let any trouble hinder your getting your money into the hands of the Treasurer, either of the parish, or of the general society.

CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

Within a few weeks at Madison, Wisconsin, the Bishop, along with the Rabbi Sonnenschein of St. Louis, and Judge Henry, of the Supreme Court of this State, attended, as delegates from this State, under the commission of the Governor, the Ninth Annual Conference of Charities and Corrections. It was attended by nearly one hundred and fifty delegates, from nearly twenty States. Its sessions covered five very busy days, with three sessions in each. The attendance was largest from the Eastern and Middle States, only one being present from further south than Kentucky. Besides three of our Bishops, there were two Roman Catholic priests, a Rabbi, and some Quakers present.

The subjects considered covered a very wide field, including the causes and preventions of insanity; construction of asylums and reformatories; the blind and deaf; State as against county care of the insane; the utility of State boards of charities and their functions, the prevention of pauperism, and the administration of out-door relief, and many other cognate and intensely interesting subjects. There were many present who were masters in these plans of practical philanthropy. The subjects bore to those which are considered in a Social Science Association the relation of an art to a science. The matters concerned were full of practical details.

Very useful results were certain to come from the consideration of these matters. Thousands of dollars are dispensed aimlessly and worse than uselessly in unregulated charities. Hundreds of thousands are spent in extravagantly built and ill-contrived prisons and insane asylums. It was the clear impression of the delegation from Missouri that this State should have what a number of States have, a Board of Charities to supervise and co-ordinate, and direct to the best, most humane and economical results the work of the State as towards its criminal and dependent classes; to bring to light the neglect and often cruelty in our county farm administration, and help it to something better. If this at first was only supervisory and advisory, it would be most useful. Nothing in our State administration more evidently needs system and intelligence.

The committee reported in favor of the next meeting in St. Louis, but the Conference, feeling bound by a partial pledge last year, concluded to go to Louisville. The business included a visit and inspection of the Insane Asylum at Madison, the Boys' Industrial School at Waukesha, and of the Girls' Industrial School in Milwaukee.

THE AUTUMN OUTLOOK.

In a diocese so large and of such varied constitution as this, there are always vacancies. Some of these are temporary, and in the way of being shortly filled; others by reason of weakness or isolation, or slackness on the part of those in local control, remain vacant longer. There are more vacancies now than there ought to be, or than there need really be. The Bishop has been very anxious about many of them, and written many letters with a view of bringing about a filling of the vacancies.

Some of the places return no answer to the Bishop's letters, indicating it is to be feared, that there has been no combined, united effort on the spot to ascertain what they can offer a clergyman. Everything must start from this. We help those who do their utmost to help themselves. That utmost may not in itself be large, but it must represent a real desire. Of course at times there must be a sending out of missionaries to places which never had services, and where there is no organization, or knowledge of how great the Church's strength is there. In such cases we must pledge the stipend in advance, irrespective of local effort. But generally, the desire expressed for services must be accompanied by the statement of what the place will do. And this can only be known when a fair strong effort is made, a pledge drawn up and signed, and a copy of it sent to the Bishop.

Even when places do their own part, often difficulty follows in the way of combining them with other places to ensure a full support. And then, at times these two places will not agree in their estimate of a clergyman, and an earnest congregation is deprived because of the captiousness of the other place. There is a prevalent cry for "young, bright, unmarried clergymen." In some places this proceeds from a real sense of inability to undertake the support of any other. Sometimes it comes from the habit of married men spending scant time in places where their families are not. And this, too, sometimes arises from a lack of thoughtfulness and hospitality. It is not always possible or wise, in the Bishop's judgment, for an unmarried clergyman to be sent.

The amount of missionary aid possible to be given to any place is not such as to allow the hope of the speedy filling of the position, unless the very utmost that is possible is done by the congregation first. A character formed for irregular payments to a clergyman, or cold, unhelpful, criticizing of a minister, or a disposition to suddenly desire to give up services, tends to make it difficult for the Bishop to help or supply a place. A congregation that after years of help still needs as much outside aid as ever, and chills the hope of getting independent, this too, tells against a church.

The Bishop is always in correspondence with clergymen of ability and devotion who are ready to come to the diocese. He strives to adjust them wisely to positions. He holds them to faithful duty. But he also looks to the people to let him know their wants, and to be assured of their purpose steadily to sustain their ministers. If places remain unfilled, it is either because he has received no pledge for a salary, or because of the inadequacy of the salary offered, or because of the difficulty of joining the place to another to ensure a support, or because he is not at the moment in correspondence with any clergyman who would in his judgment fill the required conditions.

This ought to be a year in which the Church in the diocese should make a very solid and decided advance. The clergymen should lead their people to a deeper and more loving Christian life. The people should steadily and more promptly sustain their minister with moral and financial support. The strangers should be looked up and cared for in the towns and surrounding parts. Those to whom this paper comes, and who have no clergymen, should write to the Bishop of their wishes for services, and what they can do for its support. Debts should be put into shape to be paid; arrears brought up; fuel for winter laid in; repairs on the church attended to; the fund for the parsonage begun or increased; new mission stations and church buildings started. Our Heavenly Father has dealt very lovingly and bountifully to us this year. Let us render back faithfully to Him for His mercies and goodness.

BISHOP OF ROCHESTER AND TEMPERANCE.

Allusion was made last month to the fact that the Lord Bishop of Rochester, who has come to this country several times for a rest, was proposing to make a visit here again this fall. Before this he has never gone to the West. Unlike many Englishmen, he seems to find more interest in the States than in Canada.

He is greatly interested in the work of the Church Temperance Society. He has been foremost in proposing in his diocese practical measures for the abatement of the drinking customs which largely abound in England. He is himself an abstainer. The Society, however, includes both those who are disposed altogether to forego indulgence, and those who are content to use temperance. The Bishop has consented to speak in some places on the subject of temperance in England and America, under the auspices of Mr. Graham, who is the secretary of the Church Temperance Society in this country, and who has had meetings and addresses in most of the Eastern dioceses and in Chicago, with excellent results.

The Bishop, who reaches this country to-morrow, on his way to Denver, is to be in Louisville on Friday, 22d, reaching St. Louis on Saturday evening, 23d, and will remain in this city until Wednesday morning, when he goes to Kansas City, remaining there over Thursday; then going to Denver, and returning by way of Omaha and Chicago.

The Bishop will preach on Sunday morning, 24th, at Christ church, and at night in St. George's. On Monday afternoon there will be held a conference in the church of the Holy Communion, in the interest of the Temperance question, and at night a public meeting, in St. George's church, at which the Bishop of the diocese will preside, and addresses be made by the Lord Bishop of Rochester, Mr. Robert Graham and others. Mr. Graham will also make addresses on Sunday on the religious aspect of the Temperance movement in some of our churches, as will hereafter be announced. The arrangements are not fully completed, but will be considered by the Chapter of St. Louis, and notice duly given.

The business of temperance as it has to do with eating as well as drinking and all other things, is a part of the Church's work. But just as the Church is the great Missionary Society of which all its members are a part, and still its wisdom has caused the organization and maintenance of special missionary societies to focalize interest and care specially for this work; so there is nothing inconsistent with the best Churchmanship in the idea that the vast importance of this great social question justifies the creation and furtherance of a society which shall specially care for this vital interest. Of course no one is committed in advance to any theory as to what is the best method of action. What is implied is an acquaintance with the subject, and an interest in the best way to check a vice which is injuring character, desolating families, increasing crime and taxation, and destroying values. In this view it affects so many that it may be hoped that what may fall from those who shall soon present with force and disinterestedness, considerations which come close home to so many of us, will find many who will lend candor and interest to the matters proposed.

It is to be hoped that the Bishop will also while here have the opportunity of forming, so far as is possible, an acquaintance with some of the features of interest in and about this great metropolis of the Mississippi valley.

"Is your minister's salary paid?" "I don't know. The vestry will see to that." But the vestry do not always see to it. Tradesmen will see that their own bills are collected, the tax-gatherer will collect the town assessments; but the minister does not feel at liberty to urge his claims in the same way. Indeed he cannot. He is a modest man, with gentlemanly instincts. He loves to have this matter of dollars on the footing of a transaction of honor. He would suffer a dozen inconveniences before he would subject others to one. So he rubs along. It jars on his sensitive nerves to be dunned, but he bears it from necessity; he goes without, and scrimps in many ways that are little suspected, and sometimes suffer real privation and want, and all this because they who ought to take interest in the matter do not stop to inquire whether the minister is paid.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. Mr. Betts, of this city, spent four weeks in Boston this summer, in charge of the Church of the Advent there.

—We are glad to be able to state that the Rev. B. F. Newton has accepted the call to take charge of the Mission of the Good Shepherd in this city. He spent several weeks there in the latter part of July, then went East for a vacation, and return to them this month. They are all in high spirits over the prospects now. It may be remembered that the church was erected on land leased for ten years, with privilege of purchase at a stipulated sum. That period is about to expire. They propose now to purchase the land and repair the church.

—We notice in the Churchman an advertisement of St. Paul's College, Palmyra, for sale. The buildings, costing $10,900, with twenty acres of ground, are offered for $6,500.

—The first Church service held in the Memorial Home in this city was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Gierlow, on the 13th ult. There are twelve inmates of the Home.

—The Rev. Gardiner C. Tucker, who has been for some months past in charge of the parish in Collinsville, a few miles from this city, in Illinois, has taken out Letters Dimissory to the Diocese of Springfield.

—The Bishop spent a week in New York towards the latter part of last month. He went on solely to engage in a very interesting family reunion, at the old family seat near Peekskill, on the Hudson. He has preached every Sunday through the summer, and been busy with his correspondence, and much other writing, not able to be kept up when he is on his visitations.

—The Rev. Geo. H. Ward has been transferred to this Diocese from that of California.

—The amount appropriated to this Diocese by the Domestic Missionary Committee of New York, for the year beginning on the 1st inst., is the same that was appropriated last year, $1,800 for the general work, and $700 for work among the colored people. It is not nearly as much as the great and pressing wants of the Church in this vast State require, even when administered with the utmost economy.

—The name of Mr. N. Leslie Angel-Smith has been, at his own request, removed from the list of candidate for Orders of the Diocese.

—Mr. Ralph Talbot, who was well known in this city as Superintendent of the Sunday-school of the Holy Communion Church, and as a Churchman intelligent, and devoted in convention and otherwise, was compelled two months ago to go to Colorado for the benefit of Mrs. Talbot's health, which had been seriously affected by the recent death of their only child. He is established in Denver. Before leaving he and Mrs. Talbot presented to the St. Luke's Hospital an amount for the Cot, which is acknowledged in another place, and also a handsome cradle, which was endeared to them, for the use of the Hospital.

—The Rev. Dr. Runcie has been at home during the summer, and given his Sunday nights during the heated term to adjacent places with much acceptance. He has thus visited Amazonia and Savannah several times. At the latter place the church is crowded.

—The Mission at South St. Joseph, which had not yet wholly paid for its building, has decided to dispense with clerical services for the present, until it can have paid off the debt on its property.

—The Rev. Mr. Cummings, who went East for the purpose of securing more means for the church building of the Mission of St. Augustine, in Kansas City, secured in cash about $450 above expenses, and reliable pledges which will make the amount reach $800. On this, and what they had in hand, in all about $1,320, he has proceeded to receive bids and let the contracts for a brick building, of which the foundation was already laid.

—The Rev. Mr. Wright, of St. John's, suffered last spring, and at times during the summer, with severe attacks of inflammatory rheumatism. He has not been able to take the amount of rest which would have been good for him in order to enter vigorously upon his autumn's work.

—A meeting of children was held at Christ Church, Boonville, on Sunday, 20th ult., before whom Mr. J. J. Wilkins, of St. Louis, lectured. A great many adults were also in attendance. A good time was had and a fine lecture was listened to. The object of the meeting was to organize a branch of the Missionary Host, or, in other words, army of children. After the lecture all were dismissed except the members of the Episcopal Sunday school. The branch army was then organized, 37 names were enrolled as members, after which the following officers were elected: Mrs. Rosa Benedict, President; Miss Cora Wertheimer, Secretary; Mrs. J. N. Gott, Treasurer; B. F. Hutchison, Assistant Treasurer.

—The health of Mr. H. L. Gamble, candidate for Orders, who spent the latter part of the last Seminary year at Faribault, has become seriously threatened; pulmonary symptoms having appeared. It is, however, believed by a number of physicians whom he has consulted, that while he must give up his studies immediately, and for the present, he may hope for a long period of usefulness, if he can have an out-of-door life. He has been advised that the air of New Mexico will be good for him, and that he can be assured of efficient health there. He is likely to go out there, with the hope of a return here, if able, after some time.

—Nothing has been done in the matter of the church building in Sedalia. The parish has sold its old property. It has been holding its services latterly in a hall near its property, on Broadway. There is one-third more land there than on the old site, and in a much more eligible portion of the city. On this there is a debt of $1,200, not yet cancelled. The new parsonage was put in good order with an expenditure of $400. It is much larger than the former parsonage. The parish has suffered from the frequent change of Rectors. Mr. Sartwelle committed the parish to the matter of building, and bought the new property, and then, to the surprise of his people, resigned. He ought to have seen them through what he began upon. The projects of subscription which he started upon will have to be gone over again.

—The Rev. Mr. Jardine is to have this fall, in Kansas City, in connexion with St. Mary's Church, a day and boarding school for young ladies, St. Mary's Seminary, which is to be on the corner of 11th and McGee streets. For this he has four instructresses. He has also St. Mary's Collegiate School, for which he has associated with himself Prof. Merrill, late of Racine College, with two other teachers. There is also a Kindergarten department with three teachers. The schools begin on the 20th inst. The boys' school and the Kindergarten are carried on in the school building adjoining the church. The school was begun in 1880; the separation of the departments is made this year. Last year there were 32 girls and 22 boys enrolled.

—During the vacancy in the parish at Sedalia, the Rev. Dr. Foster will hold services in the church on the second and fourth Sundays in the month, until the vacancy is filled.

—The vestry at Madison, Wis., where the Bishop spent a few weeks, passed the following resolution just before he came away:

Resolved, That the vestry of Grace church hereby express to the Rt. Rev. C. F. Robertson, Bishop of Missouri, their high appreciation of the eloquent sermons and kindly assistance in the services at Grace church, which has been so much enjoyed by our vestry and congregation during his summer vacation at Madison.

—The Rev. M. Reed is about to begin the publication of a parish paper.

—The corner stone of St. Augustine's church, Kansas City, was laid on Sunday, 27th ult., the Rev. Mr. Jardine officiating, and the Masons took part in the ceremonial. This will be the first church for colored people in Kansas City. The building when complete will cost $3,000. The amount is not yet all secured.

—The Bishop took part in the consecration of St. Paul's cathedral, Fond du Lac, on the 7th inst. Bishops Bissell of Vermont, Welles of Wisconsin, Burgess of Quincy, Gillespie of Western Michigan were present, as well, of course, as Bishop Brown of the diocese of Fond du Lac. There were also about thirty other clergymen present. At the same time these bishops, excepting the first named, met several times to consider the nomination of a warden for Racine to be made at the meeting of the Board of Trustees on the 27th inst. They did not take final action, although they brought their choice down to one of three or four names, one of which they will propose.

—St. James' Academy, Macon, opened the first week in September. The patronage shows just where work has been done for it, and where it has had a fair chance. There have no scholars entered from St. Louis. Several scholars have been sent from Kansas City and St. Joseph, and a considerable more are coming. Other towns in the diocese will have some. Bishop Vail has worked for the school and sent several from Kansas. He has just asked Mr. Talbot to accept a proposition of opening a boy's school in a town where a handsome school building is all ready at hand. Mr. Talbot has declined. He is working hard at the new building which is rising from its foundation. He hopes to have thirty boys as boarders by Christmas. He is well organized for working the school more efficiently. He has removed his residence from the rectory to the building which he owns next to the academy, so that he can overlook the whole course of the boy's life. The expression of satisfaction among the parents in Kansas City on the great improvement of their boys, was most marked.

—The baccalaureate address delivered by the Rev. Dr. Fulton, to the graduating class at Seabury Hall, Faribault, has been published at the request of the class. It is on the Chalcedonian Decree, and is written with all the nervous force and learning characteristics of its author. It shows how the simple definitions of the faith, which received their last addition to the council of Chalcedon, afford the firmest, safest, most intelligible basis for unity, especially as contrasted with the later, unauthorized, partial additions made by persons or conclaves. The pamphlet should be widely read.

The changes in Christ Church chapel in this city have been completed, and very satisfactorily, during the summer. The floor has been thrown across, making two ample stories. The upper is all in one, and is used for the Sunday school; it is high and amply lighted; access to it is had from the outside, the hall, and the south gallery of the church. The lower floor is divided into three rooms, one for the infant school, and another to be used for the ladies' societies. The change is most admirable, and cost about $800.

—On Sunday, 10th inst, at the House of the Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd, the Bishop admitted Miss Rector, as a resident probationer into the community. She has resided for six months and taken part in the work of the sisterhood. She will be Sister Ada. The Rev. Messrs. Reed, and Wright, the Chaplain, were present and took part in the service.

—The ladies of the Orphans' Home expect to have charge of a booth at the coming St. Louis Fair. Due notice will be given where refreshments and donations in support of the same may be sent.

Be Sensible.

You have allowed your bowels to become habitually costive, your liver has become torpid, the same thing ails your kidneys, and you are just used up. Now be sensible, get a package of Kidney-Wort, take it faithfully and soon you will forget you've got any such organs, for you will be a well man. [Albany Argus.]

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

There is responsibility in assuming charge of a Sunday school class. The teacher is responsible for his scholars' learning. Their neglect of study does not justify failure on his part. What means do you adopt to make it sure your scholars learn something?

If you want to do right, you must be right. There is no such a thing as well-doing apart from well being. As an Oriental proverb has it, "You cannot drive a straight furrow without a straight eye." If you would do good to others, you must be good before others. No one can be a safe guide in a path he has not traveled. It is sheer mockery to attempt to teach a living truth which is not part of the teacher's life. "If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness."

BOONVILLE, MO., Aug. 14, 1882.

Editor S. S. Department Church News:

Yesterday, August 13, a very interesting meeting of the Sunday-school children of this Parish, together with their parents and friends, was held at Christ's Church. The services were, by request, conducted by Mr. J. J. Wilkins, of St. Louis, Vice-President of the Missionary Host of this Diocese, who, with his family, has been in our city several days. Mr. Wilkins delivered a very entertaining lecture upon the subject of "Doing Good." His remarks to the children were exceedingly appropriate, and highly appreciated by the little ones, while his address to the adult portion of his audience was an earnest and eloquent appeal to them in behalf of the great work in which he seems to be so deeply interested. After the close of the address a branch of the Missionary Host was formed, and quite a number of little soldiers were enlisted in the grand army. The Sunday school of this Parish, we regret to say, is not in as flourishing a condition as it should be. Of course, this is no fault of the children, but, as usual in such cases, is attributable solely to the apathy of the older folks. They need stirring up. And we sincerely hope that Mr. Wilkins will visit us again, and instill into our people some of his zeal and energy in behalf of this truly Christian work. Below we give the names of the little soldiers who have joined the grand army of the Missionary Host, and trust it will not be long before we are able to send you the names of a rather and larger company of little recruits.

The officers of the "Branch" are Mrs. Rosa Benedict, Pres.; Miss Cora Wertheimer, Sec'y.; Mrs. J. N. Gott, Treas., and B. F. Hutchison, Assist. Treas. *

MANAGING A SUNDAY-SCHOOL LIBRARY.

It is impossible that the best way of conducting a Sunday-school library should be universally settled upon for all schools alike. There will be advocates of different systems, in different schools, and not without reason. Every school must decide for itself what is best, in its case, taking care, however, to manage the library, rather than permit the library to manage the school. The Beth any Sunday school of Brooklyn thinks it has "solved the vexed library question." We give the essential features of its plan for what use they may be to others.

1. Believing that the distribution of books upon Sunday detracted much from the main object of the Sunday school, the time for the giving out of books was changed to Monday evening, from seven to eight o'clock.

2. Wishy-washy books are avoided. The aim is to put on the shelves those that are useful as well as entertaining.

3. The books are catalogued in such a way as to show whether they are for adults or children. The books appear both in the catalogue in order, and in groups under the authors' names.

4. In connection with the distribution of books, "A Bank for Savings" has been opened that is well patronized by the scholars. This has proved to be quite a taking idea.

ENTERTAINMENT OR INSTRUCTION

If the Sunday school is the "nursery of the church," then the "nursery" should be in keeping with the character and mission of the Church. The Church of Christ is not designed to be a place of mere entertainment, nor for exhibiting fine clothing, displaying musical or other talents, nor is it designed to furnish "puffs" and fulsome flatteries for popularity hunters, or to be an advertising office for business.

What the primary class is to the graduating class in our school, that in an eminent degree should the Sunday-school be to the Church.

The solid foundation of truth and true principles as revealed in the Holy Scriptures, is to be laid in part by Sunday-school work.

The horticulturalist would not plant walnuts if he wanted an apple orchard in future years; neither would he make a playground of the place where his future stock of trees were growing. He would be very careful what kind of seed he planted, and very watchful of the plants that should grow from them, and give suitable culture to each one. In order, therefore, that a thrifty growth and a bountiful harvest of either Christians or trees of the right stamp be obtained, it will be necessary to look well to your "nurseries," and see that the right kind of seed is planted, and sufficient culture of the proper character is bestowed.

It is justly regarded as sacrilege to convert the church into a place of mere amusement, and to make the Gospel of our ascended Lord a matter of entertainment, instead of dealing with God's truth and men's souls as the most important matters of our lives. Is it any less sacrilege to pervert the Sunday-school from its blessed and loving work of planting God's word in the hearts of our youth, by making the place and the opportunity one of pastime or entertainment merely, instead of sound instruction? There is no difference between the work and mission of the Church and Sunday school, only so far as the manner of doing it is concerned. They are one in Christ Jesus and their object is one, even the glory of God and the salvation of souls.

The very best methods of giving this instruction in divine things should be employed; cheerful faces, joyous voices, sweet music, pleasant manners, happy methods, loving greetings and homelike spirits all must be employed as far as possible to make the school desirable to the scholars and workers and favorable to the reception of divine truth. But the greatest care is always needed to avoid spending time and money profusely to have first class "machinery" that shall run well, which may be very pleasant and entertaining as far as it goes, but if the "machinery" is accomplishing nothing, it does not "pay."

It is possible to make our Sunday-school very attractive, and after all, almost, if not entirely failures, because money, time and energy have been so engrossed by the attraction that the "instruction" has been neglected. Every Sunday-school session ought to bring positive gain in spiritual things to every heart under its influence.

BEFORE this article is read, the school of the Good Shepherd will have opened its Fall term. Knowing from frequent observation the high educational advantages it furnishes, I can not refrain from sending this line to the Church people of the diocese and to others who have a thoughtful interest in the true culture of their children, directing their attention to this school. I do not write this so much for the school's interest as for parents and guardians who may desire a satisfactory answer to the question, Where shall I send my girls to educate them? True education is that of the heart and manners as well as of the mind, and those who have sent their children to this school have found that each of these have received full and efficient training. A cultivated and well-stored mind, refined and easy manners flowing from gentle feelings and true principles, are the best gifts we can ask for our children; and I know no educational institution wherein we may more confidently look to find them than in the school of the Good Shepherd.

RUBRICAL NOTES AND QUERIES.

I.

There is sometimes sneering mention made of the 'sprinkling' of infants as an improper mode of baptism. It is well to remember that so far as the Church is concerned, no such mode is mentioned or is permissible. Dipping or immersion for infants and for adults is the normal mode, and the only other method mentioned, pouring, is allowed as permissible, when it does not seem justifiable to use the former mode. But sprinkling is not mentioned or allowed.

The grammatical irregularity in the prayer which immediately follows the consecration of the elements in the Order of the Holy Communion "that He may dwell in them, and they in Him," instead of, as the sentence would require, "that He may dwell in us, and we in Him," comes from the change made by our compilers, when introducing this prayer from the Scotch Prayer Book, of putting in "that we, and all others who shall be partakers of this Holy Communion, may be . . . made one body with Him," instead of "that whosoever shall be partakers," &c., without changing the person of the pronouns at the close.

A similar confusion is caused by the elision of some words in the Marriage service, in transferring it to ours from the English Prayer Book. It is in the direction for giving the ring. The following are the words, those within the parenthesis having been omitted in our book: "The man shall give unto the woman a ring, (laying the same upon the book, with the accustomed duty to the Priest and Clerk.) And the Priest, taking the ring," &c. With us, in some places, probably from overlooking the nature of the words omitted, the practice is for the man to give the woman the ring, she to give it to the minister, and he to return it to the man, with some notion of a mystical circle. The evident idea originally was that the ring from being common, by passing through the minister's hands became a symbol of the union of two lives, and of the covenant and vow of which the ring was to be the token and pledge.

The English Prayer Book does not contain, as ours does, a service for the consecration of churches, and it has been sometimes thought, in consequence, that our service was compiled for our book. But the service which we have was put forth in almost its precise form by the Convocation of Canterbury, in England, in 1715. The closing prayer, however, in the service, which contains the objectionable phrase, "bless the religious performance of this day," is one that is peculiar to our book.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH IN MISSOURI.

II.

The present building of Christ Church is the third structure which it has occupied. The first was on the northwest corner of Third and Chestnut, and cost $7,000, and the lot $400. This was finished in 1829, and sold in 1836, to the Baptists for $13,000. The second was on the southwest corner of Fifth and Chestnut, and cost $75,000, and the land $125 a foot. This was built in 1837, and sold in 1859 for $80,000. The present site, on the corner of Thirteenth and Locust, was bought in 1859 for $43,750, and the entire cost of the property has been $235,000. It reports this year 434 communicants, and Sunday 239 scholars.

The following have been the Rectors of Christ Church, and the period of their incumbency:

- 1819-'21—The Rev. John Ward.
- 1825-'31— " Thomas Horrell.
- 1832-'35— " Wm. Chaderton.
- 1835-'40—The Rt. Rev. Jackson Kemper, D.D.
- 1840-'42— " Rev. F. F. Peake.
- 1844-'54—Rt. Rev. C. S. Hawks, D. D.
- 1854—to the present time—The Rev. M. Schuyler, D. D.

St. Paul's Church had two buildings. The first built on lots on the corner of Fifth and Wash, for which $5,000 was paid. In 1856 this property was sold, and in 1857 the property on the southwest corner of Olive and Seventeenth streets was bought, and the Church and Rectory built, all at a cost of $64,000. It was sold in 1861 for debt, and the parish became extinct.

The following were the Rectors of the parish:

- 1840-'46—The Rev. Peter R. Minard.
- 1846-'48— " Wm. B. Corbyn, D. D.
- 1850-'51— " David P. Sanford.
- 1851-'54— " Wm. A. Leach.
- 1854-'55— " D. Gordon Estes.
- 1856-'60— " Robt. E. Terry.

In St. John's Church the first services were held in 1841, over an engine house on Second street, south of Plum. Then a brick building was put up on leased ground on the corner of Fifth and Spruce. In 1853 the church on the southeast corner of Sixth and Spruce was built at a cost of $8,400. In 1870 the present church on the northeast corner of Hickory and Dolman was begun, and finished in 1872. The communicants reported this year are 237, and the Sunday scholars —.

The following have been the Rectors:

- 1841-'49—The Rev. Whiting Griswold.
- 1849-'57— " Francis J. Clerc.
- 1858-'58— " Wm. R. Johnson.
- 1859-'61— " John Coleman, D. D.
- 1861-'68— " Wm. G. Spencer, D. D.
- 1868-'79— " J. P. T. Ingraham, D. D.
- 1880—to the present time—Rev. Joseph T. Wright.

The present is the only building which Grace Church has had. It was built in 1846; in 1860 it was enlarged. Last year, the ground being twenty feet above the grade, it was cut away, and the church, which had faced the east was let down, and turned so as to face the south, and greatly improved. It reports this year 90 communicants, and 160 Sunday scholars.

The Rectors have been as follows:

- 1845-'48—The Rev. E. H. Cressy.
- 1850-'51— " R. H. Weller.
- 1851-'58— " W. H. Woodward.
- 1858-'60— " Francis J. Clerc.
- 1863-'67—The Rt. Rev. C. S. Hawks, D. D.
- 1868-'73—The Rev. Wm. L. Githens.
- 1873-'74— " Wm. N. Webbe.
- 1874-'77— " Wm. L. Githens.
- 1877-'78— " Abiel Leonard.
- 1878-'81— " J. Gierlow, D. D.
- 1881—to the present time—Rev. J. P. T. Ingraham, D. D.

The present is the second building which St. George's Church has owned. At first it held its services in the school house on Sixth street and in the Methodist Church on Fifth street. The first church on Locust street near Eighth, was built in 1847. It was sold in 1872 for $50,000, and the lot on the northwest corner of Beaumont and Chestnut was bought for $18,056. The property cost $105,000, and the first services were held in the church on Easter Day 1874. The communicants reported this year number 275, and the Sunday scholars 400.

The following have been the Rectors:

- 1845-'52—The Rev. E. C. Hutchinson, D. D.
- 1851-'54— " S. G. Gassaway.
- 1854-'55— " Wm. C. Brown.
- 1855-'57— " Theo. A. Hopkins.
- 1857-'71— " Ed. F. Berkley, D. D.
- 1872-'79— " R. A. Holland.
- 1880—to the present time—Rev. John Fullerton, D. D.

Trinity Church was founded by the Rev. Dr. Hutchinson, as had also St. George's been. At first it met in old St. Paul's Church, corner of Fifth and Wash streets, and then for several years it used rented halls. The corner-stone of the present church, on the northwest corner of Eleventh and Washington Avenue, was laid March 14th, 1860. In 1865 the church was burned, but was immediately rebuilt. It reports this year 275 communicants, and 50 Sunday scholars.

Its Rectors have been as follows:

- 1855-'69—The Rev. E. C. Hutchinson, D. D.
- 1869-'72— " J. D. Easter, D. D.
- 1872-'72— " Joseph Cross, D. D.
- 1873-'76— " Edwin Coan, (under the Bishop.)
- 1876—to the present time—Rev. Geo. C. Betts.

CHILDRENS' COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.

BOOK NOTICES.

HYGIENIC AND SANATIVE MEASURES FOR CHRONIC CATARRHAL INFLAMMATION, by Thos. F. Rumbold, M. D. This compact little volume, on a subject to which the author has given so much attention, has already gone to its second edition. It shows how many other diseases often treated topically have their cause in the inflamed mucous membrane, and then very carefully and intelligibly gives advice how this may be prevented, and being induced how it may be remedied. It may be read with interest and profit in every household. Pp. 174. St. Louis Medical Journal Publishing Company.

The unusual favor with which the midsummer number of THE CENTURY was received is not likely to be withdrawn from its successor, the current issue, which numbers among its special features a fine portrait of Mark Twain, printed as a frontispiece, to accompany a charming paper (by Mr. W. D. Howells), on the humorist and his American rivals; a vigorously critical review of the war in Egypt, by Gen. George B. McClellan, with a forecast of its probable results; an important paper on Bewick, the great wood-engraver, with many illustrations, including reprints of the most notable of his birds, quadrupeds, and tail-pieces—which thus receive the benefit of the best wood-cut printing; a sketch of "The Academic Career of ex President Woolsey, by George P. Fisher, with a reproduction of the gold medal recently presented to Dr. Woolsey by the professors of Yale; an illustrated paper on a Maine coast town, by Noah Brooks.

THE BOOK OPENED, OR, An Analysis of the Bible, by Alfred Nevins D. D. A valuable compend, introducing chapters of the preservation, unity, silence, avoidances, literature, &c., of the Bible; testimony for the Bible, an analysis of its books, chronology, dictionary of names and terms, and much else that is usually only found in more costly introductions. Pp. 840, price $1.50. Religious Publishing House, Indianapolis, Ind.

THE NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for September has for its leading article a very forcible presentation, by Dorman B. Eaton, of the evils produced by the practice of laying "Political Assessments." The paper is noteworthy for its striking array of facts, but more so because it will be universally regarded as the ultimatum of a large and influential section of the Republican Party, addressed to the party leaders. "Oaths in Legal Proceedings," by Judge Edward A. Thomas, is a discussion of the question whether the interests of morality and of public justice alike, would not be promoted by the abrogation of all laws requiring testimony to be given under the sanction of an oath. Thompson B. Maury, late of the Signal Office, contributes an article on "Tornadoes and their Causes," which, in addition to its scientific interest, possesses the merit of suggesting many practical measures "for averting disaster to life and property from wind-storms." "Architecture in America," by Clarence Cook, is marked by a freedom of utterance that is refreshing. Augustus G. Cobb writes of "Earth Burial and Cremation," and J. F. Manning, in an article entitled "The Geneva Award and the Ship-Owners," sets forth the justice of the claims of consignors of cargoes and owners of vessels to indemnification out of the Geneva Award Fund, for losses from the acts of Confederate cruisers. The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR SEPTEMBER.—With September comes the end of vacation, and thoughts of school; and ST. NICHOLAS comes too, evidently determined to make these by no means the least pleasant of the summer days.

It is a bright, sketchy number, filled with short stories, clever verses, and beautiful pictures. Girls will be interested in "The Doll that Could n't Spell her Name," and boys will read with pleasure the story of "The Marlborough Sands"; and both boys and girls will enjoy everything else in the magazine.

There is an amusing and instructive article on elephants, entitled "Our Largest Friends." "Jiro—A Japanese Boy" is a sketch of boy-life in that curious country where every one's birthday comes on the same day; and Maurice Thompson, the celebrated archer, contributes "The Story of the Arbalist," or "Cross-bow."

The "Stories from the Northern Myth" and in this issue with an account of the slaying of Balder, the God of the Summer.

Mrs. Dodge has a very interesting installment of her serial, "Donald and Dorothy," which will be eagerly read by all who have been following the fortunes of these two young people.

ORIENTAL RELIGIONS. By President John Caird, University of Glasgow, and other Authors. Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., Publishers, 280 Lafayette Place, New York.

We have in the neatly printed work named above, and which forms No. 65 of the "Humboldt Library of Science," a series of profound and learned studies upon four of the great historical religions of the world, namely, Brahmanism, Buddhism, Confucianism and Zoroastrianism, or the religion of ancient Persia. These essays are written from a distinctively Christian point of view, yet everywhere the authors' purpose to do full justice to whatever is good and true in these ancient religious systems is manifest. There is not a more interesting object of study than that of the Faiths of Mankind.

In the September WIDE AWAKE George F. Burnes shows a very beautiful drawing as frontispiece for Mrs. Champney's charming Norse story, "The Castle of the Winds," and Mr. Champney has a fine, full-page illustration for Mrs. Evans' humorous story, "How Eldridge Gray Played Little Boy Blue." James Otis gives a phase of his late travels in Florida, under the title "A Young Alligator Catcher." There is also another Southern sketch, "A Little Texas Nurse Girl," with a good drawing by the Georgia artist, J. H. Moser. Long installments are given of the serials "The Trojan War," and "Lost Among Savages." Mr. Talbot's comedy "No Questions Asked" is evidently approaching some remarkable crisis. Miss Harris' "Wild Flower Paper No. VI," is full of color and fragrance, and Miss Humphrey has given it several beautiful illustrations. The Chautauqua Reading Course for the month concludes the series for the Chautauqua year; and on the cover is announced the Reading Course for the year beginning in October. $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Publishers, Boston.

THE CHILDREN'S SAVIOUR, by the Rev. Ed. Osborne, of the Society of St. John the Evangelist, and one of the Assistant Ministers of the Church of the Advent, Boston. The training of the members of this Society for preaching gives them a facility in expressing a meaning simply and clearly. This feature is a marked one in this volume of addresses to children. They are not childish, do not talk down, nor utter platitudes. They were prepared by one who evidently knew and loved children, and had a tender adoration of Jesus Christ. The book has outline illustrations for each address, is bound in handsome cloth, pp. 275, price $1. E. & J. B. Young & Co., Cooper Union, New York.

Why Wear Plasters?

They may reliable, but they can't cure the lame back, for the kidneys are the trouble, and you want a remedy to act directly on their secretions, to purify and restore their healthy condition. Kidney-Wort has that specific action, and at the same time it regulates the bowels perfectly. Don't wait to get sick, but get a package to-day, and cure yourself. Either liquid or dry for sale at the druggists.—[Binghamton Republican.]

THE CHURCH NEWS

THE HYMNAL.

Persons are sometimes puzzled because they fall upon varying editions of the Hymnal, and wonder how it comes about?

The metrical resources of the Church for some time after its organization in this country were very small. Besides the stiff Tate and Brady version of the Psalms, there were only about twenty hymns. Afterward the easier translation in metre of the Psalms, with which we were more familiar, was introduced, and the 208 hymns of the older Prayer Books were selected, and they were a vast gain for the devotions of the Church.

Nearly twenty years ago the collection, as it was called, of Additional Hymns was adopted by the General Convention, published at first separately, then added to the later editions of the Prayer Book. These were largely adopted from the largely increasing wealth of hymnody to the English Church.

The hymns are not a part of the Prayer Book proper, as the Articles are not, and Ordinal; and they used to be numbered separately. They are supplementary books, added at different times, as needs arose. From this arose about this time quite widely the assertion that the Church had no control of its hymnody, and that each congregation was master of its own action. This conclusion does not rightly follow from the facts. It would seem likely that the Church should have had as great control of its hymns as of its prayers; the one being quite as significant of belief as the other, and the songs of the people being quite as potential in coloring devotion and in inciting to action as the other functions. Moreover, as a matter of fact, the Church always maintained its power of legislation and control over the hymns which should be used in its public worship.

When the additional hymns failed yet to supply all the devotional wants of the Church, the General Convention allowed, as a temporary measure, until its commission on the subject could have time to compile from all sources a fit body of hymns, the use of the Hymns Ancient and Modern and Hymns for Church and Home. In 1871 the Hymnal was introduced. It abolished the distinction between selections of Psalms and Hymns, and adopted what were thought to be the best.

The copyright of this book was given to the Corporation for the Relief of Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and the Widows and Children of those who were Deceased; and to it was thus secured a royalty of one-tenth of the price of each copy of the Hymnal sold. For this reason it was forbidden that the Hymnal should be bound up with the Prayer Book. This last had no copyright, and it was not deemed best to hamper the Prayer Book with a royalty charge, nor cause to the Corporation the loss which would be involved in the giving up of the copyright.

In 1874 the Committee brought in a revised edition of the Hymnal, based on the experience gotten by a three years use of the book. It was found that some excellent hymns had been omitted; and as to several others, for instance, the 139, 143 and 177 hymns of the Prayer Book, the versions introduced into the Hymnal, though original, were not such as commended themselves to use. As the original edition had been stereotyped, and it would have involved much loss to have made new plates for the new edition, and the changes were not great, it was arranged that certain hymns in the original edition, which had not proven to be very useful, were cut out of the plates, and the new ones put in; and the Prayer Book version of the above hymns were added at the end. In this way it will be seen that now and then a hymn given out in the earlier edition does not correspond with one of the same number in the latter.

There are probably a hundred or more hymns in the collection that have never been used anywhere in public worship, and probably never will be. It would be small loss if they could be taken away. The judgment of the Hymnal Committee, while generally excellent, ran sometimes in strange directions. They were plied with pleas from persons, who for some reason were attached to certain verses, than none others ever could see the beauty of. The chairman of the Committee in the House of Bishops declared that in the later edition the third verse in the old 89th hymn,—" 'Tis done, the great transaction's done," was restored because Virginia insisted that it must have it.

At the same time there are all the while emerging hymns which deserve and will ultimately win their way into recognition and use. But it is probable that for years to come our own Hymnal will not be changed by authority.

THE CHANCEL.

This paper comes to churches of differing sizes and degrees of ability, so that it cannot be supposed that what is said in general will apply to all places. Some suggestion may, however, perhaps be ventured as to arrangement of this important part of our churches.

The size of the chancel of course differs, according to that of the church, and as there is to be a chancel proper, or a portion of the nave is for the present used for that purpose. It may be said in general that it is generally too small. In many, two clergymen can with difficulty minister together within the rail. The better plan is now prevailing of having the lecture and prayer desk without the rail. The portion within the rail should be raised a step above that which is without, which step serves as a kneeling ledge for the communicants. The rail is often too low, making it difficult for the officiant at the communion. It should be about two feet high, and the standards should be few and light; they have no weight to carry.

The height of the chancel floor depends upon the length of the church. It should in any event be three steps high, how much more depends upon the size of the church. The Holy Table should be about thirty inches high, and need not in smaller churches be more than eighteen inches wide. Its length should be proportioned to the width of the chancel. It should seldom be less than four feet long. It should be raised on a foot pace, wide enough at the ends for the minister to kneel at, and somewhat broader in front.

The altar should not be diverted from its purpose to become a flower stand. Potted plants should never be placed upon the altar. We would not have them on our own tables. It is best to have a ledge made above, where flowers can better be arranged, and where they will not interfere with the proper objects of the Holy Table. In some places there is a tendency to overdo in the use of flowers. The rubric in the communion service requiring at a certain time the elements then to be placed on the Holy Table, requires a table, sometimes called a credence, or a ledge, on which until then the elements should be placed.

In building, the chancel windows should not come down as low as those of the nave, because the floor is higher, and they need not go down behind the altar. Indeed, if the chancel is towards the east or south, the larger window at the end should not come within six feet or more of the floor, because of the sunlight, which else would dazzle the eyes of the congregation in looking towards the clergyman. Care too, in this and any case should be had in choosing the color and tone of the glass.

Attention, too, should be paid to the ventilation of the chancel, and in our climate the window sashes should be made so that they may open. Great suffering comes from a forgetfulness of this.

The chancel, as the part of the church where the holiest offices of our religion are celebrated, and that on which the attention of the congregation is focussed, calls for a higher ornamentation than the rest of the church. It should not be too dark; it should never be tawdry. The bareness of the walls may often be relieved by a very simple device of banners of varied but correct shape and sentences, made with heavy velvet paper. Many excellent effects for the different seasons may be produced in this way. In the larger use latterly made of paper hangings for interior ornamentation, there should great care be had not to use in church patterns which have about them the suggestion of the parlor or sitting room. The wood work in chancels should not be painted, but should be treated with oil and varnish, so as to show the natural grain of the wood. The carpet should be generally of crimson color, with a small figure.

The limited ability which will only allow the congregation generally to use plated ware at home, may apologize for the use of such also for the communion vessels in church. But the tabernacle of Hebrew pilgrim days must give place to the silver and gold, when with greater wealth, they come to their permanent home. Earlier in the history of the congregation than is usually the case, it should provide itself with proper vessels of silver. A flagon is only needed when the parish gets large; two chalices will suffice until then.

Whatever is used should be kept clean. Not seldom the dregs of a previous communion remain in the chalices, and the linen is stained and soiled. This is irreverent and needless. Generally it is practicable to put in charge of the sacred vessels and the vestments a guild or a number of devout ladies, who will be glad to take care of the appointments of the chancel.

PERSONAL.

—Bishop Seymour and other gentlemen of Springfield, Ill., have bought a tract of land on the eastern shore of Green Bay, Mich., known as Red Banks, which they will beautify and use as a summer resort.

—The clerical obituary of last month include the names of Rev. E. Owen Simpson of Pennsylvania, Wm. Vaux, U. S. A., of California, James E. Homans of Long Island, Deacon of Kentucky, Dr. E. W. Peet, formerly of Iowa.

—The Rev. Dr. Egar has been elected at Fribourg, Professor of Church History, and the Rev. J. McB. Sterritt of Penn., as Professor of Ethics and Apologetics.

—Mr. Robert G. Ingersoll not long since invested the larger portion of his property in a silver mine which has proved to be a swindle on a large scale, to the destruction of his fortune.

—Bishop Huntington is to deliver a course of lectures this year at the Andover Theological Seminary, on the Christian Use of Property.

—Bishop Quintard tells how a colored clergyman in his diocese maintains order. He keeps his people quiet during preaching because, as he told them on the last occasion of my visit to the parish, "My brethren, you must not shout, you must listen to the preaching and drink it all in, you know that when you shout it kinder puts the Bishop on a strain."

—On a recent Sunday Bishop Kip in St. John's Church, Oakland, Cal., confirmed the Rev. David McClure, D. D., of the Presbyterian Church in Oakland. Dr. McClure has applied for orders in the Church.

—The Bishop of Salisbury has adopted the custom of addressing the question in the confirmation office to each candidate singly, using the Christian name—Post.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland is down for four lectures in the next summer session of the Concord School of Philosophy.

—The Rev. I. W. Barr, rector of the St. Paul's church, Leavenworth, has been appointed Post-Chaplain at the Fort, while still retaining his rectorship of the church. He is well and kindly known on this side of the line.

—The younger Dr. Tyng, who is now living in Paris as the agent of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, has been implicated in a suit growing out of Wall Street stock speculations in the fall of 1882, from which he is said to have made heavy losses.

—Bishop Perry of Iowa, is East, and is to be in Newport during October and return to his diocese in November.

—A bust of Mr. Longfellow is to be put up in Westminster Abbey.

—Mrs. Weston, authoress of the Calvary Catechism, etc., has just died. She wrote other most valuable Sunday school manuals, but of the Calvary Catechism it is said that over two million copies have been sold; its annual sale is over 70,000; and it has been translated into other languages.

—The Bishop of Newcastle repeated a few weeks ago in a speech in reply to the welcome given him in his new See a good story told him by a recently consecrated prelate, viz., that a great merchant prince had said that for the first six months a new bishop could do nothing wrong, and afterwards he could do nothing right.

—It seems to be the custom now for about every one who dies, having secured a large property, to leave a legacy for some religious or humane object. Mr. Jesse Hoyt of New York has left $100,000 for a city library and public park at East Sanginaw, Michigan.

—It will be noticed that our old friend, the Rev. Mr. Thorpe has removed from New York and taken clerical duty in North Carolina.

—One of the charges for which attempt is being made to displace Mr. Lowell, the American Minister in London, is that he disparages the Unitarian body to which he belongs, and persists in attending the English church.

—The Archbishop of Canterbury is seriously sick.

—The story is told of Bishop Philander Chase, who had a splendid personal presence, that a countryman once accosted him as "General." "I am not General," he curtly replied. "I beg pardon, I mean Judge." "I am not Judge, either." "Well then, Bishop." "Why do you call me Bishop. How do you know that I am a Bishop?" "Well, I knowed," said the man of homespun sense, "that what ever you was, you was at the top."

—Bishop Dunlop is about to change his residence to Las Vegas for convenience in getting about his work.

THE Mexico Convocation will meet in St. Mary's church, Fayette, Wednesday night, Sept. 28th. The subject for discussion, "Baptism." The necessity which exists that the members of the Church should be better instructed in relation to it. Who to administer it, who to receive it, and what it does for those who receive it.

JOSEPH FRANKLIN, Treasurer.

GENERAL NEWS.

In 1824, in the convention of South Carolina, a committee was appointed to consider the expediency of erecting a church upon shares, the rent of the pews to be devoted to the support of the Episcopate!

The clergy of Charleston, S. C., have passed the following resolutions touching burials:

WHEREAS, The burial service prescribed by our church is, in our judgment, a full and complete committal of the body of the deceased to the dust out of which it was formed; therefore,

Resolved, That we will officiate at no funeral at which any subsequent religious service shall be contemplated.

A late member of St. Thomas' church, New York, has given a fund to All Saints' Cathedral, Albany, yielding annually $5,000, toward the maintenance of the Dean, thus rendering it possible for Bishop Doane to secure the best ability in the church at a salary of $7,000 and a house. The gentleman also gave $1,000 to obtain a "stall" like those attached to the English Deaneries. A site for the new cathedral has been purchased for $70,000, the gift of the Hon. Erastus Corning.

The knit-goods manufacturers declare that they must close their shops and throw thousands out of employment, unless they get more "protection." Present protection 35 per cent. Protection demanded 85 per cent. Strange that the "infant industries," notwithstanding a hundred years of strong pap are always at the point of death.

It is said that the corresponding pews in churches on the California coast do not rent for more than one third of what like pews in cities of similar size rent for in the East.

The Church of the Holy Faith, Santa Fe, has recently been opened. It is, so far as it is furnished, solid and good. It cost $6,500, but is not complete yet. A secular paper speaking of Bishop Dunlop, through whose exertion this church has been erected, says that he is an indefatigable worker, and beloved by all his people.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Brooklyn has suspended the priest in charge of the Roman Catholic church at Coney Island for accepting $2,000 being the amount of gate money collected on a single day at the Brighton Beach race course, and he has returned the money.

The enthusiasm that will carry the temperance movement over the entire country like a tidal wave is fully possessed by Commodore Davidson, of the packet line of steamboats on the Mississippi between St. Louis and St. Paul. Paid $12,000 for the bar privileges on the boats. On his conversion in 1874 he broke the contract and would not allow liquor to be sold on any of the boats, and still persists in the determination, although offered $14,000 per annum for the privilege.

It is reported of a rector in Philadelphia, that he has offered a silver dollar to 113 different tramps if they would remove a pile of sand from one part of his yard to another. With one consent they had all made excuse, and he keeps his bright coin.

The Roman Catholic book publishers, recently in convention assembled, says: "Notwithstanding the great increase of Catholics within the last twenty five years, the average sale of any new Catholic book publisher within the past ten years has not reached by one-half the number of copies sold of similar books twenty years ago."

The chime of bells of St. Michael's, Charleston, South Carolina, was made in England before the Revolution. At that time, in order to save them from injury, the bells were taken on to England, being brought back after peace was restored. At the beginning of the late civil war, these bells, along with all others in the confederacy, were broken up to be cast into artillery; but somehow they were never cast. After the peace, it was discovered that the firm of bellmakers which had originally cast the chimes was still existing, and also the molds from which they were made. The pieces were shipped and cast again, and are now in the tower of St. Michael's. An eventful history of a very sweet chime of bells.

Attention has recently been called to the long rectorship of the Rev. Dr. Morton of St. James', Philadelphia, of 52 years. Dr. Shelton of St. Paul's, Buffalo, and Dr. Edson of St. Ann's Lowell, has had still longer incumbencies, and Dr. Brown of Newburg, N. Y., has been rector 62 years. Dr. Walker, who died recently in South Carolina, had held his rectorship 57 years.

An English paper furnishes a good illustration of the necessity of typographical accuracy. It makes the statement that a convention of drunkards has been held in the United States, and then proceeds to moralize upon the supposed fact. By the addition of the letter r it made the religious sect of the Dunkards an illustration of the evils of intemperance, and turned them, one and all, into drunkards.

We were recently in a Church bookstore in New York, and a person asked us whether the great number of clergymen who are in the city, apparently without any fixed work, was any test of the redundancy of clergymen in the country. He said that on every Friday and Saturday there are fifteen or twenty clergymen there waiting for places in which they may officiate the next Sunday. It is a sort of exchange. The informant stated that he was in one such parish, and the warden told him that they had fifty different clergymen candidating; as he freely volunteered the information, all sorts of men, one a rector of a parish in a large city who wanted to strengthen himself at home by getting a call to some other parish, others of not the strictest correctness of life. Such a condition of things is a shame. Perhaps many of these clergymen would not be of any benefit to the West; but certainly no impression of the surfeit of devoted clergymen could be formed from the crowds who throng aimlessly about the cities.

The colored church in Chicago, of which the Rev. Wm. Thompson, formerly of this city is minister, is engaged now in the erection of a brick church with stone dressings. The land costing $4,000, has been bought by money given in the city, and the $10,000 for the building was given by one person. Oh, that some one in this city would do like things for our good Samaritan church here.

The annual drink bill of America is $700,000,000. Massachusetts says 84 per cent. of the crime in that commonwealth comes from strong drink.

It is a little interesting to know that on Christmas day, 1809, the Rev. Abiel Holmes, a Congregational minister, delivered a sermon in Christ church, Cambridge, Mass., at the request of the wardens and vestry of the parish. This was rather unusual.

There is a certain town in the State, in Barton county, Liberal by name, which has secured for itself a disagreeable notoriety as having no church nor willing to have any, no minister, no Sunday, and "no hell." It is founded, its asserts, on secular and scientific principles. It is asking the East to help it establish and endow an atheistic hospital. It will be interesting to watch its progress on such principles. The State is not helped by the proclamation of such a community in it.

One of the heaviest shipments ever made from St. Louis consisted of a train-load of flour lately sent out over the Louisville & Nashville railroad. The bill of lading represented 4,000 barrels.

The Registrar of the Diocese of Massachusetts reports that 27 churches in that diocese which have transferred their property to the Trustees of Donation, and that several other parishes will probably convey their property this year. This is for the purpose of preventing the alienation of the estate thus conveyed. In ten years nearly $6,000,000 have been raised in that diocese for church purposes.

An Impossibility.

Deserving articles are always appreciated. The exceptional cleanliness of Parker's Hair Balsam makes it popular. Gray hairs are impossible with its occasional use.

When Ladies are Attractive.

All ladies know their faces are more attractive when free from pimples. Parker's Ginger Tonic is popular among them because it banishes impurities from blood and skin and makes the face glow and the eye sparkle with health.

MISCELLANY.

Obedience.—A newspaper skillfully says: "The best way to keep a boy at home is to tell him to stay there, and make it a point to have him obey you. Begin early and you have the problem solved." In other words, the lesson is that a parent should assert his authority and have it recognized and respected by the boy, and that then there will be no trouble. This applies to other things in the management of boys—to church going, for instance, about which there is so much difficulty of theory and practice in the news papers and among the people. If parents wish a lesson in respect to what is wisest in this matter it can be taught in such words as these: "The best way to get a boy to go to church is to tell him to go and make it a point to have him obey you. Begin early and you have the problem solved." This sets aside the usual theory that if the services are not "attractive" to him he ought to stay away.

—The General Assembly of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church have resolved, after a full discussion, that "the doctrine of sinless perfection is not authorized by the Scriptures, and is a dogma of dangerous tendencies." A shrewd business man put the same conclusion more tersely in a bit of personal counsel to the writer years ago, and observation since has confirmed its practical wisdom: "If you have occasion to have any business dealings with a man who is 'perfectly sanctified,' look out for him sharply."

—A little boy was deeply interested in reading "The Pilgrim's Progress," the characters in that wonderful book being all living men and women to him. One day he came to his grandma and said, "Grandma, which of all the people do you like the best?" "I like Christian," was the reply, giving the little boy her reasons. "Which to you like the best?" Looking up in her face with some hesitation he said slowly: "I like Christiana." Why, my son? "Because she took the children with her, grandma."

—Dr. Elliott, who was well acquainted with the celebrated Col. Ethan Allen, visited him at the time when his daughter was sick and near to death. He was introduced to the library, when the Colonel read to him some of his writings, with much self-complacency, and asked, "Is not that well done?" While they were thus employed, a messenger entered and informed Col. Allen that his daughter was dying and desired to speak with him. He immediately went to her chamber, accompanied by Dr. Elliott, who was desirous of witnessing the interview. The wife of Col. Allen was a pious woman, and had instructed her daughter in the principles of Christianity. As soon as her father appeared at her bedside she said to him, "I am about to die; shall I believe in the principles you have taught me, or shall I believe as my mother taught me?" He became extremely agitated; his chin quivered, his whole frame shook; and after waiting a few moments, he replied, "Believe as your mother has taught you."

—A clerical friend says that he can never give out a notice in Church but that some one gets it wrong, is not listening or something. If so with a notice, it is quite the same with the sermon. When Parson Milton, on one occasion, failed to make himself understood by Mark Currier, as he discoursed of the angel who came and took a live coal from the altar and touched therewith the lips of Isaiah, Mark came the next day and wanted to know "about that old colt of yern, you give notice about in the sermon, that an Indian come down from Haverhill and took it by the halter." The parson was too much for Mark the next Sunday when he gave out his text—Mark. Mark was on his feet in a moment, when the preacher concluded his text by saying, "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright," etc. Mark we are told, kept wide awake that time.

—A little child once heard a strange minister pray with his head thrown backward, his nose pointing skyward, and with a loudness as though seven thunders had uttered their voices, and she whispered to her mother's ear: "Would he have to pray so loud if he lived nearer to God?" "No, my child, the nearer we get to God the more hushed our voices are."

—A St. Louis editor accidentally received in his morning mail, proof sheets intended for the employees of a religious publication house, and, after glancing over them, rushed to the city editor yelling: "Why in the world didn't you get a report of that big flood? Even that slow, old religious paper across the way is ahead of you. Send out your force for full particulars—only one family saved. Interview the old man. His name is Noah."

THAT RICH EXPERIENCE.

A Free Press Interview Sustained and Its Course Revealed.

(Detroit Free Press.)

A few months ago an physician with a prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuineness of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The seal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears below will abundantly show. In order, however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are herewith given from the interview in question.

After an exchange of courtesies and a few reminiscences about the war, in which the doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance, upon which he said:

"Yes, I have improved in health since you last saw me, and I hope also in many other ways. One thing, however, I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor, to do, and that is I have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now, I am a physician, and of the 'old school' order, too; but I have, after years of experience and observation, come to the conclusion that truth is the highest of all things, and if the prejudice or bigotry stand in the way of truth, so much the worse for them they are certain to be crushed sooner or later. Why, when I knew you in Detroit, I would no sooner have thought of violating the code of ethics laid down by the profession, or of prescribing anything out of the regular order, than I would of amputating my hand. Now, however, I prescribe and advise those things which I believe to be adapted to cure, and which my experience has proved to be such."

"How did you come to get such heretical ideas as these, doctor?"

"Oh, they are the result of my experience and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver, and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in various parts of the body; a lack of interest in everything around me; a loss of appetite; headaches; all these disagreeable symptoms were added to pains which were both acute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to health in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was this that proved a revelation to me. That this was the starting point, and my prejudices faded rapidly after that I can assure you. I went to reading extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and since that time I have discovered many things of real value to humanity. Why only a few days ago I advised a lady who was suffering from a serious female difficulty and displacement to use the same remedy which cured me. I saw her this morning and she is nearly well; the pain and inflammation are all gone and she is around as usual. We have no right in the medical fraternity to sit back and declare there is no such thing as improvement or advancement, or that we have a monopoly of the remedies which nature has given to mankind. There are great changes going on in every department of life, and there are great developments in medicine as well. Thousands of people die every year from supposed typhoid fever, rheumatism or other complaints, when in reality it is from trichina, caused by eating poorly cooked and diseased pork. Thousands of children are dying every year from dropsy as the apparent sequel to scarlatina, when in reality it is from diseased kidneys which have become weakened by the fever they have just had."

"Well, doctor, you have got some new truths here, certainly, but they sound very reasonable to me."

"Well, whether they are reasonable or not, I have demonstrated to my own satisfaction that they are true, and I propose to stand by them, no matter how much opposition I may raise by doing so. Any man, be he politician, preacher or physician, who is so considerate of his pocketbook or of his own personal ends as to stultify himself by suppressing the manifest truth, is unworthy the name of man, and unworthy the confidence of the public whom he serves."

The above are some of the principal points in the interview referred to. Now for the sequel. The following outspoke letter from the doctor himself which has just been received is published in full:

Editor Detroit Free Press:

Some time ago a reporter of your paper had an interview with me which he said he would like to publish. I consented on condition that you would not mention my name until I gave you permission. I have now accomplished the purpose I had in mind, and wish to say to you (which you can publish or not as you see fit) that I had debated for a long time whether I would shake off some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and tell the truth, or not. When I looked back, and thought of the tortures, like those described by Dante in his trip to the infernal regions, which I endured from dyspepsia, and recalled how much I would have given at that time for the relief which I have since obtained, I determined that I would take the step so long meditated, and thereby discharge a duty to my fellow men. If I could thereby save one poor mortal one night of the terrible suffering I endured, I would be fully satisfied, be the other consequences what they might.

My dyspeptic condition was produced by a torpid liver, which did not, as a consequence, remove the bile from the blood. This produced derangement of the stomach, inflammation of its coats, dyspepsia, constipation, headache, depression of spirits, yellow complexion, fat-covered eyes, chills and fever; in short, I was miserable to the last degree. I appealed in vain to my books, to my skill and to my fellow physicians. The mystery of my ill-health grew deeper. I traveled everywhere—exhausted all authorized expedients—but to no purpose!

When in this frame of mind, desperately in need of help, but expecting none, one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to some unusual cures wrought by a prominent remedy and urged me to try it. I emphatically declined. But secretly, and with the firm determination that I would never let anybody know what I had done, I began its use. It was only an experiment you know, but for that matter, all medical treatment is experimental. Well, to make a long, and surprising story short, I experienced a sort of physical revolution. My skin got a better color. My liver resumed its functions. I no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathartics. My headaches disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not convinced. "Nature did it," I reasoned. But determined to push the investigation to the extreme, while I was in active work, I tried the effect of the remedy on my patients afflicted with kidney, liver and urinary diseases, watching every development carefully and studiously. Then I was completely disarmed, for the remedy stood every test imposed!

Under such convincing circumstances, that matter of confessing my cure became a question of conscience and of duty to humanity. "Here is a remedy," I said, "that has done for me what the best medical skill of the country could not accomplish"—and as an honorable man I will not suppress the facts. I therefore write you and most unhesitatingly assert that for all diseases of the kidneys, liver, stomach or urinary organs which are amenable to treatment, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever known or used, and since physicians have so much ill success in the treatment of diseases of organs, I am prepared to accept all the consequences when I say that they are, if conscientious, in duty bound to use this pure vegetable compound in their practice.

Yours very truly,
J. W. SMITH, M. D.

Statements so outspoken as the above and coming from such a reliable source are valuable beyond question. They conclusively show not only the power of the remedy which has become so well known and popular, but the great importance of attention in time to the first indications of declining health. When professional men of such high standing sink their prejudice and willingly declare their belief in that which they know to be valuable, the public may confidently follow their example.

If the music selected amounts to just $1, send only the 15 pictures, your name and address. If in excess of $1, postage stamps may be enclosed for such excess.

We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbins' Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper.

A box of this Soap contains sixty bars. Any lady buying a box, and sending us sixty bars of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

THE Bishop has felt himself obliged reluctantly to give over his purpose to go to Virginia in October to attend the Church Congress.

ONE gets great encouragement from a circumstance like this. The News, relating mainly to our own affairs in the diocese, is not everywhere taken and not always read at home. Indeed, there are some who seem never to have heard of it. It is, however, read and thought about, and our interests followed by some at a distance. The Bishop received an amount from a clergyman in New York, once belonging to this diocese, towards the special objects mentioned in last month's NEWS. This act of thoughtfulness made the sun shine more brightly that day.

THE Bishop acknowledges the number of kind and prompt responses to the request which he made for early issues of the Church Almanacs for the files of the diocese. He has now the numbers complete since '50. If any persons have any earlier numbers, excepting '45, which he has, he will be obliged for them. He can still supply duplicates of '55, '58, '69, '70, '71, '79, '80, '81, and '82. The Bishop also gratefully acknowledges the receipt of $10 from a communicant of the Church of the Holy Communion for the benevolent purposes indicated in his paper on "Fall Work," and also $5 from Mr. Dana Mansfield.

THEOLOGICAL EDUCATION FUND.

The regular time for the making of our annual canonical offering in all the parishes for the above fund is on Thanksgiving Day, or the Sunday nearest to it. There is the greatest urgency that the amount paid in should be as large as possible. The treasury is empty, and their claims upon it now, the inability to meet which is causing embarrassment.

We are not able or disposed to confer such bounty in this diocese on our Candidates for Orders that this is likely to draw them by unworthy motives to the ministry. But almost each one needs during the year an amount averaging $150 each, during his candidacy, for living expenses, clothing, books and travel. We have now five candidates, and it can readily be seen what our receipts should be. Last year, however, our receipts were only $421 61, of which $153 came from interest; and the year before the receipts were less.

This fund is one of great importance, as on it depends our ability to secure a replenishing of our ministry. It should commend itself the more to those who not having themselves given their son to the ministry should buy him back by enabling another young man who is disposed to prosecute his work for preparation. Notice of the object and importance of the collection should be given.

TO THOSE INTERESTED.

In small places in the diocese it is often difficult to send small amounts to the treasurers of the different funds. In this condition of things the Bishop does frequently consent to take charge of such amounts, and see that they get to the respective treasurers. He does not prefer to do this, but is very glad to thus convey promptly to their destination the offerings of the people. He always insists, however, upon the treasurer of the parish or mission first counting the money and entering it upon his accounts.

Persons are often deterred from subscribing to the News because of the smallness of the amount to be sent, and uncertainty as to the direction of the publisher. In such case the Bishop during his visitation will always be very glad to take names and amounts for subscription to the News. He reckons it one of the most important minor agencies for good in the diocese. He asks that the names and post office address of the persons to whom it is desired that the News should be sent be plainly written out, and enclosed with the amounts in an envelope, that there may be no confusion.

The Bishop is extremely desirous of coming into communication with all Church people in the State who are not now under parochial care. He knows of many and visits them as he can who are away from the church, and are still maintaining their attachment to it. But besides these whom he knows there are hundreds who are all the time removing into the state far away from clergymen and all ministrations. He wants to learn of the names and addresses of all such. It will be useful, as he may himself come to them, or secure to them otherwise a service. He knows that the News will directly reach but few of them, but if clergymen or others knowing of or learning about such will set on foot inquiries, and let him know of all such isolated families or individuals, he will consider it a favor. We can thus know better how to push our lines. Will all persons having such information or at any time gaining it, consider this as a personal request?

EXAMINING CHAPLAINS.

It seems evident from a consideration of the general canons of the Church that it is designed that, after their appointment by the Bishop, they shall form a body having an understanding among themselves, as to the manner in which they interpret their duties under the law, what they will require as satisfactory evidence of the passing of the canonical examinations by the Candidate, what portions of the subjects each examiner shall specially prepare himself and act as examiner upon.

In this sense, when a Candidate is to be examined the Bishop would refer him to the Examiners as a body; they would choose two of their number, most convenient in location to the Candidate, or who were acting on the subjects then to be examined upon, and arrange for a time in which the work was to be done.

In this way the whole body could better distribute their work of preparation; one or two for languages and exegesis; others for history and liturgies; others for dogmatics and polity. The whole body would act in any two of its members. It could come to a common understanding as to the interpretation of its duties. More weight would attach to such concerted and intelligent action.

Of course what is thus contemplated may necessarily have some modification in such a vast territory as is included in this diocese, in the distance of the chaplains from each other and the candidates. It may sometimes be necessary, as is contemplated as a possibility, for some other presbyter to be appointed for a special occasion to assist the chaplain. The diocese should repay the travelling expenses involved in this public duty.

An arrangement like this would do somewhat to relieve the strain of apprehension on the part of some Standing Committees as to the value which should attach to the certificate of examiners as to the satisfactory passing of theological tests on the part of candidates. As the Canons read, there needs assurance to be had by the Standing Committee before recommending a candidate for ordination, on the same points of doctrinal correctness which the chaplains are appointed and with better facilities to secure. Before an entire understanding can be had, the canons must be amended so as more clearly to define duties, to prevent diverse constructions touching the same subjects. If the Standing Committee was in terms discharged from responsibility, and this were lodged wholly in the examiners, with a provision perhaps that these last shall be nominated by the Bishop and elected by the Convention, there would be an abatement of the friction, where this exists. But until this is done, there would be greater assurance in the results to which the examiners come, if they would in the manner perhaps as sketched out above, organize their work. This, too, seems to be the intention of the canon.

THE TEMPERANCE MOVEMENT.

The interest in this matter did not begin here with the coming of our late guests. Brought before the Convention more than a year ago, it received the attention of a committee which reported at the last Convention, and was by order continued and enlarged, and which, it may be presumed, will propose a course of action at the next Convention. The matter is of abiding and increasing importance, and one about which personal opinions and positions will need to be defined.

The postponement of action as to the organization of a branch of the Church Temperance Society at the present time did not arise from any disposition to shelve or ignore the subject. It can very well be looked at and considered further, before we are quite ready to say in what precise form parochial or diocesan action should take. Healthy and persistent interest and action would best start from the parish, and so combine for combined diocesan effort. An interested clergyman will gather those who are interested in his parish, or whom he wishes to help; or else will add this feature to some existing parish organization. It will require trouble and ingenuity to maintain interest; it will take him out of his pleasant study for some evenings. But all work requires effort. There is too much tendency to locate all work in Sunday, with few parish activities, at least as including men, during the week. Even the Romanists, who are supposed to depend largely on functions, have organized their orders, and knights and sodalities, to an extent that shame us. Churchmen in a parish hang too loosely together; they hardly ever meet together or know each other as such. Those who have wide social connexions otherwise do not so much notice this. They look out of their secure positions, and wonder that anything more than a Sunday morning service respectably conducted should be required in a well ordered parish. But those who are younger, and not settled, with perhaps no homes, do miss social life, and go where they can get it.

The normal outcome of parish temperance agencies is the diocesan organization. In the meantime, before this is ordered, a committee of clergymen and laymen was authorized at the conference held at the Church of the Holy Communion on the 25th ult. The office of this committee was to gather and disseminate information about the matter of temperance in general and the Church Temperance Society in particular, its scope and its methods. This will enable clergymen and people to understand what is proposed, and what they have undertaken, so as to qualify them to organize this work in their parishes and the diocese, when they are ready and prepared for it.

The Bishop has appointed the following gentlemen as the committee thus authorized: the Revs. B. E. Reed, W. W. Silvester, F. B. Scheetz, J. P. T. Ingraham, D. D., and J. De Forest; Mesrs. L. E. Alexander, Gains Paddock, M. S. Snow, Henry F. Post and H. H. Denison.

To them is committed the interesting and important matters involved, and to them many who take an earnest interest in the subject will look for instant and effective results. The writer of this has received within the last fortnight many evidences, and from widely distant places, of the gratification felt that the Church is moving in this matter.

BISHOP THOROLD AND MR. GRAHAM.

The Bishop of Rochester made his expected visit to St. Louis on his way West, arriving in St. Louis on Saturday evening, 23d ult. The Rev. Mr. Silvester met him, and brought him to the Bishop's residence. On Sunday morning he preached in Christ church on our Lord's temptation, laying thus the foundation of what he subsequently said more distinctly on the subject of temperance. The large church was filled. The sermon was thoughtful and suggestive, and showed the deep spiritual earnestness of the man. Unfortunately, however, the use of deep tones, and a habit of dropping his voice at the end of sentences, on this occasion and afterwards, prevented his being heard distinctly at any great distance. In the English manner, he carried his Oxford hat with him into the pulpit.

In the afternoon with Bishop Robertson he visited the Sunday-school of the Holy Communion, and spoke to the children. He mentioned that he knew very well the authoress of the hymn which they had just sung, "The Old, Old Story," and had seen the music before it was published. He greatly enjoyed the singing, and said that, if he came to St. Louis again, he would like to meet and address the Sunday-school teachers. He was struck, as the children filed past him, with the number of those having a brunette complexion, and thought they must be French. He is accustomed to the light, Saxon countenance.

At night, St. George's was packed, many stood throughout, and hundreds went away. The Bishop being unaccustomed to speak from a lectern, had it moved back within the rails, so as to secure a backing. He preached eloquently and without manuscript, on the Macedonian vision. His description of the locality was very vivid; and his protestation in behalf of the far off sights which all those have had who have ever done great things, and of the steady calling westward from the lower forms of civilization to those which were older, formed a fit introduction to his pleading for a higher and purer manhood which it is the office of Temperance to call out. He said afterward that he would always specially remember the service from the hearty way in which the appropriate hymn "Sun of my Soul" was sung.

Mr. Graham was detained by the delay of the train, so that he did not reach St. John's for the morning service as expected, and much to their disappointment. The Rev. Messrs. Wright and De Forest took him to St. Paul's, South St. Louis, where he made an address. At night he was at Mount Calvary, and made a ringing speech, which stirred a real enthusiasm.

On Monday morning the Bishops went out to see the city. Among other places they went on 'Change, and were introduced to the President and many merchants. Among others, Mr. John Pender, an English M. P., visiting the country, who has an enormous capital invested in telegraph companies, and who volunteered, in conversation about him, to send a message over to learn of the condition of the Archbishop of Canterbury, who is next door neighbor of the Bishop of Rochester in Croydon. It came the next morning, a long message, covering four sheets of paper. The Bishop admired the arrangements and condition of St. Luke's Hospital.

In the afternoon a conference on the subject of temperance was held at the Church of the Holy Communion. Addresses were made by Mr. Graham and the Bishop of Rochester. The proposition to appoint a committee of twelve was carried to gather and disseminate information; but the matter of forming a diocesan branch of the Church Temperance Society was postponed because of the appointment already at the last Diocesan Convention of a committee on this subject. The meeting was attended by nearly two hundred interested Churchmen, and the discussion was engaged in by Dr. Fulton, Rev. Messrs. Silvester, Reed, De Forest, Mr. L. E. Alexander and others. There was a deep feeling manifested on the subject. The Bishop presided.

At the public meeting at St. George's at night the church was completely filled. The Bishop of the diocese presided, with the Bishop of Rochester at his right. On the platform were seated a number of our clergy, Rev. Drs. Niccolls, Ganse, Eliot, Sonnenschein, Foy, Goodell, Rhodes, and Messrs. Clifton, Haggerty, Black, and Messrs. Bent, Triplett, Prof. Snow, R. Graham, Governor Gratz Brown and others. After a hymn and two collects Bishop Robertson said that the presence of such a vast audience showed the deep and wide hold which the subject which had brought them together had upon the community. Back of it were lying principles which affected almost every one present. The summons to a more earnest consideration of the subject of temperance has its force in the call for greater purity in manly character; the more strenuous emergencies of modern life calls for men at their best; the broken and desolated homes, the weary, over-burdened wives, the children with worse than no parent, the victims destroyed in the prime of life; the heavy taxes resulting from the liquor traffic; the crowded prisons and poor houses, all these features compel us each to open anew the question, and consider our own personal relations to it; and for its cause and its permanent cure its consideration on Christian grounds are eminently necessary.

Mr. Graham, who at noon had addressed nearly 800 workers in Liggett's tobacco factory on the economical features of temperance, and who had given him a most attentive hearing, made the first address. He always speaks with great vigor and heartiness. He indicated the principles of the Church Temperance Society, and urged organization on similar lines in this city. After him Gov. Brown made a forcible and graceful address, urging the policy of prohibition, showing how idle it was to ignore the present intense feeling in the country pressing on for vigorous remedies against an evil which was destroying character and burdening the State.

The Bishop of Rochester followed with a proposal of wider and more inclusive tests, and showed that in England they had secured wider results, and among those who greatly influenced opinion, and who had always stood apart from extravagant methods, by including in their scope of membership not merely those who saw their way clear to total abstinence, but also those who were ready to interest, and discouragement of all public drinking. His address was bright with anecdote and humor, and yet with an undercurrent of pathos. He urged upon those who could bear it the importance of abstinence for example sake; the need of coffee houses and the work that ladies can do to afford counter and higher interests and entertainments for those likely to be tempted.

Prof. Snow moved then in handsome terms a vote of thanks to the Bishop, Mr. Graham and Gov. Brown, with an appreciative reference to the large and important interest in whose behalf they had spoken. This was responded to by Rev. Dr. Eliot, who referred to his residence in this city of 48 years, and of what he had seen of the ravages of fire, and war and pestilence in that time, and declared that the results of all these had not been as devastating as that of intoxicating drink. He urged prohibition, and said that if this was voted, the people would sustain it. The audience was evidently in sympathy with strong measures. Throughout it was remarked with what frankness and yet kindness views very diverse were expressed by those who, with an identical end in view, preferred different methods of reaching it.

The Bishop of the diocese, before putting the vote, announcing the hymn and giving the blessing, said that these conclusions at least had been reached: (1) that existing laws repressing the liquor traffic should be rigidly enforced; (2) that, as laws in advance of public sentiment were to that extent ineffective, there should be individual reading, and thought, and opinion—formed on this which is likely to be the coming moral and political issue of the next five years; (3) that all ameliorating agencies, friendly inns, coffee houses, simple entertainments, sympathy for those who are tempted, are worthy of the instant attention of those who really desire to reduce the proportions of the evil, and (4) that the unformed and general interest in temperance, which is existing in a vague and nebulous form in our congregations, should so soon as possible be organized into parochial agencies for the giving of definite form and encouragement to those who need help.

After the meeting the ministers of almost all the religious denominations in the city repaired to the Bishop's residence, and were by him presented to the Bishop of Rochester, and spent a little time in conversation on the matter which had brought them together. The Bishop left the next morning for Kansas City.

RUBRICAL NOTES AND QUERIES.

II.

The directions in the Communion service are so exactly given that it is declared what may be done by a minister, and what can alone be done by a priest. The term "minister" is here evidently a more inclusive description, and imply any grade in the ministry. The priest can, if necessary, do all that the minister is said to do, but the minister may not do what it is declared that the priest must do. The minister may serve with the chalice, may begin the offertory, but the priest is required to consecrate the elements, and pronounce the absolution and benediction. Evidently, according to the direction, the deacon can begin the Communion service, and read the commandments and go on, and do all that the minister is bidden to do.

The commandments and evangelical summary were not in the first Prayer Book, but were, like the Exhortation and Confession in the Morning Service, introduced in 1551, as an instruction and reminder for the people. At this time sermons were seldom preached; the priests were scarcely learned enough for this. They performed their official functions. For this reason, until there should be a better intellectual condition of the priesthood, the books of Homilies were set forth to be read in the churches. They were a crutch to be used until there was more learning.

It is to guard against any lack in expositions otherwise made by the minister, and to ensure correctness of dogmatical statement, that exhortations are set forth in the ordination, baptismal, communion and confirmation services. They are didactic and explanatory, and at times very obvious and simple. They are of use as furnishing an authoritative explanation of what is to be done; perhaps not as necessary for frequent repetition now as in the earlier days when there was less intelligence in minister and people. These are not of the essence of the service, but are built around it to guard it from careless use.

The core, the heart, of the Communion service is the setting apart of the elements for their sacred use by the word of institution used by our Lord, and the administration. The essence of the Baptismal service is in the administration of the water in the name of the Trinity, as enjoined by our Lord. The centre of the Confirmation office is the laying on of hands, with the words which indicate that the gifts of the Holy Spirit are invoked upon the candidate. The essence of ordination is in the laying on of hands with a declaration of the purpose to confer authority. The essence of marriage is in the mutual declaration of purpose to take each other for husband and wife, and the blessing of the contract. These parts are unchanging. All else, the prayers, the exhortations, the questions are variable. In an emergency they have been changed or omitted. In various liturgies the order of the parts varies. The outlying parts are to give assurance to minister, recipient and people, and express devotional sentiment.

In ancient buildings one can see how an addition has been placed in front, and then after a time another portion has been placed in front of that, and so at the sides and back; all to heighten the effect of the central structure, and to guard it from careless intrusion. So with our services. In the Morning Prayer, in front of the Venite was placed the Lord's Prayer, as a preparatory devotion; and then later, before this was placed the Confession and Absolution, and before them as a popular explanation of what was doing was prefixed the Exhortation, with the sentences to strike the proper key note. This same feature may be seen in all the offices.

Oriental habit and western temperament incline to different forms and habits of expression. Religious use preserves unchanged archaic forms of speech and modes of dress. These which at first were usual and universal come to have a derived sacredness. Language and dress out of doors change their fashions; within the Church these remaining unaltered get to have gradually a mystic meaning attached to them.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. Dr. Berkley, rector of St. Peter's Church in this city, before he left the city on the 1st of August, gave to his senior warden a check for $4,300, the amount collected by him for the payment of the last dollar owed by his church. Three-fourths of this sum was given in $100 and $200 subscriptions by his personal friends outside of the congregation. The church has been extensively repaired and renovated.

—The Rev. A. C. A. Hall, of the English society of St. John the Evangelist, who has been holding mission services in British Columbia, will, on his way east, hold a series of mission services in St. Mary's Church, Kansas City, at the close of this month.

—The Rev. T. M. Thorpe has taken out letters of Dimissory to the Diocese of North Carolina, where he has taken parochial work.

—The interior of Trinity Church in this city has been thoroughly cleaned and renovated.

—The Rev. Mr. West, of Cameron, has gone to New York for a vacation of three or four weeks.

—The work on the addition to St. James Academy, Macon City, is being pushed on now actively. The brick work on the north wing is under way. Mr. John G. Guthrey of Miami, Saine county, from his interest in this Diocesan work, after visiting and inspecting the town and building, gave his check for five hundred dollars in aid of the work, and placed three of his sons in the school.

—The Bishop has appointed the Rev. Ethelbert Talbot of Macon, Dean of the Hannibal Missionary Convocation. This position has been vacant since the removal of the Rev. Mr. Leonard from the Diocese, and in consequence no session of the convocation has been called for a number of months. This appointment is to hold good until the convocation shall make some other nomination to the Bishop. We hope that a gathering will soon be called.

—Trinity Church, Hannibal, has about completed a thorough work of renovation of the roof and furnace, and kalsomining the ceiling and walls, and the providing of a new carpet, all of which has been accomplished by the work of the ladies during the summer and fall. The parish has never been in a more efficient and hopeful condition. It is about to call a rector. The Bishop spent Sunday, the 17th ult. there, and met the vestry.

—The Rev. Robert Talbot, Rector of St. Jude's Church, Monroe City, was married on Thursday, 13th ult. to Miss Stella, daughter of Major Glaze, of Macon. The marriage took place in St. James' Church, Macon City, and was solemnized by the rector of the parish and brother of the bridegroom. The church was crowded with the relations and friends of the parties, and the bridal procession extended the whole length of the church. The Bishop was unable to be present to give his blessing. A reception followed, which was crowded and bright. The happy persons went to Chicago for their wedding journey, and on their return to Monroe they were met at the station by friends, and a reception tendered them of the parishioners on the evening of the 19th.

—The Bishop has recently confirmed as follows: Utica, 1; Fayette, 2; St. George's, St. Louis, 1; Advent, St. Louis, 1.

—The Bishop has visited the following places where persons were not presented for confirmation: Hannibal, Cameron, Jamesport, Trenton, Stanberry, Ironton and De Soto. In De Soto and Ironton he baptized several infants, and in Ironton also solemnized a marriage.

—There was a delightful Harvest Home festival held in Grace Church, St. Louis, on Sunday the 24th ult.

—The Guild room of Christ Church, Lexington, which was begun in July, has been completed and occupied for more than a month. The Ladies' Parish Guild, and the St. Agnes Guild of young girls meet in it each week, and the Sunday-school, and also a Parish Day School. In this last at recent advices there were sixteen scholars. The building has cost a little more than a thousand dollars. Evening prayer is said on Friday afternoons with instructions. The second service of the parish has always been had in the afternoon. There is now held a short service with addresses on the Prayer Book and Church History, at which there has been a good attendance. The two new memorial windows in the chancel will soon be in place, and the memorial chalice and paten are nearly completed.

—The service for deaf mutes, conducted by the Revs. Dr. Gallandet and A. W. Mann, of Cleveland, in Christ Church chapel, in St. Louis, on the 24th of August, was very well attended by deaf mutes from St. Louis and vicinity. He was again in St. Louis on the 8th inst., Kansas City on the 9th, and at Fulton on the 10th.

—The Rev. J. I. Corbyn, who has been teaching in this city for a year or two past, has resumed his parochial work in Anamosa, Iowa.

—Mr. Chas. A. Bohn, recently a minister in the Methodist Church, South, has been admitted a candidate for order in this diocese, and will pursue his theological studies at Seabury Hall, Fairbault.

—Sister Louisa, of the Hospital, who we are glad to say, is recovering from her recent severe sickness, has taken in hand quite vigorously the matter of the proposed chapel for St. Luke's. She has received a pledge of $500 from Mrs. A. C. Moore, and $200 from Mrs. Henry Hitchcock, and a number of other handsome pledges. About $10,000 would be required, an amount toward which was already in hand. Sister Oden, we regret to add, is still very weak. The strain of many years of steady service is telling seriously on her. What with sickness, and the larger number of patients, the force at the hospital is under strain. Every one who knows anything about the internal management of the hospital will be very sorry to hear that Mr. Boyle, the invaluable clerk for ten years past, is about to resign, and go South to enter into business. Few have any idea how constant and exhausting his work has been day and night.

—The church people in Cuba village are collecting money with a view to building a church there as soon as possible. It will be noticed that the consecration of the new churches in Rolla and Butler, are appointed for this fall, and also of the Advent, in St. Louis.

—The Ladies' Society of St. Paul's Church, Rochester, N. Y., have at the instance of the Rev. Mr. Wager, made a set of altar linen for St. Paul's Church, Mexico. The health of Mr. Wager has lately declined so that the physicians have declared that this climate is injurious, and that he must make a change.

—The ladies of the St. Louis parishes took four booths at the Fair Grounds for the benefit of the Orphans' Home. Christ church had Monday, St. John's, Tuesday; St. George's, Wednesday; Holy Communion, Thursday; Mt. Calvary and St. Peter's Friday; Trinity, Saturday. We have not heard how much they made, but we do know that they were as busy as possible each day, and that the ladies worked bravely in the midst of the heat and crowd, and netted for the Home, what they and it deserved, a handsome return. They took in during the week about $1,900, and will clear at least $1,200.

—The contest in the Barr will case was set for Monday, October 2nd. Judge Wickham appeared for himself and the Bishop, Col. Broadhead for the Orphans' Home, Maj. W. S. Pope for St. Luke's Hospital, and F. J. McMaster for the Missionary Board. Demurrers were filed to portions of the replies which the contestants had made. The case will come up before Judge Lindley on the demurrer.

—A number of neighboring clergymen have visited the city within the last few weeks: The Rev. Messrs. J. J. Clemens of Texas, Higgins and Gordon of the diocese of Springfield, J. E. Thompson of Chicago, Galbraith of Ireland.

—Emmanuel church, St. Louis county, is being repaired at a cost of $500. The church at Afton, under Mr. Gauthier's charge, is finished at a cost of $1,200, all of which has been paid but $100.

—Trinity church, Independence, has been used in an unfinished condition since last spring. It is now being plastered.

—The Rev. J. R. Holeman, of Kansas City, has gone south for the winter. He was so far recovered that he could walk about a little with difficulty, but he is still very feeble.

—The first number of the parish paper of Mount Calvary church in this city has appeared. It presents a good deal of variety in diocesan, parish, and the neighborhood news of Compton Hill. It is a long, steady and weary duty which an editor undertakes. Of course all this was counted on in the undertaking of our enterprising cotemporary.

—At Kansas City the Bishop of Rochester and Mr. Graham were met by the Rev. Messrs. Jardine and Mann, and taken to the Centropolis hotel, and on the next morning were taken by them for a ride through the city, which, on account of its being the week of the Fair, was unusually crowded. The visitors were much impressed with the activity of the city. In the afternoon a luncheon was given at the Guild rooms, and at night a public meeting was held at St. Mary's church. This was well filled, a large part of the congregation being men. The Bishop made an address, which, however, could not be well heard, in excellent spirit, in which he alluded to the great work which the Church had in hand in that crowded centre. Mr. Graham produced a strong impression with his cheery voice and hearty manner, and said that he hoped to return there and organize a branch of the Church Temperance Society.

—Calvary church, Columbia, has extended a call to the Rev. A. M. Whitten, of Clarksville, Texas, to take charge of the parish. He is a native of Virginia, and has done an excellent work for five years past in his present parish.

—The mission of the Good Samaritan in this city is doing its work on self-respecting principles. Besides supplementing the stipend which the missionary receives from New York, it paid this year within three months of Convention the entire assessment laid on the mission, and its pledge for diocesan missions; it supports its own poor, and is steadily adding to its building fund. The mission has never cost the diocese anything, except what is involved in its church building, which indeed belongs to the diocese, and of which the mission has only the use.

—The consecration of Trinity church, De Soto, will probably be arranged for before Christmas. This would make the sixth church consecrated since the Convention in May.

—The Guild of Grace Church, Carthage, recently elected the following officers to serve for one year: President, Mrs. M. C. Eldred; Vice President, Mrs. J. S. Wilson; Secretary, Mrs. Geo. Blakeney; Treasurer, D. D'Estaing Jennings. The Guild are actively at work after the summer vacation, and are directing their efforts especially toward the building of a rectory, toward which they have $300 in hand.

PERSONAL.

—One item of Senator Hill's will is as follows: "I now give and bequeath to my wife and children that which some of them now possess, and which I assure them, in full view of death, is far richer than gold and more to be desired than all human honors. God is a living God and Christ came into the world to save sinners. I beg them to have faith in Jesus, for by this faith alone can they be saved."

—The Rev. Dr. Pusey died on the 15th ult., in the eighty second year of his age. His learning was immense, especially in the direction of Biblical studies, and he continued his work up almost to the last. Less is known of his name as the appellant of a theological party than was the case forty years ago, and much of the rancor with which he was looked upon passed away, as there was recognized his unfaltering loyalty to the English church.

—There are twenty-eight colored clergymen of the Church in the United States, of whom three were ordained in this diocese.

—The obituary of the month includes the Rev. Mr. Okeson, of Norfolk, Va., the Rev. W. T. Pise, late of Minneapolis; Mrs. Shelton, wife of Dr. Shelton of Buffalo, N. Y.; A. C. Treadway, of Oswego, and C. H. Young, of Ohio.

—The Rev. Mr. Wall, of Carthage, has returned from Colorado in better health, and is going to take duty in the diocese of Quincy.

—The Bishop of Rochester is the 98th Bishop of his See, which was established in 604. It lies just south of London, and includes a considerable portion of the poorer sections of that city. It is the third populous in the kingdom. The Bishop's palace is fourteen miles away from the city, quite in the country, Selsdon Park, and he drives into town. The income of the See is £3,000.

—The trustees of Racine College, Wis., elected as Warden the Rev. Albert Tabiskie Gray of Garisons-on-the-Hudson. He is a Harvard man, and a graduate of the General Theological Seminary; about 40 years of age, of force and method, influence over men, and of singularly devout habit, of private means, and wide Eastern connections, of high but conservative Churchmanship. The seven Bishops in attendance by a vote of six to one nominated Mr. Gray to the trustees, and the trustees, after long debate, unanimously elected him. There were over twenty names before the Bishops, —Joseph Robert Love, M. D., presbyter, has been deposed from the ministry by the Bishop of Hayti. The Church there is called the Orthodox Apostolic Church.

—It had been somewhat expected that Bishop Potter at the recent New York Convention would have asked for an assistant; but the matter was not mentioned, and did not come up.

THE MEXICO CONVOCATION.

The Mexico convocation met according to appointment in St. Mary's, Fayette, on the 28th ult., and continued in session until the 30th, and then adjourned to meet again at the call of the Dean. True, only two of the clerical brethren were present, but these managed to keep up the services, which were interrupted only once by a furious rain storm. On Saturday the Bishop arrived, preached that night, and three times the day following, besides taking a large share in the services and administering the Holy Communion in the morning and the rite of confirmation at night. One of the Bishop's sermons that day was to a colored congregation in the colored Methodist church. They seemed much interested, and joined heartily in the responses and singing, the minister of the parish furnishing mission services, and all who could read using it.

A suggestion was made that this convocation—which covers the ten counties that lie along and south of the C. & A. railroad, in the fork of the two great rivers—should hereafter give more of its care and services to strictly country places. And an additional suggestion is ventured by the writer of this notice, that it may be expedient to divide the working force and territory of this convocation into sections, so as to allow the clergy to go and work in couples, two and two, after Apostolic methods. Thus the two clergymen that are in the western sections might look after Randolph and Howard counties as well as they could. The standards in the middle section would naturally be borne by the clergymen at Mexico and Columbia, and, until reinforced, they could watch the interests of the Church in the counties of Montgomery and Callaway. While to the able and judicious Dean and his fellow-worker, who is yet to be found at Clarksville or St. Charles or both, might be entrusted the remaining territory lying between Louisiana and St. Charles. The chief merits of this scheme are accessibility and economy. Thus, as the railroads in the western and middle section run east and west, with branches southwards, any point that it is desired to be reached can be reached for fifty or seventy-five cents. The only travelling expenses to the late Fayette convocation amounted to one dollar. To have brought all of our small working force together and returned them to their homes would have cost ten or twelve dollars, and when Columbia or St. Charles have clergymen, the cost of coming together will be still larger. It is very desirable, and would be very pleasant if we could meet three or four times a year. But it is an expensive luxury. But we can come together once in the year to take counsel, lay out our work, and report to the dean, and through him to the Bishop. The steady, persistent work, such as new places require, can as well be done by two as half a dozen laborers. A single buggy can convey them and their outfit from a station on the railroads to any promising field in the country where they would be welcomed, and listened to day after day for a week at a time. This plan is respectfully submitted by an OLD MISSIONARY.

Regulate the Secretions.

In our endeavors to preserve health it is of the utmost importance that we keep the secretory system in perfect condition. The well known remedy Kidney-Wort, has specific action on the kidneys, liver and bowels. Use it instead of dosing with vile bitters or drastic pills. It is purely vegetable, and is prompt but mild in action. It is prepared in both dry and liquid form and sold by druggists everywhere.—Reading Eagle.

Sunday-School Column.

All communications for these columns, and Sunday-school exchanges, should be addressed to J. J. Wilkins, Editor, Olive street, between 4th and 5 St. Louis, Mo.

MRS. SOLOMON SMITH AT SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

"I couldn't help watching that class of girls the whole blessed time. The visitors' seats ran right along behind theirs, and I never did see such restless beings since I was born. They couldn't keep still in prayer time either. They nudged each other, and passed slips of paper down the seat, and whispered a little; and this same girl who sang so loud giggled every now and then. Now, Mary, you look exactly as though you would like to say—if I wasn't so much older than you—that I couldn't have been praying myself, or I wouldn't have had time to see all this. That's just as true as you live. I was sort of distracted with the flutter and noise, and I couldn't keep my thoughts anywhere. There, again, is the question of who is to blame for them girls growing up in that way? You see, the grown up folks didn't keep as still as they might. The four young fellows who tended to books and papers and such things, kept tiptoeing around, up the aisle and down that, and the leader of the singing turned over the leaves of his book, and, if you'll believe it, the superintendent himself seemed to be trying to find his place in his Bible while the minister was praying.

"Well, they began the lesson; I listened hard, then, for Solomon and I had been studying that lesson by spells all the fore part of the week, and I wanted to see what new ideas I could get. And you never see the beat of that teaching in all your life! 'This is a funny lesson for us,' one of them said. 'I knew all about the birth of Christ when I was a baby.' And then they went to discussing. They talked about that star, wondering whether it was a new star, or a new look to an old star, and how long it shone the first time it appeared; and then they didn't know a mite more about it, you know, when they got through than they did at first; and then they tried to find out just exactly what part of the East the Wise Men came from, and how long a journey they took; and then they talked about Herod, and all the wicked things he had said and done; how he murdered his wife, you know, and his children, and how old he was, and how long he had been sick, and what year he died, and everything about him. And then they went back to the Wise Men again, and they talked about the gold they brought, and wondered how much there was, and in what shape it was; and described frankincense and myrrh, and told how one was used for putting around dead folks, and the other for burning incense; and then, if you'll believe it, the bell rang. I didn't tell you about the bell, did I? It kept ringing every few minutes. There seemed to be something that somebody ought to be warned by the bell to tend to most of the time. It would have distressed me if I had been a teacher. Well, it rang this time, and that lesson was done. You see they had been interrupted lots of times; the Secretary had come along, and the Librarian, and the Treasurer, and the boy with the new Lesson Papers, and I didn't break the thread of their thought, you see, for they didn't have none to break. And that was all them girls got, that day, out of that lesson!"

"What did you and Mr. Smith get out of it?" Mary asked her, looking roguish.

"Bless you, child, it is just alive with thoughts. Them things they talked about was good enough, some of them; but the teacher didn't get to anything. I thought, more than a dozen times, 'Now she is coming at the thought.' But she didn't; she slipped right around it, just as easy!"

"How do you suppose, now, she could have got rid of saying something to them young things about the trouble that the Wise Men took to find Jesus; what a long, hard journey it was, and how much they had to go through; and how it is such a simple thing to do, that it seems strange that everybody don't do it? And there they was, so sharp with their answers, and knowing so much about history, and quoting Scriptures, and all that. Why didn't she remind them how much Herod's chief priests and scribes knew about history, and prophecy, and all that, and what good did their knowledge do 'em? And when I see them fluttering there, and nudging each other, and having so little heart in it, I couldn't help wondering whether any of 'em professed to be a worshiper of Jesus—had their names on the church book, you know; and was it real, or was it kind of like Herod's—not so ugly looking, but not much more honest.

"Then that bright Star coming out and guiding them men. Dear me! how could she help reminding her girls that he himself is the bright Morning Star, and stands all waiting for the chance to guide them home. And then the gifts; how they brought their best to him. She didn't say a word about our gifts; how our hearts are better to him than all the gold and silver, or the cattle on a thousand hills; nor a word about the altars where our frankincense ought to be burned every morning and evening; nor nothing at all, only just the bare facts about Herod, and the gold, and the gums.

"Will they be any likelier to find Jesus by the help of that teaching? 'Where is he?' the Wise Men asked, and my heart ached to lean over there and ask them girls if there wasn't one among 'em that would like to know where he was, and go and worship him? To think that she had a chance to talk about finding him, and giving him our hearts, and giving him our prayers, and being lighted by the Star of Bethlehem all the journey through; and she threw away her chance! It made me sick."

"I would like to go to Sunday-school and be in your class, Mrs. Smith." Laura said this, and every touch of humor had gone out of her voice, and her eyes shone with tears.

"My class, child? Bless your dear heart! I'm nothing but an ignorant old woman; I don't know enough to teach a class. But if I did try to teach one, and had a lesson all about finding Jesus, and giving the best things to him, I wouldn't leave both them ideas clean out of sight. But there! it's easier to grumble than it is to teach, I dare say."—[Pansy, in "Mrs. Solomon Smith looking on."

RESPECT IN THE FAMILY.—As boys and girls grow up to manhood and womanhood, parents should respect that nascent dignity which comes with the age—they should respect individuality. It is one reason, perhaps, why sisters cannot always live together happily that neither has been taught to respect the other's strong peculiarity of character, at least in outward manner. If we treated our brothers and sisters with the same respect that we treat our formal acquaintances in matters of friendship, opinion, and taste, there would be greater harmony in households.

One of the first and most apparent duties is to respect a seal. Never open your children's letters after they are old enough to read them. It is a curious element of self-respect that this "community of letters" which exists in some families hurts the feelings of a young person from the first. Certain cross grained parents or relatives tear open Sam's letters from Dick and laugh at them. Certain other parents consider it a duty to open their daughter's love-letters. Perhaps in the attempt to keep a daughter from marrying improperly any kind of warfare is allowable. Extraordinary circumstances make extraordinary precautions proper; but it should be the last resort.

No girl is made better by espionage. If she is a natural born intriguer, no surveillance will defeat her. If she is, as are most girls, trembling in the balance between deceit and honesty, a fair, open dealing, a belief in her, will bring her all right. Do not set servants to watch her. Do not open her letters. Do not spy on her acts or abuse her friends. She will be far more apt to come right if she is treated as if she were certain to be true, frank, and honorable in all her acts.

As for young boys and men, believ in their word, confidence in their honesty, is the way to make them honorable gentlemen. Be careful, as we have said before, not to laugh at them; respect their correspondence. If the rough and tumble of a public-school is to be their portion, there is no fear that the amenities of home will make them effete. They will need all their polish as they go knocking through the world.—[From "Amenities of Home."

THE PLACE OF GRAVES.

The west wind in the piny bough,
A low, eternal threne
Weaves o'er the dead that sleep below
The sleep without a dream.
The night-leaved cypress' shadow glooms,
The flexile willow sighs,
While gorgeous Summer glows and blooms
In florid earth and skies.

On marble shaft and urnal stone
Glimmers the sunny beam,
And squirrels chirp and wild bees drone
About the alleys green.
Through leafy vistas, long and dim,
Where slanting sunlights fall,
I see a troop of spectres thin,
In cerement, shroud, and pall.

Shades insubstantial gliding slow,
The harvest of the years,
Above whose narrow dwellings flow
Bereaved affection's tears.
The din of life from yonder towers
Is but a murmur here;

A bee-like hum amid the flowers,
It falls upon mine ear.

Ye tranquil sleepers, stretched below,
How pleasant is your rest!
You pulseless hearts no longer know.
The cares which life infest.
The silent hours no longer bring
Or good or ill to you;
And slander's shaft no more can sting
The slumberer neath the yew.

In cool seclusion, dark and deep,
Beneath the teeming mould,
Ye reck not of the summer's heat,
The sleety winter's cold;
The constellated stars at night
Through waving branches gleam,
And Titan's arrows, swift and bright,
Across your couches stream.

Sepulchral Eros, mourning here,
Forgetful of thy bow,
With torch reversed and falling tear,
And pinion-shaded brow!
The eyes are dim beneath your tread,
That sunned you with their light;
The lips where you on kisses fed,
Are cold and lilp-white.

GIERLOW.

—Of the 33,500,000 acres of taxable lands in Missouri it is thought at least 6,000,000 are in corn this year, that with an average yield of 40 bushels per acre will make the aggregate of that crop about 240,000,000 bushels. The area in wheat is put down at 2,300,000 acres; that with a yield per acre of 20 bushels—and throughout immense districts it was much more—will aggregate 46,000,000 bushels; this at 75 cents per bushel would bring $34,500,000; the corn at 40 cents would bring $96,000,000, or the two crops a total of $135,500,000, which is a return of more than $15 per acre in one season on the land that produced it.

THE CHURCH NEWS

OCTOBER 15, 1882.

No communications can be inserted, in any current number, which reach the office after the 10th of the month.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED AT THE THIRTY-FOURTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

RESOLVED, That the CHURCH NEWS be made the official medium of communication between the Treasurers of the different Diocesan Funds and the Parishes, and that the Treasurers be instructed to receipt for all payments to the several funds through the NEWS.

RESOLVED, That it be made the duty of the several rectors and missionaries of the Diocese to extend to the utmost of their power the circulation of the Diocesan paper, the CHURCH NEWS.

DR. PRIME, of the Observer, says that at every religious service for public worship, always and everywhere, there ought to be a collection; so that every Christian may see it as a privilege and duty, to lay on the altar of sacrifice, every time he comes with his sins and his prayers, an expression of the fact that he is not his own. This is good sense. There ought to be no apologetic tone about it. This is the most honest and even way to distribute many of the burdens which have to be borne. Those who ever object to this are generally those who are willing to have their enjoyments paid for by others.

RECENTLY a Church person in Arkansas wrote to a lady in this city about our Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd, as she proposed to place her daughter in their school. The lady here wrote strongly warning against it, as the Sisterhood had charge of abandoned persons. She had in mind the Roman Catholic community, and did not seem ever to have heard of our own. Possibly it may be of use to those to whom the NEWS comes to say our Sisterhood, which has had its name for nearly twenty years, has a right to it; and while the duplication of names in the same city is unfortunate, its work is not in the same line with that of the Roman Sisterhood with its guarded premises.

HERE is what the ex-Unitarian minister, Mr. Miln, has to propose, as his new scientific method for curing the ills and sorrows of human life, the anguish over the consciousness of sin, the deep surgings of penitence, and the hunger for peace and rest: "We have a constructive work to perform. We propose to take society where it is and improve on it; to make this world so much of an actual heaven that folks will not so eagerly scramble out of it toward a hypothetical paradise. But how? We need the dissemination of scientific rules of life, wise hygiene, scientifically ventilated and drained houses." Hear the new gospel, you that are bowed down! Clean out your waste pipes. Do you long for a sense of God's forgiveness and love? Have done with all the fusty methods told us by our Lord; keep your pores open; eat oat-meal; and get the best system of traps and water-supply for your house. All hail the new evangel!

PERMANENT EPISCOPAL ENDOWMENT.

The Committee, reappointed for the enlargement of the Permanent Episcopal Fund at the last Convention, have had a meeting, and decided to go about their work. Their first task was to ascertain how many of the subscriptions of $13,000, secured in 1873, when the work was left unfinished, were yet good. Then they propose very shortly to go about the work of seeking pledges for the capital sum. Some handsome pledges have been secured. It is understood that the amounts are payable when $50,000 has been subscribed, subject of course, to any special conditions which individuals may make. The lower rate of interest prevailing now makes it necessary to secure a larger sum than was before contemplated. A sum certainly no less than that above named is required to give any considerable relief to the diocesan assessments.

The meagre collections now do not suffice to pay the taxes and insurance on the episcopal residence and lands held for the fund. Each year, therefore, as the matter now stands, witnesses a reduction of the capital of the fund. The diocese still owes $2,500 to the fund, the amount borrowed in 1868 to settle with the estate of Bishop Hawks. The matter is not of optional urgency. It should be taken up and pushed through vigorously this year. The diocese is repudiating its obligations for every month of delay.

Large gifts and small gifts, those from St. Louis, and quite as much from other parts of the diocese, will be required. But it is work done once for all; relief afforded to reduce the annual strain of the Convention assessment, and enable this great diocese to take up more fairly its aggressive missionary work. It is required to be done to prevent a breach of trust in compelling trustees of the Permanent Fund to meet obligations, as is the case now, for which no adequate means are provided, thus compelling them to consume capital given for another use. It is needed to be done to show the good faith of the diocese, that in borrowing money of the fund, it did not intend to appropriate it, but does propose now at the earliest practicable moment to replace what was taken out.

A duty comes on the Committee of starting now in this propitious year, and keeping up until a fair result is reached, the plans for this work, and the collection. Quite as great a duty comes on the diocese, which has constituted this Committee, to sustain them and give them assurance of gifts and support.

THE CHOIR.

From the choir, our devotional nature being what it is, are designed to go forth influences among the most effective for good in our public worship. There are very few who are unresponsive to the soothing or inspiring strains of melody. By its own sweetness or the associations of memory it melts those who may resist argument and force. It nerves to sacrifice; it inflames to love; it breaks the hardened heart; it "dissolves us into ecstasies, and brings all heaven before our eyes."

In answer to this natural want of our nature and this capacity for effect in music, the church provides for it through the whole course of the services. This office is not intended to be one of merely negative result, as passing the time, or securing a variation, as introducing a change of position. It does not succeed unless, doing more than this, it increases impulses and arouses devotion. And yet, of course, we know this ideal is not always, possibly not usually reached. Many ministers dread the misunderstandings which the music produces. Often it seems that the sensibility of nerves which is needed to success in music is favorable to a morbid sensitiveness and intolerance of criticism.

Musicians sometimes consider that, as they have the trouble, the whole business and results are theirs, and others are glad to compromise with no particular devotional result, and are content if there is no trouble. Of course, this is not as it ought to be. The choir are the ministers of devotion, and their ambition should be not to please themselves, but to increase the devotion. These words come to places where there is much ability to spend and appreciate, and to places where all the arrangements are very modest, and this is a subject on which volumes have been written.

Where it is possible, a better musical and devotional effect is had when the organ and choir are on the floor and not far from the congregation. Even when it is possible to seek for artistic effects there should always be ample space allowed for the broad, simpler tastes to the greater part of the people. The relief and intentness shown the warmer heartiness of applause, when in a classical concert a ballad is given, is suggestive. Let the anthem take the place of the first hymn, or be had after the offertory sentences, and at the rest, except perhaps, at times the Te Deum be for the people. The choir should be allowed to have its opportunity for giving a higher range of music; but it must remember that it exists for the people. Members of choirs, when they are able, should when in cities attend the better churches where a more correct standard of taste is shown. In this way they may get suggestions of value.

It needs an exceptional musician to give an interlude between the verses of the hymn which will overbalance the offence taken at its impertinence. The machine-like repetition of the last line each time is irritating. It is better to have, at best, only one interlude, and that before the last verse of the hymn. The whole verse or hymn or canticle should not be played over beforehand, only the chords given so as to furnish a suggestion of what is to be sung. At the same time the choir should not begin until the chords have been struck. It is better that the Amen at the close of the hymn should be sung, unless at the close of the day the old doxology is given.

Choirs should be in their places and have their music arranged before the service begins. There is a certain amount of distraction inevitable to the position; but members of the choir are not exempt from the rules of devout and decorous deportment looked for in other members of a congregation in God's house. As most persons, if they sing at all, sing in unison, and more persons will sing if they have a chance; hymns should be selected, the notes of which lie within the range of ordinary voices, and hymns should be keyed with reference to this. The work of a choir is not small; it is attended often with great inconvenience and sacrifice, and an appreciation of this should be shown.

CHILDRENS COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They

WOMAN'S AUXILIARY.

As the season for re-organizing the Ladies' Sewing Societies is now approaching, I desire to lay before all parishes the claims of the Woman's Auxiliary. In many societies there is not sufficient work to give employment for the winter, so might it not be arranged that a few meetings at least be devoted to missionary work through the auxiliary, either in making up missionary boxes or providing proper linen for the Holy Communion for churches and mission station unable to procure these things for themselves.

The names of clergymen needing boxes and all other necessary information will be given upon application.

If each parish secretary will communicate with me as soon as any work is decided upon in her society it will be a great assistance, as not until some applications have been sent in can any estimate be made of what Missouri is able to do for her own clergy this year.

MARY W. TRIPLETT,
Secretary for Missouri.

HISTORY OF THE CHURCH IN MISSOURI.

II.

The Church of the Holy Communion organized, and for nearly two years held its services in a school-house on Morgan street near Garrison Avenue. The present property, on the northwest corner of Leffingwell and Washington Avenues was bought in 1869, and the chapel portion, now the transept, was finished in December, 1870. The nave was built in 1876, and opened for services March 31st, 1877. The parish reports this year 407 communicants, and 275 Sunday scholars. The present and only Rector of the church, the Rev. P. G. Robert, began his work in 1869.

Mount Calvary Church was organized on the 4th September, 1870, in a school-house on Compton Hill, and in 1871 the church on Grand Avenue at the head of Lafayette was consecrated. This was occupied until 1878, when the congregation removed into the church on the southwest corner of Lafayette and Jefferson Avenues, which had been built at a cost of $10,000. There are reported this year 186 communicants, and 300 Sunday scholars.

The following have been the Rectors:

1870-'71—The Rev. F. B. Hafl.

1871-'72— " Wm. O. Jarvis.

1873—to the present time—Rev. Benj. E. Reed. St. Paul's Church, South St. Louis, met in hired halls for several years after its organization in 1868. Its present church was built in 1871. The property cost about $5,000. It reports this year 75 communicants, and 60 Sunday scholars.

The following have been the Rectors:

1868-'69—The Rev. Charles Stewart.

1869-'70— " Wm. G. Spencer, D. D.

1870-'72— " M. S. Woodruff.

1873-'79— " O. H. Staples.

1879-'81— " J. P. T. Ingraham, D. D.

1881—to the present time—Theodore DeForest.

St. Peter's Church was organized in the hall corner of Olive street and Jefferson Avenue, in 1872, and the lot on the corner of Olive and Grand Avenue bought. The chapel across the rear of the lot was finished in the fall of 1873. Afterward the front part of the lot was sold. The number of communicants reported this year is 45, and the Sunday scholars 120.

The present Rector, the Rev. E. F. Berkley, D. D., has been the only incumbent.

St. James Church, Ellersdsville, was organized in 1870, services having been held for a year before that. The church was built in 1870, and consecrated the following year. There are now 20 communicants, and 40 Sunday scholars.

The Rectors have been as follows:

1870-'74—The Rev. Jos. S. Corbyn.

1874-'75— " L. S. Schuyler.

1875-'76— " D. E. Barr.

1876-'78— " C. S. Hedges, D. D.

The Church of the Holy Innocents, Oak Hill, was organized in the spring of 1871, the Rev. Edwin Wickens holding the first services. It has never built its own church building. The present number of communicants is 55, and of Sunday scholars 90.

The following have been the Rectors:

1871-'72—The Rev. A. F. Samuels, M. D.

1872-'73— " J. N. Chesnutt.

1873-'78— " L. S. Schuyler.

1879-'80— " A. Batte.

1881-'82— " Thos. H. Gordon.

In March, 1871, the Mission of the Good Shepherd was organized in a building on Seventh street, near Sidney, where it worshipped nearly two years. In 1873 the present chapel, near the corner of Eighth and Lancaster was opened. It has since been enlarged. The present number of communicants is 105, and of Sunday scholars 30.

The following have been the Ministers:

1871-'73—The Rev. Edwin Wickens.

1873-'75— " M. A. Hyde.

1875-'79— " H. D. Jardine.

1881-'82— " H. A. Grantham.

The Mission of the Advent was formed out of a Sunday-school which was gathered in 1871, and met for several years at the Masonic Hall on the corner of Wash and Eighteenth streets. The present church, near the corner of Twentieth and Carr, was bought from the Presbyterians in 1876. It has since been much improved. The present number of communicants is 85, and Sunday scholars 75.

The following have been the Ministers:

1875-'76—The Rev. D. E. Barr.

1876-'77— " L. E. Brainerd.

1877—to the present time—Rev. J. N. Chestnut.

The Mission of the Good Samaritan, for colored people, began under the name of the Mission of Our Saviour. It was organized in the Chapel of Trinity Church in 1874. The church property on Sixth near Cerre, was bought from the Jews in 1875, and was used by the congregation until April, 1881, when services in it were discontinued because of inconvenience of location. The services are now held in Trinity Church. The present number of communicants is 70, and of Sunday scholars 90.

The following have been the Ministers:

1874-'79—The Rev. Jas. E. Thompson.

1880—to the present time—Rev. C. M. C. Mason.

The services in St. Luke's Mission were begun in the spring of 1881 in the hall on the corner of Garrison and Easton Avenues. No property has yet been acquired. The communicants reported number —. The Rev. John Gierlow, Ph. D., has been the only Minister.

The Episcopal Residence, No. 2727 Chestnut St., was purchased in the Spring of 1869, at a cost of about $18,000.

BOOK NOTICES.

The NORTH AMERICAN REVIEW for October opens with an article on "The Coming Revolution in England," by H. M. Hyndman, the English radical leader, giving an instructive account of the agitation now going on among the English working classes for a reconstruction of the whole politico-social fabric of that country. O. B. Frothingham writes of "The Objectionable in Literature" and endeavors to point out the distinction between literature which is per se corrupting, and that which is simply coarse. Dr. Henry Schliemann tells the interesting story of one year's "Discoveries at Troy." Senator John I. Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, treats of the rise and progress of the rule of "Political Bosses." Prof. Geo. I. Vose, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, contributes an article of exceptional value on "Society in Railway Travel," and Prof. Charles S. Sargent, of the Harvard College Arboretum, contributes an instructive essay on "Protection of Forests." The Review is sold by booksellers and newsdealers generally.

LECTURES ON EVOLUTION.—By Prof. T. H. Huxley, (Illustrated.) Price 15 cents. J. Fitzgerald & Co., 30 Lafayette Place, New York. This valuable work forms number 30 of the "Humboldt Library," a collection of works by the most eminent scientists of our time, such as Huxley, Spencer, Tyndall, Proctor, etc. They are printed from clear type, on good paper. It is to be hoped that instructive volumes like these, in which the charms of literary style serve to render attractive the teachings of science, will in time have the effect of banishing from our homes the demoralizing trash which passes current as "Literature."

THE SANITARIAN for October is a particularly rich number. Plumbing Fixtures—Wash basins, bath tubs, water closets, etc. New York Tenement Houses—their victims and their tyrants. Horseback Exercise and Malaria. The plan in progress for stamping out Yellow Fever in Brownsville, by a cordon confining people to the locality, is severely condemned, as being worthy of the age only when such a practice was common in the effort to stay the plague, three hundred years ago, barbarous in its tendency and promotive of the epidemic. After January 1st The Sanitarian will be published weekly. New York: A. N. Bell.

Unusually varied and interesting are the contents of the October CENTURY, which closes the first year of the magazine under the new name. Most noteworthy, perhaps, are the two portraits of Abraham Lincoln, which have never before been published. The larger of these, the frontispiece of the magazine, engraved by Cole, is a fine copy of an ambrotype which was made two days after Lincoln was nominated in 1860. The smaller one is a copy of the last photograph for which Lincoln sat, and was taken on the balcony of the White House six weeks before the President's death. These remarkable portraits enable us to see the great change which was wrought in the features of Lincoln between 1860 and 1865. With the portraits are published letters giving the history of the originals, and a paper entitled "How Lincoln was Nominated," which throws new light on the inside history of that memorable contest. Other articles of practical or timely value. An admirable statement of "The Growth of the United States," by Francis A. Walker, the Superintendent of the last census; and an account by Judge Farman, late Consul-General at Cairo, of his "Negotiation for the Obelisk." Mr. Howell brings "A Modern Instance" to a close. "Topics of the Time" discusses the rising generation at the South, burial reform, and other important questions, and the other editorial departments offer a great variety of interesting criticism and information.

ST. NICHOLAS FOR OCTOBER.—The last number of the present volume, shows no diminution in the excellence that has distinguished the previous issues of the year, and is a better augury for the volume to come than are pages of prospectus.

The frontispiece is a faithful reproduction of a drawing by W. T. Smedley, and is called "When we were Boys." Frank R. Stockton contributes one of his characteristic fairy tales, entitled "The Sisters Three and the Kilmares," and also writes the Very Little Folks' story, for which Adie Ledyard has drawn four pretty illustrations. "Donald and Dorothy," Mrs. Dodge's entertaining serial story, is brought to a happy conclusion.

Among the many other attractions are: a bright play for young folks; a paper written and illustrated, "What Can be Made with a Handkerchief," in which he shows that great resources for home amusements lie concealed in the folds of those necessary luxuries.

SPONSORSHIP, or The Divine Covenant, and the Sponsor's Obligation Therein. A Manual of counsel and instructions for godfathers and godmothers, by the Rev. C. S. Percival, A. M., of Iowa. In this handsomely printed little volume are given chapters on the authority for baptism, its subjects and mode, and the considerations, urging fidelity upon sponsors. This is a vitally important matter. If following upon baptism, there were greater fidelity on the part of parent and sponsor, there would not be so many unregulated households, nor the disparity which now exists between the number of those baptized and those confirmed. Then there is added a register, in which persons can put down with all details the names and particulars of those for whom they have stood sponsor; ending with prayers for faithfulness. Pp. 205, cloth. W. W. Williams, Cleveland, Ohio.

THE CONVERSION OF CHILDREN, by Edward Payson Hammond. This last number of the Standard Series is put forth with all the typographical excellence of the other numbers, and at a very cheap price. The vigorous and realistic manner in which the author deals with the facts and sympathies of children, makes this book one which could well be studied by all. At the same time his whole idea of childhood as outside of the covenant and expectations until they are converted by the peculiar methods which he uses is wholly different from the churchly principle, of working steadily from the time of their baptism to deepen and realize in them the sense of the Christian vow made in their behalf. Pp. 174, strong Manila paper. 30 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey St., New York.

The October WIDE AWAKE opens with a dainty drawing by Miss McDermott, designed as a frontispiece for a fanciful story by Susan Hale, entitled "The Hope Works." Many other excellent short stories make this number a very entertaining one: "A Nap in a Cannon," "The Stimpetts' Surprise Party," and "Ralph's 'Cub.'" Mr. Talbot's comedy, "No Questions Asked," which has been so keenly enjoyed by both young and old, is brought to a capital close. Prof. Sargent, of Harvard College, begins a series of Health and Strength papers for the boys; a series "Through a Microscope," "A Boy's Workshop," and there is also a delightful chapter of "Anna Maria's Housekeeping," and the first of an important series, "Famous Trials," each of which is to make our young citizens familiar with some important principle in law.

Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

With the October number, THE HOMILETIC MONTHLY enters upon its VII volume. The following are among the contents of this interesting number: Sermonic—"Retributive Justice," by Rev. Joseph S. Van Dyke; "The Effects of Gospel Preaching," by Joseph Parker, D. D.; "Gallio," by Samuel W. Dufield, D. D.; "Having One's Reward," by Canon Liddon; "Opportunities of Youth," by Rev. Henry Ward Beecher; "Healthy Religion," by T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.; "Concealing the Words of God," by Rev. C. H. Spurgeon. Then we have the following papers, "Methods of Sermonizing," by Rev. A. McElroy Wylie; "Hints to Young Preachers," by Prof. James M. Hoppin, of Yale College; "Misquoted Texts," by Talbot W. Chambers, D. D. Price, $2.50 per year; single number, 25 cents. Funk & Wagnalls, 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Rev. Mr. Sprague, President of Griswold College, Davenport, Iowa, will spend this month and the next in the East, trying to raise $25,000 for the endowment of the President's chair, and that of mental philosophy. It will be called the Bishop Lee professorship.

—The Seventh Church Congress meets in Richmond, Virginia, on the 22nd inst. The Rev. Dr. Fulton of this city reads a paper on the Powers of Standing Committees.

—The Clearing House tables show that in a recent week the Exchanges of the banks of only thirteen other cities in the country exceeded those of Kansas City. It is rapidly coming towards the front.

—The subject of Bishop Coxe's third charge to his recent Convention was Christian Elements of Social Science.

—An issue which may have important consequences has arisen between the Rev. Mr. Ritchie and Bishop McLaren. Contrary to the understanding had when the latter made an appointment for the laying of the corner stone of the former's church recently, that there should be no other service preceding, to which Mr. R. agreed, he without consultation placed a service of what he calls "Solemn High Mass" at 11 a. m., when the corner stone service was to be at 12 m., and which could hardly fail to run over into the time when the Bishop should be present. This service is an emasculated form of the Holy Communion, in which the commandments, exhortations, confession, the administration, and thanksgiving are omitted. It is a solitary communion with much music and ceremonial. The Bishop thereupon declined to be present, and publicly denounced the service as one alien to the Prayer Book. At the service, performed by an ex Rector, Mr. R. referred with gross impropriety to the Bishop, and in his sermon on the following Sunday said that he and those who thought with him, had no fear and asked no favor.

—The Approaching Church Congress—Office Local Committee, Church Congress, 1882, Richmond.—The eighth Church Congress of the Protestant Episcopal Church will assemble in Richmond, Va., October 24, 1882. As is usual, hospitality has been provided for all officers, speakers and essayists belonging to the Congress.

I am authorized to say further, that hospitality will be gladly furnished all clergymen who will send their names to the secretary by the 17th day of October. A. D. Blair, Secretary.

—A remarkable case is now being tried before the courts of Australia. A Roman Catholic merchant left in his will a bequest of $7,000 to be used to deliver his soul from purgatory. The executor, who is not only a skeptic, but a humorist, demands legal proof from the local priests that the conditions of the will have been complied with before he will pay over the money. The burden of an unexpected problem is thus thrown on the Church, as it is called on to prove, to the satisfaction of a court of law, that purgatory has an actual existence, that prayer has power to release souls from it, and also that this particular soul has been released.

—The debt on the Nashotah Seminary has diminished during the past year from $42,040, to $39,029. Besides the lands and buildings belonging to the institution, which are valued at $95,000, there are investments yielding interest amounting to $52,671. The Rev. Dr. Justin recently gave his library of over 800 volumes to the Institution.

—Some years ago in the burning of Taylor Hall, Racine, the library of the College was burned. It now again, including the valuable addition which Dr. De Koven gave at his death, is between six and seven thousand volumes. Recently the Rev. John Rowland of New Jersey gave his library of 900 volumes to the college.

HOW TO BE USEFUL IN THE CHURCH AND NEIGHBORHOOD.

1. Be punctually present in your seat in church at any service. Your example in this is much needed in these times.
2. Reverently observe the proper bodily postures of worship—for your own sake, as well as for others.
3. Always make your responses in such tone that your voice can be distinctly heard by the clergyman officiating. It will help him.
4. Look about the church occasionally; see it is kept in order, if repairs are needed; if the church linen or furniture requires addition or improvement; and by yourself, or by interesting others, provide for these deficiencies.
5. Volunteer your services for lay-work, and ask your rector to assign you some duty, or a place on some parish committee. It is much more graceful for you to go to him with such a request than to wait for him to come to you.
6. Report immediately to your rector all cases of sickness and religious interest which he ought to know of. And if sick yourself, send him word, not waiting, as some do, with complaint, for him to hear of it by mere chance.
7. Make it a rule never to speak disparagingly of the personal qualities or efforts of your rector or other ministers even in the presence of your own family, unless you feel sure it is laid upon you, as Christian duty, to do so. By breaking this rule you hinder the work of the ministry and injure the cause of the Master.
8. Whenever your clergyman invites his people to any service, give your personal attendance, even if you have to make some sacrifice or set aside some other plan.
9. Kindly and without officiousness ask your negligent neighbors, who go to no place of worship, to come to church with you; find them a seat, and guide them in the use of the Prayer Book.
10. Seek out and induce the children in your neighborhood, not otherwise provided for, to attend the Sunday school.
11. Clothe and bring with you one poor child to Sunday-school.
12. Remind negligent parents, from time to time, of the duty of having their children baptized.
13. Offer to stand as sponsor for orphans and strangers. This will help to give you an interest in those neglected ones, who are special objects of your Saviour's love.
14. Be prompt in extending courtesies to new families who move into your neighborhood, and especially those who have any interest in the Church.
15. Make yourself acquainted with the circumstances and relations of the families about you. Keep a list, adding to it regularly the new names. This will help to remind you of what you have done and can do.
16. If you have a carriage for your own use, go with it or send it bring to church the aged and feeble, who cannot otherwise attend. In few ways can you do them a greater kindness.
17. If you have read a tract or book which has helped you, give or lend it to some neighbor whom you think it will benefit.
18. If you are not a teacher, still go frequently to the Sunday-school, and encourage teachers and children by your presence, and especially at the times of the public catechising.—[The Kalendar.

Free Lunch Cadets,	Souza	25

If the music selected amounts to just $1, send only the 15 pictures, your name and address. If in excess of $1, postage stamps may be enclosed for such excess. We make this liberal offer because we desire to give a present sufficiently large to induce every one to give Dobbins' Electric Soap a trial long enough to know just how good it is. If, after trial, they continue to use the soap for years, we shall be repaid. If they only use the fifteen bars, getting the dollar's worth of music gratis, we shall lose money. This shows our confidence. The Soap can be bought of all grocers—the music can only be got of us. See that our name is on each wrapper. A box of this Soap contains sixty bars. Any lady buying a box, and sending us sixty cuts of Mrs. Foggy, can select music to the amount of $4.50. This Soap improves with age, and you are not asked to buy a useless article, but one you use every week.

TO THOSE IN HEALTH.

"Let him (the sick person) be admonished to make his will, and to declare his debts, what he oweth, and what is owing unto him, for the better discharging of his conscience, and the quietness of his executors. But men should often be put in remembrance to take order for the settling of their temporal estates, whilst they are in health." — [Rubric in Visitation of the Sick.]

For those who are minded to give back to God a portion of that with which he has entrusted to them as stewards, by which a blessing may be invoked on them and their memories when they are in their graves, the following directions may be of use:

Real estate and personal property may be given, deeded or devised to the Orphans' Home and St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis, as they are incorporated bodies. The legal name of the former is "The Orphans' Home, of St. Louis, incorporated in February, 1845;" and of the latter, "St. Luke's Hospital, of St. Louis, incorporated in 1872."

Real estate for a church, parsonage, a burial ground in any particular place, may be given or devised to "The Parochial Trust Fund of the Diocese of Missouri, a body incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri," in trust for the place. Real estate also for the above purposes may be given or devised to any Church, which is properly incorporated.

Real estate for any other purpose, and personal property may be given or devised for the benefit of any church, or any of our charities by naming trustees in the will or deed, and providing how their successors in the trust may be appointed, who can receive and dispense the trust as directed. Such objects may be suggested as "Permanent Fund for the support of the Episcopate of the Diocese of Missouri," "The Theological Education Fund," "The Fund for Aged and Infirm Clergymen, and for the Widows and Orphans of Clergymen," "The Laymen's Co-operating Missionary Society," "The Sisterhood of the Good Shepherd of the Protestant Episcopal Church," St. James Academy, Macon;" "School of Good Shepherd, St. Louis."

Accuracy as to the description of property, and the designation of the trust should be specially observed.

Offerings will be received at each service for Diocesan Missions or the Theological Education Fund, of which clergymen are desired to give notice.

THE Bishop would be glad to have the parish registers of the churches which he visits written up, and to have the opportunity of examining them.

THE mention that was made in the NEWS of some special needs of some of our diocesan clergy called forth a response from three kind persons, which enabled the Bishop to send an excellent watch to one clergyman, and help in another form to a small amount to another missionary.

HERE is one of the latest uses for which the Episcopate was thought to be designed, or to which it might be put. It is in a note, not enclosing return postage of course, from Mississippi: "As I have no friend of literary note to whom I may apply, would you be so kind as to procure for me an engagement as contributor of stories to some monthly paper."

A NUMBER of applications have recently come to the Bishop for copies of the Convention Journal of 1880. If any persons have any copies which they are not using, they will confer an especial favor if they will mail them to the Bishop in St. Louis. It requires a three cent postage stamp.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

It will be remembered that Thanksgiving Day this year comes on the 30th inst., and that this is the day on which the canonical offering for the Theological Education fund comes, the great present importance of which was emphasized last month. There should be something more than an announcement that the diocesan law requires the duty to be done, as though there was no special interest about it. In two minutes the relation between the subject and our diocesan growth could be shown, and the people would give then with understanding. The canon provides that the offering, if not made on Thanksgiving Day, may be made on the Sunday nearest to it when a service is held.

JUDGE HAMILTON.

In the mention made of the death of Judge Hamilton in another column by his long-time pastor, reference is made appropriately to one in whose life and death the diocese had a deep interest. With the exception of Mr. F. W. Southack, who lives in California, Judge Hamilton was the only survivor of those who voted at the election of both of the Bishops of this diocese. The unstinted eulogy pronounced by his brethren at the bar, no less than the honored remembrance of him possessed by those who knew his life in this community for almost half a century, show what a pure and blameless record he has left as his best legacy to his children. His Bishop adds his loving tribute to one who was among the first to greet him as he came to the diocese, and whose friendship he was proud to possess for the years that have elapsed since.

THE law of the Church requires that the names of the persons to be confirmed shall be handed to the Bishop at the time of the service. Often this is not done; the list is not ready, and time is asked, and it is promised to be sent, and is forgotten, and then it has to be written for. The lists at the following confirmations have not been received, and they are requested to be sent:

1880, July 15, All Saints', Nevada City.

Dec. 12, St. Mary's First ward, K. C.

" 23, Cuba.

1881, June 5, St. Paul's, South St. Louis.

Nov. 16, Christ, Warrensburg.

1882, Feb. 12, St. Luke's Hospital, St. Louis.

Ap. 5, St. Paul's, South St. Louis.

May 24, St. Matthew's, Amazonia.

1882, Sep. 10, Advent, St. Louis.

" 18, Trinity, Utica.

It is requested that the names be written distinctly, and that in case of females it be stated whether the person is Mrs. or Miss.

THE DIOCESAN LIBRARY.

For several years past a good beginning has been made in this city on the accumulation of books for the use of clergymen, candidates for orders, and all others interested in Church history, theology, and all those branches in which a general library may not be expected to greatly strengthen itself. Over two hundred of these volumes have been at the Bishop's residence, and have been called upon to a considerable extent for study and reference. There has never been very much expended for the books, although some of them are very valuable. They have been gifts from various sources, quietly coming in.

Several hundred other volumes, presented to the diocese a few years ago by the late Rev. Mr. Estes, once resident in Missouri, and including much excellent material, have been in the vestry of Trinity church in this city. There has been less use made of these books, because of the fact that they were not known about, and of the indisposition to trouble the rector of Trinity with the work of distributing the books, and being responsible for their being taken out and brought back.

Dr. Schuyler has also just presented the diocese with nearly fifty volumes, consisting of the Church Review from the beginning for many years, and the Spirit of Missions since 1847. Several of these need, as do also a number of the other volumes, to make them useful for reference, to be bound. Fifty dollars should immediately be spent in this way, and twenty-five dollars a year thereafter.

It has been proposed that one of the rooms, newly finished off in Christ church chapel, the one where the old chancel was, be set apart to receive these books. The room is used for no other purpose, and in it the books would be safe, and could all be gathered together. The Registrar has also a number of volumes, and great numbers of the Convention Journals of all the dioceses, which in such a place of safety could no doubt be arranged so that easy reference could be made to them. We have long needed such a repository, where the books could be kept secure, and where, under proper restrictions, they could be consulted and drawn out. To make such an arrangement possible, shelves would have to be prepared; and then, if the books are to be consulted, the service of a responsible person who will control them. The object is worth some outlay, and all the care that would be involved. We have long needed such a gathering place for our possessions.

The library includes such valuable works as Gibson's Cordex, Wordsworth's Old and New Testaments; Cosin's, Andrews', Bull's, Beveridge's, Thorndike's, Bramball's works, and many other volumes of the Anglo-Catholic library; Lange's, and Kuinoel's, and the plain commentaries, Robertson's Church History, and many volumes of Latin and German works.

DIOCESAN ITEMS.

—The Rev. A. M. Whitten, of Clarksville, Texas, has accepted the charge of Calvary church, Columbia, and entered upon his duties the first week in this month. His work in his former parish was very successful.

—The agent for the Centennial History of the Church, to be published next year, prepared under the editorship of Bishop Perry, and contributed to by many of our distinguished writers, has been recently in St. Louis, getting subscriptions. It is to be in two large volumes, and to be sold at $15 for the set, in beveled cloth, and at $20 in half calf. Every well-informed Churchman should have a copy.

—The Rev. Custis P. Jones, of Baltimore, has removed to this city in order to be with his sister, Mrs. Stephens, the widow of the late Captain Stephens, of Boonville.

—The Rev. Mr. Newton took up his work at the Mission of the Good Shepherd, in this city, after his summer vacation East, on the last Sunday in September. The land on which the church stands was leased for ten years in 1872, with privilege of purchase. Nearly the amount needed for such purchase is raised. Mr. Brown, the warden, has put in a new altar in memory of his brother; the chancel has been carpeted, the church cleaned and painted; the guild room put in order; new fence made; the organ repaired and put out into the church. Matters are improving greatly, and a more hopeful spirit prevails.

—The net receipts for the Orphans' Home of the booth during Fair week in St. Louis, were over $1,200. Holy Communion returned over $700, and the St. George's over $400, and Grace and St. John's, on Friday, $350.

—On the 18th ult., Miss Brittain, the daughter of the rector of All Saints' Church, Nevada City, was married to Mr. P. G. Johnson, the son of the former rector, Rev P. A. Johnson, now in Minnesota. The church was beautifully adorned, and all were very happy. The presents were handsome and valuable.

—On Sunday, 22nd ult., in company with the Rev. Mr. Scheetz, the Bishop made a visit to the new church just finished at Afton, St. Louis. It is on the Gravois road, about four miles south of Laclède. The work there has been prosecuted with energy and devotion by the Rev. M. Gauthier, for the past year and a half. At first the services were held in a school-house. Service was begun in the neighborhood two miles away at Georgetown, by the Rev. Mr. Meade, fourteen years ago, and was kept up by Mr. Dunlop. The present work in its result is largely due to the faithfulness of Mr. Gauthier. An acre of ground was bought from the city, and the frame church built in the woods, at a cost of about $1,000. It was not wholly painted. There is a recess chancel, but no vestry room. The roof is open timbered. The church will seat about 150. This was only the second service held in it. The congregation, included some who drove over from Kirkwood, and nearly filled the church. The Rev. Mr. Scheetz said the service, and the Bishop preached.

—The Harvest Home Festival of St. John's church, St. Louis, was held on Sunday evening, 22nd ult. The church was beautifully adorned with fruits and flowers, which were afterward taken to St. Luke's Hospital, and the Orphans' Home.

—There is a movement under way to build a parsonage in Monroe City. So long as Mr. Scheetz was in the parish there was no call for action in this matter as he owned his residence. Now, however, as the parish has a large piece of land next the church, it is likely that before very long a parsonage will be built.

—The vestry room of Grace church, Kirkwood, has always been very small and dark, and in consequence of this, and the screens which enclosed this on one side, and the Sunday school library-room on the other side, it is proposed now to build on the north of this present vestry-room an addition out to the street, and then take away the present screens, giving greater airiness and light and space to the chancel. This will improve that end of the church, in which artificial light has often had to be used. It is also proposed taking advantage of this to renovate the plastering in the church, which has in years become marred by driving in nails for hangings. The whole effect will be to render the interior more bright and cheerful.

—Bishop Lyman, of North Carolina, passed through St. Louis a week or two ago on his way home from California, and spent a day with Bishop Robertson.

—The Rev. Mr. Gauthier has given in his resignation as minister of Emmanuel church, St. Louis county, to take effect in two months time. He has infused great interest in the work of the home parish, and shown what a clergyman, intensely filled with the love of Christ, can do out side of, and without neglecting his home work. Besides accomplishing the remarkable result at Afton, he has started Sunday-schools and cottage readings in two or three other neighborhoods within two or three miles. Faith in Christ as a present, loving Saviour is very real, and a very large, social force in that community, and largely by means of one man's earnestness. In some cases when a parish is taken up, gradually one by one all the outlying stations which have been ministered to are abandoned, on the plea of no time, or local difficulties, or the pressure of home care. And then home work begins to dry up, smaller congregations, fewer accessions, complaints that the town is moving away, and none of those coming in are Church people. The only way to keep up home work with a glow is to maintain interest in some neighboring places.

—Mrs. Tomlinson, of Batavia, N. Y., one of Bishop Robertson's old parishoners, recently sent the Rev. Mr. Mason, of the Good Samaritan, $100 toward his building fund.

—The Rev. Mr. Scheetz, of Kirkwood, regularly keeps up services in Glencoe, Eureka and St. Paul's, above him on the Mo. Pacific railway.

—Mr. J. J. Wilkins is acting lay reader in Christ Church, Boonville, and is occupying the rectory. The vestry have officially asked him to read the services and take charge of the Sunday-school. The affairs of the parish are already assuming a most cheerful condition. The Bishop has appointed Mr. Thos. B. Steele, as senior warden, in place of Judge Adams, who has resigned. Every one is full of interest and hope. Six new men have been elected on the vestry, all good persons. The congregations to the lay reading nearly filled the church, and have in them an unusual element of men.

—Mr. H. L. Gamble, candidate for Orders in this diocese, and a student at Faribault, was compelled to go to New Mexico immediately by the physician's orders. He was ordained a week or two ago by Bishop Dunlop, in Las Vegas, and goes to Silver City, to take charge of the parish there.

—The Rev. Mr. Holland, of Chicago, is to be in this city during the present month, on invitation to take part in some philosophical "conversations" at the residence of a literary lady.

—The vestry of Trinity church, Hannibal, have called to their vacant rectorship, the Rev. Robert Ritchie of Peoria, Ill., but recently of the Cathedral, Quincy.

—A bright, young, society lady, possessed of much elocutionary ability and taste, devotes one hour each week to reading to such of the patients of St. Luke's Hospital as can gather in the parlor.

—It is stated that while in Kansas City, Mr. Robert Graham, on his way West with the Bishop of Rochester, was robbed at the hotel, in the night, of $345. He dimly remembered the next morning in his sleeping room a shadowy form, and hearing something like, "I beg pardon, I seem to have got into the wrong apartments."

—The Rev. Joseph R. Gray, of Nashville, Tenn., but recently of this diocese, was married on All Saint's Day, at Calvary church, Columbia, to Miss Flora Rollins, daughter of Hon. James S. Rollins. The Rev. Wm. C. Gray, D. D., brother of the bridegroom, solemnized the marriage.

—The Rev. R. A. Tate, M. D., of Tennessee, has recently removed to Carthage, in this State, and is there practising the profession of medicine.

—To say that the Church of the Holy Communion was full on the night of Sunday the 29th ult., on the occasion of the Harvest Home Festival, is to say only part of the truth. It was crammed full, and running over. The children had it all their ownway. The Sunday-school did all the singing, and did it admirably. The older scholars did the most of the arranging of the beautiful display of fruits, grains, vegetables and flowers, and four of the older boys collected the offerings. The banners and the floral offerings were very handsome, and appeared to great advantage as they were presented.

—It is proposed by some of the gentlemen of Christ Church, in this city, to hold a bazaar in the new Armory, somewhere about the 10th of next month, for the purpose of raising money to purchase a new organ and placing it in the south transept of the church. It will be on a large scale, and have some unusual features. Some beautiful scenery has been painted, representing a street of an English town, with all its variety and quaintness, with a church at one end, and a village inn at the other. Within the shops are to be representations and dressings and sales appropriate for each. The outlay for the painting has been very great; we hope not too great, and those who have the matter in hand expect to have a beautiful and profitable result from the work.

—The foundation for the brick church for St. Augustine's Mission for the colored people in Kansas City, was finished nearly a year ago. They had then no means to go on with the superstructure. The Rev. Mr. Cummings went East this summer and raised $400 in cash, and as much more in good subscription. When the contract for enclosing the building was made, without the flooring or sash, for $1,700, they had but $1,320 cash in hand, of which $500 came from a loan made on the property. Of the deficiency of $380, Mr. Cummings has since raised $200. Of the $183 required beside for flooring, partitions and doors, Mr. Cummings has in cash and good pledges $160. Of course much else is needed in the way of seats, windows, stoves and lamps before they can begin services. He hopes to be able to begin services in the building by the last of this month. There has been most praiseworthy energy shown in pushing on the work. Is there any one to give them a helping hand, say for a window, or the stoves, or lamps?

—The dispute between the two St. Mary's parishes in Kansas City, is pending still in the Circuit Court, because the older St. Mary's vestry declined to accept the terms agreed upon at the conference, held between the representatives of the parishes before the Bishop in June last. One of the trustees of the older St. Mary's, who, with the other trustees joined in conveying the Troost property to St. Mary's, and who is still a member of that congregation, now filed a suit against his parish to recover the property against his deed, on the ground that the parish has not complied with the will and the terms of the deed.

—There was a singular mistake in the article in last month's News on the History of the Church in Missouri, in stating that the Rev. F. B. Haff was the first rector of Mount Calvary church in this city. He never was connected with it. The Rev. Mr. Reed is its second rector, having succeeded Mr. Jarvis. It is impossible to understand how the slip occurred.

—The consecration of the church at Butler has been postponed.

—Mrs. Wm. H. Thomson has presented a very handsome alms basin to Trinity Church, in this city, in memory of Dr. Hodgen. It was selected abroad by Mr. Heber Livermore, who has just returned.

—At the recent meeting of the vestry of St. George's church, in this city, the resignation of Capt. John W. Luke, as senior warden, which he had presented, was accepted, and Mr. Joseph W. Branch, formerly junior warden, was appointed by the rector senior warden; Mr. D. E. Garrison was elected junior warden, and Capt. B. B. Wade was elected to the vacancy in the vestry.

—At Mount Calvary church, in this city, the complaint is that there are not seats enough, and they are forming a church building fund.

—The Bishop baptised three children and confirmed two persons in Grace church, Jefferson City, on the 2nd inst. The parish is corresponding with a clergyman in Colorado about the vacant rectorship. The congregation is in good spirits.

—The Rev. Mr. Reed is proposing to hold services on Sunday afternoon somewhere in the neighborhood of Chouteau and Compton avenues in St. Louis, when he can find a hall or a room.

—An obstruction of the track and consequent taking off of the train on the Missouri Pacific railway prevented the Bishop from reaching Boonville for his appointment. He telegraphed immediately, six hours ahead however, but a large congregation assembled. The Rev. Mr. Gray, of Fayette, was present and officiated and baptized an infant. The Bishop has appointed Sunday, Dec. 24th, for his visit to take the place of the other.

—The Annual Report to Sept. 1st, of the Woman's Auxilliary Society of the Board of Missions, shows about this diocese that the missionary boxes were made as follows by the parishes in this city: Christ church three, valued at $280.50; Holy Communion four, valued at $321.18; Mt. Calvary one, valued at $50; St. George's two, valued at $204.45. Another box valued at $10 is reported as made by the Diocesan Society. Christ church gave in money $7, and Grace church, Kirkwood, $5. We are glad to know that Christ church, St. Joseph, proposes to make up a missionary box this winter.

—The Bishop made his visitation to Sedalia on Sunday, 5th inst. The parish is in charge of the Rev. C. A. Foster, LL. D., whose work is showing excellent results. The congregations meet for the present in a large hall which for the Bishop's services was filled to overflowing. Eight persons were confirmed at night. The parish, which owns three very handsome lots, eligibly situated, is halting between the building of a larger church of substantial material, for which they are hardly ready, and would have to incur debt, and the putting up of a frame church to answer for the present.

—The Rev. Dr. Runcie, on his way to the Church Congress, got as far as Evansville, Ind., but was recalled home by telegram to attend a funeral in his parish.

—The vestry of Trinity church, Hannibal, have called the Rev. Wm. B. Bolmak, as rector. He is now rector in Greeley, Colorado, having gone from Central, N. Y., two years ago. He is a person of force and a good preacher.

—The Rev. Dr. Schuyler visited and held services in Salem, Dent county, on Sunday, 12th inst.

—The Bishop confirmed three persons in Cuba, on the 9th inst. The Rev. Mr. Johnson holds monthly services here. A lot has been given, and a good amount secured for a church building.

—The Rev. Mr. Robert holds services every Thursday evening at the St. James' church, Ellendaleville.

RUBRICAL NOTES AND QUERIES.

III.

A writer in a recent paper explains why the usage in our Prayer Book differs from that of the Church of England in directing the use of the prayer for civil rulers, even when in the litany which immediately follows there is a repetition of a prayer for those in authority. In England the collect is omitted when the litany is said; with us it is said, even when in substance it is repeated in the litany directly after. It is explained that it was because Washington, only attending morning service, and that if he did not hear the prayer for the President in terms in the morning, he could not hear it in evening prayer; and so out of respect for him, in the compilation of the Prayer Book, the arrangement of the English Book, which was before them, and from which they were modelling, was departed from, and unusually, in the direction of greater length, by keeping in use the prayer for the President when the petition for those in authority follows immediately in the litany. In a time of revision the rubric of omission would no doubt be placed before this prayer, instead of after it, in directing what prayers should be omitted, when the litany is said.

It has no doubt been noticed that throughout the Prayer Book, no direction ever appears for sitting. This implies the age of the book, and the altered arrangements in church which it has witnessed. There were no seats in church when it was compiled. Then first there came into use movable benches or chairs. Fixed pews are only three or four hundred years old. Standing is therefore the proper posture in the baptismal, marriage and confirmation, from the beginning, until direction is given for kneeling. The same is true of the burial service, except during the lesson. Sitting during these services is only to be resorted to in case of fatigue. For the preface of John Knox' Scotch Liturgy, it is said: "Sitting is not Scriptural or Presbyterian. Scripture teems with instances of standing at praise, and kneeling at prayer; but there is not one solitary proof of sitting during any act of public worship." At all benedictions the posture is kneeling. Persons often, otherwise heedful, sit up or bump over at this time.

The Prayer Book specially directs that the General Confession should be made by all with an humble voice, as this is in keeping with its spirit. This is not always noticed. The desire for a strong, leading and full response often causes that this, which may be supposed to be the burden of a heart uttering out its conscious weakness and sin, and then pleading for mercy, and therefore spoken with subdued and saddened tone, is shouted out as though it were a rallying cry or a pæan of triumph. There should be changes in the feelings, and therefore changes in the expression, when we are uttering the Litany, or emerging into the Thanksgiving; whether we are reading the cadences of the prophets or the narratives of the Gospels. The complaint is moreover very often made that clergymen familiar with what they read, are apt to read with a rapidity bewildering to many laymen, and not always quite consistent with reverential expression.

THE LATE JUDGE HAMILTON.

On the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his rectorship of Christ church, October 5, 1879, the rector stated in a sermon delivered on that occasion, that out of 113 communicants found on the list of his predecessor, only 13 were then connected with the parish. The names were given, and at the head stood those of Alexander Hamilton and his wife Julia. Since that time both have passed from earth and are at rest, as we humbly trust, in Paradise.

Judge Hamilton at the time of his decease, with the exception of Mr. Edward Mead, who still lives honored among us, was the oldest layman in the State, who had taken an active interest in the affairs of the parish and the diocese. He came to this city as a young man, immediately after his marriage, in the summer of 1835. He seems at once to have taken an interest in the Church, for in April of the next year he was confirmed by Bishop Smith of Kentucky, in the first church that was built after the organization of the parish, on the corner of Third and Chestnut streets.

This church had been consecrated by Bishop Smith, who is now the Presiding Bishop of the American Church, on the 25th of May, 1834. And it is an interesting fact in connection with this consecration, that it was the first church consecrated by that venerable man.

He seems to have been elected into the vestry of the parish very soon after his confirmation, and continued in that body for a series of years. When the second church was consecrated, on the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets, February 17, 1839, Josiah Spaulding, Esq., presented and read the instrument of donation, and there were present of the vestry, Mr. Wilson P. Hunt and Dr. H. L. Hoffman, wardens; and Messrs. J. P. Doan, Daniel Hough, H. Von Phul, Edward Tracy, Asa Wilgus, R. M. Strother, Josiah Spaulding, H. S. Cox and Alexander Hamilton.

Up to this time the State of Missouri constituted a part of the missionary jurisdiction of Dr. Jackson Kemper, who was the first Missionary Bishop of the American Church. This earnest and laborious prelate had been for nearly four years rector of Christ church, in connection with episcopal duties embracing a wide field. He felt constrained to resign his rectorship, and he recommended that steps be taken to organize the diocese of Missouri. A primary convention was therefore called for 16th November, 1840, which met in Christ church, and among the delegates to the convention appears the name of Alexander Hamilton. He was, therefore, one of the earliest of the Church's counsellors in her capacity as a diocese; and was spared for many years to witness her healthy growth, and by his wisdom and zeal to help preserve her conservative position, and carry forward her various enterprises of beneficence for the Master.

Bishop Kemper continued to administer the affairs of the new diocese. At the Annual Convention held in Christ church September 27, 1843, it was resolved at the suggestion of the Bishop, who was present and presiding, to ask the next General Convention which was to assemble in Philadelphia, 1844, to appoint a Bishop for Missouri.

In this Convention, the name of Judge Hamilton appears, and he it was who presented the resolution by which an arrangement was effected between that body and the vestry of Christ church, whereby the Rev. Cicero S. Hawks, of Buffalo, New York, was recommended as the bishop of the diocese, and accepted, as the future rector of Christ church. This plan had been previously discussed in the vestry, and was in fact, suggested by Bishop Kemper, who spoke of it, as a plan, "by which I believe much good can be done to the diocese, and I be relieved from duties which are becoming greater than I can accomplish." It seemed at that time the only way by which the diocese could be kept alive, with any hope of future growth. From the deep interest Judge Hamilton felt in the carrying out of this plan, he went to Philadelphia at the meeting of the General Convention, not as a delegate, for the diocese was not entitled to a representation, but as an individual member of the diocese; ready to give information as to the condition and wants of the Church to all who might desire it.

When the present rector came October 1, 1834, to take charge of the parish, there was no Sunday-school, and it became a matter of prime importance who should become superintendent at its reorganization. The name of Judge Hamilton was at once suggested, and though with his modest estimate of himself he shrank from its responsibility, yet he undertook the duty cheerfully, and was for some time in this position. He has been elected at various times a delegate to the Diocesan Convention, the last time in A. D., 1879.

In social life he was eminently cheerful and genial; with a varied fund of conversation, drawn from a wide and diversified course of reading. With a retentive memory, and without pedantry, he was wont to draw from his literary treasures interesting topics, and he was never at a loss to entertain his friends pleasantly. He had deep religious feelings, and since his sore bereavement, in the death of his sainted wife, whom he loved with all the fervor of his soul, he seems to have been weaned in a great measure from the world; and when in the bosom of his family his thoughts and reflections turned Heavenward, and he loved to talk of the reunion and the rest of Paradise. And when he came to die, it was no shock to him to be told that his days were numbered. The dear Lord in whom he trusted was no stranger to him. For nearly fifty years he had been His humble, faithful disciple, and when the summons came to lay by his armour, and rest from the conflict with temptation and sin, it was accepted with almost eager impatience. The king of terrors had no fears for him, and he sank to his last repose as sweetly as an infant to its slumbers.

In the language of his favorite hymn—

"So long Thy Power has blest me, sure it still Will lead me on
O'er moor and fen, o'er crag and torrent, till
The night is gone,
And with the morn those angel faces smile,
Which I have loved long since, and lost awhile."

A PASTORAL INCIDENT.

The following may interest as giving a page out of the quiet life of a retired parish in the diocese, and an idea of what it is that makes up the toil and the joy of a clergyman far away from the crowded world, striving faithfully to do his duty:

My dear Bishop:—You take so much interest in these outlying posts of your diocese it has occurred to me to give you some account of yesterday's doings. At the morning service I baptized seven persons, two less than I had expected, and I had wished you had been present. The church was literally crowded, some, and not a few, on chairs. The altar was almost a garland of flowers. In the church below the rails and immediately in front of the altar, a neat table stood, raised upon which was a vessel containing the baptismal water, the latter surrounded with a beautiful coronet of flowers—this was a substitute for a font. About twenty-five persons occupied a line in the shape of a semi-ellipse, extending from the organ to the west corner; these included, of course, the young persons to be received into the Church by the administration of this sacrament. It will interest you to imagine a packed house of remarkably cultivated people, of every denomination—among whom were some Roman Catholics, gazing with intense interest on the administration, and on those about to receive this Holy Sacrament. But what will most delight you—The decorum was simply admirable. I had taken so much pains in the arrangements of our unpretentious little building, and everything looked so charming that the most incautious on entering was at once put upon his good behavior. So much for the effect of a little painstaking in preparation, supported by a conviction in our own minds of the dignity of our duties and the occasion. The result did not end here, but persons looking on were brought to feel that there was something more than a personal or private motive inducing so much interest being taken with their little ones. Some fond persons expressed the wish that their children were there, others that they had them to bring. These matters, insignificant in themselves, was to me a matter of first importance, being a step in advance upon the sentiment and system of open infidelity and freethinking, which is all but supreme in this locality. When all was over and everybody I could see filled with joy, I turned into the vestry, put my face between my hands and asked myself if this could be the last, or would the seed thus sown in obedience to our Lord's commands be as in the field, grow up we know not how—but as surely in the Church, watered and nourished by His constant grace. In the evening I wandered back to church alone, lighted it up myself, retired to the vestry, wondering if any one would come to the evening service, or had they exhausted all the life at the morning hour. By-and-bye one after another, then a few in groups, until the house again was filled at an earlier hour than usual—the largest number of persons I had seen since I have been here—and as in the morning, some from all the churches, and strangers not a few. After services I left the place I love so well, thankful for much already given.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The year of our general missionary accounts closed September 1st. The receipts for domestic missions for the year had been $220,112.23, being an excess of $26,397.34 over the appropriations made. This was turned over to the foreign department, the receipts of which other than the above were $154,535.67, leaving a deficit in this department to meet appropriations of $37,964.33. The above is exclusive of gifts for special objects.

—The special convention in Central Pennsylvania, called last month to elect an assistant bishop, decided not to go on with the matter. A committee was appointed to report lines for a division of the diocese.

—A correspondent of the London Guardian, describing the opening services of the recent English Church Congress at Derby, says: "I noticed that the General Thanksgiving was repeated by the whole congregation—a practice which I hold to be liturgically indefensible, and one for which the Thanksgiving is not at all structurally adapted; but which seems to be growing, notwithstanding."

—It may not be generally known that St. Louis has now become the greatest wheat market in the world, exceeding even Chicago. From Aug. 1st, 1881, to July 31st, 1882, St. Louis received 14,085,964 bushels to 13,116,580 received in the same time by Chicago.

—A special convention in the diocese of Mississippi has been called for the purpose of electing an assistant bishop.

—A bill is before the Vermont legislature prohibiting a divorced person from marrying within a year, and a person from whom a divorce is obtained from marrying within five years, or over, if the ground of complaint is a crime, in which case criminal prosecution must follow the divorce proceedings.

—The diocese of Lichfield, England, is scarcely larger than one of our counties in Missouri, and yet the Bishop says that he spends 200 days in each year on the railway.

—In the diocese of Central Pennsylvania in eleven years Bishop Howe has consecrated 27 churches of great beauty and value, of stone and of costly furnishings. Nearly two-thirds of the parishes have commodious and well-built parsonages.

—In Detroit, Mich., since St. Paul's church has been designated as the Bishop's church, and is to be used more than formerly for Episcopal purposes, there are to be changes made in the chancel, so that more clergymen can be accommodated. There is also to be a chancel organ and other memorial gifts.

—The popular demonstration of sympathy for the family of Col. Slayback will amount to $13,000, enough to pay off the mortgage on his house. His life insurance and dues from societies will leave his family more than $25,000 beside.

—The census shows that during the last thirty years the percentage of Irish born persons in this country has not been maintained. In 1850 they formed 43.5 per cent. of the foreign population, now they form but 27.76 per cent. of it, and 3.7 of the whole population. In Germans also show a slight falling from 33 per cent. of the total foreign population in 1870, to 29.5 in 1880. The Scandinavians have increased largely relatively, and the English, Scotch and Welsh about hold their own.

—The Liberal League of St. Louis could not get rid of a disagreeable odor, and a varied assortment of crack-brained characters, and so hopes to get on better under a new name, "The Century Club."

—Mr. R. A. Barnes, of this city, has added to his gift of one year ago of $25,000 to Central College, Fayette, by another gift of $20,000 for a professorship in memory of his mother.

—This is the way the associated press reported the anniversary services of the completion of the fiftieth year of his episcopate by Bishop Smith. He is wholly suppressed, and some irrelevant item has been added at the bottom:

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Services commemorating the consecration of four bishops fifty years ago, were held to-night at St. Paul's church. The bishops consecrated were Reverends Charles Pettit McIlvaine of Ohio, John Henry Hopkins of Vermont, George W. Doane, of New Jersey, and Benj. Bosworth of Kentucky. The last named is the sole survivor, but was not present. The church celebrated its John street M. E. 114th anniversary to-day.

—In the Clergymen's Insurance League there have been eighteen deaths during the past year; $328,000 have been paid by it to clergymen during the past fourteen, and $12,430 during the past year. Every time a member dies, there is an assessment of $2 on each member.

—Mr. Joseph Longworth, of Cincinnati, proposes to give to the school of art there ground rents amounting to $10,000 a year, provided the school is put under the charge of the trustees of the Art Museum.

—Two ladies commissioned by the French government to visit and examine the schools of this country, passed two or three days in St. Louis a fortnight ago. They commented upon the overdressing of some of the girls in some of the private schools. They did not refer to the Sisters' school.

—The Church Congress for 1884 is to be held in Detroit, Michigan. There will be no meeting next General Convention year.

—A writer in the North American Review, states that "one and one-fourth more money is expended annually in funerals in the United States than the Government expends for public school purposes. Funerals cost annually more money than the combined gold and silver yield of the country in the year 1880." These figures do not include the investments in cemeteries.

—The Mexican Commission have put forth a statement in guarded terms, which shows that they have some grave anxieties about the situation of things in that mission.

—St. Luke's church, Brooklyn, L. I., was recently consecrated, having been used forty years, but never until now out of debt.

—At the recent annual renting of pews in the Second Baptist church of this city, several pews with rental and premium added were let for $500 and over for the year.

—The rector, Rev. J. E. Wildman, of the church at Wallingford, Conn., where the great silver plating works are, offers to send a set of communion vessels of two pieces, a paten and a chalice of the best metal and quadruple plated with silver, to any address for $5.50. For $1 more the chalice will be gold lined. For $8 the set will be gold plated. For $1 extra a suitable silver-plated bread box will be sent. If they are to be sent by post 25 cents extra must be sent.

—At a little town in South Carolina the devotion of the women of the parish touched the bishop very much. The church had been dilapidated and unused. The ladies were anxious to restore it, but had no means. When the bishop came he found that the ladies themselves had reclaimed a piece of waste land, had broken it up and dug it themselves, then with their own hands had planted cotton seed, took care of it personally, and gathered it, made it into bales and sold it. So they restored their little church, and had services begun again. What nobility! But what must he think of the men that would allow this to be done? To a man they would declaim against woman's rights, and between their drinks would swear on the superiority of the male sex.

—In the small diocese of Nebraska, by little and little they have accumulated an Episcopal Fund already of $20,000, which at 8 per cent., and $700 from assessments, is already able to pay a salary of $2,300. This comes from a business-like going about the matter, and keeping at it.

—The Earl of Shrewsbury, one of the richest peers in England, has lately been showing a conspicuous example of impurity. The Bishop of Lichfield, in whose diocese he lives, has begged the clergy who live in the neighborhood of Alton Towers, the earl's seat, not to accept hospitality and give countenance to him. For a bishop to boycott an earl is something strange.

—The Court of Appeals of Iowa has decided that the Prohibition Liquor Law is invalid, because of some irregularities in its process through the legislature. Appeal has been taken to the Supreme Court.

—The Board of Health of New York has charge by law of all the plumbing business of the city.

MISCELLANY.

—It is astonishing how soon the whole conscience begins to unravel if a single stitch drops; one single sin indulged in makes a hole you could put your head through.

—It is said that a church in Michigan, when their minister was made a D. D., increased his salary by $500. That was a proof of their good will, but showed a want of familiarity with numerals—D. stands for $500, and D. D. naturally should mean $1,000.

—There is nothing more credulous than the incredulity of scepticism. The first Napoleon gave a home thrust to some of his officers who had been very freely ventilating their unbelief in the Bible as a revelation from God. "Gentlemen, it seems to me you make amends for not believing the Bible by believing everything else."

—This is the way one of the ladies who belong to the Atlantic Monthly's Contributors' Club remembers things: "Gen. Forrest was buried the day my new hat came home. Hayes was inaugurated the spring I made over my old silk. Dickens died when Jennie was a baby. Lincoln was killed when Mary was creeping. The civil war broke out when Salie was cutting her teeth. The King of Spain was born the year I was married."

—Miss Elizabeth Stuart Phelps as she was walking on the beach one day was asked if she were not afraid of the terrific storm then raging. She replied: "No; I prefer the voice of God to that of the summer boarders."

—The Rev. Dr. F. H. Hedge says in the September number of the Unitarian Review: "That the spirit of God may and does sometimes act directly on the soul, without intervention of Church or any secondary agent, is a fundamental principle of Christian doctrine, never to be surrendered. Every fresh dispensation of religion has originated in that way. But practically, for the mass of mankind, the spirit acts through the Church; and every sect that has grounded itself on the principle of private inspiration, from Montanism to Quakerism, has perished utterly, or drags a decadent."

—A lady who had company for tea reproved her little son several times, speaking, however, very gently. At last, out of patience with him, she said, sharply, "Jimmy, if you don't keep still I will send you away from the table." Looking up at her in surprise he asked: "Didn't you forget to use your company voice then, mother?"

—A story is going the rounds of an eccentric man who found his way to a church and seated himself in the nearest pew. Soon the owner came in, eyed the stranger askance, and then, writing "my pew" on the fly leaf of a Prayer Book, handed it to the intruder. The stranger read the words, smiled, and wrote underneath—"Nice pew; what did you pay for it?"

BOONVILLE.

The vestry of Christ church, this city, held a business meeting at the office of Cosgrove and Johnston, on Monday night, 30th ult. There were present J. J. Wilkins presiding, A. Sauter, Secretary; and Thos. B. Steel, M. Gaunt, S. W. Ravenel, John Cosgrove, W. Speed Stephens, John Weber, D. B. Gibson, J. H. Johnston, Henry M. Thomson, and absent T. M. Rice and John T. Pigott.

The resignation of D. B. Gibson as treasurer, was offered and accepted, and H. M. Thomson elected to fill his place.

J. J. Wilkins now in charge of the parish as a layman, with the secretary and treasurer, were made an auditing committee for all accounts.

The financial affairs and standing of the church was discussed at length and steps taken to place the Church matters of all sorts in a good and flourishing condition.

By authority of the vestry, Mr. Wilkins appointed J. H. Johnston and Speed Stephens as ushers to act for three months.

Letter by Bishop Robertson appointing Mr. T. B. Steel senior warden in place of Judge Adams, resigned, was read and put on record.

—Ready speech is not always a sign of a full mind. The more thoughts a man has, the harder it is for him to select from them off hand. "A small stock of ideas is more easily managed and sooner displayed than a great quantity crowded together." Every one who has noticed the talkers in a Sunday-school desk, in a social prayer-meeting, or in a religious convention, has had fresh evidence and illustrations of this truth.

WE have had four clerical marriages in the diocese during the last month or two, and if our pages were larger we would tell about the beauty of the brides, and the number and costliness of the presents, but we must refrain.

WE have recently received an amount of money from a Sunday-school superintendent in the diocese for Calvary catechisms. We had none such on hand, and were not engaged in that business. The best way to secure Church or Sunday-school books is to send direct to one of the New York Church publishers, the directions for which will be found in another column. The postage is no more from New York than St. Louis, and we know of no establishment here which keeps in stock any considerable supply of Church books. This is a shame and a pity, but it is nevertheless the fact.

SINCE the Trustees of St. Luke's Hospital have spent so much money in constructing the elaborate elevator, which has not been in operation yet for some reason, would it not be wise to let some competent person look into the matter and see why it cannot be set going. It is very greatly needed for the convenient administration of the institution. As it is, all the outlay goes for nothing. The number of visitors, many from a distance, who have heard of the convenience and good appointments of the Hospital is very considerable. Such persons have to be shown through every day.

WHEN was it ever known that a school for girls, without building or endowment, was expected to keep up, in respect of its standards and prices, with schools old established, and with buildings, and grounds, all complete and paid for? The Church is looking to our School of the Good Shepherd to be and do all that the best schools in the land do, and at rates as small as any, while it has itself to bear the annual charge of $1,800 a year for rent; and do this as against the Mary Institute, and Lindenwood, and Monticello, and Topeka, when all of these have buildings paid for, on which tens of thousands of dollars have been expended. There should be just judgment shown, at least until the Church shall have the grace and the ability to build its proper home for our girls' school, the most critically important duty it now has before it. As it is, with all its disadvantages, what from devotion and sacrifice, our school will rank with any, and the gentleness and sweetness of the dispositions nourished there makes it a home in which any parent will gladly entrust his child.

MR. E. A. FREEMAN, in his notes on his travels in the United States, remarks with much wonder upon the importation of national politics in municipal elections, and states how utterly it is unknown in England. When we come to think about it, it is strange how parties which draw their lines on slavery, and the tariff, and national finance, should keep up their cries and import their machinery into elections and questions of municipal taxation, and personal fitness for office. No doubt it is because men, accustomed to work and agree with others on larger questions, find it convenient to keep up the machinery of the party to rally men, who do not look beyond the heading of the ticket to pass local measures. But there is no reason why those of one party should look on all local questions in the same way, and as a matter of fact they do not. The lines here altogether cross those of the cleavages of the national parties; and there will be no really free action or large reform until local measures and candidates shall be judged by their own value, without obscuring the judgment and hampering the action by bringing in the alliances of national parties to govern the voting.

THE LATE ST. LOUIS AFFRAY.

The month has witnessed a most distressing occurrence in our city, which, besides its immediate personal consequences, which were deplorable enough, seems to have remanded us to the simple elements of savage life. The State which has had to suffer so much in reputation from the train robberies and murders, was in the way of vindicating itself and the dominancy of law in the breaking up and surrendering of its bands of marauders, when this new event comes to give point to the railing against us which so many with or without cause are ready to bring.

The finger has already been pointed to the cause in the recklessness of personal journalism, and the bitterness of political denunciation and defamation. When to these elements, all the time ready to stir up quarrels, in the heated atmosphere of a political campaign, is added the habit or disposition to carry about the person concealed weapons, we have all that is necessary to take us back out of the decencies and self regulation, and respect for law of this nineteenth century, and this great metropolis, to the savagery of personal taunting and attack of the middle ages.

The distress at all this is very deep now, but it lies in the germ, and threatens constantly to come out into baleful, shameful result, in the vituperation and bitterness, and falsification and besmirching of a political campaign, or in the recklessness of writing, which is thought to be necessary to give pungency to the newspaper. Here are stirring and gathering the elements which set friends at variance, which bring about affairs of "honor," which desolate families, and place the brand of Cain on the forehead.

Where are we better than the naked Taboos, unless we can in this later day measure our speech, control our tempers, remember that no man can be injured except by his own act and fault, depend upon the quiet but certain processes of the law to adjust all wrongs, and then utterly avoid and condemn the carrying of weapons which tempt to passion and their use? A community is judged by the newspaper which it maintains; and a savagery is but thinly covered over, even in the midst of the glamor and boasting of our nineteenth century polish, in which in every fourth man's pocket is carried, in defiance of law, an instrument of destruction. Here is place for personal shame and correction, while we mourn the death of a brave, and noble, and generous man, and deplore the obloquy and loss which will attach to our city and state for this sad occurrence.

THE TREASURER'S REMINDER.

At the bottom of the Treasurer's table in last month's number of the NEWS was a reminder and urgency from him to the parishes as to assessments remaining unpaid long after they are due. He remarks that he cannot pay those to whom the diocese owes money until the parishes themselves pay up. With the second quarter overdue, some had not paid the first quarter. He might have gone further and said that in a large number of cases there was before him the record of assessments remaining for a year or more unpaid from parishes which showed no other evidence of poverty.

These unpaid assessments were laid on themselves in Convention by the clergymen and delegates from the parishes which were delinquent. They voted deliberately to tax themselves so much, and then went home and forgot all about it. They have been reminded of the neglected duty by the delinquent lists in the successive numbers of this paper, by the Treasurer's reports in the Convention Journal, and by frequent notes from the Treasurer and Finance Committee.

The purposes for which these assessments are laid are perfectly well known. The money is required to pay the General Convention assessment on each diocese, for printing and expenses, of $3 for each clergyman, for the publishing of our own Convention Journal, for the salary of our Secretary of Convention, for the salary of the Bishop, and his travelling expenses through the diocese. The whole amount needed is so exactly computed, in order that there may be no undue burden on the diocese, that unless every place pays what is assigned to it, some of these dues cannot be met. No payment by some can excuse non-payment by others, because the whole amount, of large sums and small, must be met, or else some creditor of the diocese must go unpaid.

And unless it is promptly paid when due, there must be inconvenience and distress. How can such an amount of delinquency as can be seen in another column remain, without either the printer's bill, or the General Convention assessment, or the Bishop's salary remaining unpaid? It is easy for the parish treasurers, when they see these reminders, to lay away idly these disagreeable notices which tell them of their own and perhaps long neglects, but they should remember, and those in the parish back of them who have not paid up should remember, that for their neglect somebody is at that moment suffering.

Is it right, does it do any body any good, for the Treasurer to have to keep the Bishop, who has waited to the end of the quarter for his salary, two or three months longer before he can receive his dues? When the Bishop has kept the other diocesan finances up, so that never a missionary was delayed a day for his stipend, and no other obligation went for a moment unpaid after it was due, is it just that they should be in such arrears? When the diocesan honor is distributed around, and is in part in the keeping of each parish, does it give a high impression of good faith and honorable sensibility for parishes to act as though they did not care whether there was any bishop, or whether any of the other obligations of the diocese were met?

Except in extraordinary circumstances, there ought not to be one cent of diocesan delinquency. We ought not to have become accustomed to the sight of that familiarity which has made our corporate conscience torpid. The amounts which have been actively or passively assumed should be paid, and promptly. If a parish cannot do this, it should instantly make its representation to the Convention, and have the mistake corrected, and ask to have the stain upon its name removed. It ought not to be willing to be a party to making the diocese be in the position of discredit of not paying its debts. At any moment for the last twelve years if the parishes which are delinquent had paid their arrears, the Treasurer could have fully met the amount which the diocese borrowed of the Permanent Episcopal Fund in 1869, and has not yet repaid. Those who are short are responsible for this continued shame.

CHILDREN'S COT.

ST. LUKE'S HOSPITAL.

For several years an effort has been making to raise $3,000 from the children, and those who are interested in them, for the perpetual endowment for a cot and a room for a child at our Hospital, where a child not able to be otherwise provided for, may be kindly taken care of when sick or undergoing treatment. By little and little we have gone on so far. Gifts are urgently asked for this purpose, and will be credited in THE NEWS. They may be sent to the Bishop, 2727 Chestnut street, St. Louis.
